It is not to be inferred that because some contestants are not adding largely to their total recorded vote, they are slackening in the labor of gathering in the subscription ballots. In fact the contrary is the case, for there has never been a day since the contest began when more subscription votes were being issued than at the present time. Contestants are holding their votes back for later use, and the candidates who allow themselves to be deceived by appearances are due to receive a rude jolt.

Those who would win one of the three grand prizes offered should get busy at once and secure their full share of the many subscriptions that are being taken out each day. There is not the slightest doubt that the public, generally, is interested in the progress of the contest, and each candidate possesses a host of friends. In such a race as this, where valuable rewards are at stake, it will not do for those who hope to win to relax their activity for a single moment. Others are certain to be at work, covering all the territory, seeing all those who may be expected to lend their support, and lining them up for the great race down the homestretch.

Good hard work is being done by all the interested ones, and at this particular time it would be idle even to guess who will be the winner of the player-piano offered as the first prize. Every one of the candidates has an even chance of securing the high vote, and the honor that goes with it. Then, there is the regular piano that goes with the second high vote, and the cabinet vitaphone to be awarded to the one securing the third largest number of votes.

There is no telling now who will be the three lucky ones, and it must not be forgotten that it may be one's own organization or one's self if hard work is done, and that the lessening of vigilance just now may spell defeat. And after all is said and done, there should be no losers, as all those securing five or more yearly subscriptions will receive ten per cent. cash commission for their work.

The next count of votes will be made Saturday night and the result will be published in Monday's paper. The ballots will then be allowed to accumulate until the following Wednesday night, when all clipped coupons from the issues of the Daily Press if they are to count, must be deposited, as no clipped coupons will be counted in the final count on Saturday night, December 21.

Something New In Our Pyrography Department

Years ago "scroll saw" work was in great demand. So was Pyrography, or wood burning. Thousands of people are still doing both. Only recently, however, has a system been perfected by the Flemish Art Company, that combines these two well known pastimes into one, called Pyro-Scroll—the most fascinating, instructive and profitable pastime work ever conceived. Any one, any age, with a can make Christmas presents of exquisite design at a cost from THREE TO SIX TIMES CHEAPER than you can buy them. You can make—easily and at a very low cost—many beautiful articles fo rChristmas for father; a jardinere stand for mother; or jewel cases, glove boxes, card tables, handkerchief cases, towel racks, lamp shades, a dozen, yes, a hundred articles you would be proud to own and prouder to give.

Can you think of a more fascinating, more instructive or more profitable gift to give your child? On the main floor, left aisle, you will find the department of these outfits, and the wood to burn. There is a demonstration going on all the time. We will be glad to teach you, free, how to do the work.

BAZAAR OF MONTHS CHARMS THE 'PLAINS

Parish House Entertainment Draws Large Attendance and Nets $600.

The bazaar of months held yesterday afternoon and evening at the Scotch Plains Memorial Parish House, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary, proved a success and netted about $600 for the Parish House treasury. The affair began at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continued until midnight, during which time the Parish House was thronged with visitors. A turkey supper was served in the gymnasium, where 300 hungry folks were fed during the evening. Mrs. Fred Smith had general supervision of the affair, assisted by all the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

There were booths to represent all the months of the year. There was a village postoffice for January with Mrs. William Henry as postmistress, assisted by Miss Huntzman and Miss Thomae. A poppy bed represented February with Mrs. Thomas Norton, Mrs. William Norton, Mrs. Howe and Miss Hall in charge. Music was the attraction at the booth representing March. A candy booth represented April with Mrs. A. D. Beeken, Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Urner in charge. May was represented by a grocery booth, Bernard Brozack, Harry Paff and Mrs. Henry Myer, Jr., being in charge.

A profusion of roses fittingly marked the booth for June, the flowers trailing over lattice work. Those in charge were Miss Laura Bornmann, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. William Buckley, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. Atwood, Miss Myer, Miss Hues and Miss Allen. Miss Joplin was at the July booth, where ice cream was served. Fancy articles were sold at the August booth by Mrs. Ward, Mrs. F. K. Mathiews, Mrs. Vincent and Mrs. Mac Cauley. Lemonade and grape juice were served at the September booth by Miss Ruth Hatfield, Miss Ruth Dunn and Miss Evelyn Buckley. Fancy aprons were sold at the October booth by Miss Hannah Hayes, Mrs. Cattell, Mrs. Redmond, Miss Conger and Miss Lillian Hayes.

November was represented by typical Thanksgiving decorations in the gymnasium, where the turkey supper was served by Mrs. E. L. Hand, Mrs. Thomas Walsh, Mrs. Thomas Paff, Mrs. John Lyndall and Mrs. Fred Clawson. There was a Christmas booth for December, where toys, games, etc., were sold by Miss Bausler, Mrs. Scrivens, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Wolfe. At the close of the affair there was an auction and everything left was disposed of at good prices.

FACT AND FICTION IN SERMON-STORY

Dr. Strong's Preachment on Sunday Night Will Be a Novelty.

Services of unusual interest have been planned by the First Baptist church for the coming Sunday. In the morning the ordinance of baptism will be administered after the sermon. At the afternoon session of the Bible school, Mr. Diffendorfer, superintendent of Senior Work in the State, will address the school.

In the evening the pastor, Dr. Philip B. Strong, will give one of his sermon stories, entitled "How the Christ Child Came to Arthur." The story is a blending of fact and fiction with recitation and illustration combined in a running narrative which carries its own sermon without in any sense being one. These sermon stories have been very popular in Dr. Strong's previous ministry and he believes they will be equally aceptable here.

Next week, on Wednesday night, December 18, a noteworthy service is being planned in place of the regular midweek meeting. Ford Hummel, of Kingston, N. Y., one of the finest violinists in the Metropolitan district, will play four selections which will be united by comments and recitations by the pastor. It will be a musical service of strictly devotional character. To all these services the public is invited.

PLAINFIELD'S NEIGHBORS

Dunellen & Vicinity

The Baraca Class basketball team of the First Presbyterian church will play a game in the chapel tonight.

While moving the doors of the new vault, which is being installed in the National Bank, from the truck to the bank building, Wednesday, the men doing the work broke one of the rods connecting with the combination. This will delay the work of erecting the vault about a week.

The Baraca Class of the First Presbyterian church will hold its regular monthly business meeting Monday night, in the chapel.

L. L. Block and son, Louis, of East Orange place, will spend the week-end with relatives in Jersey City.

Charles E. Tinsman and family have moved from Jefferson avenue to Dunellen avenue.

At the last meeting of William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., it was decided to work hard for the player-piano offered by the Daily Press. Letters were sent out to Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Plainfield, P. O. S. of A. and the Daughters of Liberty, of Dunellen, asking for their assistance in the contest.

A series of bowling games is being arranged between the Baraca Class bowling team and the Woodbridge team. Half the games will be played on the local allays and half on the Woodbridge alleys. The first game will be played in town in the near future.

A number of the girls of the First Presbyterian church are taking advantage of the offer made by the Baraca Class and are enjoying the use of the alleys every afternoon and one night a week.

I. J. Stites, the tax collector, is busy receiving taxpayers' money. A number of the bills are paid in part by the Dunellen Building and Loan Company and make twice the work for the collector than the regular bills do.

Residents along North avenue are again complaining of the dust raised every time a trolley car or an automobile goes through town. They wonder why the local authorities don't get busy and put some kind of a preparation on the road to lay the dust.

John Doyle and family moved from North avenue to the house formerly owned by Daniel Knuteer on Front street today.

SMALLEY RAKES ANDERSON

"Nothing," said the chairman.

"You said that the trolley officials came to see you often before the bill was passed, but they did not come around afterward. What did you mean by that? I and my friends voted for you at the last election, but you have since shown a strong disposition against the Public Service Railway. While I have not questioned them, I think Mr. Brokaw and Mr. Archibald would vote for the franchise. It is the right of any citizen to expect fair treatment."

At this point Mr. Anderson interrupted Mr. Smalley to again ask him if the Public Service Railway has no interest in the matter, would the stone company, if granted a franchise, agree to let it lapse if the trolley company should ever purchase the road upon completion?

"I would not," replied Mr. Smalley. "I would not think of entering into such an agreement with anyone. The trolley company is now disgusted with the proposition. I wouldn't be surprised if they took out their switch and stop ordering stone. I signed for 550 front feet to allow the trolley to go to Watchung, which is more than any other citizen in the township has done.

"Mr. Anderson, you were unfair at the last hearing when you questioned every man to get an expression of opinion. That's no way to get the sentiment of a crowd. I would be willing to pick out the heaviest taxpayers in the township and I firmly believe they would favor this proposition. It is not going to harm the township."

Mr. Smalley then presented a letter from Col. Hine, of the P. S. R., in which he said that the board of directors of the company did not feel that conditions would warrant an extension of the trolley to Watchung, and therefore declined to make the improvement, and in answer to a question Mr. Smalley said he did not think the company would be willing to extend the tracks 600 or 700 feet.

Mr. Anderson gave as his reasons for opposing the proposition that Somerset street is narrow, the only outlet from the township to the borough, and in the added shipment of stone there wouldn't be sufficient compensation for the inconvenience. Besides, there would be an element of risk in operating cars down a steep grade from the quarry to Somerset street.

"You certainly have taken a decidedly opposite view from your previous argument," said Mr. Smalley. "The cars would move right along, doing away with any delay as at present. It is unfortunate that I am just over the line in the township. I have not had a square deal, Assemblyman Anderson. I am not here begging, only asking for what is right and fair. If you had been a deadly enemy of mine you could not have treated me worse. The Public Service Railway favored your election as Assemblyman."

Here Mr. Anderson again referred to meeting J. J. Burleigh, an official of the trolley company, at the Trenton Fair, at which time the latter assumed that he was going to vote to give the stone company a franchise, and when the chairman answered him in the negative, Mr. Burleigh is alleged to have said:

"Then you might as well go home; you are already dead."

Mr. Smalley said that Mr. Burleigh denies saying "you are dead," and never authorized anyone to threaten Mr. Anderson.

"But why didn't you speak to me before election," said Mr. Smalley.

"I didn't care a whoop about being elected," replied Mr. Anderson, to which Mr. Smalley said "pooh," or words to that effect, adding, "Your actions have had more to do with keeping the trolley out of Watchung than anything else."

Committeeman Archibald expressed the opinion that the sentiment of the people at the last meeting was against granting the franchise and as he represented the people he could not go against the sentiment. He didn't object to the switch, but thought the township should be compensated. Committman Brokaw said that he did not think it fair to hold up a man and his business, he had to be guided by public sentiment. He believed the township should get something in return for privileges granted, but still if he had been treated like Mr. Smalley he would feel "sore."

Mr. Anderson again stated his objections to granting the franchise, adding, "Who knows but what the trolley company plans to make this a central station from which stone will be delivered to all of its branch lines I still believe that the trolley company wants this privilege."

He then presented a resolution refusing the franchise, but it required more courage than that possessed by either Mr. Brokaw or Mr. Archibald to move its adoption, both declining to do so, and finally Mr. Anderson made the motion. After prolonged silence the three members voted to pass the resolution. Mr. Smalley suggested that the resolution be amended to so show that it was the sentiment for a trolley to Watchung and not opposition to the franchise that led to its rejection.

Following the action of the committee, Mr. Smalley informed the members that he was going to have that switch and hinted that he would go to the courts, although he was sorry to cause the trouble and expense.

There was a hinted suggestion that Mr. Smalley renew his offer to the township, in which he said he would pay 2½ cents on every ton of stone sold in return for the franchise, but he declined to make the proposition again.

As a closing incident to the meeting, Mr. Anderson suggested that inasmuch as Mr. Smalley intended taking the matter to the courts, in the future all business pertaining to the proposition should be taken up through counsel.

MR. BOARDMAN'S VIEWS.

The views expressed by Richard H. Boardman in yesterday's issue of our neighbor, the Courier-News, seems to us to have been inspired more by pugnacity than by mature reflection. For more than twenty years the city has been battling with the water company in one way or another and during all that time the position of the company has been gaining strength and to us it appears that the city has really been losing ground.

As we view it, neither a majority of the people nor a majority of the voters have ever had any heart in the contest. The majority have apparently believed that they were getting good water on reasonable terms and that is about all they have cared for. When the question of adopting the law, which was supposed to confer power to condemn the water works, was first submitted to the people at an election the small number of ballots cast in its favor seemingly alarmed the advocates and they did not proceed any further.

A few years later the law was changed so that a minority, not a majority, of the voters might adopt it and after a listless campaign, for there was no organized opposition, it was adopted by less than one-third of the voters of the city. Since then many citizens who were inclined to look with favor on the plan now oppose it or remain silent. Little if any interest is being taken in the matter at the present time.

We think Mr. Boardman is mistaken when he says that the city was advised by the late Craig A. Marsh that it could succeed in an effort to condemn the water works. At least we would like to have his proof of such an opinion. And as for the special counsel, Albert Wall, or the corporation counsel, William M. Stillman, we are not aware that such an opinion of theirs is on file. The average lawyer claims to be responsible only for his deliberate written opinions and not for hearsay views accredited to him.

It is true, beyond a doubt, that the city may continue the litigation with the water company for some time to come, and it may spend a lot of money that way. But will it pay to do so? Will the city win out in the end and will it be a good thing for Plainfield? Will it be profitable? Two commissions have already reported, if we remember rightly, that under municipal ownership the consumers cannot expect any material reduction in the water rates.

Those who have watched the course of the proceedings in this matter will recall that but a few years ago, the city could have made a very favorable contract with the company, giving this municipality a preferential right to the water supply at the Netherwood wells. Now it seems that nine or ten outlying towns have acquired that right, among them North Plainfield, and Plainfield must make the best contract it can get or spend anywhere from half a million to three millions to get a supply.

Mr. Boardman intimates that if the recall of judicial decisions were in force we might get some relief by that means. But how could that help us when a majority of voters supplied by the water company live outside of Plainfield?

The Daily Press is always glad to publish communications on local matters of any degree of importance. In this issue will be found a letter from William M. Wherry, Jr., on the opinion filed by the Supreme Court in the water supply condemnation proceedings. In this, as with any other subject of controversy, where the views held by citizens vary widely, all sides should be given a fair and impartial hearing. The Daily Press will welcome other communications on the water question on the one condition that the name of the writer be used.

It is a scathing indictment of the complaisant and supine nature of the average American electorate that Mercer county politicians should openly strive to compel the people of the county, who have declared for the small board of freeholders, to put up with the big board whether they like it or not. Those politicians are proceeding with their work seemingly without a single fear of public contempt or political death. When will the people learn to strike swiftly and when will they put the fear of the lash in the heart of the jobster?

The contributed editorials, a Saturday feature of the Plainfield Daily Press, are always interesting and generally instructive. They are written by big men; men who have abundant knowledge of the subjects they discuss. Now tomorrow's contributed editorial is going to be one of special interest. It will tell you something you don't know and would like to know. We advise you to read it.

Don't you want to be Santa Claus to some poor little boy or girl who would otherwise not know the real joys of Christmas? There's a way, and without any publicity. Read the Good Fellow letter on this page today.

FEASTED ON VENISON.

H. A. Todd, of Boice, Runyon & Co., was one of the guests at a deer dinner given Wednesday night by Clarence H. Hershey in Newark, following the latter's return from a sucessful hunting trip in Maine. In one room wives of several of the deer feasters ate venison too. Mr. Hershey entertained his friends in telling of his experiences while in Maine.

GET IN CITY BILLS.

City Clerk James T. MacMurray requests that all bills against the city be presented to him not later than December 17 to insure payment at the next meeting of the Common Council.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

PATRIOTIC ORDER ELECTS AND ARRANGES TO INSTALL

Camp No. 1, Patriotic Order of America, at its regular meeting in the Babcock building yesterday, received one proposition for membership, and arranged for the installation of officers on Thursday, January 9. COLORED OFFICE-CLEANER CHARGED WITH STEALING

In the arrest yesterday of William Johnson, 37 years old, of 328 East Fourth street, a colored man of all work, employed by a number of lawyers to clean their offices, the police believe they have the man who is responsible for several petty thefts during the past year. He was arrested on a charge of stealing $26 from the desk of Councilman-elect Francis J. Blatz, who has a suite of offices in the First National Bank Building.

The prisoner had made several confession, the police say, esterday he is alleged to have said three different times that he had taken the money. This morning, he said he was not guilty. He is said to have led Mr. Blatz on several wild-goose chases after the money. He is said to have asserted finally that he didn't know here the money was, or what he did with it.

Before City Judge De Meza this morning he alternated testimony statements of having lost the money in a "crap" game "over in the mountains," with denials of the theft. He was held for a further hearing tomorrow morning.

TRAFALGAR LODGE ELECTS.

These officers were installed for the coming year at the meeting of Trafalgar Lodge, Order Sons of St. George, held in the lodge rooms in Coward's Hall, last night: Worthy past president, George H. Bennett; worthy president, Leonard F. Bennett; worthy vice president, Harry James; worthy secretary, George Bridge; worthy treasurer, George A. Broadbent; worthy messenger, Walter Howe; worthy assistant secretary, Clement Howe; worthy assistant messenger, Joseph D. Whitehouse; worthy inside sentinel, George D. Pearson; worthy outside sentinel, John Bennett, and representative to Grand Lodge to be held at Jersey City, George D. Pearson.

SMALL BOY ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Claude Anderson, 11 years old, of 208 Plainfield avenue, small for his age, who was arrested less than a week ago for stealing several bicycle lamps and placed in the hands of the Probation officer, appeared in court this morning before City Judge DeMeza this morning charged with the theft of $1.15 from the desk of his school teacher in the Washington School. He was remanded for further hearing next Saturday.

Ritz Anniversary.

Manager Stephen Haff, of the Ritz Candy Company, has announced the fourth anniversary sale of the store to take place tomorrow. Mr. Haff succeeded the head of the Reynolds' Candy Store in December, 1908, and by his first-class management the store has grown in size and output until today it stands as the leading local candy store. During the anniversary unique art calendars, and other appropriate souvenirs will be given visitors who purchase sweetmeats.

ARCANUMITES ELECT.

These officers were elected last night by Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum: Regent, Edwin A. Marsh; vice-regent, Paul H. Burns; orator, John Dobson; past regent, Hugh A. Todd; secretary, L. V. P. Wilson; collector, E. T. Van Winkle; treasurer, D. W Littell; chaplain, Thomas B. Titsworth; guide, D. W. Littell, Jr.; warden, Abram Devine; sentry, Oliver R. Pearson; representative to the grand council, Hugh A. Todd and trustee, for three years, William R. Townsend.

BOUND BROOK MUSICALE.

William Holmes, baritone, and George Smith, tenor, soloists of the First Baptist church choir, and Miss Sadler, soprano soloist at the First Presbyterian church, will sing solo parts in the oratorio, "The Building of the Ship," by Pahee, in the musical to be given by the Bound Brook High School Glee Club, Wednesday night, December 18. Herbert Lloyd will have general charge of the affair as musical director.

ONLY ONE INJURED.

While on a bicycle in Front street near Somerset street, yesterday afternoon, Mathew Stevens, of Hillside avenue, rode so close to a galloping horse pulling a United States Express Company wagon, that the spirited animal stepped on the rear wheel of the vehicle, wrecking it and sending the rider to the ground. With the exception of a few scratches Stevens was not hurt.

TURCO-BALKAN CONFAB POSTPONED TO MONDAY

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)
London, Dec. 13.—Advices received here today report a naval engagement between Greek and Turkish warships in the Aegean Sea. Dispatches from Athens report that Greek troops have defeated Turkish forces at Pentepigadia, fifty miles from Janina.

Because of the delayed arrival of the Turkish envoys, the Tuco-Balkan peace conference did not begin today. It was said at the foreign office that the initial session would not be held before Monday.

BOYCOTT "CONSOLIDATED."

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)
Washington, Dec. 13.—At the money investigation today Banker Keppler said that when a curb stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange there can be no intercourse between the curb and the exchange in that stock. Mr. Untermyer tried to get Mr. Keppler to admit that he was familiar with curb quotations, but Kepler said he was entirely unfamiliar with stocks in which he was not interested.

SLAPPED HER, SHE CHARGES.

Westfield, Dec. 13.—Charged by Mrs. Mary Mack, of West Broad street, with slapping her face and that of her child, Louiga Scala was held in $150 bond for assault yesterday by Judge Collins. He was also held under the same bail to keep the peace. Scala boarded with Mrs. Mack and, it is alleged, her child called him names. When he slapped the child the woman interfered and he then turned on her.

FORESTRY DISPLAY PLANNED.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 13.—Forestry in New Jersey will be the subject of scrutiny and display about the same time next month, the scrutiny to be at Lakewood and the exhibition to be in Trenton. The display will aim to give light on the State's timber resources. The Association of Eastern Foresters will meet in Lakewood to debate methods pursued in the State service.

THE ROLE DUST PLAYS.

It Gives Us Clouds, Rain, Snow, Sunset Effects and Blue Skies.

While much evil has been attributed to dust, very little attention has been given to its benefits. Without dust there would be no blue sky nor any diffused light. Man's only light of day would be that directly radiated by the sun.

Light is produced by the vibrations of ether in the form of waves of variable extent, and these short or long waves are differently reflected, according to the dimensions of the grains of dust that they meet as they descend to earth. The fine dust reflects only the shortest waves, the blue. Dust of medium thickness reflects the yellow and the green waves, while the coarsest dust reflects nothing but the red.

We owe the blue of the sky to the fine dust in the atmospheric heights, where the air is purest. When the wind sets the dust in motion the blue turns to gray. The smoke of a cigar is blue as it issues from the cigar, while the smoke issuing from the mouth of the smoker is whitish gray because the particles of the gray smoke have increased in volume by fixing water vapor. The blue smoke of a burning cigar is like the blue sky, and as the water vapor is fixed by the smoke close to the mouth of the smoker so the vapor risen from the seas is condensed on the particles of atmospheric dust.

Without dust earth could have no rain. Not a drop of all the water evaporated from the oceans could come to earth on anything but the bearer of its condensations, the dust. Were it not for atmospheric dust there would be no clouds, no fog, no rain, no snow, no splendid sunsets, no azure skies. The surface of the ground, the trees, the houses, men and animals would be the objects on which water vapor would condense. The clothing of man and the fur of the animal would drip with water.—Harper's Weekly.

CARE FOR SICK ON TRAINS.

German Roads Have Special Cars For Transporting Invalids.

Excellent facilities are afforded in Germany for transporting invalids and cripples who are unable to walk, according to our consul at Brunswick. The German railroad system provides a first class car for invalids who can afford to use it. This car is fitted with every possible convenience for the sick. A special apartment, opening on the level of the station platform, with a double door, so that a stretcher can be carried in without the slightest difficulty, is set apart for the invalid and attendants. The balance of the car contains a kitchen, where meals can be prepared, and a section handsomely upholstered for members of the family or accompanying friends. For invalids who travel second or third class an apartment on an ordinary car is used, opening in like manner with a double door on the station platform.

The charges for transporting sick and helpless persons have hitherto been moderate. For invalids traveling third class the charge has been the cost of four tickets, free transport being granted for two attendants. This rate is still granted when the car containing the invalid apartment belongs to a regular train with a fixed destination; otherwise in the future six tickets second class must be purchased. In addition to the cost of these tickets there will be an additional charge of 7 pfennigs (1¾ cents) per axle and kilometer (0.62 mile) for the time the car runs empty before and after the transport of the invalid to the point of destination.

For example, if the invalid is transported from Berlin to Hamburg, 290 kilometers (180 miles), when the car containing the invalid apartment forms part of the regular train the charge will be 35.6 marks ($8.47); if the same car is specially ordered the chage will be 164.64 marks ($39.18).—United States Consular Reports.

Adirondack.

The word "Adirondack" comes to us from the language of the Mohawks. With them it was Ha-de-ron-dack and meant wood eaters. This term was applied in derision to a few members of a once powerful branch of the Algonquins, who were defeated by the Iroquois and forced to seek refuge in a fastness of the mountains. They were in great distress, and it is said they sent messengers to their victors asking them to make no further war upon them, as they were reduced to the necessity of eating roots and the bark of trees. A few of them finally escaped to the north, and others were captured and held in slavery by the Mohawks.

Pythons Like Milk.

"The fondness of pythons for milk is notorious," said an official of the zoo. "A python will follow a bowl of milk for miles and then be perfectly satisfied with the milk as a reward for its journey. In India sometimes the natives in traveling through the forests carry a torch ahead for fear of wild animals, and one man will bring up the rear carrying a bowl of milk. In this way they sometimes enter a town, followed by half a dozen pythons, as they say in India, 'wagging their tails behind them.'"—New York Times.

"Is yer gwine ter let dat mewel do as he pleases?" asked Uncle Ephriam's wife. "Wha's you' will power?"

"My will power's all right," he answered. "You jest want ter come out hyar an' measure dis here mewel's won't power."—Christian Register.

WILSON AND M'COMBS.

The President Elect and the Man Who Managed His Campaign.

To William Frank McCombs perhaps more than to any other one man Woodrow Wilson owes his success in the presidential contest. Mr. McCombs was one of the original "Wilson for president" men. He managed the Wilson preconvention campaign and as chairman of the Democratic national committee was at the head of the campaign preceding the election.

Between Governor Wilson and Mr. McCombs there is warm and genuine affection. This was demonstrated when Mr. McCombs called on the president elect at Princeton to congratulate him on his success. A photographer suggested that the governor and his campaign manager pose shaking hands.

© 1912, by American Press Association.

WOODROW WILSON AND WILLIAM F. M'COMBS.

"Oh, that's too artificial," said Governor Wilson, and he threw his arm around Mr. McCombs' shoulder.

Politicians generally are casting Mr. McCombs for a place in the Wilson cabinet.

Governor Wilson's statement as to his administration is as follows:

The results fill me with the hope that the thoughtful progressive forces of the nation may now at last unite to give the country freedom of enterprise and a government released from all selfish and private influences, devoted to justice and progress.

There is absolutely nothing for the honest and enlightened business men of the country to fear. No man whose business is conducted without violation of the rights of free competition and without such private understandings and secret alliances as violate the principle of our law and the policy of all wholesome commerce and enterprise need fear either interference or embarrassment from the administration.

Our hope and purpose is now to bring all the free forces of the nation into active and intelligent co-operation and to give to our prosperity a freshness and spirit and a confidence such as it has not had in our time.

The responsibilities of the task are tremendous, but they are common responsibilities which all leaders of action and opinion must share, and with the confidence of the people behind us everything that is right is possible. My own ambition will be more than satisfied if I may be permitted to be the frank spokesman of the nation's thoughtful purposes in these great matters.

Present Your Bills.

All bills against the city must be presented to City Clerk James T. MacMurray on or before December 17 to insure payment this month.

WHEN LIFE IS DONE

Some Peoples Give Their Dead to Animals to Devour.

PECULIAR FUNERAL CUSTOMS

Among Many Races There Are Different Methods of Burial For Men and Women—Rites That Are Inspired by Fear of the Spirit of the Departed.

Strange indeed are many of the ceremonies attending the disposal of the dead in different parts of the world, and, following the natural order of things, the more primitive the nation the more primitive its methods. The rudest mode now prevalent is that of simply leaving the body exposed, but the ways of exposure vary considerably. Some wandering tribes act on the maxim, "Where the tree falls, there let it lie," and, leaving the dead behind, move their camp to pastures new. The Wanyamwesi, however, carry their dead into the forest to be devoured by beats of prey, while some of the tribes of Guinea throw the corpse into the sea.

The Kamchadales keep dogs to consume their dead, under the strange impression that those who are devoured by dogs will be the masters of fine dogs in the world beyond. The Parsees, although a cultured nation, place their dead in a round tower, called a tower of science, and the vultures who make such towers their habitation finish the work. In Dahomey it was been stated that a person whose body has been struck by lightning is hacked to pieces and devoured by the priests.

Burial, of course, has many different forms, the simplest of which is perhaps the piling of stones or thorns over the body to keep off wild beasts. Some tribes bury their children by the roadside, so that their souls may enter into the bodies of the passersby. Burial in the earth is an earlier custom than that of cremation, embalming, or drying the body by suspending it from a tree, and many nations have more than one custom—for instance, merely burying their women, while the men are embalmed or dried.

An instance of several customs being in common use in one tribe is to be seen among the Kalmucks. They either expose, bury, burn, throw the body into the water, pile over it a heap of stones or build a hut over it, doing whatever the priest considers to be the most suitable. The position of the body also varies considerably, but as a general rule the head is laid either to the east or to the west. The Bongos, however, are an exception, for they bury the women with the face to the south, and the men with the face to the north.

"Among the primitive nations the expressions of grief at the loss of the deceased, grief not untinged with fear of him in his new state, and vent in self inflicted tortures and other tremendously exaggerated expressions of woe. The inhabitants of New Zealand—the aborigines that is—bedaub themselves with pigment and wound themselves with broken shells. The Hawaiians go still further, knocking out their teeth and cutting off an ear or finger joint, while, when Hawaii was under the rule of monarchs, at the king's death the nation at large feigned madness through grief, and this was the signal for unbridled license of every description.

No nation is there, as a whole, which believes that the soul does not continue to exist after it leaves the body, and the origin of many funeral rites is the belief that death means the soul's transition from one state to another and that it is necessary to entertain the soul on the journey; hence it is that wives, servants, horses, money, weapons, musical instruments, meat and drink are among the things buried with the body. The Laplanders supply the corpse with flint, steel and tinder wherewith to obtain light by the way, and the Gonds even place toothpicks in the grave.

Rather a touching custom is prevalent among the Greenlanders, for on the death of a child they bury a dog with it to guide it, certain that a dog will find his way anywhere. The Russians have a custom of placing a paper passport in the hand of the deceased to be shown to Peter at the gate of heaven, while at one time in Wales "sin eaters" were employed, who by eating a loaf of bread over the dead body took upon themselves the burden of the deceased's sins.

It would seem that the fear of being haunted by the ghost of the departed has had no small effect upon many of the rites practiced for the Egyptians turn the body round and round so as to confuse the spirit's idea of direction, while the peasants of Brandenburg pour a pail of water after the corpse to prevent its return, and the aborigines of Australia remove the nails of the dead, so that they may not scratch their way out of the grave.—London Globe.

Quoer Justice.

Prison Visitor—My friend, you ought not to complain. You are here to satisfy the demands of justice. Prisoner—Not much I am. For months my creditors kept urging me to raise money and when I raised a check they put me in jail. I'm blamed if I can see how you call that justice.

The weakest spot in every man is where he thinks himself the wisest.—Emmons.

Naming the Kangaroo.

The kangaroo came by his name rather strangely. When first Australia was discovered a sailor pointed to a kangaroo and asked a native what they called that animal. The poor black man having never met an Englishman before, had no idea what the sailor was talking about and replied in his own language, "Kangaroo"—that is, "I do not undestand." The sailor foolishly supposed this was the name of the animal in the Australian tongue, and ever since we have called the animal kangaroo, "I do not understand."

In Perfect Health.

"I'm a very nervous person," said the applicant for room and board to the burly landlord of the health resort hotel. "I don't want to associate with other nervous people."

"You can associate with me," laughed the landlord. "There's nothing the matter with my nerve." And he sent the prospective guest to a 7 by 9 bedroom that was only $40 a week.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Quickly Reduced.

Briggs—Do you put your pocketbook under your pillow when you sleep in a hotel?

Griggs—Never. You see, the first few nights the pocketbook would make my pillow too high; then after a week or so there isn't enough in it to be anxious about.—Boston Transcript.

His Possibilities.

GIMBELS Is the Most Resplendent Holiday Feature of the "Great White Way," by Night, and Its Brilliantly Lighted Floors Present the Most Radiant Christmas Store by Day

"Fiat Lux"—"Let There Be Light," was the first act of Creation. Long before the first stone of this great structure was laid—when this gleaming, gorgeous building, that fascinates you, as you go up Broadway these Yuletide nights, was still a roll of blue-prints—we made plans to make this THE MOST BRILLIANTLY LIGHTED STORE IN THE WORLD.

What a delight it is to see everything clearly and distinctly, so that there are no regrets such as follow when a thing "looks so different when you get it home."

One of the greatest London merchants said when he entered GIMBELS, just after it opened, "This Is the Store that Smiles."

Today GIMBELS is infinitely better than when he saw it—with tremendously greater and vastly finer stocks—the best and finest that Europe and America produce, brought here in the vast quantities and lavish assortments which our enthusiastic public now demands.

Civet Cat, Black Fox or Skunk-Opossum Collars on Women's Boucle Coats at $27.50

This attractive curly fabric is the newest whim of Fashion, because it is different, and is so wintery. These deep Fur Collars are for comfort, of course—but to give a modish tone, too. Lined throughout with satin. (Illustrated.)

A deep stitched velvet collar and braid bound edges, give distinction to another Boucle Model, at $25. Lined with satin.

Then there is another, with collar and deep front facings of plush at $16.50. And the $16.50 model has a long shawl collar of the boucle.

Boucle Coats, lined with saltz plush. $22.50.

A cleverly inverted belt joins in the back the overlapping sides of a smart Chinchilla Coat, whose edges are bound with braid, $21.50.

Broadcloth lines the yoke and faces the fronts of another chinchilla coat, whose price is very little—$25.

A quite unusual English tweed model, with collar and revers of mole coney or Arctic seal, is $25, because only a few of these coats remain. Previously $45.

Raincoats for Gifts—single and double rubberized textures, $5.95, $7.50 and $9.50. Gabardine coats $15.

Twenty Imported Coats of Vicuna and other mixtures, especially adapted for motoring and traveling—

THE CANDLE BUOY

A Friend of the Mississippi Pilots in the Old Days.

QUEER LITTLE LIGHTSHIPS.

They Were Floated and Anchored in the Channel of the River on Dark Nights and Showed the Navigator on Down Trips Where Reefs Were Not.

In the old steamboat days on the Mississippi, before the government had undertaken the duty of marking and lighting the "crossings" where the channel swings over from one bank to the other, the river pilots had to devise their own means of finding their way through these difficult and dangerous places.

In the daytime it was not hard to do, and on moonlight nights the landmarks, which every pilot knew by heart, could be seen plainly enough to make the crossing possible. But there were many nights so dark or foggy that the shore marks were not visible; then the reefs had to be "candled."

Candling was resorted to only on the down trip. Going up the river the pilot might "feel" of the reef with his boat, and if he did not find the best water the first time he could back off and try again a little to one side or the other, wherever the soundings showed the deepest water to be.

In going down the river, however, that was impossible. The pilot had to find the channel the first time, for if the boat struck the current would drive her hard on the reef or else swing her broadside on the bar and in ten minutes imbed her in the very midst of it with tons of drifting sand.

To guard against such a disaster when nearing Pig's Eye, Beef Slough or Trempeleau bars—or any one of a dozen bars of equal difficulty—on a dark or hazy night the pilot stopped the boat at the head of the reef. With two men to row, a mate or watchman to steer, a "cub" pilot to manipulate the "candle buoys" and an older pilot to take soundings, the yawl was lowered and permitted to drop down the channel below the steamboat.

After the pilot had determined the best course by taking soundings the "cub," under his direction, anchored two, three or even four of the candle buoys, one after the other, in the center of the channel, and then the men let the yawl drop down below the reef, where it lay a little outside the channel. Then one of the men swung a lantern—a signal at which the pilot on watch came ahead, steering for the tiny lighthouses and running over them, one by one, until the reef was passed.

The candle buoy was made of a piece of two inch light pine plank, beveled for four inches at the "bow" in order to prevent its "diving" as the current pressed against it. A tin "sconce" with three legs, three or four inches long, was tacked down to the plank. Half of a common candle was placed in each sconce, and after being lighted an oiled paper chimney, with a base corresponding to that of the candlestick, was placed over the light to protect it from the wind. The outer ends of the tin "legs" of the sconce were turned back over the base of the paper chimney to hold it in place, and the buoy was ready for launching.

A hole was bored about six inches from the end of the plank. Through the hole a small cord some ten or twelve feet in length was rove and knotted, and to this cord a lump of coal weighing perhaps ten pounds was tied. This served as an anchor to hold the buoy in its place in the center of the channel.

Such was the procedure fifty years ago or more. Since the government boats began patrolling the river and establishing permanent lights at all bad crossings it is seldom necessary for the pilots to go out in a sounding boat, although it is not an unheard of proceeding even now.

But the candle buoy is a thing of the past. Probably there are scores of present day pilots who never even heard of the makeshift little lightships that their puzzled predecessors were wont to launch amid the darkness and doubt of former years.—Youth's Companion.

A Title as Long as a Preface.

Many old pamphlets are distinguished by titles as long as prefaces. The author of one, published in 1646, evidently did not share in the modern editor's enthusiasm for short title headings, for this is the name under which his publication was ushered into the world: "Scotlands publick Acknowledgement of Gods Just Judgment upon their Nation for their Frequent Breach of Faith, Leagues, and Solemne Oathes made to their Neighbours of England in former ages, to gratine their Treacherous Confederates of France."—London Globe.

Rome's Triumphal Crown.

The triumphal crown of Rome was made of laurel leaves and was given to the general who achieved a great victory over an enemy. He entered the city not by a gate, but over a portion of the wall which was thrown down to afford a passage. At his funeral his laurel crown was placed in his bier and buried with the body.

'SKIDOO' SHOWS RIDERS PLACE

Six-Day Cyclists Are Twenty-three Miles Behind Record of Former Years.

SOME SORE AT KRAMER

Moran and Newark Boy Are Said to Be Favored by Officials—Others Ride on Flat to Show Displeasure —All but Two Still Tied for First.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Madison Square Garden, New York, Dec. 13.—With Root leading, the riders in the six-day bicycle race being held in Madison Square Garden, "loafed" over the tape at 2 o'clock this afternoon twenty-three miles behind the former record. The pedal-pushers are evidently feeling the effects of the hard grind, and of the swift pace that was set early in the week.

Twelve teams are still tied for the lead with the Loftes-Carman and the Suter-Suter teams two laps behind. With anticipation of exciting attempts by the riders to gain a lap giant crowds are swarming into the large enclosure.

At 9 o'clock today the standing of the teams was as follows:

	Miles	Laps
Kramer and Moran	2102	3
Clark and Hill	2102	3
Grenda and Pye	2102	3
Rutt and Fogler	2102	3
Root and Hehir	2102	3
Ryan and Thomas	2102	3
Perchicot and Egg	2101	3
Bdell and Mitten	3102	3
Walthour and Cameron	2102	3
Drobach and Collins	2102	3
Brocco and Berthet	2102	3
Walker and Wells	2102	3
Loftes and Carmen	2102	1
Suter and Suter	2102	1

The former record for the same is 2125 miles 1 lap.

The one o'clock standing of the teams showed the riders twenty-three miles behind the former record. As Thomas rode over the tape half asleep as the clock tolled one, the human speedometers occupying the official box announced that the riders had traveled 2,083.1 miles. There were few attempts made to gain laps from 8 o'clock this morning the riders feeling content to jog around the boards at a snails pace.

A series of falls caused by many wild sprints and attempts to gain laps between four and five o'clock this morning, resulted in keeping the riders off the track much of the time during that period. In consequence the wearied pedal pushers fell gradually behind the records of former years.

Angered over alleged favoritism to the team composed of Frank Kramer and Jimmy Moran, the riders began riding on the flat of the track shortly after seven o'clock and despite the hoots of the sleepy crowd and warnings of the officials continued the slow pace for over two hours. This was a repetition of the "near strike," pulled off Wednesday.

The most exciting effort to gain a lap that the race has yet produced occurred at 10 o'clock last night, when the riders were circling the big bowl at a moderate pace, with Ernie Pye in the lead. Eddie Root was close behind Pye, and as the field was strung out on the Twenty-sixth street side of the track Pye made a "jump." Root made no effort to take up the pursuit, and the other riders continued to follow Root's leisurely pace. Pye looked back when near the turn at the Madison avenue bank, and when he saw that the field was almost half a lap behind him he seemed to put on even more speed than before. Meanwhile the other riders had realized what was going on, and the long line was broken up the grand rush to overtake the flying rider.

Pye's partner, Alf Grenda, was ready for the relief when Pye came around for the next lap, and by his wonderful sprinting ability he had soon reached the rear of the field which was chasing him. Just as he was about to get into the middle of the "bunch" Drobach suffered a punctured tire, and the bell rang, ending the sprint.

WOODBRIDGE PLAYERS WANTED THEIR SUITS

Captain and Forward Refused to Play Without Promised New Raiment.

Not by way of framing up an excuse for the game that his team played against Plainfield High School here Wednesday afternoon, but just to clean up the situation for those who are likely to criticise his players for bragging over their nine straight victories, Coach Handler, of the Woodbridge High School basketball team, has made the followng statement to a Daily Press reporter:

"I am sorry that our boys had to encounter their first defeat after nine consecutive victories, but more than anything else regret that it came to us as it did. The school recently purchased new suits for the representative basketball team, and because all of the suits were not ready we were able to supply only three members of the team with them before coming to Plainfield. No favoritism was evidenced in giving the suits out and it so happened that two of our players, one of which was the captain, did not receive their outfits and immediately arose in revolt. They refused, at the last moment, to accompany the team to Plainfield and this weakened our team perceptibly. The captain plays center, our weakest spot against Plainfield, and as he stands six feet three inches in height, is of course our main cog on the defense. His shooting has been a feature in all of our games and without his services and those of the other holdout we played as a shattered team.

"To make matters still worse, two of our players were not allowed to accompany the team on the floor because of scholarship deficiencies, so we had but one regular man against P. H. S. Any basketball fan in this city who has any desire to inquire into the ability of the outlawed players, can readily do so when they come here under the name of a Woodbridge Parish House team Saturday night.

"We were also considerably handicapped by the size of your floor, which was not one-half as long as the one we are accustomed to.

"The Woodbridge team will come to this city with its full strength Saturday night to play the Y. M. C. A. Ajax at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. As most of the Y. M. C. A. players are also members of the High School team some idea of the chances of P. H. S. against the Woodbridge real team can readily be ascertained from this game."

SATTELS IS BOOKING BASEBALL CONTESTS

Passaic High School Will Probably Be Included in H. S. Schedule.

Manager Joseph Sattels, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, is busy filling up his schedule and would like to get in communication with all of the school's usual opponents on the diamond. He is booking games with some of the fastest scholastic nines in the State and in greater New York, and says that P. H. S. ball heavers will have a busy season under his management.

Although it is rather early to predict anything in regard to the National game, present appearances seem to foretell that the local school boys will have a speedy aggregation on the field. Sattels has not secured a coach for the nine as yet but has several in view and will engage a competent man to look after this end of the work. Among the teams the P. H. S. manager has been in communication with are Rahway, New Brunswick, Passaic, Montclair and Bound Brook High Schools. Athletic relations were opened with Passaic High School on the basketball court this year and the treatment accorded the basketball players during their reecnt visit to Passaic seems to warrant Sattels holding a place open for that team on his baseball schedule.

V. W. Nash, Jr., rolled 258 for a new Elks' league record last night at the Olympic Alleys. The former mark was held by Coyne, of New Brunswick, at 256. Nash's great work was the feature of the three-game victory of the Plainfield team over Paterson by scores of 994 to 905, 916 to 909, and 942 to 871.

Incidentally the local pinmen increased their team average from 911 to 916 and took second place to New Brunswick with 918.

Plainfield had little trouble in winning the first and the third game but it got a scare in the contest. The visitors came into the eighth frame with a lead of 80 pins and still led by 60 sticks when the tenth round opened. Kiely started with three strikes and Evans followed suit. Haberle and Nash went out with twenty pins apiece and Campbell tucked away another trio of strikes, Plainfield winning by 7 pins. The scores follow:

HOPE TEAM FINDS GRACE QUINT EASY

Too Much Team Work for Recently Organized Episcopalian Athletes.

Hope chapel triumphed last night over the recently organized Grace Episcopal church five on the latter's floor in an exciting game by a score of 35 to 25. In the first half, led by Grisley, Hope chapel displayed such a lightning attack that the defence of the Grace boys crumbled. Krom and Jack Ricketts succeeded in shooting a pair of goals apiece while Hope scored ten times, the half time score showed Hope chapel 19, Grace church 9. Clarke dropped a free-throw just before time was called.

Grace played better ball in the second period and held their opponents even, but the ten-point lead that the Chapel team secured in the first half proved too big a handicap to overcome. Grisley and Snyder played the feature game for the winners, while Ricketts and Krom starred for Grace. On account of the recent organization of Grace church on the basketball floor little team work was displayed and the developed squad play of Hope chapel made the victory easy.

The score:

HIGH SCHOOL QUINTET MEETS ESSEX FELLS

Expect a Victory, Even if Play is on Foreign Court.

Encouraged by the defeat they administered to the Woodbridge High School quartet Wednesday, the Plainfield High School basketball team will go to Essex Fells tomorrow afternoon confident of another victory. Although Wednesday's game was only the second of the season for P. H. S., and the Woodbridge team had weathered nine contests previous to stacking up against the local boys without encountering a single reverse, the visitors were completely outplayed at every stage of the game and were never to be considered after the first period ended. While the local High School boys are always slow in getting started, they seem to be right in the running after the first few minutes of play with any amount of pep and teamwork

Woodbridge was, no doubt, considerably handicapped by the size of the P. H. S. court, which is much smaller than the one they were used too, but the Plainfield team overcame this drawback by a series of shart passes which have been rehearsed at every team proctice. Coach Wriston has laid particular emphasis on making the passing short, sharp and accurate, so no matter what kind of a court his charges encounter at Essex Fells tomorrow afternoon, they will be under no severe handicap. Every member of the squad is in the finest possible condition and the regular lineup consisting of Heron, Woodhull, Good, Brynarski and Peacock will probably be used tomorrow.

Basketball enthusiasm has been work up to a high pitch at P. H. S. and it is likely that a large delegation of local rooters will acompany the team to Essex Fells.

Selling Out!

THE TIME IS GETTING VERY SHORT! THEN WE MUST VACATE OUR BUILDING!

Having rented our entire building at 202 and 204 West Front street to the S. S. Kresge Co. for a 5 & 10c Store, who takes possession on January 1st, we are compelled to sacrifice the balance of our stock, so as to clear the store. This sale will last until Christmas only, and now is the time for you to buy up-to-date and useful Christmas presents at prices that will amaze the most critical bargain hunters. Our orders for winter goods were placed some months ago, and the manufacturers would not accept our cancellations, so we had to accept the goods, which consists of many hundreds of the newest styles and colors of suits and overcoats.

Our stock of boys' and children's suits and overcoats is second to none in the city and all must be gotten rid of quick, therefore the great reduction in price. This is a bona fide selling out sale and every dollar's worth of our stock must be sold regardless of what it cost. No charge for alterations.

INITIAL CALL FOR P. H. S. CLASS BASKETBALL SOUNDED

Captain Brynarski, of the Plainfield High School senior basketball team, had candidates out today for first practice in the school "gym." The fact that the 1913 captain has landed a place on the first team will necessitate his turning the class leadership over to someone else, as the first team men are ineligible to play with a class team.

A large squad of candidates have signified their intention of trying out for a place on the senior class team and the captain elected will have a large delegation to pick from. The Interclass League will be started in a few days and as the senior class has captured the championship every year since it entered the school in 1909, the upper classmen are out to hold the record unblemished in their final year.

SOME LIVELY BOWLING IN FIVE-BACK TOURNEY

Dr. H. V. Hubbard scored three points, R. C. Campbell two and R. A. Suffern one point in the five-back bowling tournament rolled at the Park Club, last night. The scores were unusually high and the enthusiasm and rivalry ran high throughout the evening. The scores:

F. A. Weeks, 28, 33, 36-143; J. V. Beekman, 35, 35, 43-150; C. A. Rice, 49 ,48, 45-160; C. H. Campbell, 44, 46, 59-149; J. H. Howell, 33, 38, 32-141; R. A. Suffern, 47, 52, 48-175, J. B. COLOR TEAMS PLAY TWO LIVELY BASKETBALL GAMES

At the close of Dr. Corbusier's talk at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, last night, apparatus work was taken up by the class and was followed by two exciting basketball games. The White team defeated the Orange by the close score of 4 to 2. Bert Hansen, of the Whites, distinguished himself by tossing the winning basket for his team after the score stood tie at the end of the second half.

The Reds easily defeated their old enemies, the Greens, by a score of 7 to 2.

CENTRAL QUOIT SHOOTERS CAPTURE SEVEN GAMES

The Centrals, of this city, defeated the Elizabeth team last night in every one of the seven games played in the A. O. U. W. quoit tournament. Although the games were interesting enough from the spectators' standpoint the local players led all of the way and were never in danger of defeat.

The games which excited the most interest were the second, third, fourth and sixth. Edward Mosher and Lorenzo Spicer threw for Plainfield, while George Smith and A. C. Dennis represented the county seat. The Plainfield team showed much accuracy in its shots. Many of the pegs of the Elizabeth men went wild and gave the victors little trouble in coming home in first place. The next games in the tournament are scheduled for December 20. The Upchurch team, of Westfield, will play the local Columbia men in this city, and Elizabeth will battle Raritan at New Brunswick on that date. The scores last night were 21 to 6, 21 to 11, 21 to 12, 21 to 12, 21 to 9, 22 to 13, and 21 to 9.

MISS RICHARDS APPROVES OF TAFT'S RECENT MESSAGE

Miss Janet Richards, of Washington, who gave one of her winter series of lectures at the Hartridge Auditorium, yesterday afternoon, before a large audience of women, devoted virtually her entire talk to a consideration of President Taft's recent message, referring especially to his reference to foreign trade relations.

Miss Richards said that while in certain quarters the message had raised a storm of protest, it was in her opinion timely. Referring to this country's relations with China, Miss Richards said that it would be to the great advantage of the United States to recognize China's new independence.

SHOWED MOVING PICTURES.

An interesting moving picture program was presented last night at the Church of the Heavenly Rest. There were many unique films shown and after the picture show Richard Gilbert rendered two solos, accompanied by Miss Grace Graves. John Lee gave a recitation.

THIRD BASEMEN HARD TO FIND

Fewer Stars at This Position Than Any Other.

THREE DANDIES IN AMERICAN.

Gardner of Boston, Baker of Philadelphia and Foster of Washington In a Class by Themselves—National League Also Has Three Cracks.

Have you ever stopped to consider how few really high class third basemen there are in the country today? Here is a position which is extremely difficult to play satisfactorily. The demand for tophotchers far exceeds the supply.

Without any intention of hurting anybody's feelings, isn't it the truth that Earl Gardner of the Boston Red Sox, Frank Baker of the Philadelphia Athletics and Eddie Foster of the Washingtons are about the only really great third sackers in the American league—so that Hans Lobert of Philadelphia, Charley Herzog of New York and Bill Sweeney of Boston comprise the star talent in the National league?

Discussion of this subject was brought up near the close of the 1912 campaign when Manager Callahan of the Chicago White Sox deposed Harry Lord from the position and sent him to right field, giving "Rollie" Zeider the base for a few games. This came as a shock to many fans who believed Lord the king pin of the third basemen. For years he has been called the All American caliber, but it's an undoubted fact that Lord has fallen off somewhat in his fielding ability, although he hit well and ran the bases fast.

There's a possibility that Zeider may nudge up into the star class. He was the sensational third baseman when he was with the San Francisco Seals. George Huff, a former scout for the Chicago Cubs and now acting in the same capacity for the Cleveland Naps, watched Zeider play the sack in several games out on the coast, came back home and called "Rollie" one of the best third sackers he had ever noticed in the minor leagues.

Since that time Zeider has been shifted all over the infield, playing every position except that of third base. Next season he will have an opportunity of seeing whether he can come back and labor in the job after so long an absence from it. These past three years Zeider has been fairly itching to get the chance. Now he will get it.

Many probably will be surprised when Zimmerman of the Cubs is left out of this list. President Murphy of the team says neither he nor Evers would swap Zimmerman for any other third baseman in the land. It's true Heinie is a great hitter, but as yet he can scarcely be called a remarkable fielder. Occasionally he pulls off a brilliant play, but he is not consistent and makes many costly errors.

Home Run Baker of the Athletics perhaps stands out again this year—as last—as the leading man in the job. He generally is there with the sparkling fielding. He can hit when hits are needed. This statement demands no proof.

Eddie Foster of the Nationals was one of the finds of the 1912 season. A Chicago boy by birth, he has played baseball since he was a mite of a lad. He was the property of the Athletics for awhile, but Connie Mack let him go eventually, probably because of his size and the fact that he already had Baker. Eddie got his chance at Washington under Griffith, and he certainly has been producing some sparkling fielding stunts. He's there with the bat, too, and has been instrumental in many of the National victories.

One of the best third sackers the game ever developed has gone back to the minors. For many years Lee Tannehill of the White Sox kept at the head of the procession, but the throng finally passed him. Lee had the advantage of a magnificent pair of hands and an arm that was superb. Then he always was in condition and was as steady as they make them. Lee was playing his best when Jimmy Collins was performing wonders at Boston.

Gardner, for a man we hear little about, has done wonders at the job for the Red Sox. You rarely read about this youth, but he handles himself as well as any man wearing the spangles today. He has been a power both in the field and with the stick.

TIGER STAR STUDIES FISH.

Eddie Hart Engages In Seattle, Wash. Seldom Gets Into Print.

With all the modesty becoming a hero of the gridiron Ed Hart, captain of last year's Princeton championship football eleven, is learning the fish business in Seattle. Writers in Seattle recently dug Hart up from the oblivion he had cast himself into and put him back into the public prints, otherwise he would probably have escaped without a mention at the height of the football season.

For several years no player figured more in the news than Hart. He always played a wonderful game and is entitled to rank with the foremost. He could have coached half a dozen teams, but instead he headed for the Pacific Northwest and plunged into a business education.

TWO OF GREATEST FOOTBALL GAMES

This Year's Penn-Michigan Battle Still Talked About.

QUAKERS' STIRRING FINISH.

Won After Being Twenty-one Points Behind Yale—Princeton Contest of 1895 Belongs High Up In List of Notable Gridiron Classics.

Philadelphia football experts are of the opinion that the last Penn-Michigan battle was the "greatest football game ever played." It wasn't contended that the teams that played it were great teams, but that the contest itself was great, and no doubt it was. It contained all the elements of greatness, using the word in a certain sporting sense, and surely it was one of the most eventful of games. It was great in its excitement, its fine rallies, the spirit shown by the Quakers, its action and its stirring finish. Moreover, in the fact that Penn won after being twenty-one points behind is just about unparalleled in football.

There are no doubt many opinions of what is the greatest game ever played, and it is a difficult matter to pin that description to any one game. Few, if any, have ever seen a game which was as great, if constant action, exciting ebb and flow of battle, uncertainty as to the finish and big things by teams and individuals make greatness, as the Yale-Princeton game of 1895 at Manhattan field, New York. It was a vortex of strenuous strife from beginning to end, with both teams doing a lot and with long runs, blocked kicks and touchdowns crowding hard on the heels of one another.

The score of that epic conflict was 20 to 10 in favor of Yale, and any time there's a game with both sides scoring it's more interesting than when both sides don't. Yale made four touchdowns and Princeton two. Among other things which happened were:

MARSHALL OF PENN, WHOSE TOUCHDOWN DEFEATED MICHIGAN.

Bass, a Yale end, got the ball on a fumble on Yale's fifty yard line and ran sixty yards for the first touchdown. Yale was busy blocking kicks that autumn afternoon and blocked kicks always make the red blood leap. Charles Chadwick blocked three, on one of which Yale recovered the ball on Princeton's fifteen yard line, and Thorne — the incomparable Thorne, who was a Coy, a Brickley and a Thorpe in the battle—went over on the next play for a touchdown.

The score was 12 to 0 at the end of the first half, and it looked rosy for Yale, but in the second half the Tigers made a mighty brace and threw a scare into the Blue ranks before the struggle ended in the dark. With Bannard and Kelly bucking the line—and Princeton never has had a better back than Kelly—Princeton rushed the ball from the center of the field to Yale's ten yard line. Here Yale braced, took the leather on downs and Thorne ran a punt from Yale's fifty yard line to Princeton's fifteen. From there a touchdown was made. No goal was kicked and Yale had sixteen points to Princeton's none.

Then the Tiger awoke. Bannard and Kelly ripped into the Blue line and Princeton went sixty yards for a touchdown. A few minutes later a punt by Jerrems was blocked by Tyler, the Princeton tackle. The ball carromed back to Yale's line and in the wild scramble for it Thompson of Princeton nailed it for a touchdown. Yale now was only six points ahead, and it was anybody's game until just before the finish Thorne, with as thrilling a run as ever was seen, went forty-five yards for a touchdown on a fake kick.

Civet Cat and Moleskin

Two fashionable furs for morning tailored wear and afternoon dress wear

The smart black and yellow of civet cat is one of the best furs of the year for the tailored girl. It goes so well with tan walking boots and gloves.

Our civet cat furs are especially well marked—nearly all in the beautiful lyre markings characteristic of the best furs of this species. From a jaunty set of cravat and large flat muff at $32.50, to novelty sets at $175, combined with black lynx or cerise velvet. Separate scarfs, $15 up. Muffs, $30 up.

Civet cat coats, $250.

Gray moleskin has the advantage of serving equally well with tailored or evening costumes.

Our moleskin furs are distinguished for their beautiful color and markings, and their modish fashioning. Muffs from $35 up. Scarfs from $22 up.

A beautiful muff and scarf of moleskin combined with smoked fox is $325 the set. Very effective is a large heart-shaped muff and immense wide flat stole of moleskin, at $200 set.

A chic little collar and great "granny" muff of moleskin, with velvet and plisse chiffon, is $140 the set. A muff and scarf with entire ermine animal trimming, is $125 set.

Moleskin coats, $350 to $500, in short, three-quarter and full lengths.

JOHN WANAMAKER JEWELRY AND SILVERWARE A STORE NEWLY ENDOWED

OUR special Christmas patrons will be interested in learning that during the year many changes have been made in the Jewelry store which will greatly facilitate their selections of gifts.

(1) The store has been somewhat rearranged, with merchandise better classified and lighted.
(2) The assortment of everything has been greatly increased.
(3) There are many more fine goods than formerly.
(4) There are many pieces from abroad not likely to be duplicated.

The public may feel assured that the experienced experts at the head of this store are thorough and absolutely dependable: and further, inasmuch as few people have actual personal knowledge of the real value of things made of gold and silver and set with precious stones, it is worth while remembering that there is positive certainty of just valuing and pricing of all articles offered here.

It is always a pleasure to show the new things when they are still new.

"FOOL PROOF" AIR CRAFT IS LATEST

Glenn H. Curtis Has Devoted Time to Inventing Gryoscope Attachment.

Death's harvest in aviation ranks may soon cease. Glenn H. Curtiss, one of the pioneer aviators of the world, declares he has invented a gyroscope the use of which makes a flying craft stable. Fore stability and lateral stability are attained with its use, he declares, adding significantly that it is "fool proof." Mr. Curtiss contends that many of the aviation accidents have been due to recklessness and inexperience. He predicts that in another year the marine type of air craft which soars through the air or skims along the top of the water will be as common as automobiles.

Interest in Mr. Curtiss' announcement is worldwide. Captain Washington I. Chambers, chief of the navy aviation corps, said the navy will want his device if he proves its practicability. Officers of the Aero Club of America regard the invention as a history making epoch in the development of the flying craft. Experts admit frankly that if the gyroscope does half of what Mr. Curtiss declares it will eliminate the greatest dangers of aviation.

Mr. Curtiss recently returned from a trip abroad. He went to Germany, England, France, Russia and Austria to give army aviators the benefit of his experience. These nations have adopted the marine type of flying machine.

Pioneer American Suffragette Offers Heirloom to the Aviator.

Mrs. Woodhull Martin of London, formerly Victoria Woodhull, one of the pioneer women suffragists of America and now the widow of John Biddulph Martin, the banker, has offered through the Women's Aerial league a superb antique centerpiece to the first aviator who crosses the ocean to America.

The trophy is one of the art treasures of Mrs. Martin's beautiful old home at Norton's Park, Worcestershire. The Norton Park homestead has been in the Martin family for 300 years and is filled with art treasures, antiques and curios from all parts of the world.

A Secret Andrew Lang Kept.

Andrew Lang unraveled many historical puzzles, but there was one mystery the secret of which he knew but would not tell. He knew the truth about the famous murder of which Alan Breck was suspected and for which James Stewart was hanged. Stevenson in 'Kidnapped" lays the crime to the account of a mysterious companion of Alan's, and in so far that neither Alan nor James was the murderer he was right, said Mr. Lang. But the identity of the assassin was a clan secret, revealed to Mr. Lang as a fellow clansman, and he refused to make it public.

The Crayfish.

A curious mistake occurs in the word crayfish. The name was borrowed from the French, who call this lobsterlike animal ecrevisse. The English thought that because it lived in the water it must be a fish, says the Raja Yoga Messenger, and so we always call it the crayfish. Of course the little creature is no more a fish than a seal is a fish, or a sponge or an oyster, although they also live in the water.

A Genuine Pianola Piano —for Christmas

Select the piano that suits your purse from this famous group.
—Each is the leading piano of the world at its price.
—Each contains the marvelous Pianola, the recognized Standard Piano-player of the world.
—Each offers to artist and musical beginner alike, a perfect piano and—the means to play it perfectly.

No Other Gift Like This

In giving a Pianola Player-piano, you have the satisfaction of knowing you are bestowing the supreme article of its kind—the Player-piano preferred by the leading musicians, Rulers, and cultured classes of all nations.

You have the satisfaction of knowing that the happiness your gift confers will continue through the years, outlasting countless Christmas holidays.

Think for a moment what the possession of a Pianola Player-piano would mean to anyone—to you for instance—Imagine yourself in possession of one and seated at its keyboard.

What shall you play first? Airs from the musical comedy you heard only last night, or popular songs and dances of the day? You can have them.

What next? The old airs you've known since childhood? You can play them every one—from "Silver Threads" to "Sweet Evalina" and "The Mocking Bird."

Then what? A venturesome excursion into wonderful concert melodies. Play them all! Play "Faust" and "Carmen" and "William Tell." Play "The Moonlight Sonata" the "Ballade in A Flat" the "Melody in F." Play Grieg and Moszkowski. Play Liszt and Mendelssohn. Play everything, for look you—seated at this marvelous instrument you have absolute command over all the good music ever written.

What a gift this is—the ability to command all music, and greater still, the ability to play it yourself.

Only at Aeolian Hall

Can you buy the genuine Pianola Player-piano. It is to your advantage to know this. In buying any of the other instruments which the success of the Pianola Player-piano has brought upon the market, you forego important advantages like the Metrostyle, Themodist, Graduated Accompaniment, Sustaining Pedal Device, etc., which are essential to genuinely artistic playing and contribute vitally to the pleasure it gives. These advantages are all offered by the least expensive Pianola Player-piano, and are to be found on no other make of player-piano, irrespective of price.

Prices from $550

Informal Public Demonstrations

From 10 to 12 in the morning and from 3 to 5 in the afternoon, the Pianola Player-piano is publicly demonstrated in the Musician's Club Room at Aeolian Hall. All are cordially invited.

In addition, private demonstrations are given cheerfully at all hours entirely without obligation on the visitor's part.

BROKE INTO MARKET TO GET HIS PAY, HE SAYS

Metuchen, Dec. 13.—Because he wanted money due him, James H. Adams, formerly of Jersey City, broke into the Boston Market, owned by Neil C. MacCullum, according to the explanation he gave when arraigned before Recorder Weber. He was held for the Middlesex grand jury in bail on a charge of breaking and entering.

MacCullum said in court that a balance of $16.40 was due to Adams. The man has been here several months and covered a butterine route in the vicinty of Perth Amboy, Matawan and Keyport. He was arrested by Chief of Police Flaherty, on complaint of MacCullum, who accused Adams of breaking the lock to enter the market.

GOVERNMENT PLACES BAN ON WIRELESS AMATEURS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 (Special).—Commercial messages by wireless, or the exchange of signals in behalf of a ship in distress, will no longer be interfered with by the practice of amateur devotes of the new system of telegraphy, if the rules put into effect today by the Department of Commerce and Labor serve the purpose for which they are intended.

The new regulations establish a complete Federal control system over radio communication and require the licensing of all wireless operators working across State lines or in communication with ships at sea. Permits for radio stations will be issued only to citizens of the United States or Porto Rico or to a company incorporated under a Federal, State, Territorial or Porto Rican law. Amateur stations are to be restricted in wave lengths of transmittal to not exceeding 660 feet, except on special application to the Department of Commerce and Labor.

The Department will enforce the new regulations through inspectors at New York, Boston, Baltimore, Chicago, New Orleans, San Francisco, Savannah, Seattle and Cleveland. The United States has been divided into nine districts with headquarters in those cities.

Examinations of would-be operators will be held at the navy yards, naval stations, the naval academy, certain army posts, and elsewhere. Women as well as men are to be eligible for licenses as operators.

The Department of Commerce and Labor will combine the administration of the new rules to that of the act of 1910 to require wireless apparatus on all ocean passenger ships.

STOCK EXCHANGE MAN LENDS $10,000,000 DAILY

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—J. H. Griesel, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, was one of the witnesses yesterday before the Money Trust Committee. Mr. Untermyer questioned him concerning the lending of money on the Exchange. Mr. Griesel said he had loaned as much as $35,000,000 a day and on an average of $10,000,000 daily. He said that the large lenders of the Exchange were the National City Bank, the Chase National Bank, the National Bank of Commerce and Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

The witness acknowledged that J. P. Morgan & Co. were large lenders, going in heavy in emergencies. Charles W. Turner, a New York broker, through whom the National City Bank lends money on the Stock Exchange, was a witness before the Pujo Committee. He said that the City Bank never charged above six per cent. on loans but he did not think that was instrumental in keeping interests down as they were regulated by supply and demand.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The North Plainfield basketball team has a place to play in at last. The Board of Education has hired Saengerbund Hall for five afternoons and one evening every week and it will be in use all the time. There will be a regular schedule like last year for the first team, girls team and all class teams to practice. A class league will be formed in the near future.

Superintendent Vossler called the boys basketball team to his office the other day to have a heart to heart talk. He said he had heard much of last year's championship team and told the fellows they must make a similar record this year. He encouraged the boys to practice earnestly and defeat Summit H. S. which is next on the schedule. He suggested plans which will probably be carried out.

FOSTERING DEBATING AT PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

For the purpose of encouraging debating among the Plainfield High School students, a literary club has been formed which will be known as the Junto. The organization will be under the supervision of a member of the English department, who will drill the members.

A club of the same nature was started last year but interest lagged and after a few minor discussions between the Junto members it was abandoned. This year, however, the work has been taken up on a larger scale and the management of the club has several interscholastic debates under consideration. Among the other High Schools in this vicinity whose oratorically inclined students have organized in this way are the North Plainfield and Rahway High Schools.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL ELECTION.

One of Strangest Tales In Annals Of Crime Is the Case of Patrick

Four Execution Dates Set. Once Within Forty-eight Hours of Death.

Pardoned After Twelve Years For Murder of Aged Millionaire.

BIG FACTS IN PATRICK'S FIGHT FOR LIFE.

Twelve years and two months from the time when William Marsh Rice, multimillionaire, died, Albert T. Patrick, under life sentence for his murder, was pardoned by Governor Dix of New York.

Four dates had been set for Patrick's execution, and at one time he was within forty-eight hours of death.

His arrest was caused by suspicion aroused when he sent a check purporting to be signed by Rice to a bank for deposit in which his first name was written Abert, the "l" being omitted.

During Patrick's troubles his greatest comforters have been the woman who married him through the bars of the Tombs and his sister, Mrs. John T. Milliken.

His brother-in-law, Milliken, has spent $150,000 in an effort to clear Patrick and to obtain a pardon.

Under the accepted will the Rice institute of Houston, Tex., is the chief beneficiary. During the ten years Patrick was behind the bars $10,000,000 was appropriated for the institute, which was opened Sept. 28 last, the twelfth anniversary of Rice's death.

IN pardoning Albert T. Patrick, convicted of the murder of William Marsh Rice, Governor Dix of New York did what Governor Higgins, Governor Hughes and Governor White refused to do and wrote the "finis" mark on one of the strangest stories in the annals of American crime, bringing to an end a legal battle that has been fought for more than a decade. He restored to liberty a man found guilty of one of the most cruel murders ever committed, for the only method suggested was one of deliberation and the only possible motive greed for an old man's millions.

Patrick was a lawyer, and from the moment of his arrest, more than twelve ago, he used all his legal ability to fight for his freedom. He directed his own defense and in the subsequent proceedings argued brilliantly in his own behalf.

Aided by Millionaire Milliken.

Patrick was aided in his phenomenal fight for life by John T. Milliken, his wealthy St. Louis brother-in-law. And it is known that Herman H. Kohlsaat of Chicago was instrumental in part in securing the freedom.

Milliken is a millionaire gold miner, oil operator, manufacturing chemist and grain merchant. His income is $100,000 a month, which is 5 per cent interest on $24,000,000. He has made as much as $2,000,000 in a single speculative deal in grain on the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange; also is he a noted collector of paintings. A man with the habit of reticence, he has made no public statement during the long fight in which he aided his broth-in-law with his millions. And when the thing was accomplished he merely said:

"I spent my money to save Patrick's life and later to get him out of the penitentiary for two reasons. The first was that I thought it would be a poor heritage to leave to my three children if their uncle should go through life branded as a murderer. The second reason was that I believed him innocent."

250,000 Signatures to Petitions.

Throughout the years that Patrick was in prison Milliken used his money lavishly in gathering scientific information which would arouse public sentiment in Patrick's favor. And wherever such sentiment was aroused it was promptly crystallized in the shape of petitions. From first to last the campaign included the obtaining of more than 250,000 signatures to petitions for clemency.

Dr. William Smith, professor of anatomy and medical jurisprudence in the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., was enlisted in the cause and spent several years in an effort to establish scientific proof that the congestion of Rice's lungs was caused by the embalming fluid and not by chloroform. Researches along this line were made in America, London and Paris.

Bodies were used in conducting experiments and conventions of undertakers and medico-legal societies were put upon record as indorsing the views which in Milliken's belief would prove his brother-in-law's innocence.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, author of the Sherlock Holmes detective stories, was induced to turn his mental searchlight on the case, and his published conclusion was that there had been "a gross miscarriage of justice."

Joseph Bell, president of two royal colleges in Edinburgh and the original after whom Doyle modeled the character of Sherlock Holmes, expressed his opinion that the embalming fluid would cause congestion.

Milliken spent $25,000 in a world-wide search for Rice's valet, Charles F. Jones, confessed murderer who swore he acted under Patrick's directions.

A recent close observer of the pardoned lawyer said that his dogged determination, resourcefulness and power were not only manifest in his face, but in his hands. A study of them shows strong, virile, thick fingers, denoting physical force and cool balance. They are the hands of an undaunted man who assails problems with an aggressiveness that foresees no defeat. John L. Sullivan had hands somewhat like them, excepting the thumbs, which are of what is called the "artistic length."

The omission of an "l" in the writing of the name "Albert T. Patrick" as the payee of a check bearing the signature "William M. Rice" brought Albert T. Patrick's alleged cleverly worked out murder plot to naught and prevented him from securing the millions of William Marsh Rice.

JOHN T. MILLIKEN.

of eighty-four years. The bulk of his $7,000,000 estate had been devised by his will of four years before to the William M. Rice Institute For the Advancement of Science, Art and Literature of Texas. A few meager legacies were assigned to his relatives, of whom he chose to see little, and, satisfied with this disposition of his affairs, he lived alone in his apartment, with his valet, Charles F. Jones, whom he had brought from Texas as his sole medium of communication with the outside world.

Mr. Marsh died on Sept. 23, 1900. The coroner's physician said that death was due to natural causes, although there were elements in the case that excited suspicion.

With the passing away of the lonely old millionaire, Patrick came forward as his lawyer and at once began to arrange for the incineration of the body. There was a hitch. Troublesome officials bobbed up in his path, and questions were asked, while from Texas relatives and others came an insistent demand for an investigation.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Douglas Fairbanks has a hit in "Hawthorne, U. S. A."

"The Lady of the Slipper" may be produced in London.

Lillian Lorraine is going into vaudeville with a sketch.

"The Governor's Lady" is to go to Philadelphia for a run.

"The Merry Countess" is to go on tour about Christmas week.

Fred C. Whitney is soon to produce "My Little Friend" in Chicago.

"A Romance of the Underworld" is to be used by the stock companies.

John E. Hellerd, who scored a success in "Hamlet," is to play "Shylock."

"The Dove of Peace" is to be revived. Musically, the opera was highly praised.

Willard Holcomb's playlet, "Her Last Rehearsal," has been revived with success.

May Buckley has been engaged as leading woman with a stock company in Toledo, O.

Tully Marshall is to rehearse a new play by his wife, Marion Fairfax, author of "The Talker."

"Hindle Wakes," with the original English company, is being played at the Maxine Elliott theatre, New York.

Harry Lauder's nine weeks' tour of America will open with one week at the Casino, New York, a week from next Monday.

Maurice Campbell, the manager of Henrietta Crosman, is going to produce a play in Chicago some time this month.

Joseph M. Gaites is soon to produce a new musical play entitled "The Purple Road," by Fred de Grossac and Victor Hollander.

Paul Rubens, the author of "The Sunshine Girl," is writing a musical play for Charles Frohman, which will be caled "The X-Ray Girl."

Alma Francis, who plays the part of Pipsi in the new McDonough-Lehar musical drama "Eva," is the daughter of a prominent mining engineer in San Francisco.

This winter Mrs. Leslie Carter will venture out in a repertory of her old successes, evidently designed for the smaller towns. She will appear in "Zaza," "Camille" and "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

Hilda Keenan, daughter of Frank Keenan, who has been playing with her father in vaudeville, has been engaged for a role in "The Road to Arcady," by Edith Sessions Tupper, now at the Berkeley theatre, New York.

Henry Kolker and the company that is appearing in 'Our Wives," at the Gaiety theatre are planning to establish a repertoire of plays during their engagements out of New York and present them upon their return to the city in the spring. Special matinees will be given in Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston and the first play to be performed will be "The Man," a drama by Mr. Kolker himself.

TWO MEET DEATH.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Philadelphia, Dec. 13.—Two men were instantly killed at Forty-sixth street and Girard avenue on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday, when an express struck them on their way to work, hurling them fifty feet. They were Patrick J. Riorden and William Mahon, both employed at the Pennsylvania Railroad shops.

SERVIA RECALLS MINISTER.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Vienna, Dec. 13.—By an order from Belgrade, the Servian minister to Austria, M. Simics, was recalled yesterday. There was no explanation offered by the diplomat or the Servian foreign minister. No successor to the recalled minister was announced.

MINERS IN WEST VA. COAL FIELDS NOW THREATEN ANARCHY; TAKE DESPERATE MEASURES AS FAMILIES SUFFER FROM COLD

Top picture shows striking miners being led to court martial; Governor Glasscock (lower left), and striking miner's family.

There has been but little improvement in the situation in the West Virginia coal mining districts, where for several months a strike has been in progress. The striking miners are in desperate straits. In spite of the approach of winter many of them are still living in tents. A condition of anarchy would prevail were it not for the presence of the state troops.

Gov. Glasscock has done all in his power to bring miners and operators together, but without success. A number of miners have been sentenced by the military court to terms in the penitentiary.

CHRISTMAS

Today's the Day You Ought to Get Busy

Forget those sighs of "Oh, dear, if my pocketbook were only fatter!" Instead of worrying about money—get the real Xmas spirit and join the happy credit throngs at Greene's. Open an account and buy something sensible for your Christmas gifts. Don't you think some pieces of Furniture for instance a Music Cabinet, a nice, comfortable Morris Chair, a Gold Curio Cabinet, a large, roomy Turkish Rocker, a dainty Parlor Table, or a beautiful Rug, would be a great deal more appreciated and lasting than the usual so-called Xmas present gotten up for the occasion? Why, of course you do, but you're afraid it's going to cost too much money. Nothing of the kind—we're going to be with you, we're going to share part of these expenses, and this is how: We have put aside what we thought are the most appropriate pieces for holiday presents and cut the prices just one-half. Doesn't this sound good to you? Just take a peep at our windows—they're chock-full of odd pieces—then come in our showrooms and we will show you hundreds more.

Rough Shaving.

Some time after Auguste Van Biene, the celebrated cellist, settled in London he made the acquaintance of that irrepressible comedian, J. L. Toole. The latter had conceived an extraordinary craze for distributing safety razors broadcast among his friends and promptly begged Van Biene's acceptance of one.

The distinguished actor-musician acknowledged the gift with thanks, but when he next met Toole the lacerated condition of his chin afforded ample proof that the razor was hardly as safe as might have been expected. Toole asked to see the razor and at once burst into a roar of laughter.

"Dear me!" he gasped. "And you actually tried to shave yourself with that? Why, I've forgotten to send you the blades!"

Give Your Best.

There are loyal hearts; there are spirits brave;
There are souls that are pure and true.
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your life will flow,
A strength in your utmost need
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

—M. S. Bridges.

An Eye For an Eye.

A certain very attractive young lady has a host of male admirers, among whom is a rather handsome and vivacious blue eyed youth. He goes much into society and is a hot favorite among the nicer sex because of his eyes. Alack! One of them is glass. But there is no need, as he says, for every one to know that, and, really, it seems so much the counterpart of the other that not one in a hundred would detect it. On one occasion he escorted the young lady in question to a refreshment room. As they were taking tea and coffee he looked unutterable things at her, when all of a sudden she gave vent to a startled exclamation. Her eyes fixed on his with a mysterious intentness and horror. A fly had settled in the center of his glass eye and remained there, he, of course, unconscious of its presence. The sight of that eye looking at her with a fly on it and the owner making no attempt to brush it off was too much for his companion. It overpowered her.

Joking For a Bargain.

Both H. C. Bunner and R. K. Munkittrick are dead, but when Bunner was editor of Puck Munkittrick was one of the star contributors.

Munkittrick was an artist at his business. He knew how to write poems and jokes—knew the mechanics of the business thoroughly—and Bunner bought what he offered.

One day Munkittrick came in, sat down at a desk and wrote nine jokes. He took these in to Bunner, who accepted them at $1 each, the regular rate, and gave a credit slip to Munkittrick, who took it to the cashier and got his $9. Two hours later Munkittrick came in, wrote three more jokes and took them in to Bunner. "How's this?" asked Bunner. "Why didn't you turn in all twelve jokes when you were in before?"

"Well," Munkittrick replied, "it was this way: My wife found an advertisement in the paper this morning of a bargain in refrigerators. We need a refrigerator, and she sent me over to get one. They cost $8.95, and I came in and procured the $9 to pay for it. When I got up to the store I found all the refrigerators at $8.95 had been sold and the only one I could get cost $11.55, so I came back to get the other $3 I need."—Saturday Evening Post.

Worked a Pun on the Professor.

Charles Edson, the artist, while a student at Kansas university was asked one day by the professor of philosophy: "Mr. Edson, suppose the corpuscles in the blood flowing along in your veins had a consciousness, as you have, would they not regard their relation to your body in much the same way as you regard the universe in its relation to you; might they not, too, have a philosophy of life?"

"Granting a corpuscle had a consciousness," replied Mr. Edson, "no doubt we would be as incomprehensible to it as is the universe to us, and if as it floated along in our veins a corpuscle formulated a philosophy no doubt it would decide it had lived in vein."—Kansas City Star.

Full of Them.

"I spent my vacation in Wiscasset," said Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth capitalist. "Wiscasset, you know, is famous for having originated the phrase 'The woods is full of 'em.'

"This is the story:

"A very deaf old man was shooting squirrels down Wiscasset way. A stranger happened along and said:

"'Old man, which is the road to Wiscasset?'

"The deaf old fellow, failing to understand, answered:

"'Thar's one—thar's a squirrel—settin' up thar on that tree. See him?'

"'I didn't ask you about the squirrels,' said the stranger impatiently. 'I asked you, durn it all, which was the road to Wiscasset?'

"'Yep,' said the deaf old huntsman excitedly. 'Yep, thar's another, too, jest a peekin' outen that knothole.'

"Then the stranger, losing his patience roared:

"'You're a fool!'

"'Yep, the woods is full of 'em,' said the old man complacently."—Detroit Free Press.

MAJOR GENERAL BARRY IN LINE TO SUCCEED LEONARD WOOD

CHIEF OF STAFF OF UNCLE SAM'S ARMY

Washington, Dec. 13.—Major General T. H. Barry, at present commander of the department of the east, with headquarters at Governors Island, New York, is believed to be slated for the position of chief of staff after March 4, when the assignment of Major General Leonard Wood to that post ends. The chief of staff is the president's principal military adviser, and the assignment to the post is for four years. General Barry will have six years of active service after next March. He was in command of the United States army during the pacification of Cuba.

RIDING THROUGH LIFE.

Every John Drew day is divided into so many periods of work, recreation, reading, correspondence and study with the exactness of a time-table. Daylight is very precious to an actor. It is only then that he is not an actor. Mr. Drew realizes this so keenly that in working out his daily schedule he cuts down all loss of time by being driven from place to place, starting with an early morning horseback ride in the park.

ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Christchurch, New Zealand, Dec. 13 (Special).—The ship Terra Nova will sail tomorrow for the Antarctic region with the object of bringing back Captain Scott and his associates of the British expedition to the South Pole. Captain Scott was last heard from on January 4 last, at which time the Polar party were only 145 miles from the goal of their hopes, and were travelling at the rate of 15 miles a day. All being well the Pole should therefore have been reached about January 15 last. The party were expected back at Hut Point, where the Terra Nova was waiting for them, about March 15. But on March 5 the sea was freezing so rapidly that the ship's commander considered it unwise to remain longer, owing to the hourly increasing risk that the ship would be frozen in. It is supposed that Captain Scott and his companions returned to the winter quarters about the end of March. No further news can be received from him until the Terra Nova again returns from the Far South about the end of next March.

JR. O. U. A. M. CONFERENCE.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 (Special).—A conference of national officers and State councilors of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics assembled in this city today, with National Councilor John J. Weitzell, of Cincinnati presiding. The conference will last two days. In addition to discussing various questions affecting the order several matters of general importance are scheduled for consideration, including the restriction of immigration and plans to secure uniform public school legislation in the several States.

FRIBBLES OF FASHION.

Striped Materials Much Used For Tailored Gown This Year.

Striped materials are being very much used for tailored gowns. Generally speaking, they are very becoming, especially if the stripes are comparatively narrow.

Some of the novelty dresses are trimmed with marabou on collar, cuffs and in the edge of narrow vests.

Charming afternoon gowns of white satin are trimmed with black chantilly lace. One very pretty model of supple white satin has black messaline draped over the skirt and bodice.

Here is a very useful gown in semi-princess style. It is charming made of charmeuse or of less dressy materials. The blouse is without fullness in conformity with the prevailing fashion of the winter.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

THE YULETIDE GOOSE.

THE Christmas goose is preferred to the Christmas turkey in some households.

For roasting a goose should be scarcely past the gosling period, not more than a year old at the most. Its wings should be supple and tender at the pinions, its breastbone soft and pliable, its feet smooth and yellow and its fat white and soft.

Before drawing singe the fowl; then give it a thorough bath with soapsuds and a soft scrubbing brush. The skin is so oily cold water would make no impression.

Rinse thoroughly in clear cold water; then dry and draw. Wash the inside quickly with clear water to which a little baking soda has been added; then rinse and wipe.

Various Dressings.

The Germans like a stuffing made of equal parts of breadcrumbs, chopped apples, seeded raisins and boiled onions well seasoned with salt, pepper and butter.

Americans, as a rule, prefer a potato stuffing made of mashed potato highly seasoned with onion, salt, pepper and a little butter and sage. The yolks of two eggs allowed to each pint of potato makes the dressing richer.

Saving the Fat.

Before trussing the goose remove all the extra fat. This should be saved and fried out later for that remedy for croup, "goose grease." It is of no value, however, in cooking and if left in the bird gives a coarse, rank flavor.

Season the goose on the inside with salt and pepper; then stuff and truss it into shape like a turkey. Put the fowl on its back on a rack in a dripping pan and cover the breast with several thin slices of fat salt pork. This keeps the skin moist, and no basting is required for the first hour.

When the Fowl Is Done.

At the end of an hour take the pan from the oven, pour off all the fat that has fried out, remove the pork and dredge the goose with flour.

Return to the oven and as soon as the flour has browned pour in enough hot water to cover the bottom of the pan. Baste frequently, dredging with flour between the bastings and cook until the goose is tender in the joints and nicely browned. The roasting will take two or three hours and should not be hurried.

How to Serve.

When done take up on a hot platter, skim the fat off the pan and stir in a tablespoonful of flour. As soon as frothy pour on a cupful of boiling water and stir until thickened and smooth. Season with salt and pepper. Strain and serve as gravy with the goose.

Woman's World

Mrs. Grover Cleveland to Marry Again.

MRS. GROVER CLEVELAND — PROFESSOR PRESTON.

The engagement of Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland, widow of Grover Cleveland, twenty-second president of the United States, was recently announced by John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university.

Mrs. Cleveland is forty-eight years old, but looks far younger. It is twenty-seven years since she went to Washington to become "the White House bride," the only wife of a president to be married at the official mansion and the youngest woman who ever stepped into the post as first lady of the land.

Five children came to the Clevelands. They were Ruth, Marion, Frances, Richard and Esther. Ruth is dead. Esther was the only one born in the White House and has ever since been referred to as the "White House baby." The years have so flown by that this winter will see the debut of the "White House baby," and only recently rumor was busy with the report of her engagement to the son of Dean West of Princeton. This rumor had hardly been repudiated by Mrs. Cleveland as "utterly false" when there came the official announcement of the engagement of the mother.

Professor Thomas Jes Preston, Mrs. Cleveland's fiance, is fifty years of age and is a graduate of Princeton. As a young man his university studies were interrupted by illness, and he gave up completing his education and went into business, in which he made a rapid and notable success, establishing himself at the head of a very prosperous manufacturing company.

After acquiring a substantial fortune and feeling that continued business could not compensate for his abandoned college career he closed his business connections and, although almost forty years of age, went abroad to study two years at the Sorbonne, Paris.

Returning to America, he entered Princeton and took his degree of doctor of philosophy. He was then called to his present professorship at Wells college, Aurora, N. Y. Although it was as a student at Princeton that Mrs. Cleveland first met Professor Preston, the college where he now serves as a professor is her college. It was at Wells college that Frances Folsom was a student when the rumors began to spread that she would one day be the bride of Grover Cleveland.

Handy Telephone Tables.

The new telephone tables with wooden stools will appeal to many housekeepers, as often it is difficult to find a table the correct height for the telephone to rest upon.

These new tables, which come in mahogany, oak and mission, are small and good looking and would not at all mar the appearance of any room, provided, of course, that one was selected in the same wood as the rest of the furniture. They are square or three cornered in design and have swinging wooden arms, with a round stand covered with green baize on which to rest the telephone. Under the table is a shelf to hold the necessary but very unsightly telephone directory, while the wooden stool can be slid under the table when not in use. The three cornered shaped table will be found very convenient for fitting into a corner of any room or hall.

On the top of the table can be placed the necessary tablet and pencil, which every telephone table should be supplied with, as it is often difficult to remember a number given over the wire if there is not such a card or tablet at hand.

For the Children

A Cute Little Doll In Postman's Uniform

In various sections of London kind-hearted women of wealth have organized associations and societies for the purpose of instructing and amusing the children of the poor. Notable among these is one called the Children's Happy Evenings association. That is a very appropriate name, for many little ones are gladdened and made happy by the entertainments given for their benefit. Recently the children were invited to the annual doll show of this society and there they beheld dolls of all kinds and sizes dressed in all manner of costumes. The show was held at Lady Wernher's residence, Bath House, Piccadilly. We print a picture of one of the dolls arrayed in postman's garb to give a faint idea of the many wonderful dolls the children were privileged to see and admire.

Discovery of Quinine.

Although you may not have had to take any of this bitter medicine you must have heard of it as a cure for fevers. Quinine and Peruvian bark come from the cinchona tree.

The value of this Peruvian bark as a cure for fevers was discovered in a peculiar way. The natives of the country where it grew knew nothing of its virtues, although they suffered terribly from fevers. A tribe who was in the habit of drinking the water from a neighboring pool discovered one day that it had all turned bitter and was unfit for use through a storm having blown down some cinchona trees that had fallen into the lake, so they had to go some distance for water.

Not long after two of the tribe fell ill of the fever and as they were too weak to go so far for water they drank out of the old pool and were astonished to find that the fever soon began to get better.

Silent Quaker.

The company is seated so that each one can whisper to his next neighbor on the right. When all are ready the whispering begins, each one telling his neighbor to do some absurd thing. When every one has received a commission the leader announces that "meeting has begun." All solemnly shake hands, after which no one must speak or laugh. Each in turn rises and performs the task assigned him with the greatest gravity. Any one who laughs or speaks must pay a forfeit.

Suggestions for commissions: One might be ordered to make pantomime speech, another to dance a jig, one to put an imaginary baby to sleep, another to sing an operatic solo in pantomime, another to find a mouse under her chair, another to make three grimaces, indicating surprise, delight and grief, and so on.

A Noted Girl Athlete.

One of the most remarkable girls in England is Nellie Stockwell. She is only thirteen years old, but she has won five yearly championships in athletic sports in competition with all the other girls of the London county council schools in south London.

Nellie was nine years old when she won the championship the first year, and nobody expected that such a young girl would be the winner. But she got either first or second place in about every event on the program of the championship contests, and so the prize went to her.

She has continued to win prizes ever since then. She has more than thirty by this time.

At Bedtime.

When we're upstairs in bed,
That's when our family tell
The interesting things.
We know it very well.
They talk, of course, all day;
They have so many friends.
They ask us 'bout our school,
And ev'rybody 'tends
To what we answer, but
When we're tucked up in bed
We'll hear them laugh and laugh.
"What was it some one said
To make you laugh like that?"
I'll ask them all next day.
"Why, nothing special, dear;"
That's what they always say.
When we're grown up we'll know
(That's how I comfort Ted)
Just zactly what they say
When we're upstairs in bed.

HORRORS OF BALKAN WAR NOT CONFINED TO THE BATTLEFIELD; CHILDREN ORPHANED BY TURKISH BULLETS ASK STATE FOR FOOD

Greek children waiting for free food.

The tragedy of the Balkan war is found not alone on the battlefields, where thousands lie dead and other thousands have been wounded. The families of the soldiers back home are suffering from hunger and want. Many children have been orphaned and a large percentage of these must look to the state for assistance. In the accompanying picture are seen Greek children orphaned by Turkish bullets waiting for free food at one of the relief stations in Athens.

WORLD'S GREATEST STADIUM.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Dec. 12.—It is now practically certain that New York City will, in the near future, have a stadium larger and finer than anything of the kind in this country and one which will rival the greatest in the world. If the proposed plans are carried out a structure costing $10,000,000 will be erected in Riverside Park, between 116th and 120th streets. The expenses will be shared by the city, Columbia University and the Hudson-Fulton Association.

25 IN WATERY GRAVES.

TO HAVE IMPORTANT JOB AT BIG FAIR

Captain A. C. Baker.

Captain Asher C. Baker, U. S. N. retired, will be the director of exhibits of the Panama-Pacific exposition, which will be held at San Francisco in 1915. He was named for this position by President Charles C. Moore.

In making the appointment President Moore had in mind Captain Baker's unusual experience and important services in general exposition affairs. The director of exhibits was connected with the Chicago exposition in 1893, the Paris exposition in 1900, and the St. Louis exposition in 1904. He was vice-president of the class jury, vice-president of the group jury and a member of the superior jury at the Paris exposition.

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

The French are discussing reserving public offices for fathers of families.

The Brantford, Ont., Labor Council favors the establishment of a civic coalyard.

The [illegible] of New York City have organized [illegible] during November.

An effort is now on foot to organize all the colored hotel workers of Washington, D. C.

Hamilton, Ontario, street railway employes are negotiating for a 30 per cent. increase in wages.

Eight hundred New York Chauffeurs have secured an advance in wages to $2.76 for a twelve hours' work.

Canada reports a membership of from sixty thousand to seventy thousand in the Trades and Labor Congress.

The A. F. of L. is at present composed of 112 international unions, which have 20,964 local unions under their jurisdiction.

The school authorities of Philadelphia have proposed that teachers in future be engaged on probation for a term of five years.

Farm wages, with board, in the United States averaged for men, $10.09 per month in the year 1866; $13.53 in 1875, and $20.80 in 1909.

Ten thousand agricultural laborers and peasants have gone on a strike at Bari, Italy, to better their working conditions and wages.

The English Board of Trade labor exchanges last year received nearly 2,000,000 applications for work and 593,739 vacancies were filled.

Of the more than twenty-five thousand persons employed in the government ship-building yards of the United Kingdom about 280 are women.

Samuel Gompers, re-elected as president of the American Federation of Labor, has held that position thirty years. His first election to that office was in 1882. He is a member of the Cigar Makers' International Union and was one of the organizers of the federation.

There are 1,282 labor unions in Massachusetts, according to a report just issued by the Bureau of Statistics, and they have 191,038 members, of whom 174,899 are men and 16,139 women. This shows an increase in 1911 over 1910 of 3,728 members, but a decrease in the number of female members. The Boston unions are reported to have 70,636 members.

The Portland, Me., branch of the Carmen's Union of America at a recent meetng decided to make a demand on January 1, 1913, for a wage increase of nearly sixty per cent. The union is in a prosperous condition and steadily gaining. The members of the union claim that the wages of 20 cents an hour paid in Portland, Me., are much lower than elsewhere.

The annual report of the Dominion Department of Labor notes an upward tendency in wages, attended by an increase in the cost of living. The success of the Industrial Disputes Act is indicated by the fact that in five years one hundred and twenty-four disputes in which it was invoked have arisen, and only in fourteen did the conciliatory proceedings fail to prevent a strike.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR WARNS EUROPE THAT FIGHT IS POSSIBLE

Berlin, Dec. 13.—In a speech before the reichstag Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg expressed the hope that the war in southern Europe might not spread so as to involve any of the European powers, but declared that if Austria's rights were not respected there would be a war. The chancellor said: "If Austrian rights and interests are not given due consideration to which they are entitled or if Austria be attacked by a third power, or should Germany be in a position in the future where we could not do so, we will fight."

CHANCELLOR HOLLWEG

ONE OF SEASON'S FAIR DEBUTANTES

Miss Esther Foote is one of the charming Washington debutantes from the army circle. She is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Stephen H. Foote, and is one of the most popular members of the younger set at the national capital.

CALIFORNIAN FINDS FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

John D. Mackenzie.

Nearly four centuries have passed since Ponce de Leon made his vain search after the fabled fountain of youth in the new world, and now that men have entirely given up the idea of the existence of any such fountain, along comes a Californian who says that he has found it. The man's name is John D. Mackenzie. He hasn't found a fountain exactly, but it amounts to the same thing.

Mackenzie has a mine in southern California, the ore from which poseses peculiar curative properties. During the past three years he has given away three tons of it. It has gone in every direction all over the world, to people of high station and low, and in return letters of thanks and appreciation have come to him by the hundred.

Our Christmas GLOVE BUSINESS

Has been by far the greatest we have ever experienced. Of course, our assortments will be in splendid shape even up to Xmas Eve, as our stocks are kept in prime condition in all respects at all times. This should be so, for, this is Newark's leading glove store. But there are many advantages, however, in early buying—as it obviates the chance of any and all disappointments.

The various makes which we show are from the world's best manufacturers, including the celebrated "Xavier Jouvin" kid gloves, which are on sale here only in Newark. Of course, you're familiar with such names as Reynier Freres, Dents, Fownes Bros., Meyers & Son and Adler's. Representative lines of these well-known makes are to be found here in addition to our own special brands.

ODDITIES IN CLUBS

Some Curious Associations That Were Born In London.

FREAKS IN NAMES AND AIMS.

The Abduction Club Was Formed For the Purpose of Carrying Off Heiresses by Force and the Surly Club to Promote the Use of Abusive Language.

One of the most extraordinary clubs London has ever known, says the Standard, was the Sighing club, the members of which were supposed to be wholly absorbed in thinking of their sweethearts. Each would hold in his hand a bit of ribbon, a lock of hair, a purse or some other article belonging to the object of his affections, and from time to time he would address this article in terms of endearment, no other speaking being allowed. On initiation the member had to compose and recite a poem in honor of his lady, and at the meetings a fine was imposed upon the member who did not sigh five times within a quarter of an hour.

Again, there was the Abduction club, organized in 1766 by some well connected Irish youths, who banded themselves together to abduct heiresses and good looking young women of gentle birth. As there was a large membership, many forced marriages took place in consequence of their exploits. The evil became eventually so serious that a special act of parliament was passed making abduction a capital offense.

The members assisted each other by providing relays of horses and carriages whenever necessary. The wealth of the two sisters Kennedy, daughters of Richard Kennedy of Rathmeaden manor, Waterford, caused the attention of the members to be drawn to them. Gerald Byrne, grandson of Sir Gregory Byrne, and James Strange Villard were drawn in the lottery, and the abduction took place on April 14, 1779.

The principals were arrested, tried and condemned and they were executed in the following May, notwithstanding the fact that ministers of the court of Vienna, grandees of Spain and French nobles implored their pardon. The club was introduced into England in 1770, but disbanded in 1802, when twenty-nine members remained.

The No Nose club was founded by a gentleman who was an unwilling follower of the Egyptian fashion of flat faces. When the members dined together and a young pig, the favorite dish, was the principal item on the menu the snout was always cut off.

The Club of Ugly Faces was also founded by a gentleman who boasted an enormously large nose. Another member had a chin of the size and shape of a shoe horn, another a huge mouth and a fourth very large, protruding eyes. No one was eligible for membership who had not some facial malformation, and all members on initiation had to make a speech in praise of Aesop, whose portrait hung over the mantelpiece of the clubroom.

The Surly club had its meeting place near Billingsgate fish market, and the membership was limited to cabmen, carmen and watermen, who used to meet once a week to exercise the art of abusive language in order that they might not lose the reputation they had gained. Any member found guilty of courtesy or politeness was promptly fined.

The Split Farthing club was limited in membership to men who agreed to stint themselves to the utmost in order to increase their possessions. One member is reported to have had his garments so darned that there was not enough of the original material left to show the texture. The members presented so starved an appearance that it was said there was not an ounce of fat among the lot.

The Everlasting club was limited in membership to a hundred, and the members divided the day among themselves in such a way that there were always some present upon the premises. The great fire of London put an end to this institution, as the premises were burned down, and the only member on the premises was nearly burned to death because he refused to leave until he had emptied all the bottles on the table. The fire for lighting the members' pipes was never allowed to go out, an old woman being kept solely for the purpose of attending to it. During the fifty years of its existence the members smoked fifty tons of tobacco, drank 30,000 butts of ale, 1,000 pipes of port and 200 barrels of brandy in addition to other liquors.

The Man Killing club was limited in membership to men who had killed opponents in duels. The conversation at the gatherings was confined to bullets, wounds and slaughter. The president was said to have killed half a dozen men in single combat, and the seats at dinner were arranged according to the numbers the members had slain. At banquets a side table was provided for visitors who had only drawn blood. The club had not a lengthy existence, as nearly all the members were executed.

Suicides' clubs have been long in existence, and one existed recently in Kursk. The club had for its motto "Death is the cure for all ills;" but, as set forth in its book of rules, candidates for membership had first of all to show that they had a substantial reason for wishing to die. A would be candidate who presented himself with the weight of ten or more years of unhappy married life was received with open arms. Loss of fortune, incurable disease and a record of ill luck were also excellent qualifications for membership.

A Word About Evening Store Hours

Beginning next Monday and continuing until Friday, the Bamberger store will remain open until 7 o'clock—an hour later than usual. Saturday, December 21st; Monday, December 23rd, and Tuesday, December 24th, the store will be open until 10 o'clock. Thus you see there are only THREE full nights this year for shopping, in fact because we are always open Saturday nights.

SHOP EARLY

Don't wait until the last minute, and don't plan too much of your shopping for the evenings we are open. We believe that by lengthening the evening working hours we are benefiting our patrons, and we believe that YOU will appreciate our efforts in this direction sufficiently to HELP US.

IT'S WORTH WHILE

The companies in this office have stood on principle. They have had material success because of it. There are no preferential prices. All are treated alike. Here's where the HIGH PRINCIPLE, always back of them, comes in. They will not permit the changing of rates. It would not be a square deal. That's why. If you give them an opportunity they will make a friend of you, too. Believe us they know how.

Purity Candies

BEST FOR CHRISTMAS.

Parents should be very careful what kind of candies they give to their children, and Sunday schools and societies of other kinds should be particularly careful in the candies they give out, because they so often give in generous quantities.

We have known candies to be distributed to children at Christmas that were absolutely unfit to eat, and since we supply our own make of Purity Candies at such moderate prices there is really no reason why any one should give the little ones anything but pure candies.

We invite your attention to our specialty lines, at such moderate prices as 20c, 30c, and 40c a pound.

House Coats

AND BATH ROBES FOR GIFTS.

You may be sure that every man has use for a house coat or a bath robe, or both, and you cannot give him anything that will please him more at Christmas time.

Our house coats are exceptionally fine and are here in very large variety; some of them are very elegant indeed—of richest velvets and silks, beautifully tailored; every detail perfect; priced to $28.

Plenty of the more moderately priced house coats—handsome garments all of them—well made; goodly gifts at $5.00 and up.

Bath Robes in great variety—in fact the largest collection we have ever had; beautiful patterns and colorings; deep, dark colors, as well as the showier ones; pleasing alike to young and old; at prices ranging from $3.50 to $20.

Silk Scarfs 25c

A lot of 2,400 high grade, open end Four-in-hands, of excellent silks, in a large variety of pretty colorings; excellent ties, that are worth easily 50c, to be sold tomorrow at only 25c.

WOULD MAKE JOURNEYMEN PAINTERS SECURE LICENSES

Newark, Dec. 13.—If the plans of the New Jersey State Association of Master House Painters and Decorators do not miscarry a bill will be introduced in the Legislature this winter for the purpose of making it necessary by law to license all journeymen painters. It is expected that all master painters in the State will assist in the passage of the bill, as competition by aliens and inexperienced painters will be done largely away with providing the bill is passed.

Aside from the fact that journeymen painters would be obliged to take out licenses, they would also be obliged to file bonds as a guarantee for their responsibility.

CENTRAL RAILROAD FAILS TO QUASH DAMAGE SUIT

Elizabeth, Dec. 13.—The effort to nullify the action brought against the Central Railroad of New Jersey in the matter of damages for the death of Pasquale Ritrovato more than two years ago, has been decided against the railroad company by the Court of Errors and Appeals.

A suit for $5,000 will be begun against the railroad company by which the man was employed when he was killed. Ritrovato was a track walker and while performing his duty stepped from the track to allow a flier pass by. Just as the locomotive went by the cylinder head blew off, striking him and killing him instantly.

Relatives engaged New York lawyers to sue the company for $5,000. After more than a year of deliberation it was found that the attorneys could not agree. Fourteen months after Ritrovato was killed suit was started in the Circuit Court before Judge B. A. Vail, who certified the case to the Supreme Court as he did not care to render a decision. It was argued at the time by the attorneys of the railroad company that the case was outlawed after a year.

TRYING HARD TO KNOCK OUT SMALL FREEHOLDER BOARDS

Trenton, Dec. 13.—A written opinion dealing with the question of the legality of the Gill amendment to the Strong act has been filed with the Mercer county officers who propose to fight the smaller Board of Freeholders act. The opinion will be filed by Counselor Scott Scammell, of the law firm of Vroom, Scammell & Dickinson, who has been engaged by the Mercer freeholders. That the freeholders have a good case against the Gill amendment is the contention of the men who are anxious to have the law creating the smaller board declared unconstitutional by the courts. A decision in the case will not only affect Mercer but will affect Union and other counties where the large board has been replaced by the body created under the provisions of the small board act.

The Gill act, approved April 1, 1912, is practically a revision of the Strong act of 1902, and was drawn to cover defects in the Strong law. That it is defective as regards the expiration of the terms of officials appointed by the larger boards is the point raised by the Mercer officers. Their contention is that the title of the Gill act is defective in that it does not provide that the terms of the men appointed by the old board shall expire when the smaller board goes into office.

DINWIDDIE ONCE MORE QUITS RARITAN BOARD

Metuchen, Dec. 13.—Members of the Raritan Roosevelt Club are receiving copies of a letter issued by William Dinwiddie, tendering his resignation as chairman of the board of governors of the club, effective at the next meeting. This is the third time the resignation has been tendered.

Mr. Dinwiddie's resignation as president of the club is involved automatically in the retirement from the board, as the bylaws require the executive to be a member of the governing body.

The previous efforts to resign were based upon the break with Mark Oswald Prentiss over Prentiss' withdrawal from the race for Congress in the Third district. At the board's last meeting, the second resignation was not accepted, the members declaring they would resign also if Dinwiddie persisted.

Neither Prentiss nor any other member of the board who could be reached today would admit any necessity for resigning in the light of Mr. Dinwiddie's latest tender. Further developments are expected at the meeting of the board.

Anton Gloekner, of Elizabeth, violinist, has been secured to assist in the special Christmas service at the First M. E. church, on Sunday, December 22, when the quartet choir will sing selections from two oratorios.

—Many a fellow who has been trying to get his courage up to the proposing point for two years is surprised when the girl accepts him in two seconds.

GEM JEWELRY

There's an old proverb that the best things come in small packages, to which a humorist once added: "So does poison."

The world is making over its concept of what constitutes a sincere gift.

No longer do we seek the largest package or dispose our partiality to the article that makes the greatest "show." We realize that Radium is worth more than Coal.

Jewelry has ever been closely associated with the gifts that go from heart to heart. Somehow, a jewelry gift carries with it the blessing and benediction of the sender.

What a host of clever little "Gem Things" are here for the Holidays! And what a revelation in low prices—a consideration you must not overlook.

Come in to look—a pleasure for us to show goods, which are the latest designs in Jewelry Art.

DINNER DANCE FOR DEBUTANTE

HER MOTHER HOSTESS

Guests of Three Other Dinners, Given by Miss Mali's Aunts, Attend the Dance—Handsome Gowns and Decorations.

Mrs. Pierre Mali, of this city and New York, gave a dinner dance last night at her New York home on Fifth avenue, for her debutante daughter, Miss Gertrude Mali. Miss Mali, who is a granddaughter of the late John Taylor Johnson, had her coming out tea a few days ago. Last night her aunts, Mrs. Henry E. Coe, Mrs. Robert W. de Forest and Mrs. J. Herbert Johnston, gave dinners, from which they took their guests to Mrs. Mali's, as did also Mrs. Robert R. Livingston.

Mrs. Mali, in an old rose gown embroidered in beads, and Miss Mali wearing white chiffon embroidered in silver over satin, with a touch of blue on the corsage, received in the drawing room. The tables for the dinner were placed in the back parlor and diningroom and were decorated with pink roses and pink shaded lights. The library was used as a smoking room. The dancing took place in the large hall and parlor.

Mrs. Mali's guests were seated at nine tables. There was one large table at which Miss Mali was the hostess and at this were seated the Misses Murie Winthrop, Florence Blair, Esther Cleveland, and Thornton Wilson, Thorne Kissel, Lewis L. Delafield, Suydam Cutting, Cornelius Mitchell and John Farr. A supper was served after midnight.

EX-HIGH SCHOOL BOYS ENTER LUMBER CAMP

Former Star Athletes Will Try Out the Woodsman's Life.

Yearning for the life of a rugged woodchopper in the shaggy mountains, Frank Clarke, of East Ninth street, will leave Monday for Vermont, where he will enter one of the lumber camps. Clarke—who is known as "Shake" to a large circle of friends in this city—was one of the most popular students who ever attended the Plainfield High School and one of the best all around athletics ever turned out by the institution. Since his departure from P. H. S. to go into business last year his athletic career has been varied.

While in scholastic competition he played on the school football, baseball and basketball teams and was a crack at all the games he tackled. Besides his successes in the athletic field he won fame before the footlights, having been star end man in the P. H. S. minstrel troupe for several years.

Clarke leaves Plainfield to join his old friend and High School chum, Gardner Bristol, who is at present working in the lumber camp. Bristol, who used to be called "Peggy," left P. H. S. in 1910 when his family moved to Hartford, Conn. He was also interested in athletics.

Clarke says he has information to the effect that the thermometer has registered as low as twenty degrees below zero in camp during the past month and in his letters Bristol describes it as the best place in the world to keep cool.

HOODOO DATE HAD NO EFFECT ON THIS SALE

Branch Alliance Affair at Unitarian Church Scored Decided Success.

In spite of the fact that yesterday was Friday the thirteenth, the sale held by the Branch Alliance of All Souls' Unitarian church yesterday afternoon was successful. More than $100 was raised by the sale of fancy articles, homemade cake and candy and refreshments.

Miss Myrtle A. Montague, chairman of the sale committee, was ably assisted by Mrs. Charles Monroe and Miss R. A. Lawrence. At the fancy table were the Misses Inez Tolles and Madeline Durar; cake table, the Misses Alice Reed, Kathleen Ryder and Mrytle A. Montague and Mrs. C. W. Bradbury; candy, the Misses Eva Selden, and Elsa Schwed; tea tables, Mrs. Isaac Schwed and Mrs. John Ottoson; waitresses at the tea tables, the Misses Elizabeth and Constance Mumford, Clara Bender, Dorothea Lawrence and Elsie Monroe.

The proceeds of the sale will be used for the pledges of the Branch Alliance.

MYSTERIOUSLY GETS RELICS OF FIREMEN

Clock and Drawing of Old Zephyr Co. Lost Thirty Years Are Returned.

As mysteriously as it disappeared, an eight-day clock and a much-prized drawing of a locomotive used on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, which were taken from the old Zephyr Hook and Ladder fire house on West Second street thirty years ago, have been returned to Ephraim Carman, who at that time was employed as janitor of the old fire house. A package containing the clock and drawing was left at Carman's house, but aside from the fact that it is known to have been sent from somewhere in this city, there is nothing to give any clue as to the sender.

The clock and drawing disappeared from the fire house at a time when the volunteer firemen, members of No. 2 company, were suspended for infraction of department rules. During this suspension the firemen instead of hanging around the engine house, which was then located at West Front street and Madison avenue, were accustomed to meet at the hook and ladder house. Carman, who is now an engineer at the Smalley Stone Company's quarry, was janitor of this fire house, and for years he was suspected of having taken the clock and drawing, although he persistently denied the accusation. Now that the stolen articles have been returned, he is overjoyed, because it clears him of suspicion. The clock and drawing will probably be turned over to the Exempt Firemen's Association as relics.

CHEF TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF, SAY POLICE

In the opinion of the police, Charles Ross, the colored cook employed at Truell Inn, tried to commit suicide last night by inhaling illuminating gas. One of the bell hops noticing the odor of gas in the hallway, traced it to Ross' room. The cook was found stretched upon the bed, with the gas turned on.

Answering a telephone summons from Truell Inn Patrolman Birmingham went to Ross' room to investigate. Ross was not arrested.

AND WE'VE ONLY BEGUN.

Yesterday, Friday, the 13th, the Daily Press made its record for a quarter of a century by printing ninety columns of net paid advertising. The fact is that the new management broke the record shortly after assuming control on January 1, 1912, and has been smashing the record ever since, but ninety columns of advertising is a pardonable boast.

AND LODGE GOT MARTINE'S 'GOAT'

For "Our Jim" Sure Did Pour out Vials of Satire With His 90 H. P. Lungs.

HIS HISTORY MIXED UP

But it Mattered Not That He Credited Perry With a Saying of Lawrence in Dwelling on "History of Senate's Desk and Cuspidors."

Washington, Dec. 14.—"The History of the Desks and Cuspidors of the Senate" furnished a text for Mr. Martine yesterday afternoon, and he poured out vials of wit and satire. His oration was a blending of genius, brilliancy, elocutionary recital and tremendous waste of lung power.

The farmer statesman of New Jersey simply turned his ninety-horsepower voice loose. His arms waved like a family washing in an Iowa breeze. He pranced around to keep up the rythmic effect. He credited Commodore Perry with having urged his subordinates to "not give up the ship." But historial blunders did not bother Mr. Martine.

The trouble started when Mr. Lodge offered an amendment to the legislative bill appropriating $500 to historically mark the Senate desks. It proposed to have a plate on each desk, giving the names of all its previous occupants. This disturbed and irritated the Senator from New Jersey.

"I have tried to picture in mind," began Mr. Martine, "the profound interest future generations will take in reading the marvellous history of this great country—the bloody contest for liberty; the suffering and privations of our fathers. They will read of the splendid bravery of Mad Anthony Wayne, they will be able to fairly hear the clarion voice of Commodore Perry crying, 'Don't give up the ship!' They will also read with breathless interest of the bravery of Mollie Pitcher at the battle of Monmouth. They will also read of the construction of this most beautiful Capitol and the recitals of history that the cornerstone was laid by the father of his country—the immortal George Washington. With what thrilling emotions they will read of our internecine strife and will also read with great satisfaction of the reconciliation and union forever of all the sections of our beloved country!

"Great as are the subjects I have above cited, how weak and paltry they will seem in comparison to the thrill that will come to the future reader of history when he comes to the chapter 'History of the Desks and Cuspidors of the Senate of the United States!

"Oh! that we might have but a tracing of the desks of the ancient Greek and Roman! What stories they would tell of that age and time! How derelict were their historians!

"If we could only know whether the mighty Demosthemes stood or sat while delivering those superb orations; whether his desk was made of olive wood, cedar or stone; how valuable it would have been!

"Oh! that a Lodge might have lived in that day!

"But the history of the desk in the Senate of the United States! That chapter will tell of heel-prints that will reflect the artistic genius of the bootmaker from the North, the South, the East and the West of our great country. Then, too, I am informed by the carpenter of the Capitol of the fact that I feel is quite unknown, this fact which will show the advance of our civilization, for in the early days of our country, I am told, the artistic genius of the occupant was made apparent through jacknife designs carved upon his desk. This is now all changed. Their surface today reflects the cabinetmaker's art, the polish, the lustre of the culitivated period in which we live. Truly it is great to contemplate!

"But seriously, with bread and butter so high in cost to the toiler and breadwinner, I must vote no to the bill proposed by the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts."

MRS. HOERSTER ANSWERS CHARGE

Appears in Court Without Lawyer and Pleads Not Guilty.

ILLEGAL SALE ALLEGED

Middlesex Indictment Accuses Woman Liquor Dealer of Violating the Law Forbidding Traffic Outside of Municipality.

Mrs. Lena Hoerster, who conducts a large wholesale liquor business on Somerset street, pleaded not guilty before July Daly in New Brunswick yesterday of having sold beer illegally in Dunellen on June 28 last. The indictment charged that she sold a case of 24 pint bottles of beer to John Kaffield.

This indictment is in line with the intention of the authorities to prevent wholesalers licensed in one municipality from selling in another municipality.

Mrs. Hoerster, who drove to the court house in a coupe, was not accompanied by her counsel, W. L. Hetfield. The court accepted her own bail and Mrs. Hoerster secured a certified copy of the indictment to take back to her lawyer.

SUPERB ATTRACTION AT THEATRE TONIGHT

The novel and extraordinary production, known as "The Miracle," is the attraction at the Plainfield theatre this afternoon and evening. "The Miracle" is a revelation in the possibilities of motion pictures. It is wholly different from the ordinary picture such as is seen in the ordinary electric theatre. "The Miracle" is the first of a series of pictures which have fully demonstrated the superiority of the cinematograph over the novel and over the play and even over the wordless spectacle so-called. It is one of the most charming and moving legends of the middle ages. Maurice Maeterlinck built his play, "Sister Beatrice," on this legend. Those who have seen these pictures declare them to be marvels of art in photography.

McINTYRE TRIO.

The only appearance of the McIntyre Trio in Plainfield this season will be at the concert to be given at the High School auditorium, Monday evening. A fine program has been arranged, including two trios, solo violin numbers by Alexander Saslavsky, the concertmeister of the Damrosch Orchestra and song groups by Miss Laura Coombs, one of New York's charming sopranos. Leroux's song, "Le Nil," (The Nile), will be among Miss Comb's numbers, with obligato for 'cello, played by Mr. Kefer.

FIRE AT EAST BOUND BROOK.

Fire at the home of Martin Cook, in East Bound Brook, at 10 o'clock last night did $150 damage. The H. C. Pierce hose company responded when the whistle on the Pathe Freres factory was sounded and the flames were quickly extinguished. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Mrs. John C. VanDyke, of East Fifth street, has returned from visits to her old home at Peapack, to her cousins, Dr. F. C. Sutphin, of Bernardsville, and Dr. Mahlon Smalley, of Gladstone, and her brother, John V. Haas, of Millington.

Mrs. Fred DeHart, of Arlington avenue, has gone to the home of her parents at Newton to assist with the Christmas music in the M. E. church, where her father, Rev. Mr. Jamison, is pastor.

ANOTHER BRIDE FOR A. R. FISK

Son of Former Mayor to Wed Young Boston Widow Today.

DIVORCED LAST JUNE

Families Said to Have Made Strong But Futile Efforts to Stop the Marriage—Mr. and Mrs. Fisk Will Attend.

The announcement that Augustus R. Fisk, son of former Mayor and Mrs. Charles Joel Fisk, of this city, is to be married in Boston today to Mrs. Horace Cobbs, a young widow of that city, has occasioned great surprise among the friends and acquaintances of the young man who had received no intimation of the affair until today. According to the announced plans the couple are to be married this afternoon in the Old South church in Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Fisk, the parents of the prospective bridegroom, who have been living at their New York home, are in Boston and expect to attend the wedding.

It is understood that the marriage does not meet with the approval of either Mr. and Mrs. Fisk or of the family of the bride-to-be. Strong efforts have been made on the part of both families, it is said, to prevent the wedding taking place.

Mrs. Cobbs, who is the daughter of Mrs. Knight, of Boston, who is also a widow, is twenty-eight years old and has a small son. She is said to have been living in lavish style in Boston. Mr. Fisk, who has been making his home on a farm at Woodstock, Vermont, is said to have met Mrs. Cobbs at that place.

Mr. Fisk was formerly married to Miss Edith Collings, daughter of Charles T. Collings, of Cincinnati, who divorced him in June last. What plans Mr. Fisk has for the future are not known, it being understood that he is not to return to the farm at Woodstock.

Mrs. Cobbs is said to belong to one of the most prominent families in Boston, and besides being young, possesses many charms. Despite all that has been done to persuade the couple not to marry, it is said that they are determined to carry out their plans and that the wedding will take place as arranged.

WILLIAM STENZENBERGER IS PLACED ON PROBATION

Elizabeth, Dec. 14.—William Stenzenberger, fifteen years old, a Plainfield boy, was placed on probation for two years in the Juvenile Court by Judge Atwater yesterday afternoon. He was charged with breaking into the store of Chris Zimmerman, of Watchung avenue, Plainfield, and stealing $10.

Judge Atwater suspended sentence in his case.

MISS HARBISON TO SING AT HOLY CROSS RECITAL

Miss Henrietta Harbison, who is well known as a contralto soloist, will sing at the organ recital at Holy Cross Episcopal church tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock. Her selections will be as follows: "There is a Green Hill," by Gounod; "A Perfect Day," by Bond, and "The Birth of Morn," by Levi. Charles Davis, the organist, will accompany Miss Harbison, and will play several selections, among them the "Offertoire," of Batiste.

The public is cordially invited to attend these recitals.

MISSIONARY TO PREACH.

Rev. P. W. Pitcher, a missionary of the Reformed church in Amoy, China, will occupy the pulpit of Trinity Reformed church tomorrow morning and evening. His general theme for the day will be "The New China." Mr. Pitcher has been a missionary in China for a number of years and is said to be thoroughly conversant with conditions in that country.

MASQUERADE BALL FOR CHARITY'S SAKE

Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church Plans Big Affair.

Plans are in progress for a charity ball to be held in Sebring's Auditorium on Friday evening, January 31, by the Holy Name Society, of St. Mary's R. C. church. It promises to be one of the big events of the winter. The entire proceeds of the affair will be placed in the Sisters of Charity fund to be used for the poor, and as all worthy poor, irrespective of creed, will become beneficiaries of this fund, patronage of the ball is expected from people outside of the parish as well as those within it.

The ball is to be a masquerade affair, and for the benefit of those who do not dance, an Irish piper has been engaged to provide entertainment. Charles Suhr's orchestra will furnish the music for dancing. The two upper floors of the building will be used.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the parish is at work helping to insure the success of the ball. Albert F. LaRock is chairman of the general committee with Paul H. Burns, president of the Holy Name Society, an ex-officio member. The entire committee is as follows:

Albert F. LaRock, chairman; Paul H. Burns, ex-officio member; Garrett Keating, secretary; Thomas A. Moore, William Gillahan, Wilbur Schaefer, Michael Caffrey, Michael D. O'Keeffe, John J. Gallagher, John Connolly, Cornelius Regan, Frank Cullen, Sr., Thomas Farrell, William V. Sullivan, David B. Doyle, Samuel Flatley, Charles A. Kling, Timothy J. Meaney, Edward T. Lynch, Joseph T. QUARRY BLASTS BRING KITCHEN CEILING DOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coons, of Somerset street, had a narrow escape from serious injury Thursday morning, when the ceiling plaster fell in the kitchen, resulting in much damage to the range, furniture and dishes. Only a minute before the accident both Mr. and Mrs. Coons had been in the kitchen and they regard their escape from injury as narrow.

It is the belief that the plaster was loosened by blasting at the stone quarries in Watchung. There was no warning of the plaster's fall.

Robert Greene, of 315 Richmond street, is spending the holiday season in Virginia.

ADVENTURESS IN HANDS OF POLICE

Irma Bendotti, Wanted by 'Frisco Authorities Arrested Here.

LIVED AT MT. BETHEL

Alleged Member of Confidence Band Bought Old Mountain Tavern—Girl Glibly Tells of Her Career as a Grafter.

An attractive girl, still in her teens, whom the police say is the accomplice of a band of confidence men, was arrested last night on North avenue, a few minutes after she came to town from Mt. Bethel, where she has been living since last August at the Mt. Bethel Hotel. With the girl at the time of her arrest was a detective from a private agency in Newark, who had had her under surveillance for more than ten days.

The prisoner, who is not over 19, gives her name as Irma de Pietro, alias Irma Bendotti. She is wanted by the authorities of San Francisco, Cal., on an indictment charging her with grand larceny. She is said to have helped swindle an old man in San Francisco of $7,700, his life's savings. Frank Dubois, 34 years old, and Ronald de Pietro, with whom the girl is said to have eloped when fourteen years old, were indicted with the prisoner. They have not been caught. Both of them have been in this vicinity.

Mrs. de Pietro, when arraigned this afternoon before City Judge DeMeza, the court fixed bail at $10,000, in default of which she will be committed to the County Jail at Elizabeth. It is probable that she will apply to Judge Atwater for a decrease in bail, through Counsel Francis J. Blatz.

The girl is a self-confessed adventuress. She tells glibly of men in several cities, who lured by her beauty and charm, were so many golden pigeons for her plucking.

Good detective work on the part of Police Chief Kiely insured the capture. He was notified by the San Francisco authorities that the trio of alleged swindlers were in the neighborhood of this city, and after investigation he told the police of the coast city that he had learned that Donaldo de Pietro was in Europe but that Dubois had been seen around the Mt. Bethel Hotel. The hotel was purchased by De Pietro August 9 from Alfred E. Binz.

Suspecting that the girl, who was frequently seen around Mt. Bethel, was the fugitive wanted by the San Francisco police, Kiely had a good-looking young operative of a Newark detective agency assigned to the case. His instructions were to scrape an acquaintance with the girl and gain

With the finishing goal only eight days away, the organizations and individuals in the Daily Press piano contest have settled down to set a pace that indicates strength in reserve for the final dash. It is going to be a close and exciting spurt in the home stretch and the race will not only be to the swift but to the wise entrant who realize what it means to have a comfortable margin of ballots at hand, ready to clinch the vote at the finish.

The Daily Press has ventured to suggest so many "do's" and "don'ts" for the benefit of those in the contest that it seems almost superfluous to advance any more. However, there is this much to say: Keep in mind the old adage that "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," and get your grip on those subscriptions that have been promised "when you need them." Everyone in the contest has experienced this remark time and again and it counts for nothing unless followed up. Now is the time when votes are needed. So have all friends "come across," as the saying goes.

Announcements is made that the last coupon is printed in today's paper. The time limit for polling these votes will positively expire on Wednesday, December 18. Any received after that will be void. Keep this date in mind, and prevent any possibility of losing a batch of ballots by bringing them around a day later. Only the subscription votes will be counted on Saturday, Dec. 21.

Only one more week remains before the closing of the campaign. The race has been a determined one recently, but it will be more so during the concluding six days. There is no doubt but every one realizes this fact. This paper can only say as it has said before and that is, keep everlastingly at it.

A MEASURE OF MERIT.

Plainfield Citizens Should Weigh Well This Evidence.

Proof of merit lives in the evidence

Convincing evidence in Plainfield

Is not the testimony of strangers,

But the endorsement of Plainfield people.

That's the kind of proof given here—

The statement of a Plainfield citizen.

Mrs. William E. Gardner, 322 East Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered intensely from pains through my back and I also had a distressing weakness of my kidneys. I was in misery and nothing gave me the least relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which I obtained at Randolph's drug store. They acted on my kidneys at once and not only removed the pain from my back but corrected the kidney weakness and restored me to good health. I shall always be willing to give Doan's Kidney Pills the praise they deserve."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

APOPLEXY IS FATAL TO EUGENE D. DILTS

Raritan, Dec. 14.—Eugene D. Dilts, aged 62 years, for many years a prominent resident of this place, was stricken with apoplexy while doing some carpenter work on the icehouse north of this place yesterday, and died. He suffered a slight stroke about 10 o'clock and fell a short distance to the ground. He went back to work again shortly and about ten minutes later suffered a second stroke. This time he fell more heavily, striking on his head and became unconscious. He was immediately taken to his home and a physician summoned. It was at once seen that he could not recover, and he died about 4 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Dilts was a son of the late Asa Dilts, for many years a builder of this place, who died less than a year ago. He leaves several brothers, among whom are H. D. Dilts, of this place; George A. Dilts, of Somerville; Oliver Dilts, of Flemington, and the Rev. Asa R. Dilts; of Lowell, Mass., besides two sisters, Miss Lizzie, of this place, and Mrs. James Holman, of Plainfield. Mr. Dilts was for years chief of the fire department here.

Happenings Due Next Week

Washington, D. D., Dec. 14 (Special).—Little outside of the ordinary routine of business is expected from Congress during the week, in view of the near approach of adjournment for the Christmas holidays. By unanimous consent of the members both houses will allow all "big" items on the legislative program hang over until after the recess.

With the object of completing arrangements for the proposed investigation of boundary waters from the St. Lawrence to the head of the Great Lakes, members of the International Joint Commission will reassemble in Buffalo Tuesday. At the same time and place there will be a conference of Canadian and American health officers to discuss the subject of the pollution of the boundary waters.

A national conference of delegates from nearly all of the State will meet in Washington Monday for the purpose of considering and urging remedial legislation by Congress to protect prohibition territory from interstate shipments of intoxicating liquors.

At the call of the Grain Dealers' National Association representatives of grain exchanges throughout the country will meet in Chicago Monday to discuss proposed legislation directed toward abolishing the practice of dealing in grain for future delivery. A bill with this end in view is expected to be presented to Congress at the present session.

A notable conference of peace advocates will be held in Washington at the end of the week under the auspices of the American Society for Judicial Settlement of International Disputes.

James J. Hill, of St. Paul, and W. L. Mackenzie King, former Canadian Minister of Labor, will be the chief speakers at the annual dinner of the Railway Business Association, the national organization of manufacturers of railway equipment, which will be held at the Waldorf Astoria in New York city Thursday evening.

A notable wedding of the week will be that of Miss Constance Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Warren, and Count Guy de Lasteyrie, of Paris, which will take place Thursday at the home of the bride's parents in New York city. The Count is a son of the Marquis de Lasteyrie, who is regarded in France as the principal representative of the family of the Marquis de Lafayette, the famous friend of America at the time of the Revolution.

A handsome monument erected by the State of Illinois in memory of her soldiers who are buried in the national cemetery at Andersonville, Ga., is to be dedicated Friday. The exercises will be attended by a party of distinguished citizens of Illinois, headed by Governor Deneen.

Monday is the day set for beginning the trial in Buffalo of J. Frank Hickey, the confessed murderer of seven-year-old Joseph Josephs, of Lackawanna, N. Y., in October of last year and of Michael Kruck, the twelve-year-old New York newsboy, in 1902.

An event of interest in Roman Catholic circles will be the consecration of the Most Rev. Neil McNeil as archbishop of Toronto. The ceremony will take place Thursday in St. Michael's Cathedral, in Vancouver, and will be attended by priests and prelates from many parts of the Dominion.

The division of dead letters of the Postoffice Department will hold its annual auction sale in Washington Monday. It has announced that this year there are 8,566 articles to sell, aggregating an estimated value of nearly $15,000 and covering the entire sphere of man's needs.

SHOULD A MAN OF SMALL MEANS ENTER COLLEGE?

From time to time the question is asked by boys preparing for college or by their anxious parents: "Are the conditions in our universities changing so much that it is a handicap to a boy of small means to go to Princeton, Yale, Harvard, etc.? In this connection it may be interesting to such inquirers to hear what steps are being taken at Princeton to give opportunity to those looking for work, which will at least supplement the means at their disposal and make it possible to acquire an education or training for their life in the world after graduation.

The Graduate Council of Princeton, which is composed largely of class secretaries, is a body very much interested in studying conditions at the University first-hand through the members of its several sub-committees. One such committee is the committee on Undergraduate Activities, which has in charge "The Student Bureau of Self-Help." This bureau has just issued its first annual report, its work having started in August, 1911. Among other things this report says:

"The first month was occupied in planning work and canvassing for new agencies and other opportunities not already covered by students. On September 20, 1911, college opened, and the secretary spent this entire week in the office registering all the students who applied for assistance.

"A set of books was kept in the office in which each man was listed and a strict account was kept of his work and the amount of compensation received by him. The secretary followed up each job, by being in communication with the employer and finding out whether the students' work was satisfactory. The students know that this is being done and the result has been most satisfactory.

"The committee on dining halls co-operated most heartily with the secretary of the bureau in the matter of securing reductions of board, and in finding more positions at the dining halls that the students could fill.

"It became evident very soon that the student body was in hearty accord with the work of the bureau, and we received assurance of support from the senior council, the editors of the Daily Princetonian, and the leading men of all classes.

"During the year we had registered in the department 167 men, who either partly or entirely supported themselves during the college course. A very small percentage of these men were without any means; forty-seven had less than $200 each.

"The variety of the labor in which men were employed is very interesting. It covers almost every available line of work. We will mention first the well-known lines of college employment, such as newspaper reporting, tutoring, acting as monitors in class-rooms and chapel, students' pressing club, students' express and the many selling agencies for all manner of articles. Then we placed men in such jobs as taking care of furnaces, shoveling snow, washing windows, cutting grass, gardening, potting plants in the fall, teaching boys to skate. We were called upon to supply men to stay in homes at night while the whole family was out, handling the traps at the gun club, waiting on tables, inventorying household goods, delivering invitations. Two men were employed as bookkeepers, one man as clerk in a grocery store, some in delivering newspapers and magazines, distributing samples for several cigarette firms, husking corn, selling programs for the Triangle Club and the football and baseball games, ushers and gatemen at the 'varsity field, catalogue work in the library, wheeling an invalid's chair, selling chocolate and sandwiches on the campus at night, taking care of tennis courts, and nine very competent stenographers obtained more or less employment and many students obtained work on the farm.

"In reviewing the year's work we point with satisfaction to the fact that the sum of $17,560.63 has passed directly into the students' hands through the activity of this department, and to the fact that not one man left Princeton during the year because he was without funds, although we do not mean by this that these men had all they needed, as many of them had not nearly enough to be comfortable, but they managed with the assistance of the bureau to pull through; that in the mid-year only one man on our list failed, and he entered with three conditions, and one man failed in June.

"In the fall it was discovered that many of the men registered with this department were not able to attend the football games at the 'Varsity field as they were unable to pay for their admission tickets. This matter was brought to the attention of the athletic treasurer, and he immediately arranged with the secretary of this bureau to furnish enough tickets free of charge to admit all students registered with the department who could not afford to pay their way into the games.

"The idea was conceived in the winter of opening a students' display room, where any student agent who had a line of samples to show could lay out his goods. A room was secured on the first floor of the administration building and was opened two days each week. We had displayed their lines of haberdashery, shoes, stationery, lamps, typewriters, bicycles and posters. The room was opened at twelve noon, and kept open until 9 p. m., the agents dividing up their time to fit into recitations and meal hours.

"Early in the spring the matter of using some of the University property for a farm where some of the students could work during the summer, was taken up by this department. The university authorities gave us the use of about thirty acres of land and we found no difficulty in finding fifteen students who were anxious to take up this work for the summer. In fact we rejected, after this number had been received, more men than we employed. We found the suggestion that the honor system be used here, met with hearty approval, and in consequence these men kept their own time. C. Irving Place, 1912, was employed as superintendent, and he has given entire satisfaction. Arrangements were made with the college authorities so that these men were allowed to live in university hall rent free, during the summer vacation and through the co-operation of Mr. Gibbons, superintendent of the dining halls, they were allowed to use one of the small dining rooms and a gas stove, the boys paying for the gas and any broken dishes. They employed a cook and one of the number did the buying. They obtained their board under these arrangements for $4.50 per week.

"Many of these students had never before done any farm work and were very green at first, but learned quickly and all have done very satisfactory work.

"As the crops began to be ready for market is became evident that we would suffer a severe loss in some of our vegetables, as the Princeton market in summer is overstocked with fresh vegetables and prices are very low. The committee decided to equip a small canning factory on the farm and can whatever vegetables we could not sell at a satisfactory price. This work is being satisfactorily handled and we are putting up every day vegetables in glass jars which we are willing to have compared with any cannery output. This allows us to employ more men, and the secretary believes it is the solution of the farm problem, for with a cannery we can run a farm at its greatest efficiency and not have to consider the immediate market for our product.

"Through the co-operation of the university store, it has been arranged that any needy student may by securing an order from the secretary and presenting it at the store, buy all books required for his studies at cost. This is one of the best things that the department has as yet been able to accomplish.

"The human side of the student has been evidenced many times during the year. Any statement that the Princeton man, who has to assist himself while pursuing his college career, loses standing in any way among his fellows, is absolutely false. The following story is interesting in this regard:

"One man, a senior, who need assistance and who had a proposition that necessitated canvassing the campus in a given time and assured good results, was taken sick, and sent a note to the secretary that he would be unable to do the work, and asked to have some other man assigned to the job. This, of course, meant sacrificing his financial interest in the matter. The secretary one evening was speaking of this to a member of the senior class, a man well supplied with this world's goods, and expressed his regret that the boy should lose the money. The senior, after a few moments thought offered to do the work himself to help the sick man ,making the stipulation, however, that number one should never know who had done the work. The work was done in this manner and the sick man's interests were protected. This is only one instance of many that have come to the attention of the secretary, showing in what high regard the student who works is held by the men of the college.

"One student had secured through the bureau two furnaces to care for at $6.00 per month. Later this man discovered that a fellow student was really in extreme straits financially. He called upon the secretary and asked to have one of his furnaces assigned to the other man to help him out of his trouble."

The excerpts from the report of the bureau of self-help seem to answer the question. The progress made in one year has been remarkable, but plans of still wider scope are contemplated.

MOTHER GOOSE PLAY WAS MUCH ENJOYED

Intermediate Pupils of First Baptist Church Among Good Fellows.

"The Courting of Mother Goose," given by the children of the intermediate department of the First Baptist Bible school last night under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Armstrong, the superintendent, proved an enjoyable affair and, in connection with a sale of cake, candy and ice cream, netted a considerable sum to be used in assisting the Good Fellows in providing a happy Christmas for poor children.

The children who appeared in costume all took their parts exceptionally well. They received much applause. The various characters were as follows:

"Mother Goose," Anna Sherwin; "Santa Claus," Lester Chandler; "Man in the Moon," Randolph Stelle; "Jack Horner," LeRoy Western; "Mother Hubbard," Emma G. Dobbins; "Jack and Jill," Russell Lea and Katherine Armstrong; "Old Woman," Emily Pliger; "Little Bride," Dorothy Lee; "Three Fiddlers," Raymond Giles, Fred Attlee, Harold Gerhold; "Little Bo Peep," Emma Verschuur; "Little Boy Blue," Horace Fisher; "Bachelor," Roy Adams; "Rock-a-by-Baby," Katherine Hardgrove; "Polly Flinders," Mildred Weiss; "Mary, Quite Contrary," Dorothy Krewson; "King Cole," Russell Cose; "The Fine Lady," Helen Roseberry; "Arch-Bishop Canterbury," Warren Townley; "Red Riding Hood," Katherine Endress; "Old Woman in the Shoe," Katherine Stevens.

Various classes of the department conducted the sale after the play. Miss Elizabeth McGee's class had charge of the ice cream. Miss Ruth Day's class sold ice cream and cake. Miss Carrie Demler's class served lemonade. Miss Minnie Sorrell's class sold candy and Miss Alida White's class sold cakes. It is likely that "The Courting of Mother Goose" will be given as the Christmas entertainment at the Children's Home in response to the management's request.

BOY UNCOUPLED CARS.

James Pascella, Steven Austin and John Chapman, the latter colored, and all ranging in age from 10 to 12 years of age, were arraigned before City Judge De Moza this morning on complaint of Railroad Detective Charles J. Laverait, who charged them with trespassing on railroad property and the larceny of food from freight cars. Pascella confessed to uncoupling standing freight cars. Taking the boys ages into consideration, the court suspended sentence with a warning to keep away from the railroad yards.

Used Pianos and Player-Pianos

Including Upright, Grand and Square Pianos, Player-Pianos and Cabinet Piano-players—taken in Exchange; and New Pianos and Player-Pianos Reduced Because Slightly Case-marred

Best News First

The pianos in this sale are better, the prices lower, than in any previous sale. Within our recollection such good pianos have never borne such little prices.

The Used Pianos

Some haven't been used much.

Their former owners exchanged them, on a very low basis of valuation, for ANGELUS player-pianos, the growing appreciation of which is the biggest fact in the musical world today.

All the instruments were taken in exchange during the regular course of our business, and are offered at this time—for quick sale, not profit-making—in accordance with our usual custom.

Our floors must be cleared for the New Year's regular business.

Every instrument has been gone over, tuned, refelted where necessary, case polished, put in the best condition, ready and worthy to go out into a good home.

The New Pianos

A few pianos and player-pianos which have been used in demonstrating in our Salons, and are case-marred or varnish-checked, and cannot therefore be sold as new, have been reduced in price and included in this sale.

Features of this Sale

6 upright pianos at $50—when new, $235 to $300
16 upright pianos at $75—when new, $225 to $350
18 upright pianos at $100—when new, $250 to $450
16 upright pianos at 125—when new, $185 to $400
61 upright pianos between $125 and $195, which, when new, were $225 to $500.
A $1,050 Knabe-Angelus player-piano for $465
A $1,000 Chickering Grand piano for $100
An $800 Steinway Grand piano for $210

Think of getting a practically new $925 Knabe piano for $625, a $525 Schomacker piano for $375!

Some Facts

There are 262 instruments in the sale.
Our selling record is 294 in one day.
No reservations have been made. None will be made. Every instrument listed here will be free for the choice of every one present at the opening of the sale on Monday morning at 8:30.

Special Terms

will be arranged to suit the convenience of each purchaser. The square pianos are the only instruments which need be paid for in full at time of purchase.

A Personal Word

The home in this great city that lacks a piano is not the home for a child.

Music is as near to the heart of the child as the toys of babyhood.

It takes the place, in the city, of the fields and the flowers and the forests. It uplifts, sets the thoughts upon better things, stirs ambition, leads to action and improves.

A piano in the city home provides much-needed occupation for the spare hours of recreation; takes the place of harmful diversions of the street—oftentimes the only alternative.

If you have children and no piano you cannot do a better thing for your home this Christmas than to get one of the pianos in this sale.

There are some as low as $50.

You need have no apprehension about terms.

If you, in more comfortable circumstances, know of a family to whom you would like to give a great happiness this Christmas, this sale presents the opportunity.

Whoever is interested should arrange to come early on Monday morning. There is usually a group at one or other of the seven entrances to the New Building waiting for the store to open on the first day of these Christmas Sales.

Used Upright Pianos

The most remarkable values we have ever been privileged to offer, due principally to the fact that people have been anxious to exchange their silent instruments, though in many cases but little used, on practically any terms in order to put an ANGELUS player-piano in the home.

Used Player-Pianos

Various reasons brought these here. Most of them came in exchange for ANGELUS player-pianos, which are the premier player-pianos of the world. None of them but has years of music in it. A good opportunity to get acquainted with the wonderful charm of the player-piano.

Used Grand Pianos

Space limitations for the most part are responsible for the low prices on these fine pianos. Families moving into smaller apartments have exchanged their grands for upright player-pianos. For those who have the room we commend these grand pianos as rare values at the prices.

IN HANDS OF POLICE

her confidence. The good-looking detective was highly successful in his assignment, in that the girl gave him her friendship. Her arrest was deferred in the hope that she would disclose the whereabouts of de Pietro and Dubois. She was too wary for that, however, and yesterday Chief Kiely decided to bag her. His decision was hastened by a tip that the Mt. Bethel hotel was going to be sold and that the woman would probably slip away. Sergeant Flynn and Patrolman McDonald made the arrest. The Chief had received a telegram from the San Francisco police to arrest her immediately.

Under a mild grilling by Assistant County Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Chief Kiely last night, Mrs. de Pietro would divulge nothing of de Pietro and Dubois, or of the alleged swindle. She became talkative, however, and spoke of her home at 41 Leroy street, New York city, where she lived with her father, Andrew Bendotti and brother, Peter, when a schoolgirl. She told of eloping to Europe with de Pietro when she was but fourteen years old. Rippling on, she told of fleecing a man of money in Cleveland and of a short sojourn in Fairfax, Cal., where de Pietro was proprietor of a hotel called the "White House." After "cleaning up a live one," she said, they left that town. Later, she said, a jeweler named James Long, of 200 Ellis street, San Francisco, fell in love with her and proposed. He also fell a victim to her art of fleecing the lovelorn, she said.

GREAT BRITAN GREETS TURCO-BALKAN ENVOYS

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Dec. 14.—Sir Edward Grey, secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, today formally received the Turkish and Bulgarian delegates at the Foreign Office. After the formal reception, Rechid Pasha, chief of the Ottoman Envoys, and M. Daneff, heading the Bulgarians, had a private conference to discuss plans for Monday's opening of peace negotiations. It was agreed that the claims of each of the Balkan States would be supported by all of them. The Turks agreed to this arrangement.

MISSIONARY LABORS IN CHINA DESCRIBED

Rev. William Davis, a missionary who recently returned from China, spoke last night at the German Reformed church on the work being carried on among the Chinese people and how the Christian hospitals throughout the Orient are caring for thousands of patients who come to their doors. Until very recently there was but one doctor to every two million people, but the Christianized Chinese, who has studied in America, has assumed command of the situation and is doing wonderful work among the people. They are mostly young women.

Many of the stories which were were told last night by Rev. Mr. Davis concerned the labors of the late Rev. Mr. Curtin, who was one of the most noted of the Chinese missionaries. Rev. Mr. Curtin had many thrilling experiences during his life among the heathen and these were vividly portrayed by the lecturer.

SOUTHERN EDUCATORS STUDY RACE PROBLEM

Athens, Ga., Dec. 14.—The university commission on southern race questions, composed of eleven college professors chosen from the faculties of eleven state universities, will meet here Dec. 19 to begin the first thoroughly organized and sympathetic and intelligent effort to help the negro that has been undertaken in the south by the south since the colored man became a citizen. This commission was organized at Nashville, Tenn., last May at the suggestion of Dr. James H. Dillard, of New Orleans, president and director of the Anna T. Jeanes foundation. C. H. Brough, professor of economics and sociology University of Arkansas, is chairman of the commission.

JOHNSON HELD.

William Johnson, the colored man of all work, who was janitor for a number of lawyers and who was arrested charged with stealing $26 from the desk of Francis J. Blatz, waived examination before City Judge DeMeza this morning and was held in $200 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

AN ACCIDENT.

Christopher Carberry, aged 30 years, of 741 South street, caught the thumb of his left hand in a lathe at the Hall Printing Press Works, this morning, cutting the tendon, and he was obliged to go to Muhlenberg Hospital. Dr. Albert Pittis dressed the thumb and Carberry will probably return home tomorrow.

TWO KILLED IN WRECK.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 14.—H. A. Grover and P. H. Thornton, both New York Central trainmen from Syracuse, were killed in a rear end collision of two freight trains at Suspension Bridge today. They were asleep in the caboose of the wrecked train and their bodies were burned.

FIRE LOSS $350,000.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Zanesville, Ohio, Dec. 14.—City bonds amounting to $350,000 and valuable city records are believed to have been destroyed in a fire which razed the Municipal Market Building housing all of the city offices early today.

ANOTHER ON NEW HAVEN.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 14.—At 5:22 this morning extra freight No. 323, eastbound, composed of 38 cars, and No. 33 had three cars derailed at Westport station on the New Haven road. Tracks numbers four, one and two were blocked. No one was injured. The cause of derailment is unknown.

THE DOMINANT AIR.

As through an opera runs the rhythm of one dominant air, so through men's lives there rings a dominant note, soft in youth, strong in manhood and soft again in old age. But it is always there, and, whether soft in the gentler periods or strong amid the noise of the perihelion, it dominates always and gives its tone to the whole life.

DOCTORS ENDORSE
Newbro's Herpicide
When a doctor endorses a preparation it means more than an ordinary testimonial. His opinion is always that of the professional man devoted to the welfare of the people.
Rev. J. J. Boyd, Covington, Tenn. says: "I feel it my duty to write this for the benefit of those suffering from dandruff. In the average case a few applications of Newbro's Herpicide will remove all dandruff. It is advisable to continue its use for several weeks."
The words of J. B. Thompson, M.D., No. 2 Burrough Place, Cor. Hollis St., Boston, Mass., are not less enthusiastic: "I can only speak in praise of Newbro's Herpicide. It is all that is claimed and perhaps more. Herpicide not only cleanses the scalp but brightens the hair, gives it life and makes it soft.
Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ and stop falling hair. The terrible itching which goes with dandruff is allayed almost at once

IN WOMAN'S REALM

MOTORISTS' MODES.

"Burnt Bread" Satin Automobile Hoods Are Extremely Fashionable.

Fawn ratine with neat, smart stitching is used for a motor or traveling coat of newest design, the collar and one sided revers reaching below the waist being carried out in purple.

"Burnt bread" satin is used for distinguished little motor caps. A square crown with two points is a novel feature, and a note of relief is afforded by a white felt border. To this is attached a brown veil, which encircles the face becomingly.

The evening gown made with a tunic is always good looking. This season it is being extensively worn, and the tunics are made from all kinds of materials. Net that is embroidered with beads is a favorite. The tunic pictured is made on Grecian lines.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

These May Manton patterns are cut for the skirt from 22 to 32 inches waist measure and for the tunic from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents each for these patterns to this office, giving numbers—tunic 7294, skirt 7304—and they will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CHRISTMAS TARTS.

WHEN racking your brain for plans to make the children's Christmas delightful do not forget that individual dainties served as their part of the Christmas dinner will charm them. Indeed, the dainty pastries, recipes for which are given here, may well be made in quantity to supply the whole family.

You may bake your tarts in small individual baking dishes, muffin or patty pans. Cover the outside of the pans or dishes with pastry, press down firmly and trim around the top. Invert on a pan and bake until light brown. Then slip off the pans and set aside for filling.

Nice Fruit Tarts.

Jam or Jelly Tarts.—Roll good pie crust out thin and cut into half inch squares. Brush each square with the white of an egg, then fold over the corners to meet in the middle. Slightly press together, brush with the white of egg, sift with sugar and bake in a quick oven for a quarter of an hour. When done make a little hole in the middle and fill with jam, jelly and marmalade.

Raisin Tarts.—Take a cupful of raisins and run through the meat chopper. Add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one egg, one lemon, one tablespoonful of butter and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Make a crust as for pie. Fill the shells with above mixture and roll remainder of crust. Spread over top, prick with a fork and bake as you would pie. After it cools you may cut in any shape you desire.

Toothsome Pastries.

Custard Tarts.—Take three ounces of butter, three ounces of sugar, yolks of three eggs and one-half cupful of cream puff paste.

Cream the butter and sugar together until soft, then work in one at a time the three yolks of eggs. Beat well, grate the orange rind and add it with the strained juice of half an orange to the other ingredients. Beat in the cream and mix all well together.

Fill in the tart shells with the mixture and bake in a moderate oven for twenty minutes.

Date or Fig Tarts.—Cut a cupful of dates or figs into small pieces. Add to them two tablespoonfuls of sugar and water enough to cover them in the saucepan. Let the fruit simmer until smooth. A little more water may be added if needed. Toward the last add sugar and stir to a smooth paste. When cool spread in tart shells. A few chopped pecans or other nuts sprinkled on top are an improvement.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE'S COLUMN

(Every Saturday).

EDITOR

MRS. E. F. FEICKERT.

WHAT I AM—WHAT I DO.

I am a well-aimed missile in a vast volley of prevention putting disease to flight;

I am a messenger of hope who visits the thousands in despair;

I am a missionary of sanity, and proclaim the truth where error reigns and fraud sits enthroned;

I carry the consumptive from the tenement to the mountain-side, from the crowded street to the open field;

I send the visiting-nurse as an angel of mercy to the bedside of the sufferer;

I hold school in the open and see color return to pallid, childish faces;

I smile a benediction on him who buys me at Yuletide, and I make glad his heart because he gladdens the hearts of others;

I am small but I do a mighty work; I am humble but I save human life; I am mute but I speak a message of love;

I AM THE RED CROSS CHRISTMAS SEAL!

A very pleasant feature in the sale of the Anti-Tuberculosis Red Cross Stamps in Plainfield this year is the interest the school children are taking in the work. The children of almost all the Sunday-schools are busily selling stamps, and in addition the boys and girls of the public schools and the High School have entered into a friendly competition as to which shall sell the largest quantity of the stamps. So far the Stillman School is in the lead. They have taken one hundred packages of the stamps and expect to sell all of them before the close of the contest next Tuesday.

Red Cross stamps may also be purchased at any of the drug stores, at the office of the Daily Press and at the Charity Organization rooms in the Babcock building.

If you want to do some real cheering this season, buy Red Cross Stamps.

At present thirteen of the patients at Bonnie Burn, the County Tuberculosis Sanatorium, are Plainfield people. With the care and comforts which they will have at this beautiful sanatorium, so finely located in Washington Valley, it is expected that their health will rapidly improve, and that they will soon be entirely cured.

The following pathetic and unique request came to the office of the local Red Cross Seal agent the other day:

"Dear Sirs—I have only two cents that mamma gave me a long time ago. Teacher told me about you and the Red Cross Seals. I can't send a penny, so I put a stamp on this postal card. Will you send me a Red Cross seal for it."

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

Christmas stories will be read aloud around the open fire in the assembly room of the association tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. Christmas music will be sung by the Glee Club. All women and girls are cordially invited to attend.

Beginning Monday night the fifteen-cent suppers for working girls will be served every night until after Christmas.

No classes will meet during Christmas and New Year's weeks as the teachers will be given a two weeks' vacation.

CHILDISH COSTUME.

Simplicity, Yet Richness, In This Fur Coat.

OF MOLESKIN AND ERMINE.

The little coat of moleskin is matched by a babyish bonnet, and both are trimmed with bands of ermine. A big ermine muff completes the furry daintiness of this small girl.

Buttoned boots are worn by all children in the street, and the pictured boots are of white buckskin with ribbed stockings of heavy white silk.

Hints Worth Remembering.

An excellent way to prevent clothes from freezing to the clothesline is to dip a cloth in strong salt water and wipe the line with it.

To restore a waterproof coat dissolve a handful of best gray lime in half a pailful of water and with this solution wipe the coat at the hardened parts. This should be done at intervals of about four hours. After this treatment a hardened waterproof laid by as useless for years should be equal to new.

The frames of old umbrellas or parasols can be used very artistically for creepers in a garden. Just open them, strip off the silk, sharpen the handles to a point and thrust them open into the ground.

Modish, Yet Very Simple.

The cutaway coat is really not a style suitable for the very young girl, but the natty little costume pictured is an exception to this sartorial rule. English worsted in brown and green mixture is the fabric used, and the cutaway effect is very chic on a slender young girl who carries herself gracefully.

The skirt is, of course, short enough to show the natty buttoned walking boots of black patent leather with dull kid uppers.

The Grits Ball.

No, you don't dance it.
Neither do you throw it.
Rather it is designed to eat.
The shell is made of aluminium.
The round perforations admit the steam
One cup of grits or rice is held in it.
The grits ball opens on a hinge just as does a tea ball.
It is handier and looks nicer than an ordinary bag.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Coach George W. Winston and a squad of seven basketball players left for Essex Fells this morning. The team was composed of Good, Peacock, Bryniarski, Woodhull, Heron, Hetfield and Manager Grisley.

Interclass basketball will occupy the limelight next week. Have you dug out those last year's togs to do battle for your class?

Word comes from the other side of the water that the North Plainfield High School athletes do not care to play the interscholastic games at the Y. M. C. A. The fact that the P. H. S. team is composed mainly of Ajax players is their main kick, but it sounds like a pretty thin argument.

Of the three teams composing the league, Leals and P. H. S. are in favor of playing on the Y. M. C. A. court, so it looks as though the N. P. H. S. five would have to yield.

Suspicious senior class meetings of long duration are being held at noon every day. It looks as though the juniors were going to get stung heavily next Friday.

The only sport that reigns twice during the school term is field hockey. The girls have just closed a successful fall season and will begin play again as soon as the weather gets warm.

PICTURES OF WOODROW WILSON

The Daily Press has on hand about fifty handsome photogravures of President-elect Woodrow Wilson, which we wish to dispose of at less than cost. They can be secured for five cents each by anyone who comes to the Daily Press office for them. tf

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

BASKETBALL GAME AT HOPE CHAPEL TONIGHT

Crescent A. C., of Elizabeth, Will Be the Chapelites Opponents.

A red hot game of basketball is on the cards at Hope chapel tonight when the church boys line up against the strong Crescent A. C., of Elizabeth. The Chapelites will be minus the services of their captain, Johnny Heron, who is playing this afternoon with the High School at Essex Fells, but will give the county seat delegation a good run for their money nevertheless, as they have one of the best reserve corp of substitutes of any quintet in this city. What they could do with a shattered lineup was demonstrated at Grace church the other night, when, without the aid of Tommy Heron and Allen Snyder, the Hope quintet romped home a victor by a very decisive score.

The Crescent team is not wholly unknown to Plainfield basketball enthusiasts as it played the Y. M. C. A. Ajax a tight game three weeks ago at the Y. M. C. A., losing 42 to 45. The teams will take the floor as follows:

A. Snyder	Hill

HOCKEY INTRODUCED IN H. S. ATHLETICS

Students Are Making Earnest Preparations to Follow the Puck.

With the appearance of the first ice thick enough for skating, the Plainfield High School hockey enthusiasts held a limbering up session on Ohl's pond, yesterday afternoon. Plans are underway at P. H. S. to place a hockey team on the field this winter and the school athletes who have a hankering for that branch of athletics are praying for a continuance of the present cold snap.

Ice hockey is not wholly an innovation at the local High School, for the sport was tried last year and under the discouraging circumstances it proved highly popular. The one drawback in regard to hockey competition is the uncertainty of the weather in this section and the manager of such a team has to book his games on the spur of the moment. Several games were scheduled in this fashion last season and although the games were played at irregular intervals, the P. H. S. seven always made a creditable showing following up the puck.

Preparations are being made to interest a greater number in the game this winter and the sport will be run on a larger scale than heretofore. If the weather remains as it has been for the last two days, the ice will be thick enough to issue a call for candidates and a large squad are sharpening up their steel gliders in expectation of such a sounding.

BASKETBALL CAPTAIN ELECTED.

Before the game with Milburn High School yesterday afternoon, Miss Alice Mehl was elected at temporary captain of the P. H. S. girls' team to serve until the season gets definitely under way, when a permanent leader will be chosen. Miss Marion Wean will look after the managerial end of the five and is busy getting up a schedule which she will be ready to announce within a few days. Miss Mehl has played a star game with the High School five for three successive years, and returned last fall to pursue a post-graduate course.

FIELD HOCKEY SEASON ENDS AT HIGH SCHOOL

Three Games That Were Played Established Sport on Firm Basis.

Field hockey as a fixture at the Plainfield High School had its initial tryout this fall and the girl athletes have just brought to a close a most successful season. From all appearances the sport has come to stay and it will be taken up again as soon as the weather gets warm enough, probably during the months of April, May and June. The girls made a late start this year and as a result only a few practices were held and a small schedule was run off. Miss Helen Brynarski acted as captain of the team and she will hold this honor until she is graduated in June.

Under the supervision of faculty coach Miss Edgerton practices were held on Parker Field. Great difficulty was experienced in picking a team of representative strength because of the large number of aspirants for positions on the team.

The widespread interest in the girls game was awakened at P. H. S. in the fall of 1911 when several practices were held but no competitive games could be booked. The first game this season was played with the Plainfield Field Hockey Club and the school girls came out on the minus end of a 16 to 0 count. The team didn't win but the coaches were greatly encouraged over the game their charges put up against the more experienced hockey club's team who have been playing together for the past two years against some of the best elevens in the State. The second contest was played with the Cranford High School representatives at Parker Field. The home team suffered defeat by the score of 5 to 0. In this contest the local girls displayed a better knowledge of the game which they were fast mastering, and in the final struggle against the same team at Cranford the score ended up in a scoreless tie.

Although field hockey is an entirely new phase of sport to most of the High School maidens it is also a new and untried sport in interscholastic circles and Miss Ada Woodworth, who managed the local team had great difficulty in connecting with managers of other school teams where the sport had been introduced.

The following girls will be missing from the P. H. S. lineup after the sheepskins are distributed in June: Miss Marion Wean, Miss Marguerite Arnold, Miss Edith Arnold, Miss Edith Ogden and Miss Helen Brynarski, the 1912-13 captain. There is an abundant of fast material still remaining, however, which will form a nucleus for next year's team and it is hoped that by next year more of the New Jersey High Schools will advocate the outdoor game. Field hockey is a branch of athletics in which team work is the most important phase and the contestants are taught to work as a unit rather than to aspire for individual glory.

WITH THE BOXERS

Albany, N. Y., is to have a new boxing club soon to be managed by a local promoter.

Bob Moha now tips the scales at 221 pounds, and will no longer be able to box in the middle-weight division.

Greek K. O. Brown, the Chicago middleweight, is going to have another try against Jack Dillon at Columbus, O., Dec. 16.

Theatrical engagements will keep champion Willie Ritchie busy until next May, and then he will be ready to talk fight again.

Abe Attell, like Battling Nelson, refused to retire from the boxing game. Abe now wants another chance to box Ollie Kirk, the St. Louis featherweight.

Harry Donahue, of Pekin, Ill., who recently held his own in a 10-round bout with Packey McFarland, is in New York looking for a muss with some of the Gotham lightweights.

H. S. GIRLS' TEAM WINS FIRST CONTEST

Milburn School Lasses Prove Formidable Foes, But Finally Yield.

Superior team work and ability to make shots from the field court, gave the Plainfield High School girls' team the victory against the Milburn School five by the score of 19 to 13 yesterday afternoon. It was the victors' first game of the season. Their familiarity with the home court proved a great advantage to the local girls who threw goal after goal from different angles. The effect of the coaching which the P. H. S. girls have received at the hands of Miss Barbara Fleming was very manifest, as the ball was kept constantly in Plainfield territory.

For the better part of the contest the scoring was about even and the outcome never certain. In the last few minutes of play P. H. S. drew ahead and with the aid of some accurate caging on the part of the Misses Stryker and Mehl pulled to the front. The two forwards played a fine game from start to finish and were more or less the bulwark of their team. For the visitors Miss M. Marshall held up the scoring burden getting five field goals, while her sister displayed some classy guarding.

CHANCE WILL SIGN FOR $20,000 A YEAR

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Just before departing for New York yesterday, Frank Farrell, owner of the New York American League Club, declared that Frank Chance would be the highest salaried baseball manager in the United States, not barring John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Nationals, who, it is said, receives $18,000 a year.

Mr. Farrell would not go into details, but it is said Chance has demanded $20,000 a year.

The New York owner will dispose of the formality of the transfer of Chance in New York today.

BASKETBALL CHALLENGE.

The boys of the Mount Olive Baptist Sunday-school have organized a junior basketball team and would like to arrange games with combinations of like strength. Address communications to J. D. Whiting, assistant superintendent.

CYCLISTS RIDING AT SLOW PACE

Seventy-six Miles Behind Best Previous Record in Six-Day Race.

KRAMER-MORAN LOSE

Favorites Unable to Keep up in Early Morning Sprint—Eleven Teams Still at It, Six Men Having Quit Since Yesterday.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Madison Square Garden, Dec. 14.—With three teams out of the race and Kramer and Moran, who had been considered the favorites until early this morning, one lap behind, the six day bicycle race is drawing to a close this afternoon with six teams tied for first place, 76 miles behind the best previous record for the same number of hours. The mileage at two o'clock was:

	Miles	Laps
Clark and Hill	2510	7
Grenda and Pye	2510	7
Rutt and Fogler	2510	7
Root and Hehir	2510	7
Bedell and Mitten	2510	7
Drobach and Collins	2510	7
Kramer and Moran	2510	6
Perchicot and Egg	2510	6
Walker and Wells	2510	5
Brocco and Berthet	2510	5
Cameron and Thomas	2510	4

The record for the same time is 2586 miles and 1 lap.

At nine this morning the teams were thirty-two miles behind the record, and at eleven the pace had been so slow in the intervening hours that between the record and the actual distance traveled this year was fifty-three miles. At one o'clock they were 64 miles behind the record, and riding slower with each hour. During the early morning the Suter Brothers dropped out, and between ten and eleven Loftes and Carmen decided that they had had enough and quit.

The elimination of Sprint Champion of the World Frank Kramer from among the leading teams of the race early this morning furnished the sensation and surprise of the race. Jackie Clarke, fondly called the "Rocket" by his followers, was responsible for his rivals displacement, as it was he, who, noticing Kramer's poor condition after being on the track for several hours, started a terrific sprint. It will be remembered that last year the diminutive Australian jumped the field and gained a lap on the other riders putting Kramer out of the running for first place. It is a well known fact that Clarke is not a match for Kramer in a one-mile sprint and the former proves himself a great six-day race general in disposing of his dangerous competitor in this manner.

During this great riding both Kramer and his partner, Moran, seemed to be unable to overtake the others, and as a result they gradually lost ground. Realizing that he was about to lose a lap, Moran threw himself from his wheel at the Twenty-sixth street and Fourth avenue turn. The judges must have thought that Moran had purposely fallen to save himself from losing a lap, for they refused to ring the bell and the other riders kept right on going.

A few minutes later Drobach's front wheel swerved on hm, throwing him heavily to the floor. As this fall was a pure accident, the scorers finally rang the bell putting an end to the wild riding, which had lasted just nineteen minutes.

After the judges had pulled themselves together they decided that the following seven teams had gained a lap: Root and Hehir, Rutt and Fogler, Grenda and Pye, Clarke and Hill, Mitten and Bedell, Brocco and Berthet and Drobach and Collins. The latter team was allowed a lap by the judges because Collins' chain had broken while he was riding with those who had gained a lap. After giving these decisions the judges decided that Kramer and Moran had lost a lap, as Moran had purposely fallen off his wheel.

During a brief sprint at 10 o'clock last night Ryan fell and broke his collarbone and his partner, Lloyd Thomas formed a new combination with George Cameron. The latter's partner, Walthour, was in such poor shape that he quit early in the evening. He had suffered a severe fall at 6:20 when rounding the Madison avenue turn and sprained his shoulder.

GRUDGE GAME ON AT SOMERVILLE TONIGHT

Company K five will play the heavy Company M Cadet five, of Somerville, tonight in the Somerville armory. The game is one of the biggest on the soldiers' schedule and Captain Thompson will throw his strongest lineup against the Somerville players. This promises a great game as the two teams are rated as very evenly matched and the Somervillians are known to have a long standing grudge against Thompson's men. Since Company K came into its fourth straight victory the players have decided to set a company record and will go after Somerville from the first toot of the whistle. A big delegation of rooters will accompany the team on its trip tonight.

HERE'S AN UNUSUAL KNOCKOUT.

The story of an unusual knockout is told in Toronto, Canada. During a bout between J. Harris and A. Saunders in an amateur tournament the latter landed a right on Harris' jaw and knocked him senseless. For some reason Harris did not fall and as he receded instinctively let go his own right. It landed squarely and Saunders went down. Harris was led to his corner, where he was declared the winner. On reaching his chair he collapsed and did not come to for a full minute afterward, when he learned that he had won.

CROWTHER BEST QUARTER?

Eastern Football Experts Claim Brown Man is Leader in Position.

The football experts are selecting the men for their All Americans. According to many eastern experts, George Crowther of Brown should be awarded quarterback position on the mythical team. In the open field running the "Kid," as Crowther is termed by his teammates, is easily a rival of Sprackling, last year's star in the position, whose place he is filling.

GEORGE CROWTHER, CLEVER QUARTERBACK

His work was the feature of the Harvard game. With little or no support against Harvard, Crowther circled the ends time and again for spectacular gains and ran back punts through a field of Crimson tacklers. Occasionally Crowther sought the center of the line, winning his way through for several yards. He also played a grand game against Yale.

On the defense Crowther is a sure tackler. He has not missed a possible tackle this year and has several difficult chances to his credit. Crowther weighs only 140 pounds and is often handled very roughly by his heavy tacklers, but he is game to the last and one of the hardest fighters seen on the gridiron this season.

BRADDOCK'S BIG FIRE.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

COULON'S BANTAM TITLE IN DANGER

Holder of Championship Will Stack Up Against Two Cracks.

KID WILLIAMS TOUGH NUT.

He Will Meet Johnny in New York Dec. 17—Winner to Be Matched With Ledoux, the Boss Bantam of Europe. Palzer's Stock Goes Down.

By TOMMY CLARK.

A world's bantam championship is in the making. Charley Ledoux, the bantam boss of Europe, has accepted terms to meet the victor of the return battle between Johnny Coulon and Kid Williams in New York. Coulon and Williams will settle their mooted question of superiority in Gotham Dec. 17, and two weeks later Ledoux will be sent against the winner. That is, Ledoux will get the match provided he is not tripped up by some of the American 116 pounders that he contemplates testing himself out against.

In his first battle in this country against "Battling" Reddy in New York he showed up well. He mauled Reddy without a letup. He set a pace that would have made Battling Nelson turn green with envy. The Frenchman had a way of jumping in with his punches that seemed to kill off any of the force of his wicked looking swings and uppercuts.

The general verdict was that Ledoux is the "busiest" little fellow that has visited America in many moons. His powers of endurance were simply hair raising.

He has the Terry McGovern locomotive speed, minus the jaw cracking heft to his fists that made little Terry loom up bigger than the New York skyscraper line.

Reddy is not a star, but he has the necessary qualifications for a good trial horse. He is a puncher without skill.

Tommy Houck is mentioned as the next opponent of Ledoux. If the foreigner cleans up on Houck he will be ripe and considered worthy of a match for the world's highest honors in his class.

Ledoux carries a record as long as the pedigree of a British grand dame. All but three of his battles, however, were against boys that no one ever heard of. They are a few of the horde of French lads who have become inspired by the success of Georges Carpentier and are seeking to emulate him. Ledoux has fifty-four knockouts to his credit.

The championship aspirations of big Al Palzer received a severe jolt when he lost to Tony Ross in Philadelphia recently. Ross is the roly poly heavyweight who acted as a punching bag for Joe Jeanette in New York a short time ago. Palzer was not in the best of shape, but Ross was not trained any too fine either.

Palzer's record since he first attracted attention now stands at five victories and three losses, not counting the heavyweight tournament, where he was credited with winning.

Compared with the performances of some of his rivals this showing is not very impressive and evidently it behooves the Iowa farmer to bestir himself if he wishes to remain at the top of the heap. Even in his winning bouts Palzer has been forced to accept a great deal of punishment. There were times in practically all his bouts when he looked to be a loser, particularly in that with Wells and the bout with Kennedy in which he scored a knockout. Soldier Delaney knocked him down, and Sailor White landed at will until he finally succumbed to Palzer's great strength. However, Palzer has never yet been knocked out, thanks to his great recuperative powers.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning o a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine o town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men wit red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good tim and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment: th Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhap it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflecte in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seeme far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundre and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow o the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address t the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children yo are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, se and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the res Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gift to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than yo want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter wil be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymou as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve th anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and i guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that yo have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough fo you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mea much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in th otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utte disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Her is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellow furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drin and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he ha taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says h wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the goo fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money t gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid hi plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

HERE ARE THE MEN ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF SENDING LETTER TO PRESIDENT ELECT DEMANDING $5,000 OF MR. WILSON

SEELEY DAVENPORT—JACOB DUNN—WARREN DUNN.

© 1912 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Newark, N. J., Dec. 13.—Seeley Davenport, Jacob Dunn and Warren Dunn, held for examination before United States Commissioner Stockton Dec. 16, deny that they had anything to do with the letter recently received by President-elect Wilson demanding $5,000 on penalty of death. Jacob Dunn said that he had been employed for some time as a guard on the Hudson and Manhattan railroad in the tubes under the North river between New York and points on the New Jersey side. He has enjoyed a good reputation in his community. The sheriff asserted that Warren Dunn and Seeley Davenport admitted that they had been arrested for stealing chickens. The three men are said to have handled ice as their principal occupation. They worked on a nearby lake in the winter, cutting ice both for themselves and other persons in the community. With the contents of their own ice-houses they provided what was needed by several summer visitors to the country around Ford's Mike, in the heart of New Jersey's Blue mountain range.

For the purpose of defending the three Sparta mountaineers a fund is being raised in Wharton by neighbors of the accused men. William Tyacke, Jr., a lawyer of Newark, who specializes in Federal cases, has been retained to represent the three mountaineers. The accused men are held in the Essex county jail at Newark under $2,000 bail each for a hearing next Tuesday. A subpoena has been issued by United States Commissioner Stockton for Gov. Wilson. Neighbors and friends of the three mountaineers have circulated a petition of confidence, and about 100 signatures have been obtained, and the sum of $150 has already been subscribed to the fund for their defense.

NEW JERSEY OFFICERS TAKE UNUSUAL MASURES TO PREVENT REPETITION OF FATAL FIGHT WITH RAILROAD STRIKERS

SCENE of the BATTLE

SEARCHING SUSPECTS for ARMS

New York, Dec. 14.—Since the desperate fight between Erie Railroad detectives and striking employes in the railroad yards at Edgewater, N. J., directly opposite New York, Sheriff Robert N. Heath and his deputies have been unusually active in dealing with the strikers. Every stranger in the vicinity of the battle in which two railroad detectives were killed and nine men, all but one being railroad detectives, were wounded, is searched, and those found to be armed are sent to jail. The scene of the trouble, although within sight of New York, is rather wild, and the bluff down which the strikers fired at the detectives might be miles away from civilization. In the upper picture, which shows where the fighting occurred, Grant's tomb is seen on the opposite shore of the Hudson River

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

Spain has sounded the depths of Pepito's genius, and seeks to cherish and develop it, as she would develop her mightiest natural resources. Almeria has a musical prodigy whose fame has drifted to the farthest corners of the earth. Cristeta Goni, a fifteen-year-old Almeria child, who appears at the Plainfield theatre Monday afternoon and evening, was declared by Ovide Musin, an accredited authority in New York and a virtuoso himself, to be the most wonderful child the world has ever seen. This verdict came after Musin extended a promised audience of ten minutes to two hours. He had stood enthralled by the flashing splendor of the child's playing, and finally said: "She plays now better than Sarasate. She is the most wonderful child the world has ever seen." Cristeta Goni is a sturdy child—well poised and full of the fire and vivacity of genius. Her mass of dusky hair is long; her dark eyes are deep wells of alternate mischief and brooding passion, and, above all, her nature is as fresh, as sweet and unspoiled as a dew-kissed morning in May. Cristeta Goni is a mere child in short dresses, yet she is a master of music—that language of the human soul. Under the magic touch and strength of her muscular little hands, all the wonder, the charm, the trembling, glorious exultation of the world's masterpieces pour forth with the assurance, expression and beauty of mature genius.

GRASS FIRE THREATENS HOUSE.

A grass fire this morning threatened the home of Miss Caroline T. Lincoln on West Eighth street. Before the engines arrived on the scene however a bucket brigade extinguished the fire. No damage was done.

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend an Ordinance Entitled, "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," Approved May 10, 1912, and to Ratify the Sale and Delivery of $18,000 Street Improvement Bonds of the City of Plainfield.

WHEREAS, by an Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," approved May 10, 1912, the Common Council of the City of Plainfield authorized the issuance of $18,000 coupon bonds of the City of Plainfield of the denomination of $1,000, to be dated June 1, 1912, payable three years from the date thereof, and to bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum payable semi-annually, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off said bonds or any one or more of them at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof; and

WHEREAS, by resolutions adopted by the Common Council on August 5, 1912 and approved August 12, 1912, it was provided that said bonds should be dated July 1, 1912, and said bonds were offered for sale on September 3, 1912, and sold and delivered pursuant to said resolutions;

NOW THEREFORE the Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 2 of the Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of certain streets and portions of streets of the City of Plainfield, with permanent and durable macadam pavement, and to provide the necessary funds in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits," adopted by the Common Council, May 6, 1912, and approved by the Mayor, May 10, 1912, be amended so as to read as follows:

"Section 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, to an amount not exceeding fifteen dollars per capita for each of the inhabitants of said City according to the last official census, but not for more than the amount limited by law, the Common Council of said City do hereby, pursuant to the Act of the Legislature of said State entitled "An Act to authorize the Improvement of streets and highways in cities of this State, and to provide for the payment of the expense of the same, and for the assessment of the benefits of such improvements upon the land and real estate benefited thereby," and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, authorize the issuing of eighteen coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, amounting in all to Eighteen Thousand Dollars ($18,000) which bonds shall be dated July 1, 1912, and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum (5 per cent.) per annum payable semi-annually and be payable three years from the date thereof, with the option to the City to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them, at any time after one year from the date thereof and before three years from the date thereof, on giving personal notice to said holders of said bonds or thirty (30) days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds shall be signed by the Mayor and bear the corporate seal of the City and be attested by the City Clerk, and may severally or collectively when ordered by resolution of the Common Council be sold for an amount not less than par value; and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds."

Section 2. That the resolutions adopted by the Common Council on August 5, 1912, and approved by the Mayor on August 12, 1912, providing for the date and form of said bonds and directing the advertisement of notice of sale thereof, and all action taken in relation to the advertisement, award and delivery of said bonds be and the same hereby are ratified and confirmed.

Adopted by the Common Council, Dec. 2, 1912; approved by the Mayor, Dec. 5, 1912.

GEORGE W. V. MOY, Mayor.

AN ORDINANCE

A Supplement to an Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance to Create and Define the Duties of the Board of Police and a Police Force," Approved February 28th, 1882, as Amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Section 3 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment, be further amended so as to read as follows:

Section 3. The Police Force shall consist of such number of regular and special policemen, each of whom shall be a resident and legally qualified voter of this city, as the Common Council shall from time to time deem necessary and by resolution order to be appointed. The said Police Force shall rank as follows: Chief of Police, Captain, Sergeant, Detective-Sergeant, Roundsmen, Patrolmen, Doorman.

The duties of the several members and officers of said Police Force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinance of the city and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the Police Department. The Patrolmen shall be divided into five (5) classes:

Class A—Fifth year of service and over.
Class B—Fourth year of service.
Class C—Third year of service.
Class D—Second year of service.
Class E—First year of service.

Provided, that the Common Council upon recommendation of the Police Board may advance a Patrolman from a lower to a higher class for especially good work or meritorious service, whether he shall have served his full time, specified above, or not.

Commencing with the first day of January, 1913, the salaries of the members of the force, who are regular policemen, and are hereby fixed at the following rates, that is to say:

Chief	$1,800.00 per annum
Captain	1,350.00 per annum
Sergeant	1,200.00 per annum
Detective-Sergeant	1,200.00 per annum
Roundsmen	1,200.00 per annum
Patrolmen.

HICKEY MAY ESCAPE DEATH IN THE CHAIR

His History and Circumstances of Case Present Odd Features.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Not for many years has any criminal case aroused so much country-wide interest among all classes of people as the case of J. Frank Hickey, the self-confessed murderer of boys, whose trial upon the charge of having murdered the seven-year-old Joseph Josephs at Lackawanna, N. Y., on October 12, 1911, will come up before the Supreme Court in this city on Monday. For many reasons this case is one of the most unusual and interesting in the criminal annals of this State, if not of the whole country.

Pronounced cases of a dual personality are not common and the psychological problem which they present makes them intensely interesting to every student of human nature in its abnormal state. It has long since been recognized that when Robert Louis Stevenson wrote his famous book "Dr. Jekll and Mr. Hyde" he did not present a psychological impossibility, but that he gave a masterly presentation of a clear cut and typical case of a dual personality, entirely within the limits of possibility, though perhaps a trifle more extreme and sensational than most of the cases whch occasionally come to public notice.

The life history of J. Frank Hickey and the circumstances connected with his arrest and indictment present many peculiar features. Hickey is a man of middle age, of good address and from his appearance nobody would suspect him of being a man of abnormal or criminal character. He received a good education, became a pharmacist and then an expert chemist and filled various responsible positions to the satisfaction of his employers. In his normal condition a man of culture, kind and pleasant in his ways, he became a fiend filled with the lust of murder when the poison of alcohol benumbed his better self and released from its latent state the sinister part of his personality.

When under the control of his evil ego Hickey became filled with the insane impulse to kill boys, an impulse which he could not resist. According to his own confession Hickey tried to commit murder twelve times, but only twice did he succeed. One of his victims was little Joseph Josephs, for whose murder he is to be tried next week, the other was Michael R. Kruck, a newsboy in New York City, whom he lured to an unfrequented part of Central Park where he strangled him.

In both cases it was believed that the boys had been kidnapped. The body of Michael R. Kruck was found after a while in Central Park and Hickey was arrested on suspicion. After his arrest in Buffalo he made a confession, but repudiated his statements after he had recovered from his intoxication. As there were no proofs against him he was released by the police.

Joseph Josephs was the son of a wealthy merchant of Lackawanna and after his disappearance his father, believing that the boy had been kidnapped, instituted a country-wide search. The boy's dismembered and decomposed body was not found until after the police of Lackawanna had received a postal card from Hickey, mailed at Boston and informing them that the writer had strangled the boy and thrown his dismembered body into a cesspool back of a saloon in Lackawanna.

It was his mania for writing postal cards to the police authorities of different cities, confessing to crimes and giving information as to where the bodies of the victims would be found, which led to the capture of Hickey. Facsimiles of the cards were reproduced in the newspapers and some persons, who recognized the similarity of the writing with Hickey's chirography, informed the police. An investigation was made which disclosed that Hickey had been under arrest for the murder of the Kruck boy, and after some further search Hickey was found in an institution for inebriates at Whiting, N. J., arrested and charged with the murder of the Josephs boy.

Hickey did not resist arrest and declared his willingness to be taken to Buffalo without formal extradition. On the way from New York to Buffalo Hickey made a full confession of his crimes, including the murders of Joseph Josephs and Michael R. Kruck. He said that when under the influence of liquor he could not resist the desire to kill boys, while he deeply regretted his crimes when in a normal condition. It is believed that Hickey will probably be found insane and be committed to the Dannemora asylum for the remainder of his life.

SAN FRANCISCO'S TWO MILE PETITION WINS AND LIBERTY BELL WILL GO WEST

Philadelphia, Dec. 14.—Mrs. Emma Doane has succeeded in her mission, and the two mile petition that she brought from San Francisco to present to Mayor Blankenburg proved effective. The famous old Liberty bell is to be sent to San Francisco for the Panama-Pacific exposition of 1915. The bell has made six trips from Independence Hall on missions of patriotism and instruction. It went to the Cotton Exposition at New Orleans in 1885, to the Columbia Exposition at Chicago in 1893, to the Interstate and West Indian Exposition at Charleston in 1902, to the celebration of the one hundred and twenty-eighth anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill, Boston, in 1903 and to the St. Louis Exposition in 1904. The trip to Frisco will therefore be its seventh and longest journey. It will be specially braced inside to prevent the crack from spreading.

TESTS TO APPLY TO AMUSEMENTS

Herring Tells How to Know Right and Wrong Pastimes.

ENTERTAINMENT NEED

Demand for Rational Relaxation not Denied, But Preacher Quotes Eva Booth on "Movies" to Indicate Harmful Forms of Enjoyment.

In the course of a sermon on "Amusements, Right and Wrong," Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, quoted Miss Eva Booth to the effect that emotional and exciting moving pictures, such as those portraying elopements, robberies, murders and divorces, cause the demoralization of more people than any other pleasure.

He said in part:

"No one questions the need of amusement for all classes of people. The old and the young need relaxation to enable them better to accomplish the work of their lives and save them from a nervous breakdown. Do you ask how we can make the distinction between the right kind of amusement and the wrong kind?

"I have on my desk this list of tests. They are worth your while to study and apply.

"Does the amusement that you love rest and strengthen or weary and weaken your body? The sports recommended and practiced by the members of the Young Men's Christian Association are for the purpose of giving to a young man a better body. Remember that the apostle calls your body the temple of God. You should therefore keep it in health and pure.

"Does the amusement rest and strengthen, or weary and weaken the brain? It is not good to have an inordinate craving for excitement. If your aim is thrill, dash and sensation, your brain will be fagged out.

"Does your amusement make resistance to temptation easier or harder? If the amusement that you love is doubtful, then you are in danger.

"Does your amusement increase or lessen your love for virtue, purity, temperance and justice? Miss Eva Booth, of the Salvation Army, has declared that the moving picture which portrays elopements, duels, robberies, murders, divorces, is responsible for more downfalls and greater demoralization than any other popular pleasure. They lessen love for virtue and purity.

"Does your amusement give inspiration and quicken enthusiasm or stupify the intellect and harden the moral nature? Perhaps you have companions or a companion that makes you live at a lower moral level. You need the strength of a good companion. I know those today who would be stronger Christian characters but for some companion that demoralizes them.

"Does your amusement increase or diminish respect for manhood and womanhood? You can answer this question by first answering the following.

"Does your amusement draw one nearer or remove one further from Christ? You were once interested in church activity. Something has entered your life which makes you indifferent. You are not interested in the church, and not interested in the Bible school. Is some kind of amusement or pleasure shutting Christ out of your life? If Christ is shut out you will have a diminishing love for humanity.

"Susannah Wesley has given us this good counsel. Listen and apply it.

"Whatever weakens your reason, whatever impairs the tenderness of your conscience, whatever obscures your sense of God, whatever increases the strength and authority of your body over your mind,—that thing to you is wrong, however innocent it may be in itself."

BELIEVES CHINESE REPUBLIC IS STABLE

Missionary Sure it Will Endure Officials Fostering Christianity.

Rev. P. W. Pitcher, a returned missionary from the Chinese field, gave two descriptive talks on "The Awakening" and "The Leadership of China," yesterday morning and evening at Trinity Reformed church. Mr. Pitcher returned from Amoy, China, last spring and will go back next fall to resume his work.

"The new Republic will stand," said Mr. Pitcher in his morning talk. "Difficulties of all kinds were placed in the path of the new officials, but not as bad as those that had to be overcome by this country when we fought for our liberty."

"The majority of the Republic's officials are Christians and are promoting the faith throughout the entire country," said the missionary in his talk last night.

He said that the women of the country were coming into their own in the home as well as in social life. The ages-old habits are being done away with and a new set are being cultivated.

"Pray for the officials that they may win the great battles they must fight," said the missionary earnestly. "They are trying to be wise, careful and helpful to the people and are trying through it all not to do anything that is going to hinder the progress of Christianity. In closing I say again, pray for China and the movement."

GIRL VIOLINIST'S PROGRAM AT THE THEATRE TONIGHT

THIEVES IN BOUND BROOK.

Bound Brook, Dec. 16 (Special).—Burglars visited the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Peter M. Smith, at East Bound Brook, between the hours of 11:30 o'clock in the morning and 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon, yesterday, and got away with a new overcoat, gloves, shoes, muffler, razor, belonging to Mr. Smith; a new gold ring and $2 belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Smith's daughter, Mrs. Alexander D. Galloway, who with her husband, lives at that place. Mr. and Mrs. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Galloway left the house about 11:30 o'clock in the morning in an automobile to go to Scotch Plains, where they spent the afternoon with Justice and Mrs. Joseph Clark.

HOPE MEN'S CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club of Hope Chapel will be held in the chapel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The speaker of the evening, will be Harry Wade Hicks, of New York City, who will address the meeting on the topic: "Turkey and its People." The lecture will be illustrated with lantern slides. All men of the congregation are invited. The hosts for the evening will be George T. Leighs, Donald McInnes, Robert Baillie and Alexander Doig.

WANT BETTER LIGHTING.

President George L. Babcock has appointed a committee on better lighting facilities for the business section in acordance with a resolution passed at the last meeting of the Chamber. The committee, composed of W. S. Angleman, chairman; Charles H. Hand, James C. Hansen, P. J. McDonough and M. C. VanArsdale, will gather signatures to a petition to the Common Council asking that the improvement be made at the expense of the city.

NEW RECTORY TO BE A MEMORIAL

T. J. Mumford Will Give Handsome Building to Grace Parish.

IN MEMORY OF WIFE

Structure to Be Complete in Every Detail, With all Conveniences of a Modern Residence—Site Not Yet Announced.

An announcement of great interest was made by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector, at the 11 o'clock service at Grace church, yesterday morning, when the worshippers were informed that the parish is to have a new rectory. Mr. Stevenson said that the rectory would be a memorial to Mrs. Thomas J. Mumford, and would be presented by Mr. Mumford.

A lot is to be purchased in one of the most desirable sections of the city, and the entire expense will be borne by Mr. Mumford. The rectory will be one of the handsomest and most appropriate memorials that can be built. It will be modern in every respect, and will be planned with the idea of meeting every possible need of the rector and his wife.

Rev. Mr. Stevenson is not yet ready to announce the location of the rectory. He will, however, give out that information shortly.

CHRISTMAS SAVERS WILL GET $70,000

Big Fund for Members of Plainfield Trust Co.'s Yuletide Club.

When the Plainfield Trust Company on April 1 last, introduced the new idea of the Christmas Savings Club probably no one realized that payments ranging from 2 cents to $1.80 weekly would by December 1 aggregate $70,000, yet, surprising as it may seem, that is the amount which will be distributed by the company this week. Had each one of the 3,785 members kept up their payments without interruption the amount would have been even larger.

Those familiar with the plan will recall that in the club there were four classes: Class 2, in which weekly payments began with 2 cents and ended with 72 cents; Class 5, in which payments began with 5 cents and ended with $1.80, and Classes 2-A and 5-A, in which these payments were reversed.

Up to and including Thursday of this week the Trust Company will pay the members of the club by check and it is safe to assume that the distribution of $70,000 at a time when there are so many extra demands for money will make this Christmas an unusually merry one for the club members. Most of the money will doubtless remain in Plainfield. Whether it be spent in the local shops for the purchase of Christmas gifts, turned over to the tax collector in payment of taxes, or transferred to a permanent savings account in the Plainfield Trust Company's Special Department.

The club has unquestionably been popular and the success with which it has met has been little short of remarkable. Announcement will be made later in regard to a club for 1913.

TOURING CAR SMASHES HACK, DRIVER INJURED

A large touring automobile driven by Mrs. Frank B. Ball, of 31 Myrtle avenue, crashed into a hack belonging to John J. Curran, of 469 West Front street, at the North Avenue railroad station late Saturday afternoon, injuring Mr. Curran about the body.

Alexander E. Faber, of Rockview avenue, North Plainfield, who was alighting from the hack when the accident occurred, was thrown to the ground and also sustained several bruises. The hack was almost totally smashed.

SIGMA CHI DANCE.

Sigma Chi, a social organization composed of sixteen young people, held a dance at the Fanwood fire house on Friday night when thirty-two were present. The patronesses were: Mrs. L. R. Williams, Mrs. S. H. Palmer, Mrs. F. E. Gross and Mrs. W. W. Outwater. Suhr's orchestra furnished the music. The committee consisted of the Misses Habel Williams, Edith Palmer, Annalou Outwater and Ella Jarret. It happened to be the birthday of the club president, William Anderson, and he received congratulations.

HORSE DOCTOR SEWED HIS HEAD

Huntsman Harrison, of the Watchung Hunt Club, while participating in the chase on Saturday afternoon, came a cropper in taking one of the jumps and was injured more seriously than was supposed at the time. He fell beneath his horse and the animal struck him in the back of his head with his hind feet. Dr. H. E. Winter, a veterinarian, who was in the vicinity, was summoned. He sewed a rather deep cut in the back of the huntsman's head. The injured man is reported as improving at his home.

MRS. MORAN'S FUNERAL.

The funeral service of Mrs. Mary A. Moran, of West Fourth street, took place at St. Mary's R. C. church at 9 o'clock this morning, where a solemn high mass was held. Father Sciolla was the celebrant, Father B. M. Bogan the deacon and Father Hogan the sub-deacon. There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends. The burial was in St. Mary's cemetery and the pall-bearers were John Brown, Philip Butscher, Henry Lutz, Michael D. O'Keeffe and Thomas and Edward McCue.

KEEPS HORSES FROM SLIPPING.

Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, agent for the S. P. C. A., has received sample sets of the Kinnell humane self-fitting chain ocershoe for horses, which prevents slipping on ice and asphalt, which will be displayed in one of the local shops. The American S. P. C. A. offered a prize of $500 for a non-slip device, and the patentee of this overshoe won it. Mrs. VanHoesen requests that with the first fall of snow owners of horses pulling heavy loads interview her so that they may be able to give the revice a trial.

IN PRIESTHOOD QUARTER CENTURY

Father Miller's Anniversary Will Be Elaborately Celebrated Tomorrow.

BISHOP TO TAKE PART

Impressive Array of Prominent Men Will Gather to Do Honor to St. Joseph's Well-Loved Rector at Park Club.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of ordination of the Rev. W. H. Miller, pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, North Plainfield, will be celebrated tomorrow. A solemn mass will be celebrated in the church in the morning. An elaborate program of addresses and musical selections will be presented at the Park Club in the evening.

On the platform will be men prominent in local public affairs, and well known speakers of the State who will come to do honor to one who has labored unceasingly for many years in the cause of Christianity and the good of his parish and people.

At the morning mass, which will be celebrated by Father Miller at 10:30 o'clock, the Right Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, will be in charge. The Rev. Walter Leahy, of Princeton, will act as deacon, assisted by the Rev. Andrew M. Egan, of Bayonne, former pastor of St. Mary's church. The Rev. John Baldwin, of St. Mount St. Mary's College, will be master of ceremonies. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Father Peter J. Petre, of Spring Lake.

Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, will preside at the celebration at the Park Club. The speakers will include Congressman-elect Allan B. Walsh, of Trenton; Congressman Thomas M. Scully, of South Amboy; Mayor G. W. V. Moy and Mayor-elect Percy H. Stewart; Judge Peter F. Daly, of New Brunswick; Judge Clarence E. Case, of Somerville; former City Judge William N. Runyon and W. L. Saunders. Not all the speakers are of the Catholic faith. They are admirers of the priest, anxious to join in honoring him.

E. P. Gavin and James Hurley, Sr., two of the oldest members of St. Joseph's church, will occupy seats of honor on the platform.

John Finnegan, tenor soloist of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, will sing several selections and instrumental music will be played by B. A. Paroubek, H. Jungman and Joseph Denny.

At the close of the celebration Father Miller will be presented with a testimonial by A. R. Philips.

The anniversary celebration has been arranged by the Women's League of St. Joseph's church, under the direction of Miss Mary O'Connor, the president. The league has been assisted in perfecting the details of the event by the Holy Name Society, represented by David T. Kenney, Robert McCormack, Thomas Meaney, Richard Boice, Richard McCullough, A. R. Philips, Joseph Hurley, Jr., Cormack McDonough, Patrick McDonough, Andrew E. Kenney and Alfred E. Laporte.

The ushers for the evening ceremonies will be William McCullough, Vincent Meaney, Henry Brynasiky, Robert Hamilton, Leo Kenney, Walter Hamilton, Daniel McCormick, Andrew Carney, Percy Bailey, Frank Hart, William Dailey, James O'Neil and William Welch.

P. H. S. SENIOR CLASS TO GET A WHACK AT JUNIORS

Final preparations were made by the High School Seniors today for the annual Junior "sting" session which will be held in the school auditorium Friday night.

At the conclusion of the Senior part of the program which will all take place in the auditorium, the two classes will repair to the gymnasium where the 1914 classmen will provide a spread for their colleagues. Every member of the Senior class has been given the names of several Juniors and each Senior will have to compose an appropriate "sting" for the lower classmen whose names they have. The "stings" or "roasts" will represent some prominent trait of character or circumstance encountered by the individual during his connection with P. H. S. James Dunwell and Willard McKay have been selected to take charge and pass on the compositions.

HOWELL DIVISION ELECTION.

IRMA BENDOTTI LOST NONCHALANCE IN CELL

Weeps in Court and Protests Innocence—To County Jail.

Protesting her innocence of any wrongdoing, 19-year-old Irma Bendoti, alias Mrs. de Pietro, the alleged accomplice of a band of confidence men, arrested here Friday on a charge of grand larceny preferred by the authorities of San Francisco, was taken to the county jail in Elizobeth Saturday in default of $10,000 bail. Through her counsel, Councilman-elect Francis J. Blatz, she will apply to Judge Atwater for a reduction in bail.

Miss Bendotti is wanted by the San Francisco police on an indictment charging her with assisting Frank Dubois and Rinaldo de Pietro rob an old man of $7,700, his life's savings. When arraigned before City Judge DeMeza Saturday afternoon, she had lost all her previous nonchalance and weeping bitterly, hysterically pleaded her innocence.

DEATH AND BIRTH WITHIN TWO HOURS IN SAME HOUSE

Mrs. Margaret A. Wortman, aged 72 years, widow of Samuel Wortman, of New York, while on a visit to her niece, Mrs. Charles A. Baker, of 222 West Second street, died Saturday evening about 6:30 o'clock, following an attack of bronchial pneumonia. Two hours later, Mrs. Baker became the mother of a girl baby. Mrs. Wortman had planned to visit her niece at this time and remain during the holidays, and her death was a severe shock.

The body was taken to New York yesterday and the funeral will be held at the home of Addie Goodrich, a daughter.

MISS CORIELL BRIDE OF GEORGE G. VAN HORN

Miss Marguerite A. Coriell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Coriell, of New Market, and George G. Van Horn, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Van Horn, of Summit avenue, North Plainfield, were married at the parsonage of the Dunellen Presbyterian church Saturday evening at 7 o'clock before their immediate relatives by Rev. E. R. Brown, pastor of the church.

After a short wedding trip the couple will return to this city and take up their residence with the bridegroom's parents on Summit avenue.

CLERIC REFUSED TO MARRY THEM

So A. R. Fisk and Mrs. Cobbs Were Wed by a Justice.

BRIDEGROOM ANNOYED

Couple at Vanderbilt Hotel, New York—Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Fisk Witness Marriage, But Not Their Parents.

August R. Fisk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, who, on Saturday was married to Mrs. Horace Cobbs, a young Boston widow in Boston, brought his bride to New York last night. At present the couple are stopping at the Vanderbilt Hotel.

Mr. Fisk was much annoyed because the Rev. Howard N. Brown, rector of Kings chapel, Boston, refused at the last minute to perform the ceremony, and he gave out the following statement:

"The Rev. Howard N. Brown refused at the last hour, after conferring with the senior warden of Kings chapel, to marry us because of the notoriety to his church. He did not question the legality of the marriage and spent Friday night at Mrs. Fisk's apartment planning the details of the ceremony, even conferring with the organist.

"Saturday morning, while he was calling on Mrs. Fisk a newspaper man snapped his picture and he was greatly upset. He asked us to wait two days until the notoriety had calmed down, when he would gladly perform the ceremony. We refused to do this and Mrs. Fisk's lawyer made arrangements with the clerk of court and we were married in Boston at 3 p. m. Saturday by Frederick C. Ingalls, clerk of the court and justice of the peace."

Mr. Fisk, since being divorced last June by Miss Edith Collings, daughter of Charles T. Collings, the Cincinnati manager of the Standard Oil Company, has been living on a farm at Woodstock, Vermont, with Carroll Runyon, of this city. Because of Mr. Fisk's non-residence in Boston he secured permission from the Municipal Court to marry without waiting the required five days after taking out a license. There was also some talk about a new law in Vermont which declared the remarriage of a divorced person to be bigamous, but counsel told Mr. Fisk this was not retroactive.

It was learned today that Charles W. Fisk, a brother of the bridegroom, and his wife, who reside at Garden City, were present at the wedding. Mr. Fisk's parents were not in Boston, as at first reported.

Busiest week of the Daily Press contest, the final period of effort for organizations and individuals in the friendly battle for votes, has begun. Contestants should realize the importance of sending with all subscriptions the proper subscription blank, carefully made out, stating whether the subscriber is old or new. This will greatly facilitate the proper handling of subscriptions in the office, besides working a considerable saving in the time required to issue receipts and voting coupons.

The voting coupon which has appeared daily in the Press has been discontinued, and all such, except those dated December 21, must be in this office by Wednesday night at 9 o'clock, in order to count. Nothing but subscription votes, and coupons marked December 21, will be counted on Saturday.

There is an old adage, "It's a long lane that has no turning." It applies to the Daily Press piano contest. It may seem a little hard to work on and on, but the turn in the lane may be just ahead. And when the contestant reaches it, lo! the player piano, the piano without the player attachment, or the cabinet vitaphone and the ten per cent. commission stand revealed within reach. Who would not keep everlastingly at it when such prizes are within grasp?

There now remains but a little more than five days in which candidates may pursue the hunt for subscription votes. Remember all those who have promised their aid "later on in the contest," or on some definite date, and remind them that their aid is very much desired, and should be given now to be effective. Have friends see their friends and ask them to help by giving a subscription to the Daily Press this week. Pay no attention to rumors or reports of the doings of other contestants. Keep on working with the sole object of winning sufficiently high standing to give assurance of being numbered among the winners of the capital prizes.

The second count in the vote is recorded above.

Uncle Sam Uses 1842 Burroughs

There is something significant in the use of 1842 Burroughs Adding machines by the United States government.

Uncle Sam is wise. He buys a few of every kind of machine just to see which are best for his work. But he uses more Burroughs by many times than of all other machines combined.

Incidentally nearly all business men are just like Uncle Sam. Count the Burroughs in your vicinity.

Let us show you a Burroughs, right in your office.

No cost or obligation.

WHITELAW REID DIES IN LONDON

Editor-Diplomat Passes Away at Dorchester House After Short Illness.

KING NOTIFIES PRES'T

Unusual Honors Paid by English Government — British Warship May Bring Body Home After Service in Westminster Abbey.

London, Dec. 16.—Whitelaw Reid, American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, died at his residence, Dorchester House, in Park Lane, at 12:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Within half an hour after Mr. Reid's death King George and Queen Mary sent Sir Henry Legge, one of the King's equerries, to Dorchester House to express their condolence, and soon afterward a personal letter arrived from Queen Alexandra, addressed to the Hon. John Ward, in which a tribute was paid to "your dear father-in-law." She also asked him to convey her sympathies to "your dear mother-in-law." A letter also came from Princess Victoria, addressed to Mrs. Ward, expressing her condolence.

During the day members of the Diplomatic Corps in London called at Dorchester House. M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, who is the dean of the corps, arrived from Paris late last night and was much shocked when told at the station of Mr. Reid's death.

Mrs. Reid said last night that the Ambassador's body would be taken to America at the earliest possible moment for burial. In fact, she suggested not waiting the arrival of her son, Ogden Mills Reid, who sailed from New York on Saturday. But it is expected that she will reconsider this today, especially as the Dean of the Chapter of Westminster Abbey has already expressed a wish to hold a memorial service in the historic edifice. It is expected that the Government will request that it be permitted to convey Mr. Reid's remains to America in a British warship.

Washington, Dec. 16.—First news of Ambassador Reid's death came to Washington in a personal cable message from King George, addressed to President Taft. Half an hour later notification was received at the State Department from the Charge of the embassy in London.

Apparently it had been arranged that the British sovereign should convey the first word to the President that the Ambassador had passed away. This procedure is without precedent in the relations of nations, according to the officials here.

King George's message was as follows:

"The President of the United States of America, Washington:

"It is with the deepest sorrow that I have to inform you of the death of Mr. Whitelaw Reid at noon today. As your Ambassador in this country his loss will be sincerely deplored, while personally I shall mourn for an old friend of many years' standing, for whom I had the greatest regard and respect. The Queen and I sympathize most warmly with Mrs. Whitelaw Reid in her heavy sorrow.

"GEORGE, R. I."

President Taft replied as follows:

"His Majesty, King George V., Buckingham Palace, London:

"Your Majesty's sad news of the death of Mr. Whitelaw Reid has just reached me. Mr. Reid's death is a loss to both countries, for his services as Ambassador was exceptional in the closed friendship that he secured between them through his own personality. His intimate knowledge of both countries, his profound respect and love for England, entirely consistent with the highest loyalty on his part to this country, gave him peculiar influence for good in his great station. I sincerely thank your Majesty for your message and your expressions of sympathy and respect.

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

The President also sent a message to Mrs. Reid.

For many years Mr. Reid was the owner and editor of the New York Tribune.

HELEN GOULD TO BE MARRIED

Foremost Woman Philanthropist to be the Wife of a Railroad Man.

WORTH THIRTY MILLION

Her Charities Immense—He's 45 and She's 44—George J. Announces the Engagement at Dinner Party.

The engagement of Miss Helen Miller Gould, known to the Nation as Helen Gould, and as one of the foremost of women philanthropists, to Finley J. Shepard, a railroad man of St. Louis, was announced yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, at Lakewood. Only a few members of the Gould family were present at dinner at Georgian Court, Mr. Gould's Lakewood estate, when the news was announced. The formal statement issued by Mr. Gould read:

"Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Helen Miller Gould, to Finley J. Shepard, of St. Louis."

Miss Gould was at her home, 579 Fifth avenue, last evening, but declined to see reporters.

The news of her engagement was a surprise even to many of the closest friends of Miss Gould. She is now 44 years old. Since the death of her father, Jay Gould, on Dec. 12, 1892, left her one of the richest women in the country, rumors that she intended marriage had been so often started and denied that it had come to be believed that she would never marry.

Miss Gould came into a fortune of $10,000,000 at the death of her father, and it is estimated that by careful management and judicious investment this fortune has grown to $30,000,000 despite the number and size of her charities.

Mr. Shepard is assistant to B. F. Bush, president of the Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain and Denver & Rio Grande Railroads. He is a bachelor of 45.

Miss Gould was a pioneer in philanthropy among American women of great wealth. Her charities were probably on a larger scale than those of any other American woman before the death of Russell Sage led to the establishment of the Sage Foundation by his widow. Her greatest popularity was reached during the days of the Spanish-American war, when her efforts in behalf of American soldiers and sailors caused her to be ranked with Florence Nightingale among patriotic women.

VARIED BARGAIN SALE BY DEAD LETTER OFFICE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—The annual sale of articles which were sent through the mail but could not be delivered because neither the address of the sender nor that of the addressee could be ascertained, began here today at C. G. Sloan & Co.'s auction rooms under the auspices of the Dead Letter Office. There were in all 8,566 articles, divided into lots, for the sake of saving time at the auction. The list of the articles which was issued a few days ago, gives the contents of every lot and judging from the queer combinations of many of the lots the selection must have been made by a humorist in the department. The list includes every imaginable kind of articles, books, neckties, sofa cushions, millinery, gloves, hundreds of pieces of cheap jewelry and a number of rings, bracelets, brooches, etc., of considerable value. Among the articles is even a fine diamond, weighing 3 and 3-64 carets, which will be auctioned separately. The attendance at the opening sale was large and the bidding spirited. It is expected that the sale will consume several days.

Every one of the articles listed at this auction reached the Dead Letter Office through the carelessness of the sender. In most cases the articles had been carelessly packed and, during the Christmas rush of last year, had worked through the wrapping or fallen out of crushed boxes so that it was impossible to determine by whom they had been sent and to whom they were addressed.

In view of the fact that the new parcels post law will become effective on January 1, 1913, Postmaster General Hitchcock has issued a warning to all persons who wish to send articles of value through the parcels post. The wrapping should be done securely and carefully and every package must bear the required postage in the new parcels post stamps which will be for sale at all postoffices by January 1. No postage will be forwarded in the mail under the new law unless the parcel is accompanied by the return card of the sender. The weight limit under the new law will be eleven pounds against the former of four pounds for fourth class matter.

PATERSON FIRE LOSS $500,000

Blaze Destroys Six Shops Among Them a Huge Department Store.

CAMDEN SUFFERS ALSO

One Hundred Thousand Blaze in South Jersey City, a Big Bakery Plant Being Lost—Cause of Fire Unknown.

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 16.—Some time in the early hours of yesterday morning a fire started in some of the flimsy Christmas stuff which filled the J. S. Diskon Department Store, at the northwest corner of Main and Van-Houten streets. It smouldered unnoticed for hours, until, at 6:50 o'clock, it seemed to burst out simultaneously in all five stories of the brick building. Two hours later, Fire Chief Coyle announced that the fire was under control.

In those two hours the blaze had spread through six buildings, all of them covering plots which had been fire-swept in the $10,000,000 conflagration of ten years ago, and some of them housing businesses which had been burned out then and had been rebuilt. The damage was estimated at $500,000.

Plate glass windows in buildings which did not catch fire were cracked by the intense heat. Firemen were overcome by heat and smoke, and every man and piece of apparatus belonging to the Fire Department was called out. But only one man was hurt. He was Joseph Popp, watchman in the Diskon store, who discovered the fire, and then had to jump from the third floor when the flames cut off his escape by the stairs. He suffered a fractured skull, and both his legs were broken.

$100,000 FIRE IN CAMDEN.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 16.—A fire, which started from some unknown cause yesterday, destroyed the plant of the Davis Bakery Company, which occupied the L-shaped block bounded by Williams, Berkley, and Clinton streets.

The building was two stories in height, and built of brick. It had been finished about two years, and was one of the largest bread, cake and pie baking establishments in the State. The loss is $100,000.

WHITELAW REID.

The governments, the press and the people of the two great English-speaking nations mourn the death of Whitelaw Reid, America's truly great representative at the Court of St. James. His passing is marked by deep and sincere tributes and of recollections of an extraordinaily useful life as an editor and diplomatist. Probably the greatest good he acomplished was to draw closer the bonds of unity and concord between the "mother country" and the foremost Republic.

When Mr. Reid was happily selected as our Ambassador, it was generally prophesized that he would uphold the lofty traditions of America's representation to the government of His Majesty, the King and Emperor Ambassadors renowned as statesmen and men of letters had preceded him Among them will be recalled John Lathrop Motley, James Russell Lowell, Thomas F. Bayard, John Hay and Joseph H. Choate. How ably Mr. Reid fulfilled his mission, how he had won the confidence and respect of the British government is testified to by all the London dailies and particularly by the London Daily Telegraph, which says:

"In English society and in the American community he will be remembered as a cordial host, an irresistible personality and the Ambassador who did more than any other man—more than possible perhaps of any of his predecessors—to draw closer the natural ties between Great Britain and the United States."

And says the London Daily Graphic: "Mr. Reid represented his great country with tact, dignity and splendor and worthily upheld the best traditions of Anglo-American cordiality. No period of Anglo-American relations has been less troubled than that of his residence among us."

"RUMP" FREEHOLDER BOARDS.

The memberships of the Freeholder Boards in Union, Bergen and Mercer counties do not propose to relinquish their offices without first making a stubborn fight to have the legislation providing for the small boards declared invalid. That being their avowed purpose, they have retained eminent counsel to have the laws tested in the courts, Richard V. Lindabury, Robert H. McCarter and Gilbert Collins being engaged as legal advisers. The battle will be waged against the enabling act passed at the last session of the Legislature to amend a defect in the title of the Strong act, which was the original legislation for the small board. But the fight is most likely to be a futile one, for should there be any anticipation of its success the Democratic Legislature this winter may be relied upon to enact such legislation as will place the three small boards to take office next month beyond the reach of the courts.

There will, however, most probably be three "rump" Boards of Freeholders in as many counties, including our own. The terms of the present boards will expire on January 1, but the scheme is to reorganize for the ensuing year and to make all appointments on that date. They will thus take advantage of a peculiar situation for by law the new small boards cannot organize until several days after the first of the new year. In this way, the large boards hope to compel the small boards to fight from the outside for their perpetuation. The condition of affairs for the beginning of the year will make it exceedingly unpleasant for contractors and all others who have dealings with Boards of Freeholders.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

Each mail brings enlistments to the Good Fellow movement but although the ranks are swelling day by day, there must be many more recruits before the campaign can be pronounced an absolute success. All told there are approximately 600 poor little boys and girls to be insured a merry Christmas, according to the Charity Organization Society which renders invaluable service in conducting the Good Fellow's unique plan of providing toys and candy for the youngsters. May we suggest, on behalf of Good Fellow, whose appeal will be found on this page, that if you have not already done so, you send a letter today to Santa Claus, care of the Plainfield Daily Press, telling how many poor little ones you will provide a joyful Christmas day.

SWEENEY WILL BE BUSY.

Matthew D. Sweeney, general manager of the Charles E. Miller Auto Supply Company, of New York, spent yesterday visiting his mother and friends in this city. Mr. Sweeney will leave for Cleveland, Ohio, about January 5, to open up the display of the firm at the Automobile Show to be given in that city the week beginning January 6. He will return to New York on the eleventh and will take charge of the exhibits at the shows to be given in Grand Central Palace and Madison Square Garden the week beginning January 11. From there he will go to Philadelphia and assist his brother Joseph at the show to be held the week beginning January 20.

THE FORUM.

WATER DECISION WELCOME.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

The decision of the Supreme Court denying Plainfield the right to condemn part of the Plainfield-Union Water Company's plant should, in my opinion, be welcomed by the citizens of Plainfield not less than by the officials of the Water Company.

The attempt to acquire the private plant is so directly against the recommendations of Mr. Fuertes, the engineer retained by the city to investigate the water supply of Plainfield, that it seems certain the decision referred to above will save the city considerable time and money by ending a proceeding which would inevitably lead to ultimate disappointment when the cost of condemnation had been determined.

The findings of Mr. Fuertes in regard to the advisability of acquiring the pumping plant at Netherwood are summarized on pages 162 and 163 of his report. He gives estimates of the cost of adopting the present plant to conform to the same standards on which his other estimates are based and of the annual cost of operation of the modified plant and concludes his report with the following:

"Note—In the foregoing estimate of the cost of adopting the present Netherwood pumping station to conform to the same standards as the proposed new plants, the amount included for the value of the 'present pumping station and land' is for the physical plant only in addition to an allowance of $46,000 for land for extensions. No valuation is included for franchise rights, going value, or property outside the Netherwood plant, either tangible or intangible. If these items were included the property values and annual charges would be greatly increased. This estimate is prepared only to show that even with all these large items excluded the cost of placing the Netherwood supply on the same basis as the other proposed new supplies would be substantially the same as to install a new plant in its entirety, allowing about $115,00 as the value of the existing original system of wells, the pumping station, standpipe and land now appurtenant to the plant. In this valuation, no account has been taken of the new wells, pump well and pumping engine now in process of installation."

On page 58 of the same report, Mr. Fuertes says: "Suffice it to say that, as other sources of supply are available, at construction costs, (for equal service), no greater than would be the cost of the present works, I should feel that under no circumsances would it be desirable for the city to attempt to purchase the Netherwood plant unless the Water Company was desirous of selling and would sell out at a figure no higher than a fair reproduction cost of the physical plant."

It would thus appear, that there are no engineering reasons why the city should try to condemn the present plant, and the attempt to do so is evidently based on a desire to secure the local supply for the use of the city. It is admitted that such a desire is general and due to a widespread, although perhaps mistaken, belief in the superiority of the local supply, and personally I would consider it proper to make sacrifices, if necessary, to meet this desire. Fortunately, however, this is not necessary. Mr. Fuertes finds that all of the available water in the gravel beds under the city cannot be secured from the present plant, but must be collected from an additional plant; this is evidenced by the fact, that the pumping at Netherwood does not lower the ground water level in the valley of Cedar Brook, about one mile to the south of the pumping station.

Although it appears unlikely that the water in the gravel beds will be found plentiful enough to supply the needs of the city, I see no reason why a judiciously located new plant should not be able to collect as much water from this source as does the present plant at Netherwood. If, as expected, this supply should prove insufficient, then it could be supplemented by an additional supply from deep borings drawing water from the shale and sandstone formations underlying the gravel, just as it is done today at the private Water Company's plant.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Fuertes recommends a supply from a number of deep borings placed 1,000 to 1,500 feet apart and believes there would be no difficulty in securing an adequate supply from such a plant. Under these circumstances, it seems unnecessary to lose heart because the Supreme Court has denied the city's application to have commissioners appointed to condemn the present plant; on the contrary, the decision simplifies the matter, and should tend to hasten the solution of the question.

Although the citizens already by their votes have indicated that they are strongly in favor of a municipal water plant, yet it would seem proper to call attention to some of the advantages of a public supply, since it is continuously stated that no reduction in rates could be expected. The estimates of Mr. Fuertes are based upon a supply which differs from the present in the following respects:

1. The pressure in the street mains at the present time is deemed insufficient for fire protection purposes, wherefore the proposed supply provides for an increase in pressure of about twenty-five per cent.

2. The proposed plant includes a compensating reservoir in the hills to the northwest of Plainfield, thus insuring an adequate supply even in time of large conflagrations. Mr. Fuertes states that he is informed that the Water Company has bought land on the mountain back of Plainfield on which to construct a reservoir, but as far as I know this project has never been carried out, and there have, at any rate, been times in the past when the company would have been unable to supply sufficient water if a serious fire should have broken out. With a municipal plant, this important feature is under the control of the city, and the cost of such reservoir has, as stated, been included in the estimate.

3. The quality of the present water is good, but it is considered too hard for some purposes. The estimates for a municipal supply includes provision for softening the water, while Mr. Fuertes states, that the Water Company probably could not afford to do this unless it was granted a material increase in rates. The Spicer Manufacturing Co. has a well in Plainfield which gives water that is soft enough for all ordinary purposes without treatment; if the city's wells should yield water of the same softness then the cost of operating the municipal plant would be reduced about $20,000 per year to start with, and a larger amount later when the consumption increases. In the comparison between the operation of the present plant and a new plant it has, however, been assumed, that the new supply required softening.

There are other advantages of the proposed municipal system, but the foregoing should be sufficient to show that it is hardly fair to quote Mr. Fuertes as stating, that no reduction in rates could be expected, unless attention also is called to the differences between the present system and the system upon which Mr. Fuertes bases his estimate.

The findings of Mr. Fuertes vary somewhat from those of the 1909 Investigation Committee, which reported that "No condemnation or purchase of the property, which left the Water Company free to continue to draw on the underground waters of the basin from which it now pumps would be a satisfactory adjustment of the matter."

While the personnel of the 1909 Committee was such as to insure a high degree of respect for its recommendations, it should be borne in mind that the Committee could not possibly have given the engineering features of the project such exhaustive an investigation as Mr. Fuertes has.

I believe, and I think that every one who reads the report carefully, will agree that Mr. Fuertes has furnished the city an excellent and conservative study of the problem, one upon which a decision may safely be based.

I am strongly in favor of a municipal plant and doubt whether the question will be finally solved before the city controls its own water supply, but I also consider it desirable that a decision, one way or the other, be reached at an early date, and I would urge all interested, whether for or against, to make efforts at the present opportune moment to have the question settled.

JACK HORNER PIE SOCIAL SUCCESS, THOUGH PIELESS

A "Jack Horner Pie" was held at the close of the December meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren Chapel. Mrs. Harry Manning lead the devotional services.

At the close of the business session the meeting was turned over to the social committee who introduced the pie game or exchange of Christmas gifts. The attendance was so large that it was necessary to put the gifts in large fancy bags, and not on a "pie" as previously planned. Mrs. Robert O. Stewart made over forty small Christmas stockings in which gifts were placed. When all had drawn their stockings from the bag, the refreshment committee took charge of the affair.

The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. John Higgins, Mrs. George Hoagland, Mrs. A. J. Stiglitz, Mrs. William Newmiller, Mrs. Joseph Randall and Mrs. John Johnson.

The meeting was closed with a prayer and benediction by the pastor, Rev. J. O. McKelvey.

PICTURES OF WOODROW WILSON

The Daily Press has on hand about fifty handsome photogravures of President-elect Woodrow Wilson, which we wish to dispose of at less than cost. They can be secured for five cents each by anyone who comes to the Daily Press office for them. tf

Present Your Bills.

All bills against the city must be presented to City Clerk James T. MacMurray on or before December 17 to insure payment this month.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

A meeting of the Sunshine Mission Band of Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church was held this afternoon in the church parlors.

The midweek service of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock will be conducted by the Men's Missionary Committee. Arrangements have been made to have John E. Williams, vice president of Nanking University, Nanking, China, to speak. The public is invited.

The pastor of Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will meet the communicants' classes in the church study Friday. The girls' meeting will be held at 5 o'clock and the boys will meet at 8 o'clock.

The annual Christmas gathering of Hope, Warren and Bethel chapels with the Crescent Avenue church, the mother church, will be held next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The regular 5 o'clock service will be omitted.

WILSON HOME AGAIN HOPES TO SEE BRYAN

Back From Berumda Vacation, He Has Little to Say on Politics.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Dec. 16.—President-elect Wilson and his family returned home on the S. S. Bermudian this morning from Bermuda. The vessel reached her dock shortly after 8 o'clock. They had been absent one month.

Mr. Wilson had nothing to say regarding his plans except that when he was asked whether he expected to see Mr. Bryan very soon for a conference he said, "I hope to see Mr. Bryan very soon."

While aboard ship Mr. Wilson had a little practice for steering the ship of State after March next today. The sea was calm and after a heavy breakfast, at which great luscious strawberries graced the table, he took a turn at the wheel, and it must be said that for a novice he did not do at all bad, although there was a suspicion of the letter "S" in the vessel's wake when he relinquished his post to his daughter, Miss Eleanor.

It is not believed Mr. Wilson will retire from the Governorship until just before March 4, as the New Jersey Legislature will be in session from January 14 to well into March and perhaps until April, and it is known that in order to complete a program of State legislation which he has mapped out he will want to control the situation as long as possible.

Governor Wilson today declared that he would not go to Panama before March 4. He also announced that there would be no Cabinet announcements until after he had had conferences with Democratic leaders at Princeton.

MARTINE'S VIEWS ON BRYAN AND CABINET

No Place Too Good for the Commoner Says the Farmer-Orator.

Washington, Dec. 16.—On the eve of Gov. Wilson's return to the United States, Democratic Senators are convinced, by information from various sources, that William Jennings Bryan will sit in the next Cabinet as Secretary of State, whether or not the formal tender has been made or accepted. The interesting point about their acceptance of this report is that with little less than unanimity they expressed satisfaction at the expected appointment. This change in sentiment was discussed last night by Senator James E. Martine, of New Jersey, a personal friend of Gov. Wilson and a warm admirer of Col. Bryan.

"Senators who in the past have bitterly opposed Mr. Bryan," said Mr. Martine, "have lately spoken of him to me in terms of admiration. Their talk was directed particularly toward the probability of his entering the Cabinet and to an extraordinary degree they expressed themselves as pleased with the prospect. They think, as I do, that his presence there will not only give an able officer to the incoming Administration, but will greatly add to the Administration's popular support. As for me, I think Mr. Bryan could do more good for his party outside the Cabinet, which will necessarily make him subordinate to his chief. But if he wishes the place, I can only say there is nothing too good for him."

Mr. Martine's admiration for Mr. Bryan is too intense to permit of shading, but one sentence in his brief statement seems to explain, in part, at least, the change in the opinion of Senators, who formerly opposed the peerless leader. That is the sentence in which Mr. Martine says he thinks the Cabinet too small a place for Mr. Bryan. The truth is that Democratic leaders in both houses feel that the chances of party harmony and co-operation between the Capitol and the White House will be greatly increased if Mr. Bryan, instead of remaining a reformer at large for the country, assumed the definite responsibilities of the portfolio for foreign affairs.

TELEPHONE SAVES $60,000.

A New York business house recently saved $60,000 by the use of the telephone, says the New York Telephone Review. It had an obligation of $1,500,000 to meet in an up state city, subject to a discount of $60,000 if paid on a certain date.

Although many thousands short, the firm relied upon its ability to make the amount good before the check was presented for payment and dispatched a trusted employee with it, instructing him to delay turning it over until the last minute so as to gain an additional day if possible. He carried out his instructions to the letter and with great satisfaction saw the clock in the creditor's office finally point to the hour when the banks would close. But his joy turned to despair when he heard the official call up the local bank and ask them to remain open until the check was deposited.

Making a hasty exit, he rushed to the nearest public telephone and notified his office in New York, which thus had ample warning of what to expect.

PIANO-PLAYER TO BE AWARDED TO CONTEST WINNER IS FINEST EXAMPLE OF KIND KNOWN

The piano player with the metal motor is the one that satisfies always, and can be obtained in any piano. Most people think that player-pianos are complete instruments made by the piano manufacturer. This is rarely the case, as a majority of the manufacturers buy the players which they sell in their pianos because they can buy better players than they can make. This is where the Gulbransen player comes in. It is the only one with a metal motor. This will identify it. The metal motor is one of the many things that makes it easy to play, because it requires one-third the usual effort in pedaling and the whole instrument is amazingly responsive to the slightest wish.

A playerpiano can be made a wonderful instrument—simple enough for anybody to play. You can have the worlds greatest composers and the latest popular music right in the home. But to get the right expression and the best results one should have the right player, which is the Gulbransen. This is the instrument used in the player-piano given by ths paper in the circulation contest. It is simple in construction with no complicated parts to cause trouble and will last a life-time. This wonderful instrument is on exhibition at J. Sattels' warerooms on North avenue. Mr. Sattels is the sole agent in Plainfield for the Gulbransen-Dickinson Company and a visit to his place of business will mean a convincing demonstration.

The Safe Piano Store

Truly, one does not have to be a "good trader" to get full piano value here. A child can buy a piano at Bamberger's with the same assurance of getting full value as an expert who has spent years in studying pianos and piano values. We have set a high standard of piano dealing in Newark. We have made it possible for you to own a good, standard piano or player-piano without undergoing any hardships to get it—and without paying one cent more than that instrument is worth. And, we may add, you could not find better pianos the world over than at Bamberger's. We first made sure of the quality of each line of pianos before we selected it. We therefore know the goodness of the instruments we sell, and back up each one with our guarantee.

Sohmer Pianos, $450.00 and up, Milton Players, $450.00 and up, Packard Pianos, $385.00 and up, Behning Players, $750.00 and up, Estey Pianos, $300.00 and up, Packard Players, $650.00 and up, Lester Pianos, $315.00 and up, Estey Players, $600.00 and up, Milton Pianos, $235.00 and up, Lester Players, $600.00 and up, Schindler & Son Pianos, $190.00 up, Schindler & Son Player-Piano, $390.00.

NOTE—Our $190.00 Schindler & Son piano is the equal of any piano sold elsewhere for as much as $250. This instrument may be bought for as little as $10.00 down and $6.00 per month. Our higher priced pianos are sold on proportionately low terms.

Why Is It?

Here is a question in naval science which is to the average sailor man a riddle unsolved. Take a vessel of, say, 2,500 tons; place on it a cargo of 3,500 tons. This gives you a total of 6,000 tons. Hitch a little tug to this vessel, and she will yank the big craft along at the rate of six or eight knots an hour. Now put the tug's machinery in the big vessel. It won't move her half a knot an hour. Why is this?

A Little Persuasion.

Wife (indignantly)—What! Live in the suburbs? Indeed I won't—so there! Husband (who wants to economize)—My dear, a pretty woman like you never looks so charming as when sitting in a phaeton at a suburban railway station waiting for her husband!

She went.

A Holiday Benefit.

Skelton—I called on you yesterday, doctor, and you were out. Doctor—I was taking a holiday. How are you feeling? Skelton—Oh, I felt splendid while you were away!—London Mail.

Hold on, hold fast, hold out. Patience is genius.—Buffon.

Advises Suffragists to Wear Chinese Trousers

MAKE a bonfire of your hats, throw away your corsets and wear trousers instead of these ridiculously tight skirts is the text of a message Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt delivered to the Equal Suffrage club of New York.

The leader of the "votes for women" in this country is firmly convinced, after a two years' trip around the world, that her own countrywomen are the most fettered, sartorially, to be found anywhere. Compared with the Chinese women, she says, the American woman is as helpless as a baby almost, and the suffrage advocate thinks that it is time for the western type of femininity to kick herself free of the swaddling draperies which the Parisian adores and declare her independence in dress as she has in politics.

Mrs. Catt suggests—yes, advocates—the Chinese dress or a modification of it, because she has studied its advantages carefully and has found it to be the most sanitary, healthful, comfortable and artistic costume a woman can wear. The photograph herewith was not posed by Mrs. Catt, but is a portrait of her superimposed on the costume of the "Chinese Joan of Arc," the young woman who during the republican movement opened the gates of Nanking and enabled the revolutionaries to obtain possession of the city.

"If a group of women should decide to make the change in their style of dress and would stick to it," said Mrs

HOW MRS. CATT WOULD LOOK IN THE GARB SHE ADVOCATES.

Catt, "I am sure that eventually every sensible woman in the country would be copying the fashion. It requires only a leader and a few stanch followers to make a new movement catch on.

"Their costume permits the greatest ease of movement. They can climb ladders, go up and down stairs in comfort, bend and use every muscle of the body without suddenly feeling conscious of a strain, while we—well, what can we do in the dress we wear today? Nothing, or next to nothing, without feeling hampered.

American Woman Mere Clothes Rack.

"The American woman, like her European sister, is nothing more or less than a rack upon which dressmakers hang their ideas embodied in the fashionable fabrics of the day. We are utterly helpless in their hands. They do what they will with us, and we have submitted for years and will go on submitting to their sartorial vagaries unless we rise up and defy them by adopting a conventional and unchangeable style of our own.

"Can you fancy the Chinese women being made the slaves of a few European dressmakers? They would not permit it.

"That is one reason why I am advocating a dress reform movement, why I think it is time for the American woman to throw off her fetters and loose her body as she has loosed her mind and soul. The reason that I suggest the Chinese style of dress is because while in the orient I studied practically every type of feminine costume, and I consider the Chinese the most admirable in every way. We could change it a little to suit our taste if we liked."

"But the Chinese women wear trousers," whispered a woman, apparently horrified at the idea.

Trousers Are Not Immodest.

"Of course they do, but they are not the least bit immodest or masculine looking," replied Mrs. Catt. "In certain sections of China the women wear loose, straight hanging trousers, made of silk or other material, according to their class, and over this garment they wear a straight, loose coat, which comes below the knees usually and buttons over on one side. This garment is collarless, so you see no strained and disfigured throats among the Chinese women from wearing high collars. The sleeves they wear are half tight and end between the elbow and the wrist.

"But the most radical change of all that I suggest is for women to go without hats. Hats are utterly useless."

The officers and teachers of the First M. E. church Sunday-school will meet in Vincent chapel tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

PHILADELPHIA MAN TO BE ART DIRECTOR OF 1915 EXPOSITION

Photos by American Press Association

San Francisco, Dec. 16.—John E. D. Trask, secretary and manager of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, has been appointed chief of the fine arts department of the Panama Pacific Exposition. He has been prominent in art affairs for many years. He has been connected with the Philadelphia institution since 1896. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1871

"PLEBES" AT WEST POINT.

The Upper Classmen Give Them Many Lessons In Humility.

Notwithstanding the efforts to suppress hazing, the path of a "plebe" at our famous military academy is not exactly rose strewn. W. S. Sample in Lippincott's gives an amusing and enlightening account of the experiences of one plebe.

"For the first ten days in camp," the author tells us, "plebes are made to walk with their little fingers on the seams of their trousers, palms of the hands to the front and depressing their toes as they walk—that is, striking the ground with the toe of the shoe first. It is a very tiresome and ludicrous process and is called 'finning out.'

"A plebe walking quietly down the company street is observed by some visitors, when suddenly he throws out his hands and digs in his toes.

"'Oh, Cadet Beanpole, why is that cadet walking so queerly?' asks a pretty girl.

"'That isn't a cadet; it's a plebe. He walks that way because he wants to be graceful.'

"The true reason is that the poor plebe heard some upper classman say: 'Fin out there, mister; dig in those toes; tear up the gravel. What do you mean by deadbeating and going bow legged?'

"The cadets march to meals, to church, to swimming, to dancing, to everything. The plebes are placed in the rear rank of all formations.

"The first meal a plebe eats in the mess hall with the corps is never forgotten. Twelve cadets are seated at a table, at least three of whom are plebes. The cadet in charge of the table sits at the head, while a plebe called 'the gunner' sits at the foot. It is the duty of the gunner to call the table to attention each day and to announce the kind of dessert. As there is no bill of fare and the dessert is different every day, this is not always an easy job. If the gunner announces the dessert incorrectly, he is deprived of his portion.

"The plebe on the gunner's right is called the cocoa corporal and on the left the water corporal. It is the duty of the cocoa corporal to pour out the cocoa, and the water corporal pours the water.

"The cadets often have a fierce and wonderfully built jelly called 'Felix trembled.' This concoction wabbles all over your plate and derives its name from a cadet named Felix, one of the oldest living graduates, who ate some of the mixture and trembled violently. Cadets who eat it have been trembling ever since. Molasses is called 'Sammy' by the upper classmen. Plebes are required to call it the 'Right Rev. Mr. Samuel, sir,' until they qualify, which is done by eating seven slices of bread and molasses, when they may call it 'Sammy.'

"After finishing their meals, plebes are required to sit bolt upright and gaze fixedly at a potato stuck on matches in the center of the table. They are not allowed to feast their eyes upon the portraits of the great generals that decorate the walls of the mess hall, but must sit and 'brace' until the command, 'Battalions rise,' is given, when they fall in and march back to camp."

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CRANBERRY DAINTIES.

No Christmas table would be properly furnished without cranberries in some form. To meet this holiday demand the following recipes for cranberry desserts are given.

The cranberries should be well washed and picked before using. The fruit should be fresh and firm.

A Frozen Dessert.

Cranberry Sherbet.—A delicious cranberry sherbet may be made thus: Boil one pint of cranberries in a quart of water, sweeten and then set aside to get cold. Add the juice of one lemon. Strain and freeze. Serve in dainty glasses with small lighted candles held in fancy cases.

Cranberry Cocktail.—Take two cupfuls of stewed cranberry sauce, half a dozen medium sized oranges, a cupful each of water and sugar. Pare and slice the oranges in very small pieces and put a spoonful in each cocktail glass or wineglass and pour the cranberry sirup over them. They must be very cold.

Light and Luscious.

Cranberry Fluff.—Take a pint of cranberries and one cupful of cold water. Cook until the berries burst, strain, add an equal amount of sugar and cook until thick. Cool, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and bake until set, or from five to ten minutes. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Cranberry Fritters.—Take an egg, one cupful sweet milk, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, a little salt, a cupful of minced cranberries and a little over one-half teaspoonful of soda. Fry in hot fat. Serve with sirup made of one cupful each of brown and granulated sugar boiled together. Add teaspoonful of vanilla.

Baked Sweets.

Baked Cranberries.—Take four cups of cranberries and place them in an earthen pudding dish and cover with water. Cover the dish and put it in the oven. Bake until the berries are soft; then stir in very carefully two cups of granulated sugar and bake fifteen minutes longer.

Cranberry Pudding.—Take one and one-half teacups of sour milk, one teaspoon of soda, three-fourths cup of molasses, one teaspoon of salt, three cups of flour.

Stir together and add two cups of raw cranberries. Pour into a buttered tin and steam one and a half hours. Serve with a sauce.

Anna Thompson.

SARTORIAL NOTES.

What the Small Boy Is Wearing—Fur Neckpiece.

On some of the newest suits for the small boy are seen sashes of a contrasting shade from that chosen for the garment.

Tiny bands of fur are used in the collar portion and in some instances on the jabot of some new neckwear.

With the fur boas silk flowers are worn. The bright roses add a gay note to the somber colored skunk and sable.

Long scarfs of fur or chiffon, bordered with fur, are worn with velvet frocks.

The draped blouse is constantly taking on new forms, for draperies mark

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

In Al H. Wilson's song-adorned comedy "It Happened in Potsdam," there is a departure from the usual atmosphere surrounding singing stars as the story is strictly modern in its treatment and dealing with characters that are taken from real every day life—all Americans excepting his own role. The play was written for laughing purposes only and it succeeds admirably, the critics going so far as to declare that it is the best play he has given in his notable career. Of course a Wilson show would not be complete without the introduction of songs and throughout the action several gems of melody appear to delight the musically inclined with their irresistible appeal, the hits being "Loves Me—Loves Me Not," "My Lady Fair," "Loves of Bygone Days," "The Twilight Call." Al H. Wilson is a coming attraction of merit.

"A typical May Irwin show" is the easiest way to describe the three-act comedy with a leaning towards the farcical, entitles "Widow by Proxy," in which that funny woman, May Irwin, is to renew old acquaintanceship at the Plainfield theatre, on Saturday, December 21. May Irwin has plenty of admirers, here, as everywhere, and that she has a play that suits her personality is all that these admirers need to know to feel sure of an enjoyable evening. In this instance an experienced playwright has undertaken to cut her cloth to fit the measure of "The Funniest Woman in the World." Advance information indicates that she has succeeded admirably in her task. The Liebler Co. has provided her with an excellent supporting cast, and though Miss Irwin's personality in itself is sufficient to fill the entire stage from arch to arch with good humor, no star knows better the value of a good supportng company to keep the dialogue up to the laughing pitch at all times.

The marvelous playing on the violin of Cristeta Goni, the juvenile Spanish virtuoso, who comes to the Plainfield theatre this afternoon and evening does not in any way distract her mind. When not engaged in her serious pursuit she rambles in the back yard of her home and in the streets; loves to play with her collection of toys and is absolutely oblivious of her greatness. Though the salary she earns is a princely stipend, she begs a nickle or a dime from her father to buy a stick of candy and is as happy when she gets is as a prima donna who has just bought an automobile. She receives her tuition in mathematics, history and grammar from her father daily and is very studious and earnest during her lessons.

ALL MEDICAL.

The Women's Current Event Circle of the Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church, will hold its third meeting in the series in Vincent chapel Tuesday afternoon, December 31, at 3 o'clock. The following speakers will be heard on these subjects: Dr. A. F. Van Horn, "Atypical Children;" Dr. John E. Runnells, of Bonnie Burn Sanitorium, "Treatment of Tuberculosis;" Miss Helen Carol Howes, superintendent Muhlenberg Hospital, "What it Means for Our Girls to Become Trained Nurses;" Dr. Peter B. Cregar, "The Usefulness of the X-Rays and Radium," and Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, "Orthopedic Surgery."

LIKELY TO GO TO DANNEMORA.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 16 (Special).—J. Frank Hickey, confessed boy murderer, was arraigned in court today to stand trial for the murder of seven-year-old Joseph Josephs, of Lackawanna. Since the accused has confessed to the crime, and also to the murder of Michael Kruck, the New York newsboy found strangled to death in Central Park ten years ago, it is generally believed he will make a plea of insanity in order to escape the electric chair. If the plea is accepted Hickey will spend the remainder of his life in the asylum for the criminal insane at Dannemora.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF LIQUOR.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16 (Special).—Prohibitionists and other foes of the liquor traffic from widely separated sections of the country were present in force here today at the opening of a national conference on liquor legislation. The chief purpose of the conference is to urge upon Congress the necessity of passing a Federal law in order to protect prohibition territory from interstate shimpents of intoxicating liquors.

BOSTON TEA PARTY.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 16 (Special).—The one hundred and thirty-ninth anniversary of the Boston "Tea Party," one of the stirring events that preceded the outbreak of the American Revolution, was observed in this city today with meetings and exercises under the auspices of various patriotic and historical societies.

NEW SOPRANO SANG.

Miss Gabrielle Drosse, of New York, the new soprano soloist at the First M. E. church, sang "With Verdure Clad," from the Creation, at the morning service, yesterday. She has a voice of unusual range and sweetness.

LONG JOURNEY KILLED HIGH SCHOOL'S GAME

Too Weary to Play Well by Time Essex Fells is Reached.

After a monotonous cross-State ride that included spasmodic injections of railroading, trolleying, coaching and walking, the Plainfield High School basketball team ran into another defeat Saturday afternoon, this time at the hands of the Essex Fells schoolboys. The score was 22 to 12.

Fatigued by their long trip and playing on another of the long courts it has seemed their fate to encounter on both of their out of town trips, the P. H. S. boys displayed none of their speedy passing and accurate shooting that characterized their work against Woodbridge last Wednesday.

P. H. S. played a listless game and the guards were practically powerless in their defensive work. Tremaine, the home team's forward, secured as many points in the first half single-handed as did the Plainfield team during the whole forty minutes of play. Essex Fells has introduced a novel feature in the game in dressing its best shooters in white while the passing men wear a more darker uniform.

Although defeated in the first half, P. H. S. had everything its own way as far as scoring was concerned in the final period, and the Essex Fells team was held to a lone field goal and two from the four line, while the local boys chalked up seven points.

WILL REST TO GET IN TRIM FOR SERIES

P. H. S. Five to Lay Off 15 Days Before Interscholastics Begin.

There will be an interlude of rest to basketball at the Plainfield High School after the game with Somerville High School in the school gym next Wednesday afternoon. The next contest on January 4, at the Y. M. C. A., will be the first of the Interscholastic League series. The fifteen days' rest ought to put the P. H. S. players in the pink of condition for the championship matches. All of the players are particularly anxious to defeat Somerville in the midweek game, so that they will at least have an evenly balanced record with which to go against the North Plainfield boys. Both of the games which have been played on foreign courts have resulted in overwhelming defeats for the local boys but the solitary contest staged on their home court was equally as victorious for them.

No particular fear is entertained in encountering the North Plainfield five as all of the High School players are familiar with the Y. M. C. A. court and will probably shine on it. Scholarship reports will be issued after the Somerville game but from present appearances it looks as though the lineup would be uneffected by the troublesome pasteboards.

There is a slight possibility that the Interscholastic League may start before January 4, as Manager Grizley has several games pending with Leal's School and it is barely possible that one of these might be called within the next week. P. H. S. is well primed for any battle, however, and a game with Leal's might put them right on edge to meet N. P. H. S.

RUTT AND FOGLER WIN SIX-DAY RACE

"Flying Dutchman" Vanquishes Five Other Sprinters of Tied Teams.

The team af Walter Rutt and Joe Fogler were returned the winners of the annual Madison Square Garden six-day race, Saturday night, when the "Flying Dutchman" led Jackie Clark, John Bedell, Peter Drobach, Eddie Root and Alfred Grenda over the tape at the end of the mile-sprint to decide the first six places.

When the bell rang calling the weary riders off the track to prepare for the sprints to decide the ties, six teams were leading for first place, having covered 2,661 miles, 5 laps during the week, 76 miles behind the record made by McFarland and Moran in 1908

FINAL STANDING.

	M.	L.
1—Rutt and Fogler	2,661	5
2—Bedell and Mitten	2,661	5
3—Clark and Hill	2,661	5

11—Cameron and Thomas	2,547	3
12—Carman and Loftes	2,466	4
13—Suter Brothers	2,355	1

The record is 2,737 miles 1 lap, made by McFarland and Moran in 1908.

In the one-mile sprint to decide the first six places between the teams tied at the end of the race the teams finished as follows: First, Fogler and Rutt; second, Bedell and Mitten; third, Clark and Hill; fourth, Root and Hehir; fifth, Grenda and Pye; sixth, Drobach and Collins.

Total amount of bonus money, $19,060.

PRESBYTERIAN FIVE WINS BY A POINT

Lucky They Had P. Dunning With 'Em When They Met 'Plainsmen.

With one point needed to tie and two to win and less than fifteen seconds to play, Marston, Hatfield and Lidgate, of the Scotch Plains Parish House five, exhausted by their great efforts during the evening, successively failed on apparently easy chances for field goals in the game against the First Presbyterian team, Saturday night. A short scrimmage followed, time was called and the Plainfielders had won one of the liveliest single-point victories seen on a local floor this season. The score was 32 to 31. The game was played on the Y. M. C. A. court. P. Dunning was a big factor in the victory. Ten times the fast forward dropped in baskets after hard scrimmaging and on occasions he showed his ability in defensive play. He scored nearly two-thirds of the team's points. Without him the Front street men would have had a hard row to hoe.

Scotch Plains showed the better team work. The Presbyterian team was outplayed, but accurate shooting made up for lack of team play.

Lidgate ran a close second to P. Dunning as an individual star. Hatfield also showed some classy shooting, bringing ten points to his team by clever work.

The lead see-sawed from team to team. Neither squad was in front by more than a few points at any time. As the second half became old and the final whistle a minute or two away the players put up a pretty fight for victory. The teams went alternately into the lead. In the last minute Lidgate apparently gave his team the victory with a sparkling shot from the center of the floor, but a goal by Dunning followed and time was called with the Presbyterians in the lead.

NORTH PLAINFIELD BOYS EASY FOR MOHAWK A. C.

In a curtain-raiser to the Scotch Plains-Presbyterian game at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night, the Mohawk A. C. five scored an easy victory over the North Plainfield Juniors. The score was 38 to 14. The winners displayed pretty teamwork and few goals were missed. The borough players were outplayed all of the way. Moulton and D. Berse carried off the honors of the evening. The former shot goals at will and was all over the floor. The Mohawks worked hard during the first half and loafed the second but the borough players were unable to put any points on the score board even when left unguarded and the winners romped home in easy fashion.

WATCHUNG CLUB HUNTERS FOLLOWED THE HOUNDS

The members of the Watchung Hunt Club held one of its longest and best runs of the season Saturday afternoon, covering a distance of about twenty miles. The hounds were met at Two Bridges, and were cast in on the Murray farm. Crossing the Nelson, Harrison, Erlick, Walker farms, the first check was made on the Welsh farm. Casting in on the Pickel farm, the chase continued over the Stile, Hodges, Terry, Henderson and Gallagher farms, where a second check was made. The run finished on the Peterson farm.

F. D. French, C. W. Holland and Harrison all took a tumble, but were not seriously injured. Among those in the saddle were the following:

Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H.; J. J. O'Donohue, L. B. Smith, H. L. Finch, H. A. Bourne, H. Stuart Hollis, C. W. Holland, C. E. S. Bellows, Edward R. Finch, Mrs. Brown Rolston, Miss Gertrude Noe, H. H. Towner, Beverley Brown, Stanley Bellows, J. Schuyler Casey, F. D. French, Hart S. Farlee, W. P. Smith, Jr., and Huntsman Harrison.

COMPANY K LOST TO SOMERVILLE CADETS

Substitute and a Borrowed Guard Were in the Lineup.

Company K's basketball team lost a light-scoring game to the Company M Cadets, Saturday night. The score: 15 to 8. The local team was handicapped by the absence of two of its regular players. A substitute and Slater, a borrowed Somerville guard, were in the lineup. It was Company K's third defeat this season and a return game will be played with the Somerville men on January 11, at which time Captain Thompson will have his full team to put into the pit against Saturday's winners. The score:

THE BAN IS ON WATER POLO

A. A. U. Drops Game and Takes Up Soccer.

HEARD OF TOO MANY FIGHTS.

Continuous Squabbles Caused Officials to Pass Up Contests—New Tank Sport Played Between Teams of Seven Has Much to Recommend It.

The ax has finally fallen upon American water polo. The everlasting squabbles and fights of the last few years gradually brought it into disrepute, and the Amateur Athletic union has dropped it and taken up water soccer instead; hence the rules of the International Federation of Swimmers will obtain hereafter.

Many will regret the passing of the national contest. It is sad to realize, too, that only the lack of competent officials caused its downfall, critics say. Properly supervised, there are few better indoor games, and this has been proved by the colleges.

Soccer has much to recommend it. Essentially a swimming game, it places speed, endurance and watermanship at a premium, discounting weight and brute strength. It is no sport for weaklings. Players are kept constantly on the move, dashing back and forth all the time, and unless provided with plenty of stamina and in the best of condition they are not likely to last out the two halves, especially as the dashes have to be interspersed with passes and hard throws which sap up energy at an alarming rate.

Matches are played between two teams of seven, divided into an attacking line of three forwards, a defense line of three backs and one goal tender. Points are scored by throwing a leather ball similar to the regulation basket ball through the rival goal, a space ten feet wide and three feet high, marked at each end of the playing area by upright posts and a crossbar. Two seven minute periods, with an intermission of five minutes between, constitute time of play.

The start is made by lining up the teams in the water behind their respective goals, placing the ball in the center of the field of play and at a given signal allowing all hands to race for it. Then the players pair off, each back covering an opposing forward, and the ball is shuttled here and there until some one is able to aim a good shot at the goal and sends it whizzing, either to find its mark and tally or be carried by the goal tender and hurled back midpool.

The game is totally free from roughness, because no tackling is permitted. A player may be ducked when in actual possession of the ball, but never held, and if he takes the ball under water with him when pushed down a foul is called against him. Therefore every play is visible to the spectator and easily understood, so that one needs no intimate knowledge of soccer to enjoy watching it.

Considerable skill is necessary to become expert at the game. The rules forbid touching the ball simultaneously with both hands except by the goal tenders, and it is no easy task to lift the slippery sphere with one hand from the surface, balance it and then hurl it.

Fouls which include interfering with, holding or ducking a rival not in possession of the ball, hanging on to the sides and standing on bottom, pushing off, etc., are punished by allowing a free throw to the other team. No goal can be scored from a free throw, however, until the ball has been handled by another player. An exception is made when fouls are committed within the six foot line. Then the ball may be thrown directly at the opening.

TARAL AFTER YANKEE JOCKEY

Former Riding Star Back From Europe—Good Opening For Pilots.

Fred Taral, the former American jockey, arrived from Europe recently. Taral, who is now trainer for the stables of C. and A. Weinber, the millionaire dye manufacturers of Berlin, has been abroad for a number of years. He returned to the United States for a little vacation, but at the same time will keep his eye open for some good American jockey.

Taral says the game is firmly established in Europe, better than it ever was in America and that the future looks even more rosy. Taral decided to go after an American rider after he failed to land Frankie O'Neill. This jockey laughed at a $25,000 offer. He intimated he was making $100,000 a year as a free lance.

Lipton Is Successful Yachtsman.

Sir Thomas Lipton of England, who has challenged for the America's cup, although he has three times failed in attempts to win, has this year proved himself the yachting champion in European waters by winning twenty-three first prizes out of twenty-nine races in which he competed. He beat the German emperor's yachts and the Krupp schooner in their own waters.

SPILLWAY AT GATUN DAM AND BIG LIGHT THAT WILL GUIDE MARINERS ON THE WAY THROUGH GATUN LAKE

Photos by American Press Association

The vast quantity of water that is now dashing over the spillway at Gatun dam makes it a rival of Niagara. This water will ultimately be used to generate power for operating the locks. The power plant is now being constructed. The lighthouse shown in the picture is to be located between the chambers of the Gaunt locks and will serve as a beacon for vessels passing through Gatunt Lake.

COAL COMBINE WINS IN U. S. SUPREME COURT

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Dec. 16.—In the U. S. Supreme Court today, the Government won a partial victory in the so called Coal Trust case, but was defeated on the most essential points. The court held that the general combination alleged between the Reading and other railroads and the coal companies was not established and therefore the relief asked by the Government was denied. The court refused to order the dissolution of the Erie and New Jersey Central and also other alleged combinations of the anthracite carriers.

PEACE CONFERENCE ON; GREY MADE PRESIDENT

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Dec. 16.—The Turkish Balkan peace conference was opened at noon today in the state room of St. James Palace. The Greeks were there and harmony apparently ruled among all the envoys.

Before leaving the conference chamber after his formal address of welcome, Sir Edward Grey, with the unanimous request of the Greek, Bulgarian, Servian, Montengrin and Turkish plenipotentiaries, consented to become the honorary president of the conference. It was not expected that the delegates would get down to actual business today.

P. H. S. GLEE CLUB.

A rehearsal of the Plainfield High School Glee Club will be held in the school auditorium tomorrow afternoon and Charles L. Lewis, the music instructor of the schools, will be glad to see all the students who desire to joint the club on hand. Mr. Lewis is drawing up a Christmas program in which the club will play an important part. There are nearly forty students enrolled and as many more can find places. Tomorrow's rehearsal will probably be the last one before the Christmas exercises which will be held on Friday.

COULON-LEDOUX BOUT.

New York, Dec. 16 (Special).—While there is no Eddie McGoorty and no Mike Gibbons on the week's card to delight New York fight fans, the bill is in no way lacking of boxers who rank high in the fistic game and some of the scheduled contests are very likely to prove more interesting to the specators than did the McGoorty-Gibbons bout. The event that is attracting most attention just now is the match between Champion Johnny Coulon and Charley Ledoux, the little Frenchman, who are scheduled to meet at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night in what is billed as a ten-round international championship for the bantamweight title.

WILEY'S SUCCESSOR.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Dec. 16.—President Taft today named Dr. Carl Alsberg to succeed Dr. Harvey W. Wiley as chief of the Chemistry Bureau of the Department of Agriculture and Chief Administrator of Pure Food Law.

VISITED FORMER PASTOR.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bennett, of Kingston, N. Y., former parishioners of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, spent yesterday as the guests of the latter.

PAUL SMITH DEAD.

Paul Smith, perhaps the most celebrated character of the Adirondack Mountains, died yesterday in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, Quebec. He had been in the hospital several weeks and failed to recover from a serious operation. Disease had wasted his strength, and this, with his age of eighty-seven years, made him too weak to regain strength following the operation.

NO SUCCESSOR TO REID.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Dec. 16.—After a conference with Secretary of State Knox, President Taft today announced that he would not name a successor to the late Whitelaw Reid as Ambassador to Great Britain.

WOMEN LEADERS OF THE SUFFRAGE HIKE FROM NEW YORK TO ALBANY

Photos by American Press Association

New York, Dec. 16.—General Rosalie Jones and her chief aid, Colonel Ida C. Craft, have completed the schedule for the hike to Albany. Following will be the camping places of the pilgrim army: Dec. 16, the first night out, the army will camp at Irvington-on-Hudson; 17th, Ossining, 18th, Peekskill; 19th, Fishkill-on-Hudson; 20th, Wiappinger's Falls, 21st, Poughkeepsie 22d, Rhinebeck; 23d, Germantown, and 24th, Hudson, were the army will rest over Christmas, attend the county ball in the evening and make votes for women speeches between the dances. Leaving Hudson on the morning of Dec. 26, the Pilgrims will camp at Stuyvesant Falls that night, at Valatie the 27th, Schodack the 28th and, to keep Sunday like the religious Pilgrims of olden times, it will remain for church and speechmaking before moving on to Rensselaer to meet the woman suffragists who will come down from Albany to join the army and add their forces to the host that will march on to the Capitol to present Governor Sulzer with a secret message. Adolph Major, of Brooklyn, a believer in equal suffrage, has volunteered to accompany the walkers in his auto and will carry the peanuts, chocolate and sandwiches that will furnish luncheons between towns. He will also carry the extra supply of literature that the women will need and also the suit-cases that will contain extra apparel.

LEAL'S SCHOOL NOTES

The first basketball game will be played today at Orange with Carteret. Those who will go are Nash, capt.; W. Harrington, Stevenson, C. Stewart, Dickerson, R. Stewart and Fountain. The team will make the trip in automobiles. Because of the continued sickness of Allen Heely, Fountain has been appointed manager of the team.

The debate which was to have taken place yesterday has been postponed a few days. Last Friday the first declamations were delivered. Each member of the upper class men have to speak before the school. Those who declaimed last Friday were Campbell, Dale, Blake and Cook. The next groupe will speak this coming Friday.

CITY TO CONTEST WATER DECISION

Council Instructs Corporation Counsel to Carry the Case up.

QUESTIONS UNDECIDED

And It is Desirable, Municipality Thinks, to Have Them Passed Upon—Approval of Sanitary Sewer Report is Rescinded.

Not satisfied with letting the matter rest with the recent decision of the Supreme Court in the condemnation water proceedings, the Common Council has decided to take the matter up on appeal. The decision was arrived at last night at an adjourned meeting. A resolution offered by Councilman F. E. Mygatt was adopted authorizing Corporation Counsel William M. Stillman on behalf of the city to appeal from the court's decision. Mr. Mygatt in speaking of the matter afterward, said that there were certain important questions to be decided and it was desired that the highest court be given an opportunity to pass upon them.

The Council rescinded its former action in approving the report of the sanitary sewer commissioners in the matter of the assessments levied in the southern part of the city, and returned the report for revision and alteration.

In the matter of street macadamizing throughout the city, Mr. Gloak's resolution was adopted fixing January 17 next as the time when the Court of Common Pleas will be requested to appoint commissioners to assess benefits for the work. There was a bond issue for the improvements, and part of that money will be returned to the city through assessments on property-owners.

The joint sanitary sewer contract not being ready for action, Mr. Mygatt's resolution, that all matters pertaining to the sewer be continued until the next meeting, was adopted. The Council will meet again on Monday night, December 23. There will probably be one more meeting after that to close up the business for the year.

CLUB CHANGES ITS PLAN OF ACTIVITY

Monday Afternoon Members Will Be Divided in Study Groups.

Next year's program of events and a change in the policy of the club were discussed yesterday afternoon by the Monday Afternoon Club at a meeting held in Hartridge Auditorium.

In the past the club has worked on a unit basis, but for the year 1913 the members will be divided into groups or committees, each of which will devote its activities to a subject assigned. The subject assigned will be from among this list: Art, literature, science or miscellaneous topics.

Since the club was organized twenty-five years ago this is the first time that any definite change has been made in its working plan. The six charter members who were present at yesterday's meeting were heartily in favor of the experiment. Mrs. Hugh F. Fox presided.

MONROE ENTERTAINMENT.

Thomas W. Murray, of Westfield, will give an entertainment in the Epworth House of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Men's Bible class. Women will be welcomed to the event. A silver offering will be taken.

DECIDED WHERE SCHOOL WILL BE

When Boro Board Builds Structure Will Go Up in Northwest.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

Will Consider Site, Kind and Cost of Proposed Building—High School Ideal for Purpose, to Be Let Alone.

Further steps toward the contemplated erection of a new school building in North Plainfield were taken by the Board of Education last night when, after a lengthy discussion of all phases of the situation, the northwestern, or Harrison avenue section of the borough was decided upon as the probable location. Upon a motion presented by Allan Laing, a resolution was adopted appointing a committee of three to make an investigation to determine the size, kind and cost of the building to be erected and to secure prices on land in that section of the municipality suitable for the purpose. The committee appointed is made up as follows: Allan Laing, chairman; Eugene A. Edgar and Hiram A. Woodruff.

The resolution, which recites the causes making the new school necessary, is as follows:

"Whereas it has been deemed necessary by reason of the congested condition now existing in the Somerset School, and through the failure of the Board to find adequate accommodations for such congested condition, and

"Whereas there is no available room to comply with the State law pertaining to the proper housing of

VARIED NUMBERS AT M'INTYRE CONCERT

Large Audience Charmed by Masterly Playing of Impressario's Trio.

A concert of pleasing variety by highly talented artists was the recital given last night in the High School Auditorium by the McIntyre Trio, assisted by Miss Laura Combs, one of New York's leading soprano soloists. It was the third attraction of the series of musical events arranged by Joseph McIntyre for the season.

The violinist, Alexander Saslavsky, who is concert master of the Damrosch orchestra of New York, captivated his audience by the rendition of Tschaikowsky's "Serenade Melancholique," and later scored with "Caprice Viennoise," by Kreisler.

Probably Miss Combs pleased her hearers most with the singing of "Le Nil," (The Nile), by Teroux, with violin-cello obligato played by Paul Kefer, although all of her selections were sung with such a high degree of art that it is hard to name one of them as more pleasing than another. In other numbers which included "Daffodils," by Ronald; "Pastorale," by Bizet, and "Le Moulin," (The Mill), by Pierne, Miss Combs exhibited great volume of tone as well as a keen sense of expression and feeling.

The trio composed of Mr. Saslavsky and Mr. Kefer with Mr. McIntyre at the piano playing Mendelssohn's Trio in D and Mozart's beautiful composition for Trios in G Major, scored immediate favor with the large gathering of music lovers.

The January concert, which will be the final one of the series, will have Tina Lerner, the Russian pianiste, as the leading attraction. She has a Continental reputation as an exceptional artist with a beautiful touch and needs no introduction to those musically posted.

SOPHOMORES ELECT.

The Plainfield High School sophomores yesterday afternoon elected Harold Davis secretary and treasurer to succeed Miss Mary Clark, who will move to Idaho in the near future. At the beginning of the basketball season William Peacock was elected manager and Archie LaRue was named as captain. Both afterwards resigned, LaRue because he has gone into business, and Peacock because of his first team interests. Yesterday LeRoy LaRue was named to fill the vacancy left by his brother, and Peacock was succeeded by Daniel McNamee.

FR. MILLER'S JUBILEE BEGINS

Many Priests at Mass in St. Joseph's Church This Morning.

BISHOP M'FAUL SPEAKS

Tells of Lonesome Nature of Priest's Life—Rector Receives Many Handsome Gifts—Meeting at Park Club Tonight.

The celebration in honor of the silver anniversary of the Rev. W. H. Miller's ordination into the priesthood was inaugurated this morning with a solemn mass in St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, where he has been rector for twenty years. The celebrant was Father Miller. The Right Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, presided, and later delivered an address.

Among the clergymen who gathered to honor and congratulate Father Miller, were Monsignors Fox and O'Grady, of Trenton; Fathers Petre, Leahy, Diettrick, Dunphy, Egan, Terrill, Mulligan, Griffin, Schia, Ryan, Zimmer, Schwartz, Kenter, Baldwin, Sciolla, Hogan and Bogan. The Rev. John Baldwin, of Mt. St. Mary College, was master of ceremonies.

In his address Bishop McFaul reviewed the beginning of the Catholic Church in this vicinity, going back to October, 1851, when Father James McDonough, sent here by the archbishop, said the first mass in the Verdon homestead in Somerset street, North Plainfield, now known as "Shady Lawn." He told of the growth of the congregation, which later became St. Mary's and remained the only Catholic church in Plainfield until 1882, when Bishop O'Farrell sent the Rev. John F. Brady to establish a new parish in North Plainfield and was later succeeded by the Rev. Thomas O'Hanlon, who built the old frame church. Father Miller came here in 1893 and it was under his direction that the church has attained its present growth.

Continuing, the Bishop told of the life of a priest, and asserted that contrary to the common custom, a priest needed applause, needed encouragement and co-operation. He told his hearers to remember the position that a priest took when he was ordained and urged them not to be too intimate, as he said there were many who were only too willing to exploit the characters of the workers of the Christian church.

"Probably the loneliest person in this world," he said, "is a priest and next in order comes the bishop. But this lonesomeness can be made up by your assistance, your encouragement and help. And this I urge. We have a great work to accomplish and need all the help we can enlist."

The Rev. Father Peter R. Petre, of Spring Lake, also spoke, praising highly Father Miller's work.

Father Miller was born forty-nine years ago in Perth Amboy and prepared for the priesthood at Seton Hall, South Orange. He was ordained December 17, 1887, at St. Charles' College, Georgetown, near Washington, D. C. His first charge was at South Amboy, and he later went to Camden and New Brunswick, leaving the latter place for North Plainfield nineteen years ago.

The celebration will be continued tonight at the Park Club, when an elaborate program of music and speechmaking will be presented. The program was announced in yesterday's papers.

During the day Father Miller entertained many visitors. He has been presented with many handsome and costly presents by friends.

In conjunction with Father Miller's celebration the children of the Sunday-school of St. Joseph's church gave a program of vocal and instrumental recitations, Sunday afternoon. A bouquet of American beauty roses, a set of breviaries and a purse in gold were presented to the rector.

Those who took part in the program were:

Andrew and Nora McDonough, Edmund Kenney, the Misses May Darry, Lillian Pettengill and May McCormick; Virginia Laporte, Anna Regan and Joseph Quinn, the Misses May Dary, Katherine O'Connor and Grace McKenna, and Myrtle Ketterring.

G. O. P. REORGANIZATION.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 17 (Special).—Numerous Republican leaders from down the State showed up in town today in anticipation of the party reorganization conference which is scheduled to be held at the Hotel LaSalle tomorrow. Roy O. West, Illinois national committeeman and State chairman, is responsible for the round-up. He expects an attendance of several hundred party leaders, including State officials, members of the legislature and district and county chairmen.

MISS DAISY ELSBERG LONG SINCE A BRIDE

She Became the Wife of Edward R. Grannatt Last Summer.

The fact that Miss Adelaide H. Elsberg, of Willow avenue, North Plainfield, and Edward R. Grannatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Grannatt, of this city, are married, became known today, and occasioned considerable surprise among the friends of the couple. In quiry among the relatives and friends failed to disclose where and when the couple were wed, but one of the relatives said that the ceremony was supposed to have been performed some time during the past summer in New York City.

At present Mr. and Mrs. Grannatt are said to be stopping at Atlanta, Ga. He is a traveling salesman. He has been engaged in various lines of business in the past.

Mrs. Grannatt during her residence here was more or less prominent in society and she was also fond of outdoor sports, especially golf. She was a member of the Park Golf Club and also played on the course at the Plainfield Country Club.

SHE SENT IN AN ALARM BUT THERE WAS NO FIRE

An alarm was turned in from Box 28 at 9:25 this morning. When the engines arrived the firemen discovered that a steam-pipe cap had blown off in the basement of the St. Stephen's Parish House at South and Woodland avenues. Mrs. Ada B. Vail, who uses the building as a private school, heard what she thought was an explosion in the basement, followed by a great hissing of steam. Not knowing the cause of the noise in her excitement she sent her ten year old son from bed running to the alarm-box in his negligee costume. A ball cap had blown off the release valve on a radiator, causing a loud report but doing no damage. Recall sounded at 9:37.

SAYS BOARDER DISAPPEARED, AND SO DID COSTLY WATCH

Mrs. Edith Huse Fraser, proprietor of the Cedarcroft, at 1003 Park avenue, assigned a prosperous looking man giving his name as Harry Mendel, and his address as Philadelphia, to one of her finest suites of rooms, last night. He had two suit cases, apparently heavily laden.

This morning the boarder had disappeared, Mrs. Fraser told the police, and so had a diamond-studded watch belonging to Carl B. Neal, whose room adjoined those rented by the stranger.

MRS. CATHERINE E. KENNEY LAID AWAY IN ST. MARY'S

The funeral of Miss Catherine E. Kenney, of 743 South Second street, who died Saturday following a short illness, was held from St. Mary's church this morning at 9 o'clock. Father Hogan celebrated the solemn high mass of requiem and was assisted by Father Bogan as deacon and Father Sciolla as sub-deacon.

The pall-bearers were: Michael Regan, Ferdinand Bader, John Kiely, John Balue, Patrick Waldon and Thomas Cooney. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

WILL TAKE OUT LICENSE.

Benjamin Briggs, of 611 West Fourth street, arrested last night on a charge of carrying on an express business in the borough without a license, appeared before Recorder Gano this morning and sentence suspended after the defendant had promised to secure a license. Recorder Gano suspended sentence today in the case of William Kennedy, of Watchung avenue, arrested last night by Marshal Pope, who charged him with being drunk and disorderly.

IGNORED BUILDING CODE.

Henry De Mott, an undertaker, of Somerset street, appeared before Recorder Gano this morning on a charge preferred by Julius J. Stahl, chairman of the Building Committee of the Borough Council. It was alleged that the defendant had erected additions to several sheds in the rear of his home without securing a building permit. After a reprimand had been administered and the defendant had been warned not to repeat the offense, sentence was suspened.

EX-GANGSTER HIT COPPER AND FLED

Rumor of Bluecoat's Death Starts Vengeful Crowd After Rider.

CAUGHT BY THE POLICE

Prisoner Known as Bad Man—With Record of Nearly Dozen Arrests Pleads for Another Chance—Held for Grand Jury.

Residents of the West End were thrown into a state of excitement shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when a report spread that William Rider, known by frequenters of the West Third street section as "Red' Rider, member of the one-time Dutch Ides gang, had brutally assaulted and probably killed Patrolman McGinley, while resisting arrest. The supposed slayer was sought by a crowd of men who talked of summary vengeance.

Rider was arrested, after a struggle, in a pool room in West Third street by Patrolman McGinley, who started to walk him to a police call box. When West Fourth and Liberty streets were reached Rider suddenly turned on the police officer and hit him in the face several times. McGinley fell to the street, hitting his head on the curb, the impact dazing him. Rider fled down Liberty street. That was where the report that McGinley was badly hurt or killed started.

When McGinley was revived he communicated with headquarters and Sergeant Flynn was sent out to help locate the fugitive. Rider was found after a persistent search hiding in an old barn, and was taken to the station house.

Before City Judge DeMeza this morning Rider pleaded for another chance, but he had too much record for consideration at the hands of the court. He was held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail. In default of bail he was taken, handcuffed to Sergeant Flynn, to the county jail at Elizabeth.

"Red" Rider has been arrested nearly a dozen times. The charges included larceny, carrying concealed weapons, assault and battery, and another offense of a more serious nature. He has the name of being a "bad man" among his associates and was a member of the notorious "Dutch Ides" gang, which was finally broken up by the police several years ago, when it was in its prime.

SAINTLY MINISTER'S SAYINGS COMPILED

A superb Christmas token would be the newly issued volume "The Truth in Love," a compilation of words of wisdom of the late beloved Rev. Dr. William R. Richards arranged for daily readings. It was arranged by one of his warm friends, A. V. D. Honeyman, editor of the New Jersey Law Journal and other publications and a man of scholarly attainments.

In the introduction Mr. Honeyman pays a tribute to Dr. Richards' sterling qualities, and after telling of the privilege he has had of examining hundreds of Dr. Richards' sermons delivered in the three parishes in which he preached, the compiler says:

"One cannot study these sermons without observing that two of the important truths which constituted the basis of his preaching, were that wonderful conception of the Apostle John, that 'God is Love,' and the correlated aphorism (his own), that 'loving men is the Scriptural rule for knowing God.' It is because he always spoke 'the truth in love,' as Paul urged it should be spoken, that the title for these extracts has been chosen."

The book is on sale at Estil's.

CHARLES KRAEMER.

Charles Kraemer, aged 54 years, died last night at his home on Terrill road, Scotch Plains, following a lingering illness from pulmonary troubles. ASK SETTLEMENT OF BIG ESTATE

Ackerman Trustees Act to Have Will Construed By Court.

ESTATE OF $2,000,000

Deaths Among Beneficiaries Under the Testament Lead to Complications That Move Trustees to Petition Chancery Court.

Complications ensuing because of the death of beneficiaries of the will of Warren Ackerman, late uncle of Ernest R. Ackerman, who died in this city in August, 1893, leaving an estate of $2,000,000, caused the trustees to begin an action yesterday in Jersey City before Vice Chancellor Vivian M. Lewis to have the estate settled.

The trustees are Ernest Ackerman, a nephew, at one time State Senator; Mary S. Ackerman, the testator's sister, and Jonathan Ackerman Coles, a nephew.

The Woman's Missionary Society, New York City Mission and Tract Society, the American Sunday-school Union, of Philadelphia, and the Presbyterian Board of Relief for Disabled Ministers and the Widows and Orphans of Disabled Ministers inherit $25,000 each. They cannot get the money until the court construes the will.

COMMISSION MAY DECIDE MRS. CRONEY CLAIM TODAY

Elizabeth, Dec. 17 (Special).—The Union County Mosquito Commission will meet here today, when it is expected that some action will be taken in the matter of the death of George Croney, the late inspector employed by the commission. County Attorney W. R. Codington has given as his opinion that the commission and not the freeholders are liable, the former having been created by a Legislative act.

Mrs. Croney has filed her claim for damages under the Employers' Liability Act, through her counsel, William Newcorn, and a settlement will probably be made with the widow according to the terms of the act.

CHILDREN'S HOME APPEAL.

The Board of Managers of the Children's Home make the customary appeal to the public for contributions of toys, provisions, etc., for the proper observance of the holiday season at the Home. The managers are planning to give the children a good time and ask for the co-operation of the public.

IS NEW COUNCIL TO BE 'LIBERAL?'

Reported More Licenses Are Slated and Saloon Zone Doomed.

TWO MEN ARE HOPEFUL

Findlay and Gloekler Said to Be Preparing Effort to Regain Their Stands — Committee Shake-up Seems a Sure Thing.

That there is likely to be a general shake-up in Councilmanic committees for next year, together with radical legislation in certain matters, seems to be the opinion of well informed persons. Within the past week rumors have been flying about as to the probable make-up of committees and that there will be dissatisfaction with the final choice of President-elect Gloak, if these reports can be credited, has come to be a foregone conclusion.

One story has it that Councilman-elect Francis J. Blatz is to head the police committee, succeeding Charles C. Randolph, who it is said, is slated as the head of the committees on streets and sewers. This was in circulation before the incoming Council organized, it being alleged that if Gloak could be elected president there would be a shake-up in the police committee. In view of the experience that Councilman Fred Endress has had in street and sewer work, it was believed that he would succeed Mr. Gloak as the head of these committees, but the gossips have it otherwise.

Mr. Randolph, it is said, would like to remain at the head of the police committee, having familiarized himself with the work of the department, while he has not taken so much thought and attention to either street or sewer work. Besides, he is out of the city most of the day, while Mr. Endress is in town all of the time and is in a position to give practically his entire attention to the work.

There is a well defined rumor to the effect that one of the first acts of the new Council will be an attempt to abolish the Tyler "saloon-zone," making it possible to grant licenses outside of a restricted territory. It is said that there will be an application for a liquor license from the East End of the city, and likewise that a concerted effort will be made to give back the licenses of Christian Gloekler and Alexander Findlay, which were revoked for violations of the law. It is the opinion of many who follow city affairs that there is no doubt but that both Mr. Gloekler and Mr. Findlay will renew applications for licenses, and it is further said that there are enough votes in the new Council to grant them.

Only four days remain in which to strive for the player-piano, the upright piano and the cabinet vitaphone offered by the Daily Press. The polls will close at 8 o'clock on Saturday night, December 21.

The crucial juncture in the contest is at hand. No contestant can afford to waste a single minute during the short time remaining in the race for the three valuable musical instruments. No contestant has any of the prizes "cinched." The character of the work done during the rest of the week will tell the tale. It will be necessary for all those interested in the winning of the prizes to work earnestly and have their friends work earnestly in their behalf. Make every minute count, right up to the finish.

At this point in the contest too much cannot be said in reference to getting promised subscriptions in hand. Lots of people will say they will give help "when needed" and then forget all about it. Now is when it is needed. Now is the time to remember such assurances and get the subscriptions. The support is needed now and one batch of ballots lacking at the last moment may lose the prize.

The rule states that a committee of three responsible men will have charge of the ballot box at the close, count the votes and declare the winners. The names of this committee will soon be published. Its personnel will satisfy everyone that the result arrived at will be in perfect fairness to every interest involved. The next count of votes will be made tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. All coupons dated December 18 must be in by that time to count and no more of the coupons out of the paper will be accepted after that time.

INSTITUTIONAL WORK DONE BY NEW JERSEY

Tentative Program for Charities and Corrections Conference Planned.

The institutional work of the State will be presented at the New Jersey Conference of Charities and Correction to be held at the Plainfield High School, February 2, 3 and 4, and the most advanced methods of dealing with its problems will be considered. Each topic will be discussed by an expert from the medical or physical, the mental or psychological and the legislative aspect.

By its deliberations the conference aims not only to prevent untried and unseasoned experiments, but to give that knowledge and to create that social conscience which compel action along righ lines, and thus to assure the rising generation a better heritage of physical vigor and spiritual force.

The tentative program under the general topic of "New Jersey's System of Humanics," will be as follows:

Sunday, "The Church and the Social Promblem;" Monday, "Inebriety, Jails and Almshouses; Prostitution and Mental Hygiene; Prison Reforms and Reformatories;" Tuesday, "The Feeble-Minded, Epilepsy and Eugenics; the Work of Prevention."

Ernest D. Easton, secretary of the State association, has invited women's clubs, societies, etc., to appoint one or more delegates who may attend and take active part in the conference.

OVERSEERS WOULD BETTER POOR LAWS

Henry L. DeForest on Committee to Consider Changes.

Hoboken, Dec. 17.—Overseers of the poor from all parts of the State will make a combined effort to have the Assemblymen and Senators from their counties pass a bill either setting the length of settlement necessary to have a claim for aid at three years or else pass a law making it optional with governing bodies of municipalities to pass ordinances regulating the time as they see fit.

This was decided at the annual meeting of the New Jersey State Association of Overseers of the Poor here. The present time required is five years and by many this was thought too long a time, some even advocating that the time limit be set at one year. On final vote it was decided three years would be the proper time.

A committee of five, consisting of Thomas O'Neill, of Paterson; Charles Stevens, of Hackensack; Henry L. de Forest, of Plainfield; W. Meneely, of West Hoboken, and William Parker, of Trenton, was appointed to go over the existing poor laws in their entirety and report as to what they would recommend eliminated or amended.

Following are the officers re-elected for the ensuing year: Harry L. Barck, Hoboken, president; Gustav Kinz, Orange, vice president; George B. Meneely, West Hoboken, secretary; Charles Schaff, Union Hill, financial secretary; Thomas O'Neill, Paterson, treasurer, and Mr. Sattler, Elizabeth, sergeant-at-arms.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

[From a series of elaborate chemical tests.]

Comparative digestibility of food made with different baking powders.

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of two kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

99 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67 Per Cent. Digested

Royal Baking Powder raised food is shown to be of greatly superior digestibility and healthfulness.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Manager Elsie Debele, of the girls' basketball team, has arranged for championship games with Plainfield High School girls. The first game will be played in Saengerbund Hall, January 31, and the second on Plainfield's court February 21. In case of a tie the deciding game will undoubtedly be played on the Y. M. C. A. court.

The boys' basketball team is making good use of Saengerbund Hall and are getting in some highly useful practise under Coach Webster's direction. The entire squad was out last night for a hard practise. The first team consisted of Carol Taylor and Edson Day, forwards; "Duke" VanMater, centre, and George Townley and Ashley Burner, guards. That is the team that will play Woodbridge High School here next Wednesday.

Preston Dunning, one of the High School's star basketball guards of 1910, hung up a new record for basketball at Pratt Institute last Saturday morning by caging fifteen baskets in one game. The former record was twelve baskets. Dunning plays forward on the chemistry team and the class league.

Manager Carroll Taylor is having a hard time keeping games after they are scheduled. Summit High School cancelled both contests and that leaves two dates to be filled. The schedule is not as good as the one of last season.

Miss Mary Robley, the language teacher, has taken Captain Smith's basketball girls in hand and will have them practise hard and steady for their games with Plainfield.

Principal Phelps has arranged a basketball schedule for the classes. The class league will be started at once.

At the opening exercises of the High School yesterday, Principal Phelps and Superintendent Vossler congratulated the junior class on the excellent entertainment they gave last Thursday evening at the Park Club. The juniors came out ahead financially.

Baseball Manager H. Newton Spencer is arranging an early schedule and has many good teams booked. Although the team was a failure last year the captain of the 1913 team feels confident that a nine worth while can be put on the diamond next year. Mr. Phelps has already signified his willingness to coach.

In appreciation of her fine coaching, the junior class presented Miss Terry with a silver desk picture frame with her initials on the front. The presentation was made by the class president. The committee for the selection of this gift consisted of Lucile Ewart and Marguerite Woolston.

The Saturday Evening Card Club is becoming very popular and many of the High School members have joined.

Principal Phelps is trying to secure two good speakers for the Christmas exercises next Friday morning.

When school starts again after the holidays, "Newt" Spencer will be allowed to try out for the first basketball team by the Board of Education. Newton was suspended for a few months from athletics but his time is up next Friday. He can play either guard or forward swift in passing and an accurate shot. He will undoubtedly make the team and be a valuable addition.

The Siga Gamma Kappa girls' club held a meeting yesterday and decided not to have a Christmas party.

At a meeting of the Camp Fire Girls yesterday it was decided to suspend all meetings until after the Christmas holidays. This was done because of the big entertainment to be given in January.

BIG SALE OF FINE BIRDS TO HARMONY PARK FARM

There were a good many sales of fine birds at the Palace show a week ago, but the largest sale and the most important of all has only just been completed, although the first steps were taken at the show. This is the sale by Dune Aplin Farm of Eastampton, L. I., of its entire flock of single comb white Orpingtons including the winners at the Palace show, to Harmony Park of Scotch Plains. About 200 birds, all of whch are fine show birds, changed ownership, and now are housed on the Scotch Plains farm. Among these is the prize winning pen, for which an offer of $350 was refused at the show.

George L. McAlpin, the proprietor of Dune Alpin Farm, now will devote his plant to single comb White Leghorns. Harmony Park, as heretofore, will raise only single comb white Orpingtons.

STUDENTS' CO-OPERATIVE STORE PAYS A DIVIDEND

Princeton, Dec. 17.—That the average Princeton undergraduate is free in spending money, especially if he can get articles on credit, is shown by the dividend of ten per cent. recently declared by the Princeton University store, which is a co-operative establishment conducted on the campus under the supervision of the students.

More than $10,000 is being distributed in dividends among 1,500 students. This store, which is probably the busiest little luxury emporium in the country, did a business for the last fiscal year of more than $100,000.

One of the largest counters in the store is that at which tobacco is sold and its business is larger even than that of the book counter, where every student must procure his textbooks for the classroom.

Although necessities are sold at the store, the articles of luxury far outnumber those which are essential to the undergraduates.

WHY GO BACKWARD?

It is hard to credit the rumors in circulation to the effect that not only will an effort be made in the coming year to have the revoked license of Christian Gloekler restored, but also to abolish the Tyler saloon zone ordinance. We say it is difficult to believe that such backward steps would be contemplated because such a scheme would be a terrible blow to a community whose excellent regulation of the liquor traffic is praised everywhere in the State and has more than once been favorably commented on by courts of law.

The retail license in question was taken away from its holder by the Common Council for a violation of the ordinance. The licensee knew the law perfectly well. He knew, too, that to violate it would mean the loss of his privilege. He disobeyed the mandates and got the consequences. Now, if his license is going to be restored, it means just one thing—disregard, even defiance, of the laws and ordinances by other licensees. Once let it be shown that an offender can get back his license and the effect of strict regulation will be gone. That is the whole truth in a nutshell.

As for the abolishment of the Tyler saloon zone, what sound, yes, even plausible, argument can be advanced for such a backward move? The enactment of that measure, fathered by that ideal type of a councilman, William S. Tyler, was one of the best things accomplished for the good of the city in the last decade. The sale of liquor is a legalized business, it should be confined to the strictly business section, the very centre of the shopping district. To allow it to encroach on the residential district is a mistake in more ways than one. The single reason is sufficient that a saloon in a residential section of a small community lowers residential property values. To grant even one in such a quarter would be a dangerous precedent; it would lead to others being granted by subsequent councils.

To restore the revoked license and to abolish the Tyler saloon ordinance would be the undoing at one stroke the untold good that has been achieved in recent years for the strict regulation of the saloon business. We hope it will not come to pass; we firmly believe the people of this community will not allow just an outrageous scheme to be put through.

There is one country in the world which has more newspapers in proportion to the population than the United States and it is also a republic, Switzerland having 275 journals per million inhabitants. France comes third in rank; Germany fourth, and strange as it may seem England is down in fifth place. Russia has but eight journals per million of inhabitants but as statistics show that Russia is the most illiterate country in the world and the life of the average editor is mostly spent in a dungeon, it is not surprising to find very few newspapers there. Beyond any question, the American newspapers are the most fearless and at the same time the most profitable.

To date the Good Fellow movement has insured a joyful Christmas for 258 poor little boys and girls. Now, there are approximately 600 worthy cases, according to an investigation made for the Good Fellow by the Charity Organization Society, and therefore there is urgent need for many new recruits during the next few days. Read the Good Fellow's appeal on this page. It will touch your heart.

Helen Gould has always been noted for her good sense. She showed it only the other day when she decided to marry an everyday American. There's one rich woman who does not intend to barter her wealth for a bauble in the shape of an empty title given by a worthless, indolent and contemptuous foreigner of nobility.

The whole Nation will applaud the courteous and dignified decision of President Taft not to appoint an ambassador to Great Britain on the eve of his retirement for office. It would have been well had he not filled the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Wiley, the pure food "expert."

The Daily Press piano contest will be brought to a close on Saturday night. See that your favorite candidate wins by lending your support.

Seven more shopping days before Christmas. Get busy if you have the price.

Wilson is back and his troubles begin.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

ONE MONTH'S RECORD IN WORK OF RELIEF

Need of Charity Organization Society Shown by November's Demands.

Steady but not abnormal demands continue for the services of the Charity Organization Society. Last month the society expended $319.50 on board, clothing, groceries, etc.

The money spent is not, however, a perfect index of the service rendered as in one case 75 cents provided carfare for a boy and solved a family problem, while in another instance $75 had to be raised to make a family self supporting. This was done through special appeals and a newspaper story. $61 was given to the society and spent for 29 Thanksgiving dinners, while 63 families known to the society were given dinners by churches, King's Daughters circles and individuals, making a total of 92 families or about 400 persons cared for.

In all 88 families, exclusive of the recipients of Thanksgiving dinners, were assisted in some way during November. 398 persons consulted the office in regard to ways of helping and an almost equal number, 378, called for some kind of help. 382 visits were made to or on behalf of families and 990 letters written. Seven volunteer visitors assisted the secretary with 16 families. Bonnie Burn has received 11 persons whom the society was interested in and four others were sent to other institutions.

December has begun with a rush preparatory to Christmas. So far 250 names of children have been supplied to Good Fellows and it is hoped that more than as many more will be taken this last week. Some who have felt unable to play the part of Good Fellow have sent the society money to be expended for Christmas dinners or toys. $80 has been received so far. Last year $138 was received. There are an equal number hungry and toyless this year, and it is hoped all may be cared for.

N. P. H. S. JUNIORS WILL BE THE SENIORS' TARGETS

The members of the North Plainfield High School senior class are planning to make their coming Christmas entertainment the best in many years. Although the "knock" committee is having a hard time the members promise to have a real "sting" for every junior and senior in school.

After this part of the program a playlet entitled, "The Scheme That Failed," will be given. The cast, under the direction of Mr. Mertz, has been working hard. The cast is as follows:

Paul Jennings, Thomas Fetherstone; Edith Jennings (his wife), Florence Coons; Fanny Jennings (sister) Helen Hughes; Mrs. Craven, Mildred McAuliffe; Victor Craven, George Townley, and Bridget, Clara Smith.

Informal dancing will follow the sketch. The entertainment will be held in Debele's Auditorium Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Admission by complimentary tickets only.

CREDIT ASSOCIATION MAY HAVE ARBITRATION BOARD

The question of appointing an arbitration board to which shall be referred all matters in dispute, especially claims of indebtedness, was discussed at the meeting of the Business Men's Credit Association, last night. The members seemed to be in favor of such a board.

It is argued that claims may arise from time to time about which there may be a question, and it was thought wise to have a board whose decision shall be final. The matter will be taken up more fully at a meeting of the executive committee and will probably result in the appointment of a board of arbitration.

Four new members were elected at last night's meeting and the rest of the evening was devoted to a discussion of matters of a routine nature.

—Blobbs—"Skinnum is trying to promote a new mining company. Did you fall for it?" Slobbs—"No; I tumbled."

NEW MARKET JUNIOR COUNCIL CELEBRATES

Friendship's Members Mark 22nd Birthday—Speeches, Feast, Dancing.

Friendship Council, No. 81, Jr. O. U. A. M., of New Market, celebrated its twenty-second anniversary in the council rooms, last night. The features of the evening were speeches made by members and past councillors of the organization, music and dancing.

The speakers of the evening were Past State Councillors William B. LaRue and J. Morgan Read; Rev. Thomas Vassar, pastor of the Baptist church, New Market; Rev. Henry N. Jordan, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, New Market, and Judge Rene P. F. Von Minden, of New Market. Past State Councillor William B. LaRue presented a short sketch of the council from the time it was organized and spoke of the good work done by the members in keeping it alive and thriving.

Between the speeches music, furnished by the Quique orchestra, of Bound Brook, was enjoyed. As soon as the speeches were finished refreshments were served, which were followed by the dancing.

The committee in charge was made up of William Van Nuis, David Ward, Foster Scofield, William Piddington, Jr., Rene P. F. Von Minden and William Mets. William Piddington, Jr., acted as floor manager during the evening when dancing was held.

ONE PLAINFIELD CASE ON SOMERSET COURT LIST

Somerville, Dec. 17 (Special).—The December term of the Somerset County Courts opened at Somerville this morning. The list of causes, which was not heavy, included in the Circuit Court calendar, the suit of the F. L. C. Martin Automobile Company against Benjamin A. Hegeman, Jr., on attachment. Francis J. Blatz and William A. Coddington are the lawyers.

The list of constables appointed to serve at this term is George D. Totten, Andrew D. Flammer, Oscar P. Down, Albert Perrot, Charles L. Vandereek, William N. Pangborn. Judge Vail will sit for the trial of causes on Monday, January 6.

Justice James J. Bergen presided at the opening session in the absence of Justice Charles W. Parker. He stated that he was happy to say there was but one matter to call the particular attention of the grand jurors to. This was the violation of the liquor laws by a hotel keeper at Raritan, which had been brought to his notice by Prosecutor Pope. The Riverview Hotel, at Raritan owned by George Huff, was raided several weeks ago for illegal selling.

Among the license applications granted were: Hilliare C. Blatz, North Plainfield, hotel; William G. Feaster, North Plainfield, hotel.

Charles J. Jensen, of North Plainfield, also made application for a license for The Mountain Inn, but this was withdrawn a number of remonstrances being filed against it.

GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENT KILLS SEVEN IN OHIO

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Ashtabula, Ohio, Dec. 17.—Seven persons are known to be dead, three others are missing, and several injured as the result of a grade crossing collision between an Ashtabula street car and a Lake Shore Railroad train late last night. The train consisted of twenty loaded coal cars and the collision hurled hundreds of tons of coal over the wreckage burying the dead and injured. It was feared this morning that the missing persons would be dug from under the coal.

P. H. S. MINSTRELS HIRE COMEDIAN AS A COACH

Following out their determination to make this year's blackface performance surpass those of previous years, the management of the Plainfield High School minstrel has retained James Moore to coach the troupe. Moore, or "Mickey," as he is familiarly known, is a comedian of ability and the suggestions he threw out to the school's end men yesterday afternoon will prove most valuable.

At the rehearsal held in the school auditorium yesterday afternoon, final choice was made of the end men. They will be Cortlandt Fleming, Valentine Goldsmith, J. Gregory Carty and Rutgers Neilson.

NEW BAKING COMPANY WILL OPERATE IN CITY

Elizabeth, Dec. 17 (Special).—The Zeek Baking Company, of Plainfield, filed articles of incorporation at the county clerk's office today. The company's place of business is 629 South avenue. The concern is capitalized at $16,000, and will start with $1,500 capital, 150 shares at $100 each.

The incorporators are Ernest Zeek and Denton L. Zeek, of Rutherford, and Louis D. Zeek, of the Bronx. The concern is incorporated to carry on a general baking business.

P. H. S. STUDENTS WILL TRY FOR ESSAY MEDAL

In connection with the Elizabeth Industrial Exhibition the Board of Trade of that city, under whose auspices the affair will be held, has offered a gold medal to the student in Union county writing the best essay on the topic, "Elizabeth, An Industrial Center." Two awards have been offered, a silver medal to the best essayist in the Elizabeth schools, and the gold medal has been set aside for the county award. The exposition will be held from February 10 to 15 inclusive and practically every industrial house in the State will be represented.

In the Plainfield High School this morning, the senior English classes outlined the proposed contest to the students and it is expected the school will be well represented in the contest for the medal.

Mrs. N. M. Gano of Grove street, has returned home from Chicago, after a visit of two and one half months with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Caleen.

JEWELRY PEDDLER FINED.

Samuel Goldstein, of New York city, who came to this city yesterday with an assortment of Christmas jewelry for sale, was arrested by Patrolman McDonald, for peddling without a license. City Judge DeMeza this morning fined him $8 or 40 days in jail.

FREEHOLDERS TO MEET.

LATE PICTURE OF AMBASSADOR REID AND MRS. REID TAKEN IN LONDON

MR. and MRS. WHITELAW REID

London Dec. 17.—Ambassador Whitelaw Reid died here at Dorchester House. Mr. Reid had been in failing health for some months, suffering from asthma since October. He had been confined to his room for several weeks. This month his illness became serious, and in the last few days it was recognized that the end could not be long delayed. He died in the presence of his wife and other members of his family. Mr. Reid was seventy-five years old. The flag on the embassy is now flying at half mast. News of the death was sent to the king and other members of the royal family and to the foreign office.

GENERAL DANIEL E. SICKLES FACES LEGAL ACTION BY STATE UNLESS HE FIXES UP SHORTAGE OF $28,746.44

GENERAL SICKLES
© BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

New York, Dec. 17.—Unless General Daniel E. Sickles, who has been having much financial trouble recently, fixes up a shortage of $28,746.44 in the funds of the New York Monuments Commission of which he was long chairman, the State will proceed legally in an effort to recover the money. Attorney General Carmody in a letter to General Sickles and the other members of the commission has set December 20 as the date when the settlement must be made. General Sickles recently gave a deed of trust to his home at 23 Fifth avenue as security for the repayment of the money, but the deed of trust was returned, as it was learned that the property was heavily encumbered. It is expected that the members of the commission will make good the shortage and close the incident.

HEARST A WITNESS IN CAMPAIGN MONEY PROBE

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Dec. 17.—William R. Hearst today took the stand before the Clapp committee that is investigating campaign contributions. Chairman Clapp asked him what he knew about the Archbold letters published in his magazine. At Mr. Clapp's request the witness produced photographic copies of the series of published letters. Mr. Hearst said the letters were not original and that he had none. Mr. Hearst said he had never seen the originals but had secured the protographs in September, 1908. The witness stated that he obtained the photographs from John Eddy, who wrote the first four articles in the series for his magazine.

The committee adjourned on the call of the chair.

CHOICE OF AMERICA AS MEDIATOR EXCELLENT

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

[illegible] in a talking on the [illegible] mediation in Balkan [illegible] to Nenadkovitch, head of the Russian delegation, said: "The choice of the United States as mediator would be an excellent one. The only fear in this connection are that the [illegible] of the United States from the [illegible] of war and its lack of knowledge of the different complex problems agitating the Balkan people might hamper its action while a European country would find itself in a readier condition, having for years followed the aspirations of the different race constituting the Balkan family.

TURKS' PROTEST AT CONFERENCE

Envoys Won't Sit if Greeks Are Allowed to Participate in Deliberations.

ADJOURNMENT TAKEN

Allied Balkan Delegates to Walk Out in Body if Adrianople Is Refused—Another Naval Battle Is On.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Dec. 17.—The peace envoys of the Balkan States today agreed that they would walk out of the conference en masse if Turkey refused to give up Adrianople, which will be among the first things demanded by the alliance. At the second day's session the allied delegates decided that the proposed Bulgarian frontier would be the first point brought up. The cession of Thrace and a part of Macedonia to Bulgaria will include the cession of Adrianople.

The morning session was given over to the examination of credentials and discussion of the power given to the plenipotentiaries by their respective countries. Osman Nizam Pasha, chief envoy of Turkey, entered a formal protest to the presence of the Greek plenipotentiaries, because Greece had not signed the armistice. Rechid Pasha, another Turkish delegate, insisted that his colleagues must withdraw from the conference if Premiem Venizelos and the other Greeks remained but the Balkan delegates finally prevailed on the Turks to sit in the conference at least until they could obtain fresh instructions from Constantinople.

Because of the continued protests of the Turkish plenipotentiaries against the Greeks' envoys, the second session of the conference lasted but three hours. Adjournment was taken until Thursday morning.

Dr. Daneff, the Bulgarian plenipotentiary, said that the allies' demand that Turkey surrender Adrianople had not been presented as yet. Only general matters relating to the peace protocol were discussed today, said the envoy.

Sedil Bahr, Dardanelles Dec. 17.—Another naval battle was begun between the Turkish and Greek fleets early today outside the entrance to the Dardanelles Straits. The fighting was very heavy. How many vessels are engaged is not known.

IS COUNCIL TO BE "LIBERAL"

A prominent merchant of the city in speaking of the license matter last night, said that he favored the renewal of the two licenses and he declared himself to be in favor of having a licensed place on Madison avenue near the business section. His complaint was that the present licensed places are "too crowded and make it inconvenient for patrons."

It is also said that there is likely to be a new application from the West End, the opinion being that Michael Watson should not have a monopoly of the business in that part of the city. One argument in favor of increasing the number of licensed places, is said to be that the city needs the additional money to meet increasing expenses, such as water investigation and the making of desired improvements.

One member of the new Council remarked last night that unsolicited, persons who are known to be total abstainers, had come to him recently and declared that there are not a sufficient number of licensed places in the city, that the city should derive a larger revenue from ths source.

That it will be the tendency of the new Council or at least some of the members, to follow a more "liberal" policy, seems to be well founded. Many of the restrictions of the past two years, it is said, are likely to be removed, and instead of the present strict observance of Sunday, there is likely to be greater "liberality" in the construction of the city ordinances. Some of the councilmen are said to have remarked that they did not believe that a majority of the people favored a strictly closed Sunday in Plainfield.

That there is a strong sentiment for not increasing the number of licensed places, is well known. It has been the boast of many citizens and recognized generally throughout the State that the license question has been well handled here, especially since the adoption of the "saloon-zone." The citizens referred to feel that any change in that would be a mistake. The recent increase in the license fee was not objected to by the liquor dealers, chiefly because the number of licensed places would not be increased.

Councilman Gloak, when questioned last night as to the probable make-up of committees, said that he had not given the matter a thought. He added that no matter what appointments were made there was sure to be dissatisfaction. He said that he proposed to do what was best according to his own judgment.

READY TO HANDLE PARCEL BUSINESS

Postoffice Prepared to Inaugurate New Service January 1.

CLERKS STUDY RULES

When System is Started It Will Be Possible to Mail Meat, Butter and Eggs—Express Companies Lower Rates.

Everything is in readiness at the local postoffice for the introduction of the parcels post which becomes effective January 1, and nothing remains now for the office employes but to become familiar with the rules and regulations governing the new service. Postmaster E. H. Bird has received a book of rules and necessary instructions which he and his assistants are familiarizing themselves so there will be no hitch when the service goes into effect.

There are several important rules which the public should know regarding the parcels post system to avoid trouble. All merchandise must bear the special stamps furnished for the service and each package must bear a return address in case it goes astray for any reason. Otherwise it will not be forwarded. It will be possible to send practically everything in the merchandise line by this system, including produce, such as butter, eggs, dried fish, vegetables, seeds and beef. They must be wrapped, however, so as to make transit safe.

According to the rules these packages are to be delivered by regular carriers, but the postmaster is given the right to engage substitutes or horses and wagons to insure delivery if the business is large enough to require the extra help. The introduction of the system will take all fourth-class mail out of the regular mail service, and according to the postal rules it will not be delivered as promptly as the first-class mail, which is given precedence.

Postmasters have been instructed to make a report to the government on January 15 giving facts and figures as to the working of the parcels post in each district or office, and this will be used as a basis for judging the needs and requirements in the future.

On the eve of the introduction of the parcels post comes the announcement by the United States Express Company of a reduction in rates with the idea of meeting the rates to be charged by the postal authorities. This was expected, for as one official of the company expressed it the company has had this business for many years as common carriers and did not propose to lose it if possible. The company also announces that greater and more improved facilities for handling business are about to be made so as to compete with the parcels post.

TRINITY DUTCH ARMS WILL HAVE A BAND

Fifteen Members Have Joined —Organization to Join Federation.

The Dutch Arms of Trinity Reformed church is ready to join the proposed local federation of men's clubs when representatives of Plainfield churches meet during the first part of January to draft by-laws and a constitution for the new organization. A committee composed of two consisting of A. B. Cole, president, and F. E. Smith, with authority to negotiate for membership, was appointed last night at a business meeting held in the church parlors.

The federation will comprise virtually every men's club in Plainfield. The federation will investigate local civic and social conditions in the hope of improving them. The Trinity church club is one of the largest in membership in the city and its decision to join is more than welcomed by the federation organizers.

At the meeting last night a committee was also appointed to solicit funds for a club band which is in the act of formation. Fifteen members signified their intention of supplying themselves with instruments and joining, while ten other members were willing to give their help to the band. The committee to solicit funds will try to secure enough money necessary to purchase ten instruments. E. D. Young, cornetist is slated for bandmaster.

After the business meeting Emil Closs, of New York, entertainer and impersonator, and formerly a local resident, presented a series of recitations and bell solos.

MAYOR GAYNOR'S APPOINTEES.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Dec. 17.—Mayor Gaynor announced today that he had dismissed the present board of examining plumbers, against whom his commissioners of accounts a week ago brought charges of mismanagement and alleged graft in the granting of certificates. The mayor has appointed Paul S. Bolger and James M. Morrow to be two members of the new board.

REV. DR. KITTREDGE DIED THIS MORNING

New York Cleric, Well Known Here, Succumbs—53 Years in Ministry.

New York, Dec. 17.—Abbott Eliot Kittredge, pastor emeritus of the Madison Avenue Reformed church, and one of the best known ministers of that faith in the country, died at his home, 711 Park avenue, at 6:30 o'clock this morning. He was well known in Plainfield having preached on several occasions at Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

Dr. Kittredge was born at Roxbury, Mass., July 20, 1834, and was graduated from Williams College in 1854, and from the Andover Theological Seminary in 1859, being ordained the same year. He received his degree as Doctor of Divinity in 1878 from Williams College. During his active preaching days he filled pulpits in Charlestown, Massachusetts, San Francisco, Chicago and New York, his last pastorate having been at the Madison Avenue Reformed church, in this city, where he served from 1886 to 1896. In 1903 he was elected president of the General Synod of the Reformed church in America.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

The Socialist vote in Texas has doubled in the last two years.

Perry Belmont, of New York, is the new president of the National League of Democratic Clubs.

The Socialists at the last election carried the city of Canton, Ohio, the home of the late President McGinley.

Chancellor John Allison, a distinguished jurist of Nashville, is a candidate for the seat of United States Senator Newell Sanders.

Theodore Douglas Robinson, a nephew of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, has been elected chairman of the Progressive State Committee of New York.

Former Governor J. C. W. Beckham, of Kentucky, has announced his candidacy for the United States Senate to suceed William O. Bradley, whose term will expire in 1915.

A "victory" reception and breakfast is to be tendered by the Woman's Democratic Club to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and the Misses Wilson at the Waldorf-Astoria on December 21.

Congressman William C. Redfield of New York, who is mentioned for a place in the Wilson cabinet, is regarded as one of the ablest authorities in the House on the tariff.

The Massachusetts Socialists have lost their legal standing as a "political party" by failing to poll the requisite three per cent. of the total vote for governor at the recent election.

Ex-United States Senator Joseph C. S. Blackburn, of Kentucky, formerly one of the most picturesque figures in national Democratic councils, is said to be contemplating a reentry into active politics by again becoming a candidate for the Senate.

Illinois Democrats hope the date for inaugurating Edward F. Dunne, the first Democrat they have elected to the highest office in many years, may be postponed from January 13 to January 14. While not exactly superstitious they prefer that the new administration should not begin on January 13, 1913.

One of the hardest political fights that Delaware has known for many years is now being waged between Willard Saulsbury, Democratic national committeeman, and the politicians who are strongly opposed to the selection of Saulsbury for the United States Senatorship to succeed Harry A. Richardson, Republican incumbent, whose term will expire next March.

George H. Hodges, who has won the governorship of Kansas after one of the closest political contests in the history of that State, was born in Wisconsin in 1866. At the age of three he journeyed to the West with his parents in a prairie schooner. The death of the father left the family in narrow circumstances and the future governor was obliged to earn a livelihood at an early age. His first employment was as a herder of the town cows. Later he learned the lathing trade and from this he stepped into the lumber business. Though he has been actively interested in politics for some years, the governorship will give Mr. Hodges his first real experience as an officeholder.

KRUG CASE DROPPED.

William A. Coddington, of counsel for Col. John M. Hardy, of Oak Tree, in defense of the $25,000 suit for damages brought against him by Mrs. Sarah P. Krug, of Avenel, informed the Middlesex County Court, when the case was called yesterday, that it had been discontinued without costs. Col. Hardy got a decision in the criminal action brought against him by Mrs. Krug, following her alleged ejectment from Col. Hardy's home.

DECIDED ON SCHOOL SITE

a separate class for sub-normals and backward pupils, and

"Whereas the State authorities have demanded changes in the stairways and window spaces in the present buildings on Somerset street, thereby largly decreasing their present capacity, now, therefore,

"Be it resolved, that a committee be appointed to investigate the cost and advisability of purchasing property in the northwest section of the borough for the purpose of erecting a suitable school for primary and grammar grades."

As has been told the Board has been trying to secure suitable quarters for the class of sub-normals and backward pupils, but have been unsuccessful in their search, although every possible structure in the borough has been visited. Debele's Hall was the most favored of the lot, but the owner, William G. Debele, would not lease the place for a shorter term than five years. An option was secured, however, for the purchase of the hall, but with the prospect of a new school building, it is probable that this agreement will be allowed to expire without action being taken.

In the discussion regarding the new school, a member of the Board suggested a new High School, which would leave the Somerset building entirely for the use of elementary grades. Supervising Principal Arthur B. Vossler strongly opposed this plan, saying that the present Somerset School with very few alterations could be made into an ideal institution for the High School grades, as the layout and size of the classrooms were particularly suitable for departmental work. He pointed out also that pupils in the higher grades are able to travel further than the younger children without hardship and that when new buildings were contemplated, taking into consideration the borough's present situation, it would be advisable to build small schools in the immediate vicinity of the lower grade pupils to eliminate, as much as possible travel by the younger children. The building of the new school under the unit-classroom-system was suggested and will receive consideration.

The Building and Grounds Committee reported that the contractor for the ventilation system now in the course of construction at the Somerset School building is rushing the work to completion, and that all of the material for the installation is on the ground.

In discussing the failure to secure classrooms for the sub-normal pupils, it was suggested that the Watchung School kindergarten class be transferred to the Somerset building for a single afternoon session, and that the room in the Watchung School be used for backward and deficient classes. This will only be considered as a last resort.

The supervising principal's report for the month of December showed excellent progress in all lines of work. The time made by the pupils in leaving the buildings during the fire drills showed improvement, the average time consumed for the complete clearing of the schools being about one minute. Continuing, the report sugested the tinting of the ceiling and side walls of the Watchung School during the holiday vacation. Several applications for working papers were granted.

A committee composed of Charles I. Nash, Francis L. Sill and Thomas E. Currin, Jr., was authorized to express the regret of the North Plainfield Board of Education over the death of Edward A. Overton, a former member of the Board, who died recently.

—It should be a very easy matter to bear other people's burdens. They are always so much lighter than our own.

DR. GIFFORD TO RESIGN.

Elizabeth, Dec. 17.—Rev. Dr. Henry Hale Gifford, rector of Grace Episcopal church, announced last night that he would resign his pastorate next year. The rector said that ill health causes his decision, as his throat has troubled him for some time. If the board of trustees asks Bishop Scarborough, it is likely that he will appoint Rev. J. Fredrik Virgin, at present curate of the church, to succeed Rev. Dr. Gifford.

In the New York Shops.

[A postal addressed to O'Flaherty's New York Suburban Shopping Guide, 50 Nassau Street, New York City, will supply information as to where the articles mentioned in this column may be obtained.]

Any man or youth would be glad to find among his Christmas gifts a few knitted four-in-hands. One of the department stores is displaying a most attractive variety at 24 cents each.

Blue and white Japanese china is always attractive. At one of the stores one may purchase a half-dozen of cups in a box for 75 cents.

A silk quilted smoking jacket is selling for $3.50 at one of the stores for the Christmas trade.

Manicure sets consisting of four pieces, each article having a pearl handle, are $1.25 and $1.98 at one of the department stores.

Attractive brooches carved out of ivory bone, with any name desired in the center, are 45 cents.

A full length lounging robe of quilted silk is $5.50 at one of the stores.

Bath robes of heavy figured wool material are $3.95 at a department store.

A most atractive smoker's set in brass consisting of a tray, tobacco jar, ash receiver, match holder and two pipe racks, is $5.00 at a department store.

Handkerchief envelopes of linen with a hand embroidered edge and an initial and containing six handkerchiefs each are $1.25.

Paper clips of brass with a mounted hunter in a red coat, and two dogs following a fox, are $1.50.

Renaissance dresser scarfs 18 x 54 inches in size are 98 cents.

Dainty crocheted carriage robes for the baby are $3.00 each. These are hand made, and heavy wool in delicate colors is used.

12-button kid gloves in white and variety of colors are $1.68.

Puff boxes and hair receivers of pressed glass with white celluloid covers are 35 cents.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

ROLLED STEAKS.

MONOTONY in cooking is a mistake. Many a bad appetite may be traced to weariness of the same dish served day after day or week after week by unenterprising cooks.

Steaks, even the poorest cuts, may be made acceptable if they are served in a variety of forms.

Some suggestions along this line are given here.

For Tough Steak.

Steak Roll.—A steak which is too tough to cook any other way may be used for this. Begin by pounding it flat and tender. Spread with highly seasoned stuffing, roll into shape and sew tightly in cheesecloth. Boil for three hours in salted water, take out and press under a heavy weight until cold. Take off the cloth, cut in thin slices and serve with horseradish or made mustard.

Roast Rolled Steak.—Take a round steak and pound it well. Make a dressing of breadcrumbs, one egg, a small piece of butter, salt, pepper and a little sage. Mix all together and spread on the meat. Roll and tie with a string. Put in a pan and roast. Baste often with hot water and melted butter. Make a brown gravy and serve with it.

Succulent Steaks.

German Rouladen.—Cut pieces the size of your hand from round steak, sprinkle salt and pepper over them, then spread with mustard. Lay a slice of bacon and some chopped onion upon each. Roll up and fasten together with wooden toothpicks or tie with thread. Fry brown in bacon fat or in butter. Add water, cover and let them simmer from two to two and one-half hours. Add as much water as is needed to make gravy and thicken with cornstarch. A little cream will improve it.

An Appetizing Roll.

Savory Rolled Steak.—Pound a steak hard on both sides with a wooden mallet until tender. Rub melted butter into the meat, then spread it with one-half cupful of flour seasoned with celery salt and white pepper. Sprinkle this with a few drops of onion juice and roll up the steaks. Tie together with a piece of soft white twine and lay in a covered roaster. Pour in a gill of water in which a teaspoonful of butter has been melted and cover closely. Cook in a moderate oven for an hour. When done, place the rolled steak on a hot platter, thicken the gravy left in the pan and pour it over the steak before sending to the table.

IMPRESSIVE MUSIC HEARD AT HOLY CROSS SERVICE

The organ recital by Charles Davis at Holy Cross Episcopal church Sunday evening proved to be of a very high order of merit. It was interspersed with a trio of contralto numbers by Miss Henrietta Harbison, whose second appearance it was as a soloist at Holy Cross. Miss Harbison puts much feeling into her work. Gounod's "There is a Green Hill," gave her the best opportunity for displaying her ability. The contralto voice is abundantly fitted for expressing vocally the deep meaning of the words "O dearly, dearly has He loved!" Miss Harbison interpreted the thought most devotionally.

The recital was followed by evening prayer and a short sermon by the Rev. William McCoy from the words of Christ, "Behold I stand at the door and knock." He emphasized first the patience of Christ; secondly, the personal interest of Christ.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

"To tell the story of this play would be to steal half of the author's thunder," said May Irwin, when asked to give an outline of the plot of "Widow by Proxy," the farce comedy in which she will appear at the Plainfield theatre Saturday night. "Just say it is another May Irwin play. I have had four plays in which I have been a widow. This time I only pass myself off for a widow and when the real widow turns up—But hold! Here I go giving away the plot myself." "Go ahead," urged the reporter. "No, I promised the author I wouldn't. But honestly, it's the funniest play I have ever had." "Then it must be a great combination," the reporter admitted. "The funniest play with the funniest woman in the world." "Don't dare to say that," warned Miss Irwin. "There ain't no such animal, as the farmer said to the giraffe. Talk about the company. There's Orlando Daly, the leading man. He's one of the best actors in this country. And Miss Blandick—you know what a hit she made with Kyrle Bellew in 'Raffles.' And Joe Woodburn and Miss Goldwaite, and all the others—they're all clever. Say so." Consider it published in Dan and megaphoned to Bersheba. But if there is any question as to who is the funniest woman on the stage it can best be satisfield by visiting the Plainfield theatre Saturday night.

Joe Weber, a man who has engineered many plays of farcial situations to a successful production is the original producer of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" which will be presented at the Plainfield theatre, Christmas Day, afternoon and evening. The play is described as a French vaudeville, which is the only descriptive phrase which Mr. Weber could hit upon, as it is not a musical comedy, a farce with music, or a comic opera. Yet it has all the characteristics and popular features of all of these. In adapting the farce and in composing the fourteen lyrics, Mr. Hobart has eliminated all the objectionable features of the play, retaining only enough of the story to build the series of farcial complications which gave the piece its vogue in a run of 500 nights in Mr. Weber's theatre, in New York. Alma is a fascinating milliner, who is induced to lure an unsophisticated young man to propose to her in order to make him lose a fortune of four million frances that has been left to him with the provision that he does not make love to a woman or propose to her up to a certain date. But she falls in love with Pierre, saves his fortune and finally marries him, after the time limit in the will has expired. It is a pretty and romantic story, complicated with the most amusing situations.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

As most everyone knows, "The Count of Luxembourg," the delightful romantic musical play by Franz Lehar and Glen MacDonough, is a brilliant success in New York, where it is crowding the New Amsterdam theatre at every performance. This musical romance had a run in Europe of over two years, and last summer it was the talk of London and Paris. It is conceded by everyone that the music by Franz Lehar is the most brilliant achievement of his career. The fame of the music had preceded its appearance here and everyone is familiar with its tuneful numbers. The staircase waltz has probably been played more universally than any piece of dance music ever introduced, and to see the two exquisite dancers waltz up and down the stairs is alone worth a visit to this light opera. The cast is particularly strong at every point and the chorus is exceptionally capable. The stage setting is exquisitely beautiful. There are only two acts, the first laid in Brissard's studio, Paris, and the second the reception hall at the Grand Duke Rutzinov's Paris. In the studio over four score people are employed in the songs and dances and fully as many in the second act.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

SOMERVILLE AND PLAINFIELD MEET

Old Rivalry Between School Fives Promises to Enliven Game.

In the High School gym tomorrow afternoon, the Somerville High School basketball team will be the opponents of the local High School boys in their usual midweek game. A large amount of rivalry has always existed between these teams and whenever they clash a good contest is always assured. Somerville, curiously enough, is well represented here, as a number of the younger set from the Somerset county seat attend Plainfield High School.

Although the monthly class reports go in tomorrow it is not thought that they will have any effect on P. H. S. lineup as all of the regular players are said to be up to the standard in scholarship.

A meeting of the team will probably be called before the game with Somerville and a permanent captain elected. Monroe Good has been temporary captain and it is likely he will be retained.

The following players will lineup against Somerville: Heron, Woodhull, forwards; Good, center; Brynarski, Peacock, guards.

SPARKS BY "SKID"

Well, I'm with you again!—Skid.

Excuse me! But there is no reason to feel so disappointed because the Perchicot-Egg team did not finish first in the six-day race. Many times Egg fell to the "saucer," but "scrambled" up again and "gamely" continued the grind, but he was not very "fresh" at the end.

Chicago's seventeen motorcycle policemen gathered in $150,000 in fines for that city in 1911.

The U. S. Government uses motorcycles in seven departments.

Rev. J. A. Kabl, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., does missionary work on his motorcycle covering a circuit five by fifty miles.

The motorcycle manufacturers of the United States are going to promote a motorcycle race from year to year on the order of the Vanderbilt Auto race, starting July 4, 1913.

Plainfield motorcycle riders should beware of the motorcycle cops in Trenton who have made twelve arrests in one week and collected fines of $125 from speeders.

W. R. Spears, of the Reading-Standard Company, who was in town last week, is making his way back to the factory in Reading, Pa., after a 1,800 mile trip on his motorcycle.

L. Hampson, of the local club, is very busy these days getting ready for the club dinner Friday, December 20, at Neighbour's.

A motorcycle ambulance is used in London, England, for the use of sick or injured dogs. Mrs. Van Hoesen, attention.

Ralph Auerbach, president of P. M. C., is in town waiting for the big feed.

Raymond Mantz, of the borough, covered many miles December 16 and is very pleased with his new mount.

J. Dickhundt, of South Plainfield, uses his Indian for all his Christmas shopping.

Joe Delaney, of P. M. C., intends to have a new machine for 1913.

Twenty riders of the Atlantic City M. C. had a run to Tuckerton, N. J., last week. Nick Tule, of P. M. C., was there. Oh you Nick!

Noticed at Newark M. C. dance last week a large punch bowl labeled "Gasoline."

Our own "Doc" Cooley will not be with us on the 20th. Doc is awful busy these days on account of the weather.

Sam Fields is riding strong these days. At least so Sam says.

F. A. Blume will be in from the mountains for dinner.

Gus Johnson says he don't puncture any tires but his own; now Gus, be a good boy.

A. Herrlich says these cold mornings will be the last of him if his machine doesn't stop freezing so he can get it started.

E. Neighbour expects to join the club next year and get a machine.

"Erve" expects to take off weight.

KING OF OMAHAS, HEADS Y. M. C. A. BROAD JUMPERS

Twenty youngsters of the local Y. M. C. A. were participants in an inter-team broad jumping contest held at the association gymnasium yesterday afternoon. Kng, of the Omaha team, with a leap of 13 feet won first place. Brownlee, Omaha, was close behind with a mark of 12 feet, 10 inches. Later Henry, Sioux, tied Brownlee for second place. The records follow:

King, Omaha, 13 feet; Brownlee, Omaha, 12 feet, 10 inches; Henry, Sioux, 12 feet, 10 inches; Ross, Omaha, 12 feet, 8 inches; Morell, Sioux, 12 feet, 8 inches; Snyder, Wawayanda, 12 feet, 8 inches; Chamberlain, Iroquois, 12 feet, 3 inches; Angerbauer, Iroquois, 12 feet; Johnson, Wawayanda, 12 feet; Tomlinson, Wawayanda, 11 feet, 9 inches; Henwood, Iroquois, 11 feet, 7 inches; Sykes, Wawayanda, 11 feet, 7 inches; V. Smith, Omaha, 11 feet, 2 inches; Babcock, Wawayanda, 11 feet; Renni, Sioux, 10 feet, 9 inches; MacFullerton, Sioux, 10 feet, 4 inches; Dreier, Omaha, 10 feet, 3 inches; Block, Omaha, 10 feet, 2 inches; Erickson, Wawayanda, 9 feet 10 inches; Condit, Sioux, 9 feet, 6 inches.

CHESS CLUB.

The games on the Plainfield High School chess club's schedule that are scheduled to be played off befofe December 20, are as follows: Rufus Tildon-William Thompson; Joseph Sattels-Cortlandt Fleming; Leland Shaw-William Cockburn; Fred Smith-Everett Banks; Charles Henderson-Morris Mann; Wm. Thompson-Cortlandt Fleming; Rufus Tildon-William Cockburn; Joseph Sattels-Everett Banks; Leland Shaw-Morris Mann; Fred Smith-Charles Henderson. The contestants are allowed to fix their own time (within the limit set) and place for playing.

GYMNASTIC EXHIBIT.

The Y. M. C. A. gymnastic and athletic team will journey to Dunellen Thursday night and give an exhibition drill before the Brotherhood of the Dunellen M. E. church. E. C. Ostlin, physical director of the association, will deliver a short lecture on the physical needs of the ordinary man. A number of the members of the "gym" class will accompany the team on its first trip.

PRINCETON-CORNELL MEET OFF

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Dec. 17.—It is not expected that Princeton will meet Cornell on the cinder path next spring. No announcement of what college will take Cornell's place has as yet been announced.

PARK BOWLERS TO START LEAGUE MATCHES TONIGHT

The Park Club bowling team, winners in the Central Jersey League for several seasons, has re-organized to bowl matches with outside teams The first match will take place tonight at the Park Club against the Newark Bay Club. The Newark Bays are one of the finest teams in this part of the country. The Park Club has not been in a league contest for two years.

The Park Club five will be the same as of old, consisting of William Barlow, Raymond Lyman, F. O. Ball, W. D. Mulford, M. H. Long, with Charles Eoff as substitute. The club invites all bowling enthusiasts to witness the coming matches.

FAMILY FORMS BASEBALL AND BASKETBALL TEAMS

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 17.—For the last six months many local newspaper columns have teemed with reports of a baseball team composed of nine brothers, the sons of T. O. Gillum, of Madison Mills, Orange county, this State. In some places the truthfulness of the report has been questioned, but it is true that the baseball nine, manned by nine brothers, whose ages range from fourteen years to thirty-seven, and managed by the father, who is sixty-three years old, played many amateur games during the past season.

But this is not all about this remarkable Gillum family, for instead of confining the athletic activities of the family, the gentler side has branched out into basketball. There are six girls on the family basketball squad, who play the cage game as well as do the brothers perform on the diamond.

The basketball team is composed of these members: Mrs. James Forbes, Mrs. Alice Turley and Misses Susie, Mabel, Ruth and Nina Gillum. It would not be fair to make public the ages of the players on the basketball team, though these range from sixteen to thirty years.

Mr. Gillum, the head of this great family, is postmaster, miller and merchant for Madison Mills, as well as a farmer.

CLASS TEAM PRACTISE.

Captain LeRoy LaRue, who has been elected to succeed his brother as leader of the Plainfield High School sophomore basketball team, sounded the first call for practice yesterday afternoon and it met with a ready response. Those who answered the call were LeRoy LaRue, Gerald Linke, Daniel McNamee, Morris Mann, Pelham Wilmerding, Ernest Higgins Morris Cantor and Leo Hirsh.

DYNAMITE FOR SKEETERS.

Elizabeth, Dec. 17.—The latest means to be employed by the Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission in ridding the country of the winged pests is dynamite. The commission, not having in its employ anyone experienced in the handling of the powerful explosive, has engaged the services of Daniel Sullivan, of Roselle, who yesterday began drilling holes in a stone ledge which dams the water in Turf Swamp, in Union, and the latter part of the week 11 pounds of the stuff will be set off to break the dam and release the water.

PRODUCTION POSTPONED.

The play "The Old New Hampshire Home," by the Oak Farms Dramatic Club, to have been played at the Park Club on Thursday evening for the benefit of the Young Men's Athletic Association, has been postponed until Tuesday evening, January 14.

COACH WRECKS WAGON.

A collision between a wagon owned by Theodore Glaser, Jr., of Dog Corners, and a coach, at Watchung and Hillside avenues, occurred last night, the wagon being wrecked.

MANY RED CROSS STAMPS ARE BEING SOLD IN CITY

The sale of the Red Cross Seal stamps at the various stations in the city is exceeding the expectations of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society.

"Am I using Red Cross Christmas seals?" said a good-natured old cobbler as he looked up from the shoe he was repairing to the person who stood blocking the doorway of the little shop, and who had asked the question originally. "I don't know of them. What are they for?" he asked.

When told that the little stickers were being sold all over the United States to raise money to prevent tuberculosis, the cobbler became very much interested.

"Now, I call that a good cause," he drawled. "I can't afford many because I don't get so very much work, but you can leave me ten of them.

"No, I don't write any letters and I don't send any Christmas packages. I can't use my seals that way but I'll tell you how I can use them. I will stick a seal on the sole of every shoe I tap."

NOAH RABY'S OLD NURSE ATTAINS MERE SIXTY-EIGHT

Noah Raby's nurse died at the Piscataway almshouse this week and was buried in Brooklyn. He was Henry Forker, aged 68 years, for many years an employe of the township, working at the almshouse.

When Noah Raby, who was New Jersey's oldest citizen, died at the age of 130 in 1903, Forker was one of his attendants. Raby had always looked upon Forker as a mere child.

Another of Raby's "youthful" companions was Nate Saunders who has since died at the age of 89 years. Raby liked to gather his young men friends about him and tell them of the good times he enjoyed when he was a little boy, 120 years before.

Superintendent Hummer had relied upon Forker to take care of the infirm and helpless inmates at the township institution and there were many of them.

MUSICAL EVENT.

Everything points to a record breaking attendance at the First Baptist church Wednesday evening, the 18th, when Ford Hummel, of Kingston, New York, one of the finest violinists of that State, will be present and take the prinscipal part in the services of the evening. The music lovers of the city are invited to be present. Special invitations have been sent to several of them and Dr. Strong has received assurances that many will be in attendance. The services will begin promptly at 7.55.

S. OF T. OFFICERS.

These officers were elected by Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, last night: W. P., William H. Conger; W. A., open till next meeting; recording secretary, P. H. Moore; financial secretary, Mrs. Sarah A. Mattox; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Angleman; chaplain, Mrs. H. Gibbons; conductor, open; inside sentinel, Mrs. Westerfield; outside sentinel, Mrs. M. C. Terry. They will be installed on Monday night, January 6.

BALL COMMITTEE.

At its meeting last night in Junior Hall, Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, Loyal Order of Moose, appointed a committee of five, with John T. Green as chairman, to make the preliminary arrangements for the ball to be held in Saengerbund Hall on Easter Monday. The lodge appointed David W. Kelley to act as organizer of the department under the dispensation granted by the system dictator. He will begin work immediately.

BOYS SCOUT MEETING.

There will be a special meeting of the executive committee of the local branch of the Boys Scouts of America at the Young Men's Christian Association building tonight. This is the first meeting of the body that has been held since the scout movement was inaugurated in Plainfield in June, and as several matters of importance are to come up it is hoped that there will be a full attendance of members of the committee.

BOUNDARY COMMISSION.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 17 (Special).—The International Joint Commission, representing Canada and the United States, reassembled in this city today to complete arrangements for the proposed investigation of boundary waters from the St. Lawrence to the head of the Great Lakes. The pollution of the boundary waters is the present subject of consideration. Health officials of Ontario and of the States bordering on the lakes have been requested to present their views to the conference.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Dec. 17.—President Taft today named the following as members of the Industrial Commission: George Sutherland, senator from Utah; George B. Chandler, of Connecticut; Charles Simon Barrett, of Georgia; Fred Delano, of Illinois; Adolph Lewisohn, of New York; F. C. Schwedtman, of Missouri; A. B. Garrettson, of Iowa; J. B. Lennon, of Illinois, and James O'Connell, of the District of Columbia.

RURAL LIFE IMPROVEMENT.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 17 (Special).—North Dakota's first country life conference convened at the State Agricultural College here today, and will continue in session until Friday. The program provides for the discussion of all phases of rural life improvement by men and women well qualified to speak on the subjects assigned them. The initial sessions today were devoted to the consideration of the country school as a social center.

EVERYBODY IS ENGAGED IN CALLING ELIZABETH NAMES

Elizabeth, Dec. 17.—Nearly everybody has been calling this city names for the past six weeks. Strange to say, the Board of Trade is the cause of the unusual situation. When the committee that is going over the names has completed its work, a prize of $25 in gold will be awarded for the one that is decided to be the best.

The prize was offered by the Board of Trade in order to get a suitable slogan to be used in promoting the industrial exposition that will be held in the Second Regiment Armory here next February.

This city is in Union county, so an adept young man from Auburndale, Mass., has made a hit with the suggestion: "Nothing in Union Suits Like Elizabeth."

A Wall street broker suggests: "Elizabeth Exemplifies Efficiency."

Other good ones sent in are: "Stop at Elizabeth and You Keep on Going," "Take Elizabeth's Arm to the Armory," "The One Best Betty Elizabeth," "Elizabeth Puts the Light in Delight," "Where There's a Will There's Elizabeth," "Elizabeth Shows How," "Dwell Here and Prosper," "Elizabeth Has It," "Elizabeth Easily Excels," "Elizabeth, City of Resources," and

"From Elizabeth by Rail and Sea
Are Shipped the Products of Industry."

One man tries to end the trials of all the competitors by saying "Elizabeth Needs No Slogan—She Has the Goods."

WARMING UP INJURIOUS.

That Is, if Pitcher Does It Every Day, Says Johnny McGraw.

John McGraw says that warming up a pitcher every day is highly injurious He declares that the Chicago Cubs put Miner Brown out of business by keeping him warmed up on days when it wasn't his turn to pitch.

"Brown weakened his arm while out of the box," says the Giants' manager "If he had been allowed to enjoy absolute rest for two days between games he would have been in Cub harness for several years to come.

"If Matty had been handled like Brown he would not have pitched in the last world's series. I know 'Big Ed' Walsh of the White Sox is an exception to this rule, but he is a giant physically. When he breaks down, though, he will go quickly."

Nelson to Circle Globe.

Taking the hint from Wolgast, Bat Nelson now plans a trip around the world. He's going to Honolulu, where he will fight Togo, the Jap, and where he will be the guest of the Japanese colony. From Honolulu the Dane intends to sail for Australia and then to South Africa, France and England. He will be a long time away if things work out right.

HOPES TO INDICT PRESIDENT BROWN OF N. Y. CENTRAL

Chicago, Dec. 17.—United States District Attorney Wilkerson is making extraordinary efforts to have President W. C. Brown and Vice President John Carstensen, of the

New York Central Railroad, indicted for violation of the criminal section of the Elkins anti-rebate law. Several days ago a federal grand jury at Chicago returned indictments against the New York Central and its subsidiary roads—the Lake Shore and Michigan Central, Big Four and Chicago, Indiana and Southern Railroads—for the alleged giving of a rebate of $60,000 to the O'Gara Coal Company, of Illinois.

CASH FLOWS INTO CITY'S COFFERS

Receipts up to Yesterday $27,000 Ahead of Same Date Last Year.

$25,000 DAY'S TOTAL

Collector Townsend Says Trust Company's Christmas Savings Plan Probably Accounts for Heavy Early Payments—Dec. 20 Last Day.

Notwithstanding that this is the busiest period of the year for Tax Collector William R. Townsend, he takes time to be proud of one fact and that is that at the close of business last night the tax receipts were $27,000 ahead of those of last year at the same time. When asked how he accounted for it Mr. Townsend said that he believed the Christmas Savings' Club inaugurated by the Plainfield Trust Company had a great deal to do with it, as hundreds of people found that a convenient and easy way of saving money.

The receipts for yesterday amounted to $25,000 and today's receipts up to 2 o'clock aggregated $16,000. The total receipts for December up to and including today amount to $137,000. The amount fixed in the budget to be raised is $443,897.

A notable fact in the payment of this year's taxes is that the heaviest taxpayer as well as the smallest has been unusually prompt in paying the assessment levied and there has been a noticable absence of complaint. Taxes are due up to and including Friday, December 20, and after that date interest will be added and the amounts unpaid will become delinquent.

In recent years there has been a marked decrease in the number of delinquent taxpayers, a majority of the people preferring to settle on time rather than allow the collector to add interest and other legal costs. Mr. Townsend remarked today that the rush began on Monday, the day that so much money was paid out by the Plainfield Trust Company.

AUTOCAR SHEDS WHEEL BUT DOES IT MILDLY

An automobile belonging to George E. Greenleaf, of West Front street, and driven by the owner, lost a front wheel while turning from Front street into Grant avenue about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The car was going moderately slow at the time and Mr. Greenleaf was not injured.

Employes of a local garage attempted to tow the disabled machine to the garage with a block arrangement, but this would not work. They were compelled to get a substitute wheel.

CHINA THEIR SUBJECT.

"Women and Children of China," was the subject of discussion for the Women's Association of the Congregational church at its Christmas meeting yesterday afternoon. Miss Ethel McIntosh read a paper on "The Women of China in the Olden Times," Miss Bessie Miller one on "The Women of China at the Present Time," and Miss Bessie Wyckoff one on "The Children of China, Both Present and Olden Times." At the close of the meeting Mrs. D. Foster Updike served the members with tea and light refreshments. The church was artistically decorated with Christmas colors, red and green, large and small bells, and holly sprays and wreaths, by Mrs. Charles L. Goodrich, wife of the pastor.

LECTURED ON TURKEY.

Harry Wade Hicks, of New York, delivered his illustrated lecture, "Turkey and Its People," before the Men's Club of Hope chapel, last night. He said that the present decline of Turkey was due to the lack of educational institutions. The war now going on, he said, shows how the lack of military training schools, as well as the ordinary schools, has affected the people. The officers in command of the men could not use the strategy and theory that was practiced by the commanders of the Balkan troops. He told of the dress and customs of the country, illustrating each with a picture.

BURGESS THORN.

Burgess Thorn, colored, aged 36 years, a lobirer, of 320 East Fourth street, died at the hospital last night following a long illness of heart trouble and pneumonia. Thorn was taken to the hospital yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock, but in spite of all the aid given him at the institution he did not rally and finally he passed away about 9 o'clock. He is survived by a widow. The funeral notice will appear later.

COMMISSION WILL FIGHT CRONEY CLAIM

Court Will Hear Case of Skeeter Inspector's Widow January 9.

Elizabeth, Dec. 18.—The Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission at its meeting yesterday afternoon decided to fight the claim of Victoria C. N. Croney, of Plainfield, whose husband, George Croney, an inspector employed by the Commission, died as the result of injuries sustained when he fell on a shovel-edge at Mountainside. Mrs. Croney is claiming compensation under the Employers' Liability Law. The case will be heard by Judge Atwater in the Court of Common Pleas on January 9. County Attorney William R. Codington will represent the Commission. Should the case go over it is likely that he will remain as the county's counsel in the matter, although the Democratic board will name a new county attorney on January 6.

The Commission decided to reduce the number of laborers it employs from fourteen to eight during the winter months. There are five inspectors and they will remain on duty all winter.

The contract for printing the Commission's annual report was awarded at a figure of approximately $233. A total of 4,000 of these reports will be distributed.

THIEVES MAKE $200 HAUL IN VALLEY SUMMER HOME

The summer home of O. B. Lightowler, in Washington Valley, near Scotch Plains, was entered a few days ago and goods to the value of about $200 was taken. The fact that the house had been burglarized was discovered yesterday by Alexander Archibold, the caretaker, who went there to look over the place.

Archibold found that an entrance had been effected through a rear window, and that considerable furniture and other household goods of value had been removed. Mr. Lightowler was notified and he went to the house yesterday afternoon and arranged to have the rest of the goods put in storage in New York until next summer. The local police authorities were notified, but as yet they have had no clue to the trail of the thieves.

ATMOSPHERE OF ANCIENT EAST ABOUT THIS BAZAAR

The sale conducted by the Young People's Missionary Auxiliary of the Epworth League of Grace M. E. church last night was highly successful. Its purpose was to raise enough money to pay for the tuition and clothing of a young Japanese girl in one of the schools in Japan.

The church, artistically decorated with various colored streamers of crepe paper, had the air of an ancient oriental bazaar.

Miss Mabel Stevens and Miss Lena Renneman were in charge, ably assisted at the various tables by the following: Fancy table, the Misses Evelyn Nelson, Mildred Harden, Clara Bodenheimer, and Helen Nelson; cake table, Helen Ryno and Genevieve Smalley; candy table, the Misses Edith Lippincott, Fannie Buckley, Gertrude Johns and Helen McDonald; handkerchief booth, Miss Ethelyn Smalley; ice cream booth, the Misses Alletta Johns and Elva Lippincott; waitresses, the Misses Myrtle Davis, Lucy Hughes, Carroll Hughes and Allene Chandler.

During the evening the guests that attended were entertained with selections played on a talking machine, loaned by Charles Ammerman.

NAGLE REOPENS STORE.

C. M. Nagle the druggist, reopened his store at West Front and Grove streets, yesterday, and is now prepared to serve his patrons promptly with drugs, toilet articles, confectionery, cigars, etc. The store, which has been virtually rebuilt, is most attractive with modern fixtures and is up-to-date in every respect. The entire stock of goods is new. Mr. Nagle expects to open his soda fountain in about ten days.

DOG BITES GIRL.

Miss Florence Daly, of 80 Franklin avenue, North Plainfield, while passing West Seventh street and Plainfield avenue yesterday, was bitten by a pointer dog. The animal inflicted a slight wound in her right leg. She was attended by Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, who said he did not believe the canine was suffering from rabies.

—Neuman Bros. are making a specialty of mince meat, table raisins, fancy layer and pull figs, stuffed prunes, English hot-house grapes and Malaga grapes for the holidays. ***

DR. LEVINSON WILL WED MISS SACHAR IN FEBRUARY

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Helen Sachar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sachar, of 731 West Third street and Dr. Bernard Levinson, of this city. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride-elect's parents on February 15. The couple will occupy a new home now in course of construction at West Front street and Giraud avenue.

Miss Sachar is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and the State Normal School, and formerly was a teacher in the public schools of Newark. Dr. Levinson has been practicing in Plainfield for the past eight months. Prior to that he was house physician at St. Mark's Hospital, New York, for nearly three years

SCOUT MOVEMENT GAINING IMPETUS

Several Troops Soon, Commissioner Reports at Meeting —New Masters.

Charles R. Bostwick, local scout commissioner, presented a report on the progress of the work thus far in Plainfield, applications were received for two scoutmasters' credentials, and one boy scout asked for special merit awards at the meeting of the executive committee of the local boy scout movement, held at the Y. M. C. A., last night. The work was reported as progressing satisfactorily, with the prospect of the formation of several new branches of the organization within a short time.

The new scoutmasters' applications were from H. R. Hubbard of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and from Joseph Garner, who has formed an organization at Bethel chapel. William Thompson, who received his second class scout badge prior to joining the Wetumpkah Sentinels, the organization at the First Presbyterian church, was awarded a first class scout badge, the first of the kind in Plainfield, and it was recommended that he also be given special badges for efficiency on the subjects of public health, personal health and firemanship.

On January 28 it is expected that the executive committee will meet again and go to the meeting of Wetumpkah Sentinels, at which time Thompson will have the badges presented to him.

AUOTOIST FINED FOR NOT SHOWING A LICENSE TAG

Marshal Walter Denris had a busy time yesterday. He arrested three people including H. W. Phillips, a South Plainfield grocer, whom he brought to headquarters for running his automobile through the borough minus a rear license tag. Recorder Gano fined the offender $5 this morning.

The two other prisoners locked up by the marshal were Walter Fisher, 17 years old, of 624 East Second street, and Elston Wakefield, 13 years old, of Watchung avenue. Both were arrested for riding their bicycles after dark without a light. Recorder Gano this morning suspended sentence in both cases.

LANDLORDS WILL REGULATE RENTS

Property Owners Are Making Ready to Form Protective Association.

100 MEMBERS ASSURED

Slow Paying and Non-Paying Tenants to Be Listed and Guarded Against, Doing Away With Necessity of Action in District Court.

For the purpose of regulating rents and protecting themselves against delinquent tenants, property-owners will soon organize what will be known as the Plainfield Real Estate Owners' Protective Society. A meeting for organization will be held in Firemen's Hall early in January, when officers will be elected and a constitution and by-laws adopted.

Jacob Sacher has taken the initiative in the movement and thus far he has secured the signatures of eighty-five property-owners to an agreement to join the society. He expects to increase the list to one hundred at least.

The need for such a society is urgent, says Mr. Sachar. He says that property-owners lose a large sum of money every year through delinquent rent payers and tenants who move from one place to another without settling their rent account. Heretofore, he says, there has only been one redress and that was by bringing suit through the District Court. He believes the better plan to be to have a list of tenants occupying houses owned by members of the society and just as soon as it is learned that a tenant is "poor pay," to take steps either to secure the rent or have the family move out.

The members of the society will have a list of tenants and they will be reported by the various owners with a view to making it impossible for a tenant to owe any considerable amount of rent with no prospect of the owner getting his money.

WILSON TO MEET BRYAN SATURDAY

President-elect to Confer With Nebraskan When Cabinet Horoscope May be Cast.

Trenton, Dec. 18.—William J. Bryan is expected in Princeton probably on Saturday to confer with Governor Wilson. The part Mr. Bryan is to take in Mr. Wilson's administration will be determined at this meeting, which will carry vast political import.

If the President-elect is to offer a cabinet portfolio to Mr. Bryan the tender of office undoubtedly will be made at their first conference since the election. There is no formal announcement made of the meeting, and it is not known officially that Mr. Bryan is coming on Saturday. But it was learned today unofficially that Mr. Bryan is expected within a few days and that in all probability he cannot reach here before Saturday. It would not be surprising if the Nebraskan came Saturday and remained over Sunday, repaying the visit Mr. Wilson made at Fairview, Lincoln, in the latter days of the campaign.

That the President-elect gives Mr. Bryan first place in the council of advisers is made clear by the fact that their meeting will be the first important political conference since election.

The President-elect made clear today one cardinal doctrine of his proposed national platform when he declared war, relentless and unceasing, against the party bosses. He will not compromise for a second with any of the stand pat leaders of the Tammany Hall type.

"I shall not go slack in this business," he declared in his first political utterance since election. He made the statement at the State House, where field day for New Jersey politicians was held.

"I shall in the future use every proper and legitimate power I have and every influence at my disposal to support and assist the new forces which have regenerated our life," he continued. "I understand my duty to be to stand back of the progressive forces of the Democratic party everywhere and at every juncture."

This statement was made after the Governor had consulted the State leaders and had learned of the shrewd politics played by James Nugent, his arch enemy in politics, during his absence in Bermuda.

SIGN QUESTION NOT YET SETTLED BY REALTY BROKERS

The members of the Real Estate Brokers' Association, of Plainfield met last night and further discussed the question of adopting a rule regarding the placing of signs on properties for rent and sale. No decision was reached. A majority of the brokers want to reserve the right to place one sign on a property, especially if the owner desires it, but they all seemed to agree that it is a bad policy to display any great number of signs, as has been done.

The members hope that some conclusion will be reached soon so that there will be a definite rule to follow. Other business discussed was chiefly of a routine character. The association will meet again on January 21.

PISCATAWAY SUING N. PLAINFIELD TWP.

Middlesex Township Says Neighbor Won't Pay School Bill It Owes.

Piscataway Township, tired of the alleged dilatoriness of its neighbor, North Plainfield Township,—yes, they're neighbors; the mountain township runs a western shoestring course until it gets right next door to a Piscataway corner—Piscataway, to begin all over again, out of patience with the manner in which Neighbor North Plainfield Township is reported to be hanging on to money due old 'Scataway, has gone to law about it.

The action doesn't lie between the Township Committees, but between the Township Boards of Education. The Piscataway Board wants pay—$156, to wit—for the tuition and transportation of four North Plainfield Township children enrolled in the East Bound Brook school, and has started suit to recover it.

Piscataway alleges non-payment of a bill rendered to North Plainfield Township. The North Plainfield pupils who Piscataway has been educating, according to all the latest methods, in the East Bound Brook school—and not only educating, but sending for them with a wagon in the morning and sending 'em home in the same or a similar wagon in the afternoon—the N. P. T. pupils who have been enjoying all this, and for which Piscataway says North Plainfield Township won't pay except under pressure, are Celeste Lowande, Albert Lowande, Fred Carzelius and Lucy Kuntz.

JUDGE DEMEZA MADE THEM MAN AND WIFE

Miss Edith Grace Heilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Linderman Charles Heilman, of Allentown, Pa., journeyed here from that city yesterday, to be married to her school-day sweetheart, Daniel H. Summers, an employe of the Levgar Construction Company, and lately of Reading.

The ceremony was performed by City Judge DeMeza last night after which the newlyweds departed on a honeymoon to Niagara Falls. On their return they will reside in this city.

ASKS BOY SCOUTS TO DISCOURAGE TRAPPING

Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, agent of the S. P. C. A., spoke before the Boy Scout troop last night in the vestry room of the First Presbyterian church in opposition to the setting of steel muskrat traps within the city limits. It was all right to catch muskrats in them, perhaps, Mrs. Van Hoesen said, but unfortunately pet cats and dogs too often were the victims of the steel jaws.

Many complaints have come to S. P. C. A. headquarters recently about cats and dogs found in traps in every part of the city and the boys were asked to aid in preventing such occurrences.

After the meeting the scouts gave an exhibition of rope-climbing, wall-scaling and code-signals.

BANKRUPTCY TRUSTEE.

City Judge DeMeza was appointed trustee in the C. B. Brokaw Auto Company involuntary bankruptcy proceedings by Atwood L. DeCoster, the referee, at Elizabeth, this morning, and he filed a bond to the amount of $10,000.

PREPARING TO TURN OVER REINS OF CITY

Mayor Cleaning up Official Business—Mayor-elect Gets Data.

Mayor G. W. V. Moy, whose term as the city's executive will end on December 31, is busily engaged in disposing of the official business in his hands preparatory to turning the office over to Mayor-elect Percy H. Stewart. There are several deferred matters in possession of Mr. Moy which will be sent to the Common Council to be in turn referred to next year's Council.

Mr. Stewart is already interesting himself in the city's business, and making ready to assume office. He has asked for full information and all the data concerning the joint trunk sewer proposition so that he may acquaint himself with the details, and he is also familiarizing himself with other matters which he feels he should know about. Mr. Stewart intends to keep the promise he made during the campaign, that he will devote his entire time to the duties of his office and give the people the best service possible."

FINDLAY NOT CHARGED WITH ANY VIOLATIONS

The license of A. D. Findlay for a saloon on East Second street was not refused a renewal by the Common Council as stated in yesterday's issue on the ground of violation of the laws and ordinances. This correction is made in justice to the Daily Press as much as to Mr. Findlay for this paper aims to be accurate and does not wish to impute wrongdoing to others when they are guiltless.

Mr. Findlay was refused a renewal by the Common Council on the strength of a statement made by Captain Hewitt, of the Salvation Army, who alleged that the proprietor sold bad whiskey and that women gathered in a side room of his saloon. Mr. Findlay was given no opportunity to reply to the charges, the renewal being refused forthwith.

NEW CANDY STORE.

The formal opening of Lohrman's Chocolate Shop, at 161 East Front street, Woodhull & Martin building, will take place tomorrow, when souvenirs will be given out. The concern will carry a full line of home-made candies, ice cream, favors and mottoes.

HIGH TRIBUTES TO FR. MILLER

Lauded as Priest and Man at Big Testimonial Meeting.

END OF THE JUBILEE

St. Joseph's Rector Showered With Flowers as Presentation is Made—Rev. Dr. Herring Among Those Who Praise Priest.

Rev. Father William H. Miller's celebration in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood came to an impressive close at the Park Club last night when, before hundreds of his parishioners. Prominent Catholics and Protestants, joined in extolling him. During the exercises Father Miller was presented with a purse of $1,500, the gift of his parishioners.

The celebration, which was arranged by Miss Mary O'Connor, of the Women's League of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, where Father Miller has served for nearly a score of years, assisted by the Holy Name Society, was a memorable tribute to the rector. The program included besides addresses of praise for the priest's unceasing labors for his parish and people, vocal solos by John Finnegan, tenor soloist of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York; instrumental duos by the Misses Flynn, and orchestral selections by B. A. Paroubeck and H. Jungman, violinists, accompanied by Joseph Denny at the piano.

Father Miller sat in the centre of the platform in a big arm chair draped with yellow and white. Over his head hung a large bell of white roses, with the silver numerals, "25" inscribed thereon. Yellow and white streamers extended from the bell to the hands of two small girls dressed in white and a like number of boys. When A. R. Philips presented Father Miller with the valuable testimonial from the parish, the boys and girls pulled the streamers and roses and other flowers fell from the bell upon and about the priest, much to his delighted surprise.

Palms and ferns decorated the stage and a large American flag formed a background. Evergreen trees stood around the hall. American flags and bunting were largely used in the decorations.

Judge Clarence E. Case, of Somerville, opened the ceremonies with a short address of welcome. He said in part:

"There's no better pleasure or purer joy than the spending of your

Indications at present point to a deluge of ballots at the close of the Daily Press piano contest on Saturday night. Just who will win the three valuable musical instruments no one can predict. This stage of the game is an opportune time to warn the contestants to pay no attention to wild-eyed rumors of the number of votes held in reserve. A moment's reflection will be enough to convince anyone that none of the organizations or individuals are circulating real stories as to the strength they will have at the finish. Misleading figures are frequently given out by friends of the contestants to discourage opponents and sometimes this plan is successful.

The knowing ones in the contest will devote the short time remaining to building such a convincing reserve that they will have no fear of the outcome when the final count is made Saturday night. There are lots of friends ready to help and many promised subscriptions to gather in. Put the former to work boosting the grand total and impress upon their minds that now is the time that every ounce of strength is needed.

Points to Remember.

The voting contest will close next Saturday evening, December 21, at 8 o'clock.

Bring in the subscriptions as early as possible.

Have a subscription blank made out for each subscribtion and mark it, old or new.

You may deposit your ballots in the ballot box at any time up to 8 o'clock Saturday night, after which time the polls will be declared closed and only those who have been waiting previous to that time will be taken care of and allowed to deposit their ballots.

The results are going to be very close. Get every subscription possible. Let none escape.

The first prize is a player-piano; the second a piano without the automatic attachment, and the third a cabinet vitaphone.

Learning How

Anyone can operate the Burroughs by any kind of a system—in ten minutes. If you want to learn a "touch system," you can do all kinds of "stunts" in multiplication, subtraction and division with it that will create a sensation in the office. The Burroughs has the scientific keyboard which meets office conditions—and requires no special operators.

Let us show you.

WILSON WARNS PANIC MAKERS

Swears to Build "A Gibbet High as Haman" for Man Who Dares to Start One.

New York, Dec. 18.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson was the guest of the Southern Society of New York at its annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. As President of Princeton and as Governor of New Jersey he had attended most of the society dinners in recent years, but never before did he attend one at which there were so many there to pay a personal tribute to him—the first Southern-born man to be elected President of the United States since Zachary Taylor, of Louisiana.

When Gov. Wilson's time came he admitted that he was an embarrassed next President. He said that the embarrassment was great because "when a man is made to think about himself, that is the profoundest cause for embarrassment." "I want to say, in order to divert your thoughts, and perhaps your attention," said he, "that I am not thinking of what I wish to be, but of what I want to do, and unless you think the same, just that much will be subtracted from the Government of the United States."

Of the work ahead of him he said it was "wholly hateful" to him in so far as it concerned the giving of jobs to applicants. He modified his former announcement that callers at the White House would find an open door by restricting the reference to "those callers who have business." He promised that he would be a traveling President after getting around among the people and hearing what they had to say.

On breeders of panic and those who "hold the machinery to breed panics," Gov Wilson served particular notice in tense tones that held his audience. "I know that certain men make artificial panics," he said, "in order to impress the country that something about to happen is going to happen wrongly. I don't fear such men. I don't believe any man alive dares to start the machinery of such a panic. But if any man does I promise him I will build a gibbet for him as high as Haman."

AMBASSADOR'S WIDOW ACCEPTS THE WARSHIP

London, Dec. 18.—It is announced that the Government's offer of a warship to convey Ambassador Reid's body to America has been gratefully accepted by the family, but the final arrangements rest with the United States Government.

London, Dec. 18.—Hearty tributes were paid to the late Ambassador Whitelaw Reid at a large meeting yesterday of the American Society. Many appreciative speeches were made and resolutions were adopted.

The President of the gathering, Walter Blackman, said that no name would take a higher place than that of Whitelaw Reid in the line of illustrious Ambassadors sent from the United States.

GIANTS BONES FOUND NEAR SAN FRANCISCO

Stanford University, Cal., Dec. 18.—Recent excavations indicate that the peninsula South of San Francisco was once inhabited by a race of giant stature. Prof. Harold Heath, of the Zoological Department of Stanford University, according to a statement given out last night, has unearthed, about two miles south of here, several skeletons of men who were of unusual height.

A prehistoric village covering nearly two acres has been the scene of Prof. Heath's investigations. Stone hammers, bone awls and ornaments found by his party indicate that their owners had advanced considerably in artisanship and civilization.

SOUTHERN DEMOCRATS WARNED BY MARTINE

No Alliance With G. O. P. Senators to Confirm Taft's 11th Hour Appointees.

Washington, Dec. 18.—The question of confirming the numerous nominations to high offices of friends of the administration by President Taft has reached an acute stage among both the Progressives and the Republican stalwarts; and, to help matters along, the militant Democratic Senators have taken an active hand in the game.

An attempt fostered by Senator Boies Penrose to give potential help to the salwart Republicans in the matter of appointments for Pennsylvania through the aid of Southern Democrats, who, in turn, were to get some assistance from the Penrose side of the Senate was knocked into a cocked hat by Senator Martine, of New Jersey, who, in his characteristically picturesque fashion, told the Southern Democrats that he would not permit any such alliance to pull the Republican chestnuts out of the fire. "I know from practical experience," he told the Democratic caucus, "that it takes a lot more courage to be a Northern Democrat than to be a Democrat in the Sunny South. What do you fellows down ther need with patronage? You can't help being Democrats. You have, as Democrats, nothing to contend with in the line of office-holding patronage, compared with what we Democrats in the North have put up against us month after month, and year in and year out. We will have no such alliance; and, I, for one, do not believe in confirming any appointee or nominee of President Taft presented at this critical time unless such appointee or nominee belongs either to the army or the navy."

FOR SAILORS AND CHILDREN.

The members of the W. C. T. U. met at their rooms yesterday and finished packing two barrels with useful articles for Christmas, one of which will be sent to Captain George Benn for his work among the sailors, and the other to the Home for Feeble-Minded Children at Vineland. Each barrel is valued at $25.

Plainfield, N. J., December 18, 1912.

B. AND L. PROSPERITY.

Unusual prosperity has been enjoyed by the people of New Jersey who invest their money in building and loan associations. This fact is indicated in the annual report of the State Banking and Insurance Commissioner and is a source of genuine satisfaction.

The report shows that during the last year the assets of these associations have increased $10,106,667, as compared with the preceding year. The total of assets now is $106,402,321. The profit accumulation of the associations for the year was $18,991,744, an increase of $1,826,648, as compared with the preceding year. The increase for the year in money paid in for dues and subscriptions is $7,590,795, a gain of 10½ per cent.

The gain in members for the year was 21,400, making a total membership in these associations in the state 213,024. Of the shareholders nearly 20 per cent. are borrowers. The total number of associations in New Jersey is 665, a gain for the year of 38. Seven associations went out of business during the year.

INSOLENCE.

Could anything be more impudent than the action of the office-hungry members of the Board of Freeholders in attempting to defeat the will of the people by resorting to the courts in an effort to prevent the new small boards from becoming the legally authorized body to transact the county's affairs after January 1? Under the new law, the voters elected the men who are to compose the smaller board and at that election many of the members of the present board were candidates. Now that most of them will go out of office according to the provisions of the law, they aim to have that statute declared invalid and thus to override the voters' will. Surely they are an insolent lot.

Twenty-five recruits were added to the Army of the Good Fellow this morning and each mail is expected to bring additional enlistments. As only a few more days remain for mustering in we suggest that all those who wish to make some poor little boy or girl happy on Christmas morning answer the call without delay. Read the Good Fellow's appeal on this page.

Those politicians of the "gang" type who got an idea into their heads that if they supported Wilson during the campaign when elected to the Presidency he would let up on them have woefully misjudged their man. No sooner did the Governor set foot again on Jersey soil than he renewed his declaration of war against the Democratic machine and bosses.

The Daily Press felicitates Rev. William E. Miller, the popular and zealous priest, on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination. Father Miller is not only beloved by his parishioners at St. Joseph's, but by the people of all creeds who have the pleasure of his acquaintance.

A. V. D. Honeyman's compilation of gems from the sermons of the late beloved William R. Richards is a treasure of beautiful thoughts couched in a way that only a saintly man of Dr. Richards gifts of expression could utter them. The volume is well named "The Truth in Love."

Joseph McIntyre has given Plainfield's music lovers entertainments of the highest order, his artists invariably being performers of national, if not international renown. He is, indeed, to be commended.

Evidently the naval officers of the Greeks and Turkks don't know what the word "peace" means. In fact history shows that the Turks never did know.

Before you do your Christmas shopping read the merchants' advertisements published in the Daily Press. It will save you time, trouble and money.

New York bank has given its 250 clerks ten per cent. of their annual salary as a Christmas present. What's that about how hard times?

Three more days and the pianos contest will be closed. Vote for your favorite now and often for this is where "repeaters" are welcomed.

Carlisle, Pa., man boasts that he is the first pawnbroker to make a loan on a rooster, but why is that anything to crow about?

It remained for the United States Supreme Court to solve the problem, "When is a trust not a trust?"

And again we say, do your shopping now.

ANOTHER CHINESE REBELLION.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Amoy, China, Dec. 18.—Severe fighting broke out today among the various clans composing the population of this city. The government troops were called out to suppress the disturbances, but were unable to restore order. A large number of casualties have been reported. The government troops have finally restored order and occupy all the main thoroughfares.

EXPLOSION KILLS MINERS.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Dortmund, Germany, Dec. 18.—Thirty-one coal miners are believed to have been killed by an explosion of black damp in the Achenbach mine this morning. Six bodies have been recovered from the pit and twenty-five miners are still missing. The explosion was so violent that it is thought all were killed.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

TURKS REFUSE TO TREAT WITH GREEKS

And Servia Offers to Leave Important Question to the Great Powers.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Dec. 18.—At the peace conference today Turkey capped its previous announcement of refusal to meet Greek envoys as long as hostilities are continued, by submitting a report of the Turkish debt made by representatives of British and Dutch bondholders showing great insecurity. By projecting into the discussion the bondholders' report, Turkey appeals to the cupidity of the great powers to prevent a fair definition of territorial and financial terms.

London, Dec. 18.—Servia took a most important step in the direction of peace today by intimating her willingness to leave the matter of an outlet on the Adriatic Sea entirely in the hands of the great European powers. In regard to tension between Austria-Hungary and Servia, it is generally expected that direct negotiations between these two nations will begin immediately. These will take the form of a conference between the Austrian foreign minister and the newly-appointed Servian minister at Vienna and the object aimed at will be the realization of the mutual desire of the two countries for the clearing up of the situation and the removal of misunderstandings.

NEW SECRET SERVICE HEAD.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington D. C., Dec. 18.—William J. Flynn, of New York, was appointed today chief of the United States Secret Service by Franklin MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, to succeed John E. Wilkie, now chief supervising agent of the Customs Service. He will assume his new duties tomorrow.

PRISONER ELUDES GUARDS.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Ossining, New York, Dec. 18.—In some mysterious way, Chester, alias Cy Yates, who was serving a term for the robbery of Aaron Bancroft in the corridor of the Produce Exchange sometime ago, escaped from Sing Sing prison early today.

WALL FALLS; FIVE HURT.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Cincinnati, Dec. 18.—Five men were seriously injured by the collapse of a wall in the Gibson house fire ruins early today. The men were employed as wreckers following the $400,000 fire which swept half a city block last week.

OH, WHAT PROSPERITY.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Dec. 18.—The Guaranty Trust Company is distributing today to its force of 350 employes a Christmas bonus of 10 per cent. of their yearly salaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Bender, of Third place, have removed to Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sperry, of East Sixth street are the parents of an eight-pound girl, born this morning.

Mrs. Charles L. Clarke and daughter, Mary, of Sanford avenue, left Plainfield this morning to spend the winter with relatives at Moscow, Idaho.

DEFIED THE KAISER.

A Pilot Who Knew His Business and Had Lots of Nerve.

In a fit of impatience because the speed of his yacht was slowed down on entering a certain harbor, the German emperor on one occasion tried to assert his authority and rang the bell for "Full speed ahead." To his great surprise, the pilot, an old Norwegian named Nordhuns, who knew the dangerous character of the channel, placed himself in the way and, leaning over the wheel, called down the tube to the engine room, "Half speed ahead—never mind the bell!"

"What! You dare to countermand my orders?" cried the impetuous monarch, again ringing the bell.

"Disregard the bell," calmly repeated Nordhuns through the tube

For a moment the kaiser glared at the intrepid pilot, and then, drawing himself up to his full height, said majestically, "Go below, sir, and report yourself under arrest."

"Leave the bridge!" thundered the Norwegian grimly, as he grasped the wheel more firmly. "This ship is in my charge, and I'll have no interference with my orders from emperor or seaman!"

The officers on deck hurried silently aft, wishing luck to the sturdy old sea dog, who, knowing that he had the law as well as common sense on his side, stood at his post unshaken by threats, unheeding commands, and steered the Hohenzollern safely into port.

The next day the emperor came to his senses and decorated the pilot—the king at the wheel—with one grade of the Order of the Black Eagle and also appointed him his life pilot in Norwegian waters.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Humming Bird Flower.

Alletedo avasisis, the wonderful so called "humming bird flower" of the plains of eastern Turkey, stands unique and alone among the many specimens of floral mimicry that have been classified by modern botanists. It is a beautiful blossom of variegated hues, the total length of the entire flower being about one and three-quarter inches. As one might imagine from its name, it is an exact image of a miniature humming bird. The breast is green, the wings deep rose color, the throat yellow and the head and beak almost pure black. The only particular in which it is not a perfect bird is that the stem gives it the appearance of having but a single leg and foot.

"Widow by Proxy," the new farce comedy which has May Irwin for its star, is another document in evidence that women are apt to wrest the playwriting honors from men. The author is Catherine Chisholm Cushing, who is now recognized as one of our leading playwrights, having to her credit "Miss Ananias," "Miss Thurston," and the comedy which has been winning Henrietta Crosman new laurels during the past two seasons, "The Real Thing." In "Widow by Proxy," which Miss Irwin brings to the Plainfield theatre Saturday night, Mrs. Cushing has fitted the buxom comedienne with a part that gives full play to her unique talents in the fine art of funmaking.

The merry musical importation, "Alma Where Do You Live?" is scheduled to appear at the Plainfield theatre on Christmas Day, afternoon and evening. The piece is said to be one of the most exquisite musical farces that was ever brought to this country, and its melodies are of the humming and whistling kind. The book is by Paul Herne, the music by Jean Briquet and the English translation was made by George V. Hobart. The most alluring waltz runs through the entire play, in fact the whole city of New York has been whistling the catchy music of the piece for the last year where the play has a record run of 500 nights.

DIAMOND HILL IS IN VEXED STATE STILL

Another Election Fizzles, and Citizens Censure the School Officials.

Because the district clerk failed to issue the call for the meeting of citizens of New Providence township in a legal manner, and also failed to notify all of the members of the Board of Education, there was an enforced abandonment of the election for the sale of the old Diamond Hill schoolhouse and grounds this week. Citizens from all parts of the township went to the Berkeley Heights Lyceum to see what would happen.

The president of the board, it is said, admitted that the call was illegal and placed the blame on the district clerk, who admitted his responsibility. Squire Debbie brought about the organization of a citizens' meeting, with Edward S. Carr as chairman and Harry C. Lucas as secretary.

Resolution were adopted censuring the officials for putting the citizens to inconvenience and trouble. Efforts were made to prevent the adoption of the resolutions, but these failed. Mr. Carr pleaded for harmony and incidentally for letting the Diamond Hill matter be settled as the Diamond Hill people wished. The reasons for wanting to sell the Diamond Hill school, it was said, was that money was needed for the unfinished structure at Berkeley Heights.

This proposition did not appeal to many of those present at the meeting and the offered amendment was rejected and the original resolutions were adopted by a substantial majority.

TRIBUTES TO FATHER MILLER

life for others, and the man whom we have assembled her tonight to honor is one who has spent a full quarter of a century in seeking out the troubles of others that he may guide them, give them counsel and lead them."

Mayor Clarke gave an address sparkling with humor, which was in part as follows:

"It gives me great pleasure to preside on this occasion and join with you in paying this tribute of respect and esteem to the Rev. Father Miller.

"My acquaintance with Father Miller was made some fourteen years ago and during the years that have intervened I have learned to love him as a man, neighbor and priest. I have watched with interest his untiring zeal, intense devotedness, and his indefatigable labor for the church which he loves with a love that knows no abatement, and the thought comes to me at this time, what must be the thoughts, feelings and emotions of Father Miller as he takes a retrospect of the twenty-five years he has spent in the service of the Master as a priest. How his thoughts and emotions must ebb and flow when he thinks how his parish has grown from its humble state to its present proportions, and how he has seen erected a magnificent structure which is an ornament to the borough.

"And what must be the feelings of his parishioners when they think how his words of consolation have assuaged their many griefs, and how his priestly admonitions have saved them from many a wrong; when they think of how he has counseled them when they have been perplexed, cheered them when they have been faint-hearted, and has bound up on many occasions their wounded and bleeding hearts.

"It seems to me that when you contemplate the life of such a man, no gems of loving thought are too priceless for which our human tongues can frame a setting."

Judge Peter F. Daly, of New Brunswick, was the speaker of the evening, and gave an inspiring address, glowing with oratorical lustre. He said:

"There is no other country in the world where a celebration of this kind could be held. Here we have the brains of men of high character of this community, all probably of different religious and political belief, but all uniting in paying respects to Father Miller, a Catholic clergyman, but a worker for all Christianity."

Continuing he lauded the work of Father Miller. He said the people of the country were learning more every day, and demonstrational differences were dying away.

The Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, paid high tribute to Father Miller's work in the ministry while in the borough. His name holds an exalted position in the roll of honor of the Christian church and the Presbyterian cleric.

Other speakers who voiced eoniums on, and congratulated, Father Miller were former Judge William N. Runyon, Mayor G. W. V. Moy, Mayor-elect Percy H. Stewart and Congressman-elect Allan B. Walsh.

Just preceding the closing of the festivities which ended with a selection by the orchestra, Father Miller rose and thanked his friends for their kindness, their words of esteem, and the honor they had done him.

E. P. Galvin and James Hurley, Sr., two of the oldest members of St. Joseph's church, occupied seats of honor on the speakers' platform, in company with representatives of the Holy Name Society, who were David T. Kenney, Robert McCormack, Thomas Meaney, Richard Boice, Richard McCullough, A. R. Phillips, Joseph Hurley, Jr., Cormack McDonough, Patrick McDonough, Andrew E. Kenney and Alfred E. Laporte.

The ushers for the evening were William McCullough, Vincent Meaney, Henry Brynarski, Robert Hamilton, Leo Kenney, Walter Hamilton, Daniel McCormick, Andrew Carney, Percy Bailey, Frank Hart, William Dailey, James O'Neil and William Welch.

TRAMP, TRAMP, TRAMP, THE GIRLS ARE MARCHING, WITH ALBANY AS THE DESTINATION OF THEIR LONG HIKE

Photos by American Press Association.

New York, Dec. 18.—Whatever may be said of them, the American suffragettes who are walking from New York to Albany are less objectionable than their English sisters, who smash windows, throw hatchets and pour acid into letter boxes. And they are just as serious and probably more amusing. This morning but five of them were still on the "hike." These American seekers of votes have planned an easy stroll, with only about ten miles a day as the distance to be covered. They are holding open air meetings in various towns and villages and will entertain and be entertained. Mrs. Katherine Abbott is the drummer whose rat-a-tat is enabling the walkers, who are still at it, to keep step. Miss Lavinia Dock is a trained nurse and will care for any sufferings who need attention. In the lower picture General Rosalie Jones is leading the march, with Mrs. Abbott immediately behind and Miss Ida C. Craft right in line.

DIAMONDS
To-Day and To-Morrow
¼ Carat $10 Rings

These Diamonds are not roses, chips or slivers of Diamonds, usually sold for $10. Every one is guaranteed to be accurately cut and shaped like a one-carat Diamond, and has all the fire and brilliancy of Diamonds costing $50.00 at retail jewelry stores. Several hundred to select from; some weigh a trifle less than one-quarter of a carat, but the majority weigh a full quarter. You will be surprised and pleased when you see them. While we guarantee that you cannot duplicate them for less than $15.00, you will find that it will cost nearer $20.00 to match them. We have had some startling Diamond sales recently, but none as great values as these one-quarter carat Ladies' Single Stone Diamond Rings for $10. No mail orders filled.

See our window display of over half a million dollars' worth of diamonds. All plainly marked $5 to $5,000.00.

Observe our valuation and price of same other "Single Stone Diamond Rings" to be offered at this sale:

OGDEN MILLS REID WILL INHERIT VAST WEALTH FROM FATHER

New York, Dec. 18.—The death o Whitlaw Reid in London arouses interest in the personality of his son Ogden Mills Reid. He is now on the ocean en route to England. He was graduated from Yale some years ago and then joined the staff of his father's paper, the Tribune. He is now the president of the corporation that publishes the Tribune, of which he is managing editor.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Sunday will be observed as Christmas Sunday in all the churches in town. Programs of special music and appropriate sermons will be heard in every part of the city.

The monthly missionary meeting of Warren chapel will be held in the church parlors tonight instead of next Wednesday night, the regular meeting night, as the latter date falls on Christmas.

The Bible Study and Teachers' Training class of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will hold its regular meeting in the church on Friday night.

On Sunday morning the regular morning service at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church wll be combined with the Sunday-school service. Christmas exercises will be held at that time. The service will commence at 10:30 instead of 11 o'clock as usual.

A 7 o'clock "Sunrise Service" will be held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church on Christmas morning.

The yearly Christmas entertainment of the Monroe Avenue M. E. Sunday-school will be held in the church parlors on Friday night, Dec. 27.

Special Christmas services will be held at the Temple Baptist church and Sunday school on Sunday. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist, will preach at the evening service.

A special Christmas sermon will be preached by Rev. F. J. Hubach at the evening service at Monroe Avenue M. E. church Sunday night.

The Sunday school Christmas entertainment of the First Presbyterian church will be held on Friday night, Dec. 27.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the German Reformed church will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. Sauermilch in Scotch Plains.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a cottage prayer-meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. DeForest, at 435 West Second street.

PREPARES FOR HOLIDAYS.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—Congress will adjourn tomorrow for the holidays, this being the first outward sign that Christmas is near at hand. Some of the members are going home, but the larger majority intend to remain here during the recess. Year by year the social attractions of the capital at the Yuletide season have become more numerous and brilliant, and the women of the congressional circle, particularly those with social ambitions, are reluctant to leave even for a brief period.

AN OUTLAW CHIEF KILLED.

MISS HELEN MILLER GOULD IS TO BECOME A BRIDE LATE IN JANUARY

Photos by American Press Association.

New York, Dec. 18.—Miss Helen Miller Gould, one of the most interesting women in America, surprised her friends on Monday by announcing that she is to become a bride late in January. The fortunate man who has won her is Finley J. Shepard, who is identified with the Gould railroad properties and lives in St. Louis. It is announced that after the marriage the couple will live in New York. Miss Gould is forty-four years old and her fiance is a year older. They met two years ago while Miss Gould was making an inspection tour of the Gould roads.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Plainfield people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Plainfield reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

Mrs. Cecelia Rosseter, 127 Watchung Ave., Plainfield, N. J., says: "I am only too pleased to again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and I hope that all kidney sufferers who read my statement will profit by my experience. I have received a world of good from this remedy, backache, headache, dizzy spells and trouble with the kidney secretions being corrected by its use. I do not know what I would have done without Doan's Kidney Pills and I am certain that there is no kidney medicine that can be compared with them."

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CHRISTMAS ENTREMETS.

WHEN in doubt what vegetables to serve with the Christmas dinner the suggestions given here may be helpful. There are few vegetables that do not go nicely with roast turkey.

Mashed Potatoes Browned.—Fill the dish you intend to serve the potatoes in with mashed potatoes and, after smoothing the top and sprinkling with good butter, put on the shelf of a hot oven until browned and then serve.

Glazed Sweet Potatoes.—For a dozen people use nine sweet potatoes of good size, four tablespoonfuls of butter, a tablespoonful of sugar and a tablespoonful of water. Boil the potatoes fifty minutes; then take them from the fire and pare them. Cut them in halves lengthwise. Season with salt and place in a dripping pan flat side down. Put the sugar and water in a soup plate and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Now add the butter and stir over heat until this is melted. Baste the potatoes with this liquid and place the pan in a hot oven for twenty minutes. The potatoes should be brown and glossy when they come from the oven.

Some Creamed Vegetables.

Creamed Canned Corn.—Put a quart of canned corn in a saucepan; boil in its own liquor fifteen minutes; add half a teacupful of cream and a teaspoonful of butter; season with pepper and salt.

Creamed Lima Beans.—Soak dry lima beans in lukewarm water overnight; put in a saucepan, cover with boiling water, cook until tender, drain off the water; season with cream, butter, salt and pepper.

Creamed Turnips.—Pare turnips and cut in slices a quarter of an inch in thickness; then cut the slices in strips like a match. Boil these in salted water half an hour. Drain them, place them in a dish and cover with cream sauce made by melting in a small frying pan a tablespoonful of butter, adding to it a tablespoonful of flour, and stir until smooth, and then add a pint of milk. Stir it constantly until it boils; then season it with a teaspoonful of salt and a little pepper and pour it over the turnips.

Appetizing Dishes.

Stewed Tomatoes.—Open a can of tomatoes, put in a saucepan and set on the back of the stove. Cook an hour, add a teacupful of breadcrumbs, two ounces of butter, with salt and pepper. Cook half an hour longer.

Cold Slaw.—Shave cabbage into shreds, mix a well beaten raw egg in half a teacupful of condensed milk, add a teacupful of vinegar; boil till it thickens. Pour this mixture over the cabbage. Sprinkle with salt.

those in style for their elders. Mannish coats of gray and blue chinchilla are also worn.

No variation of the knickerbocker suit is better liked by the little boy than this one. The blouse is a perfectly plain one, drawn on over the head and closed with lacings. It has a suggestion of the sailor suit that is very pleasing. JUDIC CHOLLET.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

That wise and ancient phrase, "There's always a first time," seems especially pat just now in connection with the activities of women and the forward march of suffrage the country over. The paragraphs following bear witness to the progress of events:

A bill looking toward woman suffrage in Pennsylvania will be introduced at the coming session by Senator Farley, of Philadelphia. Sentiment in favor of votes for women has reached such proportions in the Keystone State that the prospects for a successful campaign are considered encouraging. Every political party in the State has endorsed the measure.

Delaware suffragists are preparing an appeal to be submitted to the next Legislature asking that the word male be stricken from the State Constitution, and that full suffrage be extended to women on equal terms with men.

In North Carolina the coming year woman suffrage is to be debated in more than one hundred schools throughout the State, as the result of plans recently adopted by the State Teachers' Assembly. The women teachers also asserted their independence by adopting resolutions demanding that women be appointed to positions on school boards and textbook committees.

Mrs. Helen Starbuck and Miss Emma Haimer were the leaders in a group of women who are reported to have given the Mayor of Orlando, Fla., the surprise of his life. Recently the Mayor issued a notice that "all freeholders" must register for the sewerage bonding election.

Mrs. Starbuck and Miss Haimer made a few calls on other women owning real estate. As a result they all called together on the City Clerk and informed him that they had come in obedience to the Mayor's order. The clerk referred them to the Mayor who sent them to the city attorney. After a few days the women were notified that the laws of Florida grants women no voting privileges whatsoever.

This is said to have been the first time that a woman's paying taxes and being denied a vote was ever publicly discussed in Florida.

The attitude of the Southern States is most significant because the South has so long stood solidly for the conservative and traditional in its ideals of womanhood. Heretofore that conservatism and clinging to tradition have been hinderances to the progress of the Southern women. But now that very idealism has become one of the strongest factors that make for advancement. Speaking for the women of the South and as one of them Mary Johnson says:

"The past that we honor was once the forward-moving present. Those great days and those great men of whom we, as well as you, are proud—they were in the very van of time. Spiritually we are akin to them. We, too, are in the van, and you cannot turn us back today any more than you could a hundred and thirty-five years ago.

It is a firm, strong and finely modelled hand with which the past impels the woman of the South forward on the path which leads upward to a juster, nobler, brighter world for herself and for her children, the man child as well as the woman child.

"To a very large extent the Southern woman in the movement for the franchise may count upon the help of the Southern man. The man of the South has a very true regard for the woman of the South. Justice, fair play, self-government, self-development, self-realization—these have been his ideals, and he will come to recognize their value in his sister and his mate. The best of the men of the South may, I think, be deepnded upon to give their voice for the emancipation of the women of the South.

"The movement in the South has not yet the momentum that it has gained in other parts of the country, notably in the West. But it is rapidly on the road thither. Another year will see a great advance. As it is there has been marked progress in the past twelve months. The Maryland women are doing notable work. The Virginia oragnization is already a strong one. It includes many prominent women of the State, many women who are simply admirable members of society, good home makers and home keepers. The Kentucky movement is well advanced, as is the Louisiana, the Mississippi. The other States are swiftly coming into line. It is fair to say that in two years there will not be a Southern State that is not organized for this work. The women who are taking the leadership are of the best type. Theirs was the old South, theirs is the South of today, theirs will be the South of tomorrow."

—"Silence is golden," quoted the Wise Guy. "I don't know about that," objected the Simple Mug. "Sometimes it is merely an indication of guilt."

BAMBERGER'S
"THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE"
MARKET, HALSEY & WASHINGTON STS.

The Greater Store is the Christmas Store

We believe that you will agree with us in saying that the Bamberger Christmas stocks this year excel anything ever attempted before by a Newark store. We also believe that you will agree with us in saying that our store service and our prompt delivery service could not be improved upon. Why, then, should you not come here? Why should you not do your holiday shopping at the great white store where Christmas buying is a pleasure rather than a burden? The Greater store is the Christmas store, indeed.

Men's Scarfs 69c
A RARE CHRISTMAS TREAT GIFT HUNTERS WILL ENJOY.

Who would have thought that any store would offer regular $1.00 ties for 65c each, six days before Christmas? There will certainly be some lively scarf buying here Thursday. The scarfs are the big, generous open-end folded kind, with a tailor-made band to insure easy slipping through the collar. The patterns are the kind men like—neat stripes, rich figured effects and solid colors; every one good. The silks are rich and lustrous; heavy quality that insures wear. But why 65c instead of $1, do you ask? The answer is found in two words: "Late delivery." The scarfs were to be delivered the 1st of November, but they were not ready until ten days ago; therefore, we secured them at about the cost of making. If you have men's ties on the gift list, come to this sale. You will find here a bonanza of values. This is one of the best scarf sales ever announced by Bamberger. Actual $1 values—every tie new. Sale price, each.....65c

Charmeuse Silk 1.39
DOUBLE WIDTH—RICH QUALITY SPECIAL THREE-DAY OFFERING.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday you may purchase double width charmeuse silk that we sell regularly for $2 a yard, for $1.39. It should not be necessary for us to say more, for you are doubtless well acquainted with the quality of Bamberger silks, and know that $2 values for $1.39 is a remarkable offering, indeed. Charmeuse is fashion's favorite silk, and this charmeuse is simply beautiful. Exquisite satin finish, soft and clingy effects. It will make the most bewitching of all afternoon frocks or evening dresses. And just note the colors you have to select from: Navy, Copenhagen, lavender, ceil, brown, leather, gray, taupe, American beauty, pink, white, cream and a plenty of rich blacks. Full 40 inches wide; our regular $2 quality; on sale for three days, at, yard..$1.39

Women's 3.50 to 5.00 Velour Hats 1.98
A MAKER'S ENTIRE SURPLUS STOCK.

We place on sale Thursday the entire surplus of a prominent manufacturer's $3.50 to $5 velour hats for women at $1.98 each. It is the lowest price at which we have ever offered such high grade velours. The sale presents a remarkable opportunity to every woman who has a place for another hat. In the collection are several styles, including small and large shapes. The colors are beautiful. Rich, glossy blacks, striking brown, reds and a few hats in navy and gold. We do not recall when we ever made a hat offer to equal this one, and we do not believe such fine velours were ever sold for as low as $1.98 before. Fine quality velours, made by a house that has a reputation for selling only high-grade hats. Regular $3.50 to $5 values; special sale price.....$1.98

PARK BOWLERS STARTED RIGHT

Take 3 Straight From Newark Bay Club in First Match.

VISITORS' THIN GAME

Roll Weakly and Parks, Although Bit Wobbly Themselves, Are Pressed in Only One Game—Long Hits 223 in Opener.

The reorganized Park Club Bowling team, winners of the Central Jersey League for several seasons, "came back," in a manner of speaking, last night and in its first match this year took three straight from the Newark Bay Club five. The scores were 902 to 663, 813 to 804, and 833 to 750. The match was rolled on the Park Club alley. After hanging up a mark of 223 in the first game M. H. Long rested on his laurels for a game, C. M. Eoff taking his place.

The visiting players fell easily in the opening contest but threw a scare into the local camp in the next game when they rolled to within 9 sticks of the Parks. Newark was beaten in the third encounter by 83 pins. F. O. Ball, of the local quintet, dropped out after the second match and Long in his place, had to be content with 153. Ray Lyman rolled well in this game, getting a mark of 202. The scores:

LEAGUE BASKETBALL SCHEDULE IS VOID

Made up Without Grisley, of P. H. S., Who Wasn't Notified.

Two of the interscholastic basketball league managers held a cosy little meeting during the early part of the week and drew up a formal schedule of two of the fives assuming that it would be readily accepted by the third manager, Arthur L. Grisley, of the Plainfield High School. Grisley was not notified of the meeting. All the business transacted by the other two managers is probably void.

Both the manager and coach of the Plainfield High School team are in favor of playing the games on the Y. M. C. A. court, but the borough High School team objects to the association floor. N. P. H. S. is shy of the association court because several Y. M. C. A. Ajax players are on the City High School five, and are, of course, greatly familiar with the floor. N. P. H. S. asked for the practice periods at the Y. M. C. A. but the association could not grant any such request.

—Some people are almost as stuck up as though they had been tarred and feathered.

SIX-DAY RIDERS GAIN WEIGHT IN "GRIND"

Which is the Usual Thing—Steady Riding Not Debilitating.

As has been the case with previous six-day riders, the cyclists in the contest that closed at Madison Square Garden last Saturday either held their own or took on weight. The mechanical work of the bicycle rider exerts less drain on the vitality of the athlete than any other form of exercise, and this fact, coupled with the continual eating of the best of food, helps them to put on weight. That the long grind does not have the same effect as continuous work in other athletics was amply proved on Saturday night, when the six riders, in a tie for first place, covered the final mile at a clip exceeding any speed shown during the week. In other sports the athlete becomes slower as he progresses, but in cycling this condition does not exist—at least in six-day races. Barring accidents the six-day rider can meet all speed requirements for a week and ride as fast in the final mile as in the first. In this year's race the final mile was covered in 2:09 4-5, and the first mile in 2:31.

In the matter of injuries this year's race was one of the most noteworthy ever held in the Garden. Only two riders were forced out of the contest, and in neither case was the injury sustained during a big "spill." There was plenty of speed shown, as new records were hung up for ninety-five hours, and there were many exciting sprints, but few of the latter were stopped by such "spills" as have marred many races of the past. The track was much better than in other years, and this had much to do with the high speed and few bad falls. Another noteworthy feature of the 1912 race was that twenty-six of the thirty riders remained in the contest to the final day.

HOT STOVE WAVES

There is tremendous curiosity all over the circuit to see how Joe Tinker will look in red stockings.

Football coaches could learn a lot about interference by studying the methods of some baseball club owners.

If La Belle France is looking for somebody to coach her baseball teams, why not get Oui Willie Keeler?

New York is interested less in what salary Frank Chance will get next season than in what percentage he will get.

Mike Mitchell probably will welcome a shift from Cincinnati to Chicago just to get away from that Redland worst of sun fields.

A pretty sweet array of outfield material the Pittsburg club has to select from next season—Donlin, Wilson, Carey, Hofman and Clarke.

Inasmuch as Murphy made it possible for Chance to get away from Chicago Chance ought to be thankful—doubly so to leave Chicago for New York.

Although the service in the big leagues of Red Corriden has been short, he's been as well advertised as if he'd led in batting for numerous continuous seasons.

Byron, the new National League umpire, from the International League, is described as being 5 feet tall, weight 110 pounds, but with an endless supply of sand.

According to report, Branch Rickey, who had a brief but meteoric career as a catcher in the American League, is to succeed Lloyd Rickert as secretary of the St. Louis Browns.

Jimmy Callahan is quoted as saying that Joe Jackson hit .812 in Cleveland and .007 on the road. Still other teams could use that sort of a batter and leave him at home when on the road.

Overheard in the Waldorf corridor during the recent baseball meeting: "I just saw a fine Murillo around the corner." "That so?" was the response, "I bet he ain't as good as Marsans."

Ganzel, Hanlon, Kelley, Griffith, O'Day, Stallings, Chase, Elberfeld and Wolverton—not a city directory, but the names of men who have managed Cincinnati and New York teams in the last few years.

Hank O'Day said last summer that he'd never umpire again, but it is believed that when Hank hears the call of the diamond next spring he will reconsider. He'll be welcome in whichever league he appears.

Ban Johnson keeps on telling what a good umpire Mordecai Brown would make, and that he'd like to have him. As a matter of fact, Lynch beat Johnson to it in suggesting Brown for an umpire and intends to sign him for an umpire if he can.

"Chance will make a winner of that New York team," says Clark Griffith. "He will be a great drawing card on the road. He can play first base as well as anybody, and if he decides to play next year he would make a ten strike by putting Chase in the outfield. I know that Chase can play the outfield. I had him several years, and when his heart is in his work there is no better player."

It is a somewhat frivolous custom nowadays to make free use of the term bonehead when discussing ball players, and the resultant impression is apt to be misleading. The proportion of bone among any class of employes probably is as great, if not greater, than among ball players. How many laymen could think as quickly as players do? Taking everything into consideration ball players do exceedingly well in the use of their wits on the field and are not stupid as a whole in the exposition of their vocation.

WHITE AND ORANGE FIVES ARE VICTORS

Former Had Cinch, Latter Had Tussle—Reds Fight Hard.

The first game in the double-header basketball match of the Color League of the Y. M. C. A. Senior class was played last night between the White and the Green teams. The score was 16 to 2. Conger, of the Whites, headed the list of shooters for his team with a total of six field goals. Sampson, of the Greens, was the only one to prove that his marksmanship had not gone into a decline. He made the only score for his aggregation.

The lineup and score:

After a hard and strenuous struggle, the Orange five of the Color League in the second game of the double-header, snatched victory from their old enemies, the Reds, by the close score of 9 to 6. Bailey got first honors for the highest number of points scored, while Boice, of the opposing five, equalled him. Manning and Smith, of Orange, and Naylor, of the Reds, put up a good game.

THIS LOOKED LIKE SURE ENOUGH TIE

Two Run Four Dead Heats in Color League Dash.

In the Color League 15-yard-dash held last night in the Y. M. C. A. Thompson, Orange, and Naylor, Red, ran four dead heats in an attempt to decide a winner. Finally the judges gave it up as a hopeless case to pick first man and the two men were given a tie for first honors with a mark of 2 2-15 seconds. Seven men ran in 2 3-5, 1-5 of a second behind the first men. Twenty-eight runners entered for the races. The times follow:

Bailey, Orange, 2 4-5; C. L. Smith, Orange, 3; Bagger, Orange, 3 3-5; Shulie, Green, 3 1-5; Lockley, Red, 2 4-5; Borden, Orange, 3; Harris, Orange, 3 1-5; C. G. Johnson, Red, 3 1-5; Congor, White, 3; Ostrom, Orange, 3; Welle, Orange, 3 2-5; Kennedy, Orange, 2 4-5; Gieses, White, 3 1-5; Mead, Green, 3; Winans, White, 3; Gilmore, Red, 2 4-5; Gennerich, Red, 3; Dorman, Orange, 2 4-5; Hoagland, White, 3 1-5; Naylor, Red, 2 3-5; Carson, White, 3; Anderson, White, 3 1-5; Thompson, Orange, 2 3-5; Newmiller, Orange, 2 4-5; Osborn, Green, 3 2-5; Vestigard, Orange, 3; Sampson, Green, 3; Manning, Orange, 2 4-5.

UNION FOOTBALL IS BRAND NEW GAME

Something Like Baseball and Something Like the Gridiron Sport.

A new game has been originated in Pennsylvania called "union football," from the fact that it is a combination of baseball and football. The game was originated by William Benscoter, of the Wilkesbarre, Pa., High School faculty, and it has been tried at the Pennsylvania school and found highly interesting.

A diamond is used in playing the game. The same number of players is required as in a baseball contest, the noticeable difference being that instead of a pitcher there is a right shortstop, who plays between the first and second basemen.

The game starts when the ball is put into play by being kicked from home plate. Following a kick, a runner starts for first and is out if his kick is caught or if the ball is passed to first base ahead of him. He is also out if he is touched by the ball while it is in the hands of any player.

The kick may be of any sort—place, punt, or drop kick. The runner is out if he advances from the base before the ball is kicked out. If a foul is kicked, the kicker is out and he is likewise out if he fails in an attempt to kick.

The game abounds in kicking, running and catching. Speed is developed and strength, accuracy and skill are required. The game is declared to be one of the best of outdoor sports and its success seems assured. A round football is best adapted to the game.

—Some men are kept so busy maintaining their dignity that they never have time to do anything else.

UNWED GIANT RETREATS BEFORE PINK NOTE ATTACK

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 18.—"Art" Shafer, utility infielder for the New York Nationals last year, said today he would not join McGraw's squad for the training siege at Marlin Springs next February.

"I have quit baseball for good," said Shafer. "For one thing I get too many perfumed notes."

He was one of the few unmarried men among the Giants last year.

HOOKS AND SWINGS

Danny Goodman and Pal Brown have signed to box at Superior, Wis., Dec. 23.

Mike Gibbons has been offered a $3,000 guarantee, by a Buffalo promoter, to box Jimmy Clabby Jan. 21.

Bill McMinnon and Eddie McGoorty will clash in a return bout on January 12, at Kenosha, Wis.

Nothing doing in the boxing line at the present time for Joe Mandot. Joe says that he is going to rest for quite a while.

Jack Britton, of Chicago, and Young Ancarno, the New York lightweight, will box before the Royale A. C., of Brooklyn, Christmas afternoon.

Fred Beckler, of New Orleans, who put up such a sensational bout with McDonald at the last National Amateur Championships in Boston, has entered the professional ranks.

Tom McCarey is trying to sign Kid Williams, the Baltimore bantamweight, for a 20-round bout with Eddie Campi, of San Francisco, the bout to be staged at Vernon, California, Jan. 14.

Ad Wolgast wants $8,000 for his end, to box Frank Burns and Burns wants the same amount. California promoters cannot see their way clear to put up so much money for a clash between the two boys.

INDICT JACK JOHNSON ON OTHER CHARGES

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 18.—Three additional indictments under the Mann White Slave act were returned against "Jack" Johnson, the negro pugilist, by the federal Grand Jury here yesterday.

The charges are similar to those contained in the previous indictments against the negro, and concern the transportation of Belle Shrieber between Chicago, Pittsburg and Milwaukee.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—On the ground that the White Slave act was designed to prohibit trafficking in women and not to forbid immoral acts, Benjamin C. Bachrach, attorney for "Jack" Johnson, the negro pugilist, yesterday filed in the Supreme Court an argument to show that Johnson should be acquitted on the Chicago indictment of having violated that law. The attorney further argued that Congress exceeded its powers in passing the act as a regulation of interstate commerce, because "a woman has no market value," and therefore is not commerce.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union was held at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, New Jersey, on Thursday, November 7, 1912, at 2:30 o'clock. Director Cady and Freeholders Bourdon, Crane, Darby, Doane, Fay, Gruener, Hall, Hennessy, Jones, Krouse, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Randolph, Smith, Teller and Wilbur present.

Absent—Freeholders Acken and McMane.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur the reading of the minutes of meeting of October 3, 1912, were dispensed with, and they were approved as per printed copies on members' desks.

Communications.

Mountainside, Sept. 26, 1912.

To the Board of Freeholders of Union County:

Gentlemen—I wish to call your attention to the great necessity of building the bridge on Ackerman avenue, as I am obliged to go out of my way a mile to go anywhere. All of the property holders are for it, as it is the most direct road to the mountain and the best one to ascend. Trusting you, gentlemen, will give this your full attention, as it is much needed by all the people who live on the mountain.

Respectfully,

MRS. GEORGE B. LONG.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this communication was referred to the freeholder of Mountainside.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union and State of New Jersey:

Gentlemen—On the 19th day of October inst. R. B. Hayes Potter, while driving my horse and carriage from the city of Plainfield, in the county of Union, and State of New Jersey, unto the Borough of North Plainfield, Somerset county, New Jersey, in crossing the Sycamore Avenue Bridge over Greenbrook, met with an accident by reason of defective planks on the bridge, whereby the horse broke through the planks was violently thrown to the bridge and the right foreleg broken between the ankle and knee. Dr. A. Machan, a veterinary surgeon, residing in Plainfield, N. J., was immediately called and upon examination ordered the horse shot. The undersigned owner of said horse claims from the county as damages the value of said animal, the sum of $250, which sum the claimant believes to be the just and reasonable value of said animal.

THEODORE W. BEBOUT.

Dated Sterling, N. J., October 25, 1912.

On motion by Freeholder Doane this communication was referred to a special committee of three to be appointed by the director and county attorney. The director appointed as said committee Freeholders Doane, Wilbur and Pierson.

To the Board of Freeholders of Union county:

Gentlemen—You are hereby notified that a personal injury was received by George H. Croney, who was an inspector of the Union County Mosquito Commission and employed by you, while engaged as said inspector at Mountainside, in Union county, on the 30th day of September last, and that the said George H. Croney died on the 11th day of October, 1912, at Muhlenberg Hospital, in the city of Plainfield, and that compensation will be claimed therefor.

Dated November 1, 1912.

Yours respectfully,

VICTORIA C. N. CRONEY.

By WILLIAM NEWCORN,

Her Attorney.

On motion by Freeholder Krouse this communication was referred to the Mosquito Commission and county attorney.

Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 15, 1912.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, Elizabeth, New Jersey:

Gentlemen—At a meeting of this board held Thursday evening, October 10, 1912, it was decided by a unanimous vote to petition your honorable body to take over and improve as a county road those portions of Bayway and North avenue lying within the city limits of Elizabeth and extending from Maple avenue to Meadow street.

We beg to point out that this street practically encircles the city of Elizabeth; that it forms a logical link in the county system of highways; that it touches all the main arteries of travel in the city; that were it improved for its entire length much traffic from parts outside the city to other parts outside the city which now passes through Elizabeth, and which is of little or no value to us, would be diverted from our main streets, thus relieving unnecessary congestion in the central part of the city; that its improvements would afford the manufacturers and business men of the county a more direct route than now exists to any part of the county over well-improved streets free from congestion.

Respectfully yours,

THE ELIZABETH BOARD OF TRADE.

FRANK L. DEVINE, Secretary.

On motion by Freeholder Krouse this communication was referred to the County Road Committee.

Whereas, A petition has been presented to this committee in relation to the taking over by the governing body of Union Township of that portion of Bayway, sometimes called North avenue, which lies within the Township of Union; and,

Whereas, We have learned that a like petition has been presented to the City Council of the city of Elizabeth and that the Board of Chosen Freeholders will be asked to make the whole of Bayway a county road; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we are heartily in accord with the proposition and believe that the plan will inure to the benefit not only of this township but of all municipalities adjoining the city of Elizabeth.

I, George Compton, clerk of the Township of Union, in the county of Union, do certify that at a meeting of the Township Committee of the said township held on Friday, the eighteenth day of October, nineteen hundred and twelve, the above resolution was passed by the unanimous vote of the said committee.

GEORGE COMPTON,

Township Clerk.

To the Township Committee of the Township of Union:

Gentlemen—The undersigned merchants, manufacturers, residents and property owners in the Township of Union, respectfully petition your honorable body to request the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union to take over and adopt as a county road that portion of the street or highway known as North avenue, which is located within the territory of the Township of Union, extending from its intersection with the boundary line of the city of Elizabeth, near Clinton street, at the locality known as El Mora to its intersection with the boundary line of the city of Elizabeth, near the junction of Salem avenue.

Your petitioners further show that the City Council of the city of Elizabeth has been requested by a petition to have the portion of North avenue or Bayway, as it is otherwise known, which lies within the limits of the city of Elizabeth, extending from Maple avenue on the south to Meadow street on the north, adopted as a county road, and a petition has been presented to the Board of Chosen Freeholders requesting said board to adopt and improve said highway as a county road; the object of said petition and this petition being to make a continuous highway intersecting and connecting with all of the county roads which terminate in the city of Elizabeth, viz., Edgar road, Rahway avenue, West Grand street, Westfield avenue and Morris avenue, as well as very many of the best paved and most important streets of the city of Elizabeth, thus affording a short and easy method of transportation from one highway to another, avoiding the necessity of travel through the central portion of the city of Elizabeth and effecting a considerable saving in time and distance of persons having to use the county highways. We believe that the adoption of this highway as a county road and the improvement of the same with a suitable pavement at the expense of the county where not now improved, would be of great benefit to all persons residing in the county roads for pleasure or business.

Your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this communication was referred to the County Road Committee.

Whereas, The attention of the Borough Council of the Borough of Linden has been drawn to the fact that application has been made to the City Council of Elizabeth, and to the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, to have Bayway; also known as North avenue, from Maple avenue, partly through the city of Elizabeth and partly through the Township of Union, to its intersection with Meadow street, adopted as a county road and improved by the Board of Freeholders in a manner similar to other county roads; and,

Whereas, Said Bayway is a highway running parallel with for a considerable distance, and near to the division line between the city of Elizabeth and the Township of Linden, and connects with all of the county roads which now terminate in the city of Elizabeth, and several of which are avenues of traffic and means of communication between the Borough of Linden and the city of Elizabeth and points to the north of the city, and in consequence of being such connecting link with the county roads will be likely to be a convenience to the inhabitants of the Borough of Linden in the use of the county roads and in traveling to points in and about the city of Elizabeth; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Mayor and Council of the Borough of Linden do hereby approve of the said application for the adoption and improvement of Bayway as a county road, and the city of Elizabeth and the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union are hereby requested to favor the application in question and to cause said Bayway or North avenue to be adopted and improved as a county road; further

Resolved, That the clerk be authorized to certify and transmit copies of these resolutions to the City Council of Elizabeth and the said Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Unanimously adopted by Borough Council of Borough of Linden, October 29, 1912.

CLARENCE H. SMITH,

Borough Clerk.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this communication was referred to the County Road Committee.

"Resolved, That the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union be requested to acquire, improve and maintain and assume the charge and control as a county road of the highway located in the city of Elizabeth, known as Bayway, from its intersection with Maple avenue to its intersection with the boundary line of Union Township at the locality known as El Mora, and, of the highway (which is a practical continuation of said Bayway) known as North avenue, from the boundary line of the Township of Union, near Salem avenue, in this city, to Meadow street, together with the portion of Bayway or North avenue which is located within the limits of the Township of Union, so as to make a continuous paved county road from Maple avenue to Meadow street, connecting all of the county roads terminating in this city, as well as many of the principal thoroughfares of this city; further

"Resolved, That the city clerk be directed to certify a copy of this resolution to the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union."

I, John F. Kenah, clerk of the city of Elizabeth, hereby certify that the foregoing is a full and correct copy of a resolution adopted at the meeting of the City Council held November 1, 1912.

Witness my hand and the seal of the said city this seventh day of November, 1912.

(Seal) JOHN F. KENAH,

City Clerk.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this communication was refered to the County Road Committee.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen — The undersigned, merchants, manufacturers, farmers, property owners, and residents of the county of Union, hereby petition your honorable body to take over and accept from the city of Elizabeth, and the Township of Union, in pursuance of proper proceedings for that purpose to be taken, all that portion of the highway known as Bayway in part, and as North avenue, in the city of Elizabeth, partly through the said city and partly through the Township of Union, to its junction with Meadow street in the city of Elizabeth, and then to pave and improve the same as a county road; your petitioners suggesting that said pavements be of a character known as amiesite or asphalt macadam.

Your petitioners believe that the advantages to accrue from the adoption of said highway as a county road and the improvement of the same are manifest and manifold; a few of such advantages being the following:

It would be a connecting link between all of the county roads entering the city of Elizabeth and very many of the best paved and principal streets of the city of Elizabeth, viz.: Maple avenue, Edgar road, Rahway avenue, Linden avenue, Jersey avenue, West Jersey street, West Grand street, Westfield aveinue, Park avenue, Magic avenue, Chilton street, Morris avenue, Salem avenue, North Broad street, Newark avenue, Jefferson avenue and Spring street.

It would be so located as to enable all through travel from all points in the county of Union to pass through the city of Elizabeth by a continuous county road, and to get from one county road to another without going through the congested portions of the city of Elizabeth, and without taking the extra time and covering the extra distance required to pass through the centre of the city.

It would shorten the distance of all such travel to an extent of at least one-third and would supply a route the grade of which would be more practicable for all heavy traffic and trucking than is now possible by going through the centre of Elizabeth.

It would make more conveniently accessible factory sites now located along the lines of the railroads running through the county and in the vicinity of said highway, and would have a tendency to attract new industries in the county, particularly those industries as require, in the nature of their business, daily transportation and delivery of their products to the city of New York, and to other places in the vicinity of the county of Union.

Your petitioners further when said highway is improved and paved care be taken to establish a proper grade, having due regard to the grade now existing, and that the necessary changes of grade be made to provide for the proper drainage of the surface water to suitable points of disposal. Your petitioners believe that the crowning point of such grade should be at the junction of Bayway and Rahway avenue.

Your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

Very respectfully submitted.

Two hundred (200) signed said petition.

Similar petitions were received from the Borough of Roselle, twenty-eight (28) having signed same; Borough of Roselle Park, twenty-four (24) having signed, and Borough and Township of Linden, forty (40) having signed.

Elizabeth, N. J., October 19, 1912.

Union County Board of Freeholders, Courthouse:

"Resolved, That the present arrangement of lighting Broad street from Elizabeth avenue to the railroad arch be continued for another year, provided the Broad Street Improvement Association deposit with the city treasurer $2,000, their share of the cost of the same, on or before November 15, 1912."

The foreign resolution was adopted by City Council at the meeting on October 15 and approved by Mayor Stein on October 19.

You are asked, therefore, kindly to give immediate attention to the enclosed statement for your share of this fund.

The present system will have to be continued until the wires are placed underground. Arrangements have been completed between the Public Service Corporation, the telephone companies and the city officials to do this.

The officers of the association are working for the repavement of the street. It is our hope that work will be begun next spring to put the wires underground, to repave the street and install a more effective and ornamental system of street illumination. We would then have a business street of which not only Broad street business men but every citizen of Elizabeth could be proud.

A failure to renew our arrangement with the city at this time will prevent these improvements being effected. A remittance, therefore, at your earliest possible convenience would be appreciated.

Yours very truly,

I. N. HELLER, President.

FRANK L. DEVINE, Secretary.

Report of Committee on Elizabeth Drawbridges.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Gentlemen—Your Committee on Elizabeth Drawbridges would respectfully report that the Summer street drawbridge has been giving more or less trouble during this year because of the breaking of gears and pinions. The committee has had a careful examination made of the bridge and it was thought best, in order to avoid future trouble with the bridge, to have the wheels, the track and the gears all releveled and relined. Your committee consulted with Duncan Brothers, of Elizabeth, as to this work, and they stated that they would put the bridge in proper shape for the sum of $250.

It was the plan of this committee to submit this proposition to the board for its action, but on or about October 28 it was reported by the bridge tender that the bridge was again out of operation, and your committee considered that rather than go to other expenses at that time it would be better to employ Duncan Brothers at once and let them take charge of the bridge and go ahead under their proposition.

This has been done by your committee and it is requested that the board approve such action.

Respectfully submitted,

JOSEPH PERRY,

GEO. G. TELLER,

D. F. HENNESSY.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this report was received and ordered placed on file, and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted unanimously, subject to the approval of the special committee on bridge account heretofore appointed.

Your Committee on the South Avenue Bridge at Cranford, New Jersey, would report that work on this bridge is under way, and that the committee has appointed Bernard Doyle inspector at a salary of $3 per day.

Respectfully submitted,

GEO. G. TELLER,

BURTON P. HALL,

W. A. BOURDON,

Committee.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this report was received and ordered placed on file.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County:

Your Committee on Bonnie Burn Sanatorium would respectfully report that it has awarded the contract for heating the superintendent's house to Heald & Khun for the sum of $597, they being the lowest bidders.

On motion by Freeholder Smith this report was receiver and ordered placed on file.

NEW BUSINESS.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to recommend the bridge over the small stream on Elizabeth avenue, near the B. & O. R. R. in the Township of Linden.

This bridge is about twenty-seven feet long by six feet wide. The planking is worn out, and broken through in places and the wooden floor beams are rotten. The walls of the bridge also are in very bad shape, and it would appear to be poor economy to attempt to repair the present bridge.

The committee to have power to construct a new bridge at a cost not to exceed the sum of $300, subject to the approval of the special committee on bridge account heretofore appointed.

On motion by Freeholder Randolph this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously. The director appointed as said committee Freeholders Krouse, Meisel and Bourdon.

By Freeholder Teller:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed with power to reconstruct the planking and wooden floor beams on the bridge on Springfield avenue over the Rahway River, known as Beadle's bridge, Cranford, N. J.

The wooden floor beams and the planking on this bridge are entirely worn out and rotten and in the opinion of the member of this board of Cranford, and of the county engineer it will be useless to attempt to repair the present planking without replacing practically all of the woodwork.

The cost of the work not to exceed the sum of $500, subject to the approval of the special committee on bridge account heretofore appointed.

On motion by Freeholder Hennessy this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously. The director appointed as said committee Freeholders Teller, Smith and Hennessy.

By Committee on Elizabeth Drawbridge:

Resolved, That the planking on the South First street lift bridge, which is in need of repairs, be so repaired at a cost not exceeding the sum of $165, subject to the approval of the special committees on bridge account heretofore approved.

On motion by Freeholder Hennessy this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

By committee on Roll avenue bridge, Linden.

Resolved, That the bill of Carmen & Smith amounting to $1,800 for the construction of the Roll avenue bridge, Linden, be paid, when properly audited by the committee.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Gruener:

Resolved, That the bill of Owego Bridge Company, amounting to $1,500 for work done on the Lawrence street drawbridge, Rahway, N. J., be paid when properly audited by the committee.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Teller:

Resolved, That the bills of E. L. Moore for $1,793 and $98 for the West Holly street bridge be paid when properly certified to by the engineer and committee in charge.

On motion by Freeholder Randolph this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the county collector be and he is authorized to transfer the sum of one thousand fifty-one and forty-eight one-hundredths dollars ($1,051.48) from the "court" account to the account of "Advertising, Publishing and Printing."

On motion by Freeholder Randolph this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the county collector be and is hereby directed to pay money appropriated for hospitals to the hospitals in Union county as follows:

Summit Hospital Association,	$2,000
Muhlenberg Hospital, of Plainfield	5,250
Elizabeth General Hospital, Elizabeth	8,000
St. Elizabeth Hospital, Elizabeth	3,750
Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth	3,000

Further, Resolved, That said sums be paid by the county collector on or before December 28.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

By Freeholder Doane:

Resolved, That the bill of Henry Rodgers for grading work at Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, amounting to $472.50, be paid when properly audited by the committee.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

Resolved, That the bill of the Broad Street Improvement Association for $160 be paid by the county collector when properly approved by the committee on public grounds and buildings.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

By Committee on Bridges on Rushmore avenue and South Second street, Plainfield:

Whereas the appropriation made for these by the board are as follows: Appropriation for Rushmore avenue bridge, $475. Appropriation for South Second street bridge, $600, and whereas these bridges were somewhat larger and longer than originally planned and bids having been received on the work. The lowest for the Rushmore avenue bridge was the Ferro Concrete Company, at $748, and the lowest bidder for the South Second street bridge was the same company at $830.

Your committee has since made some alterations in the alignment and in other details of the bridges, and the final agreements as to cost of the bridges are as follows: Rushmore avenue bridge, $725; South Second street bridge, $725.

Therefore, Resolved, That the appropriations for these two bridges be made as follows: Appropriation for Rushmore avenue bridge fixed at $725. Appropriation for South Second street bridge fixed at $725.

On motion by Freeholder Gruener this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

On motion by Freeholder Krouse the director declared the board adjourned until Thursday, November 21, 1912, at 2:30 p. m.

J. EDW. ROWE, Clerk.

North Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Jelliffe, of North Branch Depot, have gone to Trenton for a visit.

The Winter Night's Club will be entertained at the home of Miss Inez Studdiford at South Branch, tomorrow night. Miss Studdiford will present a biographical sketch of an American author, which will be followed by a general discussion.

Mrs. M. E. McCracken, of Boston, is spending a week as guest of Mrs. A. E. White at her home on the Ridge, near this place.

Miss Mildred Webb, of North Branch Depot, is visiting in New York City and Brooklyn.

Mrs. Leroy Skillman, of Blawenburg, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob G. Drake, at South Branch.

The prayer-meeting committee of the Christian Endeavor Society held a meeting at the home of Mrs. William E. DuMont, at North Branch Depot, Monday, and selected the leaders for the next six months.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Lane at Readington.

Jacob Hyler returned to his home in Somerville yesterday, after a visit to his son, Chester L. Hyler.

Mrs. James L. Stillwell has gone to East Orange for a visit of several days.

Miss Alice Jelliffe returned to North Branch Depot yesterday, after a visit to Plainfield.

The funeral of John Werts, an aged resident of Neshanic Station, was held Sunday, and the body was taken to Clover Hill for burial.

Mrs. Benjamin Cole, of Three Bridges, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Horner, at Neshanic, for a few days.

Clark Kellam, of Elizabeth, is visiting here for a week.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Donald Ketcham has been ordered to take a rest from athletics by the doctor and his services will be greatly missed at guard. However, Augustus Van Deventer, Franklin Lowe and Gibson Fairman all are promising men and will help defend last year's championship.

Former Superintendent H. C Krebs will be the speaker at the High School Christmas exercises next Friday morning. Mr. Vossler will lead the singing of both High School and grammar grades.

Mary Bennett has been ill at her home for the past three weeks with an attack of bronchitis. Although she is up and around, she will not resume her studies until school reopens in January. She is a junior.

Since the senior entertainment is to be held on Thursday night, Miss Watson's dancing class has been postponed until the following night.

The new rule concerning tardiness has at least put the freshmen on their guard. During the first week of December not one of the 57 freshmen was late.

Miss Jubilee Rowley, 1915, will be the pianist for a chorus of fifty vioces at a concert to be held in Bound Brook, this evening, under the direction of Herbert Lloyd. Miss Rowley will play "The Building of the Ship."

OLD FREEHOLDERS ARE NOT READY TO FIGHT

Elizabeth, Dec. 18.—If the old boards of freeholders in Bergen and Mercer counties are successful in their efforts to have the law under which the "short" Freeholder Board was elected declared unconstitutional, Union county's old board will also join in the fight.

This much those interested admit. They deny, however, that any lawyer has been retained, but admit that one has been consulted. It is known here that the Mercer county freeholders have retained McCarter & English to make a fight for them.

Director Frank O. Mittag, of the present Board of Freeholders in Bergen county, however, has consulted former Supreme Court Justice Collins, who declares that the act creating the small Board of Freeholders is perfectly legal.

When the old Union county board meets tomorrow it is likely that it will rename Jacob Bauer county engineer and J. W. Fink county road inspector. These officials claim protection under contracts which they had with the old board. As the new "short" board has already selected men for these places an exciting contest may result.

No one is willing to be quoted in regard to the plans of the Republican members of the old board, but all are willing to admit that the contests in Bergen and Mercer are being closely watched. It is not likely that the Republican county committee will aid the freeholders, financially or otherwise.

ON TO TRENTON! SUFFRAGE CALL

Committee Chosen to Wage Staunch Fight for Constitutional Amendment.

PLAINFIELD PROMINENT

Mrs. Feickert, Mrs. Hyde, C. L. Riley and William L. Saunders Active in Movement—Mr. Saunders' Enlistment Pleases Women.

Determined that the fight for woman suffrage in the Legislature this year shall not look like a dainty pink tea affair, the four big suffrage organizations of the State have combined forces and organized a legislative committete of powerful proportions to work at the coming session for the equal suffrage amendment to the State Constitution.

The Legislature is to be given a chance to see to what a size the movement has grown and how thoroughly in earnest are the men and women enlisted in the fight. As this is the year when a constitutional amendment must be approved, if it is to pass before 1918, a determined stand is to be made. The "pink tea" idea is to be superseded by an exhibition of the mailed fist.

At the head of the reorganized legislative committee is Mrs. Everett Colby, of West Orange, wife of the aggressive Progressive leader. The other officers are: Mrs. Francis de Lacey Hyde, of Hydewood Hall, North Plainfield, vice chairman; C. L. Riley, of North Plainfield, treasurer, and Mrs. R. T. Newton, Nutley, secretary.

Mrs. Colby will bring to her place at the head of the committee the experience gained as the active head of the eastern department of the woman's bureau in the recent national Progressive campaign. Together with all the other suffragists, she will bury her personal political preferences in her fight for the amendment, and will stand shoulder to shoulder with men and women sympathizing with other parties.

The legislative committee gives equal representation to the four State organizations working for woman suffrage. Each organizaton is represented by its president and two members.

The New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association is represented by the president, Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, of this city; Mrs. Hyde and Miss Bessie Pope, of Jersey City; the Woman's Political Union by its president, Mrs. Abraham Van Winkle, of Newark; Mrs. Newton and Miss Belle Tiffany, of Newark; the Equal Franchise Society by its president, Mrs. George T. Vickers, of Jersey City; Mrs. Colby and Mrs. Philip McKim Garrison, of Llewellyn Park, and the New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage by its president, William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield; Mr. Riley and Oberlin Smith, of Bridgeton.

The women in the movement regard with pleasure the presence on the legislative committee of Mr. Saunders, president of the Men's League. Mr. Saunders is the representative of Somerset county on the State Democratic committee. He actively supported Governor Wilson's candidacy for nomination and election.

Electrical Gifts Are Useful and Pretty.

What makes a more ideal Christmas present than an article which fills a daily household need and at the same time is so constructed as to be an ornament in and out of use?

What gift would cause the recipient more joy than an Electric Chafing Dish? Or a Coffee Percolator, or a Toaster Stove, or a Tea Samovar, or a Table Range, or any one of a score or more electrical appliances designed for use in the home?

What gift would go as far, for as little money, in lightening the burdens of housework than an electric iron? What would give more comfort in moments of physical distress than an electric heating pad?

Anybody who uses electricity can afford to use any of the above mentioned articles. Two or three cents an operation covers the cost. There is no estimating the benefit or satisfaction they give in dollars and cents.

A visit to our showrooms would repay you, even if you do not purchase. See for yourself what electricity can do at small cost in the home.

PROPERTY OWNER WRITES LETTER

Jacob Sachar Asks Few Questions as to Taxes and Lights.

"CAMPAIGN SLOGANS"

Letter Writer Finds Promises Made Before Election Are Not Kept—Asks for Lights in the East and West Ends.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

A notice referring to the latest transactions of the local Chamber of Commerce came under my perusal, anything concerning the advancement of one's home town should arouse keen interest on the part of the citizens, for, progress means advancement and advancement spells progress.

On successive occasions, especially prior to elections, various issues are propagated by respective political parties, which, in due time, becomes "standardized campaign slogans." Each in their own sphere carrying a certain amount of weight, displaying enthusiasm to the very core—almost to overflowing.

What becomes of such issues when the power to weild is afforded.? Are they ever executed to their normal degree, as promised? Let us gaze upon this situation with a kindly eye. In our City Council we have a body of men whose function is the improvement of our city. In this they are aided by another venerable body known as the Chamber of Commerce, whose aim likewise, is, the general welfare of this city. To a certain extent both bodies act in unison and harmony. Through their efforts (and thanks be due them) our city has been placced upon a firm basis both financial and educational, thus enjoying the enviable reputation of being the "Queen City of Jersey." Our educational system is unsurpassed for a city of our population and size, our schools are excellent and teaching force is second to none. What about our financial system? Let us see. Every succeeding year there is a steady and gradual influx of population. More homes are built. Business in general is increased—general activity becomes the dominant factor. As a result the town treasury becomes plethoric. Certain reforms are instituted in consequence. To our sorrow they form but only few! Despite all this—in the fact of this wave of progress, the rate of taxation is high, almost insurmountable! What is its etiology?

Surely all our finances do not go towards our education system, or any other system. A close scrutiny of the Book of Assessments will reveal some astounding facts. Numerous property is undervalued, while others are overvalued. The latter, not infrequently, must make up the deficit of the former. The newspapers quote several multi-millionaires as examplaes, all escaping with tax rates far out of proportion to the amount of their wealth.

In the forepart of my letter I mentioned "standardized campaign slogans." Here as well as in large cities, promissiory notes are issued by campaign managers, promising wholesome and wholesale reforms. Such promises become null and void with the spoils of office. Once in office, all reforms are totally eliminated, if not forgotten, and Old Hickory's famous maxim is put to excellent advantage, "To the victor belongs the spoils."

A main feature concerning all is the question of light. This question is skillfully juggled and cleverly manipulated, from year to year, each year bringing forth its champions only to be vanquished by the opposing forces, whose version always is, "No funds or insufficient funds." The lighting question has received numerous setbacks, and still remains in-

GIVE RECEPTION FOR PROSPECTIVE BRIDE

Mrs. Harman and Daughters Entertain in Honor of Miss Averill.

One of the most charming social functions of the season was the reception given yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock by Mrs. John F. Harman and her daughters, Miss Harman and Miss Helen Harman, at their home on West Eighth street, in honor of Miss Dorothy Averill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Otis Averill, formerly of this city, but now of Flushing, L. I.

Miss Averill is the fiancee of William Gray Harman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harman. The couple will be married very simply about the first of the year at Grace Episcopal church, Brooklyn, after which they will make their home at Grand Junction, Col., where Mr. Harman has a large ranch.

Mrs. Harman, Miss Harman and Miss Helen Harman together with Mis Averill received the guests yesterday and those who assisted in the dining-room were Miss Adelia Johnson, of East Orange; Miss Louise Booth, Miss Marion Brown, Miss Alice Titus, Miss Katherine Titus, Miss Mary Perkins, Mrs. Maxwell Perkins, Mrs. Archibald Cox, Mrs. Brown Rolston, Mrs. Edward Sharretts and Miss Frederica Mead.

There was an attractive arrangement of flowers and Christmas greens throughout the reception room and in the dining-room. The reception was marked by pleasing social features, during which Miss Averill was the recipient of congratulations. About 150 people attended the affair.

RED MEN ADOPTED TWO AND ELECTED OFFICERS

Two pale faces were adopted and officers were elected last night by Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M., at its meeting in K. of P. Hall. A committee reported the arrangements under way for the annual ball to be held in Saengerbund Hall on January 24. Delegations were present from Tonoluka Tribe, Cranford; Menno Tribe, Westfield, and Nariticong Tribe, Somerville.

An election was afterward held for officers. After the council fire was quenched the braves retired and partook of corn and venison, after which they smoked the pipe of peace. There will be no meeting of the tribe on Christmas or New Year's Day, the next council coming on the date of the installation of the new officers on January 8.

Tonight in Coward's Hall, Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., will hold an entertainment and dance for the members of Iona and Miantonomo and their friends.

The officers elected last night were: Prophet, David W. Allen; sachem, Michael O'Shay; senior sagamore, John Foley; junior sagamore, George Ivins; chief of records, Charles L. Holstein; keeper of wampum, John T. Green; trustee, Thomas Parsons; representative to Great Council to be held the first week in March at Atlantic City, Peter Sheridan; alternate, Charles L. Holstein.

ONE BUSHEL OF FUN AND MAY IRWIN, TOO

Every time May Irwin goes on tour there is a grand scramble among the press agents in New York to get the job of "going ahead" of her show. One reason is that Miss Irwin's tours last a long time and the other one is that she is the most popular actress in the business, and particularly in the business offices. The managers of the theatres and the box-office men open up their faces in broad grins when they hear the heavy-weight comedienne is coming.

"It's as good as a tonic to me to have May Irwin come to this house," said Harry S. Sanderson, manager of the Plainfield theatre, where Miss Irwin will appear on Saturday in her new farce-comedy, "Widow By Proxy." "Miss Irwin brings a bushel of fun with her. Her expansive countenance is always wreathed in smiles. And believe me, that is some wreath."

CHRISTMAS MUSIC.

Appropriate music by the quartet and chorus choir will be a feature of the Christmas service to be held at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Among the numerous selections to be given will be the beautiful German folksong, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht," as arranged by Damrosch for the Musical Art Society or New York. Mrs. A. M. Dickey, the contralto soloist of the choir, will sing, "The Virgin's Lullaby," from Buck's "Coming of the King." Miss Florence Wohlfert, violinist, will assist in the services. The program in full will be announced later in the week.

STREAM OF TAX MONEY SWELLS

Receipts Yesterday Exceed Those of the Day Before by $6,000.

RUSH STILL CONTINUES

Collector Forced to Close Office From 12 to 1 at Noon in Order to Get Chance to Prepare for Afternoon Business.

The tax receipts of yesterday exceeded those of the day before by $6,000, the total being $31,000 as against $25,000 on Tuesday, and the business is so heavy today that up to noon, Collector Townsend was unable to tell the amount that had come in during the morning. He was obliged to close his office between 12 and 1 o'clock in order that he might get things straightened out for the afternoon rush.

The tax office will be open from 7 to 9 o'clock tonight and tomorrow night to accommodate those who cannot call during the day.

One source of inconvenience which has to be met by Mr. Townsend is the hundred and one foolish questions which come to him chiefly through the mail and which in a majority of cases require an answer.

Each mail brings in hundreds of checks from all parts of the country, and these amounts together with those paid in person by resident taxpayers gives Mr. Townsend all that he can possibly do for a few days. Tomorrow is the last day for the payment of taxes without having interest added to the cost of collection.

WILL LYLE'S MINSTRELS HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

The stage at the Park Club tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock will be set for as interesting a performance as has been seen here in a long time. The players will be Will Lyle's Minstrel Troupe, heralded as entertainers of marked ability in their particular field. They have been engaged to appear under the auspices of the entertainment committee of the Church of the Holy Cross.

The performance tomorrow night is the first in a series of five to be given at intervals throughout the winter. Course tickets have been offered for sale, and the response has been gratifying. It is expected that the large club auditorium will be filled for the first performance. They will be able to provide room for all who come. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

WITNESSED ARCHBALD TRIAL.

Samuel S. Swackhamer, of the law firm of Swackhamer & Bird, returned last night from Washington, D. C., where he has been enjoying a short vacation accompanied by his family. While in the Capitol the local lawyer witnessed part of the Judge Archbald impeachment proceedings.

PUPILS' CHRISTMAS PARTY.

As is the usual custom, the lower-grade pupils of the North Plainfield public schools will have Christmas exercises tomorrow morning, which will be followed by refreshments. The children will then leave school to enjoy the holiday vacation. Studies will be resumed January 6.

Y. M. C. A. PICTURES.

The program for the motion picture entertainments in Y. M. C. A. Hall on Saturday will include the following films: "Children Who Labor," "A Forest Fire," "The Island of Ceylon," "The Enchanted Pond," "An Actor In a New Role."

TWELVE INDICTMENTS.

Somerville, Dec. 19 (Special).—The Grand Jury after two days' deliberation returned to the court yesterday afternoon and presented twelve indictments. There are no other cases for consideration at present.

MONTHLY SOCIAL.

After a business session at which it was undecided that the organization's colors be orange and black, the Marathon Club held its monthly social at the home of George Hummel, of the borough, last night.

CLUB ENTERTAINMENT.

Thomas W. Murray, of Westfield, will entertain the Men's Club of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church with singing, reciting and story-telling tonight. The men of the city are invited.

EAST END WOMAN IN ROLE OF DETECTIVE

Mrs. Taylor Shadows Men in Hope of Recovering Stolen Paint.

Somebody broke into the home of Mrs. Sarah C. Taylor, of 810 Fillmore avenue, last Sunday night and stole 45 gallons of paint and $25. Yesterday she saw on the street two colored men she suspected of having committed the theft. There was no policeman in sight and no time to notify headquarters, so Mrs. Taylor started shadowing the men herself.

She followed them for a mile in the hope of either seeing a policeman or being led to some place that would prove to be the headquarters of her quarries and the probable hiding of her paint. After following the men a mile, Mrs. Taylor gave up her role of amateur detective. She left the two, and called police headquarters on a telephone. Patrolman O'Keefe was sent out to see if he could pick up the men, but they had disappeared by the time he reached the scene, leaving no clue to their trail. The police hadn't heard of the theft until Mrs. Taylor telephoned yesterday.

ROYAL COUNCIL ELECTS; INSTALLATION BIG EVENT

Royal Council, No. 77, O. U. A. M., last night elected officers who will be installed on Wednesday, January 15, which will also be "ladies' night." At the January meeting delegations will be present from other lodges from all over this section of the State. A number of applications were handed in last night and many more are expected on installation night. The officers elected last night were: Senior ex-councilor, F. G. Welsh; junior ex-councilor, George Van Orden; councilor, L. C. R. Dunham; vice councilor, I. N. Wyckoff; recording secretary, J. L. Bennett; assistant recording secretary, J. G. Bicknell; financial secretary, R. V. Kinney; treasurer, W. E. Day; inductor, A. T. Stryker; examiner, T. E. Currin; inside protector, E. B. Rowland; outside protector, Edward Dunham; trustees, P. N. Wyckoff, F. G. Welsh, T. E. Currin; representative, G. E. Thomas; organist, George F. Watts.

'BE CAREFUL AND COURTEOUS' SAYS P. S. R. TO CAR CREWS

The Public Service Railway Company, through N. W. Bolen, superintendent of transportation, has issued a special letter to the employes of the company, cautioning them to be unusually careful during the holiday rush, adding that motormen and conductors are as likely to be careless as passengers or pedestrians. The employes are further instructed to keep the cars as comfortable as the heating and ventilating facilities will permit, and conductors are told not to fail to call out the names of principal streets, stores and stations.

In addition to the above reminders, the company urges its men not to be grouchy, but to be courteous and to keep in mind the motto, "Safety, Courtesy, Loyalty." Both motormen and conductors are instructed to assist patrons in entering and leaving cars and to exercise all possible care.

TEACHER ENGAGED.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss M. Elizabeth Pound, daughter of Mrs. William A. McClurg, and Edgar Fowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler, both of West Seventh street. Miss Pound is now serving her third year as the domestic science teacher in the North Plainfield public schools. No date has been set for the wedding.

BOROUGH COUNCIL.

The North Plainfield Council meets tomorrow night in what will probably be the final session of 1912. Next year two new faces will be seen in the Council to replace Councilmen William J. WANT CORRELL'S LICENSE REVOKED

New Providence Citizens Petition Court, Alleging Violations.

SUNDAY SALE CHARGED

Closing of a Saloon in Scotch Plains, Says Protective Association of Mountain Section, Made Conditions Worse—Hearing Set.

Elizabeth, Dec. 19.—A rule to show cause why the license of Fred Correll, proprietor of the Evergreen Hotel, in New Providence, should not be revoked, was granted on the application of George T. Bernard and several other residents of the place, by Judge Atwater yesterday and will be argued before him in the Court of Common Pleas on December 27. The petitioners allege that the hotelkeeper has been selling beer by the case in violation of the beer bottlers' act and that he has sold liquor on Sunday.

Correll was indicted on these charges by the October Grand Jury. He pleaded guilty and was fined $200. At the time sentence was imposed, his attorney, John Walsh, of Summit, alleged that the charges had been brought by a number of men who were desirous of securing possession of Correll's property and that they had "tricked" him into a violation of the law. Mr. Bernard was the object of the lawyer's charge, and was allowed by the court to reply to the allegations.

Mr. Bernard and the others living near the saloon have now formed themselves into a protective association, one of the objects of which is to maintain peace and good order in the neighborhood. Correll's place, they claim, has been conducted in a disorderly manner ever since the saloon at Scotch Plains was closed, more than a year ago. It has also been mentioned, they aver, in more than one criminal case, and the residents of the vicinity declare that it is responsible for much of the lawlessness in that part of the borough.

Those active in urging the revoking of the licenses have retained G. Bartram Woodruff to represent them. Mr. Woodruff, upon looking up the case, says he learned from the minutes of the Court of Common Pleas that on November 10, 1897, Correll was indicted by the Grand Jury for selling liquor without a license. He pleaded not guilty, but a week later retracted his plea and entered one of non vult and was fined $20. These facts will be presented to the court when the rule is being argued, as it was also stated by Mr. Walsh that Correll had never been before the court before the recent passing of the $200 sentence.

COMING-OUT PARTY.

Miss Frances Marie Kenney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David T. Kenney, will be formally introduced to society at a reception to be given Monday afternoon, December 30, at the home, 12 Rockview avenue, North Plainfield. A large number of invitations have been issued for the affair.

ANOTHER DEBUTANTE.

Dr. and Mrs. B. vanD. Hedges, of Watchung avenue, have issued invitations for a large reception to be given at the Park Club, Saturday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock, at which time Miss Beatrice Hedges, daughter of Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, will be formally introduced to society.

CHARLES KRAEMER'S FUNERAL.

The funeral service of Charles Kraemer was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the late home on Terrill road, Scotch Plains. Rev. Conrad Blunk, pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran church, officiated. The burial was in the Baptist cemetery at Scotch Plains.

THERE WILL BE LOTS OF GAS.

Jack Horner, chairman of the committee making arrangements for the annual banquet of the Plainfield Motor Cycle Club, announces that everything is in readiness for the event, which takes place tomorrow night in Neighbour's restaurant

COAST POLICE, AFTER GIRL, DUE TOMORROW

Counsel Says He Has Become Convinced of Irma's Innocence.

Councilman-elect Francis J. Blatz, counsel for 19-year-old Irma Bendotti, wanted by the San Francisco police who hold an indictment charging her with helping swindle an old *man out of $7,700, expects the ar*rival of San Francisco police representatives late today or early tomorrow. Immediately upon their arrival they will request of Governor Woodrow Wilson to grant extradition papers.

The girl's lawyer said he had completed all arrangements to have his client appear before the State Executive when the application for extradition is submitted and will fight any attempt that is made to have her returned to the Western State.

"I had a long and confidential talk with Miss Bendotti yesterday," said Mr. Blatz this morning, "and I thoroughly believe she is only a victim of circumstances, and innocent of the charge."

GAVE A LUNCHEON FOR MRS. ERICKSON PERKINS

Mrs. Frederick Goodhue Mead gave a charming luncheon at her home, "Sunnyside," yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Edickson Perkins, who was Miss Elizabeth Ginna, of Rochester, who is visiting her former home for a time.

The guests included Mrs. Erickson Perkins, Mrs. Daniel F. Ginna, Mrs. Percy H. Stewart, Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, Mrs. Francis deLacy Hyde, Mrs. James R. Joy, Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, Mrs. Rufus Lincoln, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Miss Munger and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen.

RECEPTION AND DANCE.

The Hyperion Social Club will give a reception and dance Tuesday evening, December 31, at the Nonpariel Clubhouse, St. Mary's avenue. The officers who arranged the affair are: President, Mrs. J. D. GIRL CONFRONTS MASKED THIEF

Miss Louise Meyer Frightens Second Story Men Into Flight.

ABANDON MUCH LOOT

Thieves Climb Arbor and Force Window While Family Are at Dinner—Get Away With $80, But Leave Jewels and Clothing.

The home of Henry C. Meyer, a wealthy retired storekeeper at Scotch Plains, was entered by second-story thieves at 6 o'clock, last night, while the family was at supper, and they succeeded in getting away with about $80 in cash. The fact that Miss Louise Meyer had occasion to go to her room before eating supper, served to frighten the thieves away, and saved valuable jewelry, clothing, etc., which had been gathered together in a bundle ready for removal.

The second-story men were halted suddenly in their operations when Miss Meyer, upon hearing a strange noise coming from the direction of the bathroom, opened the door, and confronted a man. His face was masked by large red handkerchiefs. Miss Meyer screamed. That attracted the other members of the household, but the thieves made good their escape before the family really knew what had happened.

An investigation showed that two men had worked on the job. Entrance to the house was gained by climbing a grape arbor in the rear and forcing a window. The escape was made by the same route.

It is believed that the two must have been at work the best part of a half-hour when discovered, for that time had elapsed since any member of the family had been to the second floor. The bundle of jewelry, clothing and other articles was found in the hallway near the bathroom, and if the burglars had been left undisturbed a few minutes longer the loss would have been very much greater.

It is the opinion of Mr. Meyer that the work was not that of an amateur. He learned last night that two strange men had been about the village for several days and it is thought that they could throw light on the affair if apprehended. There is no other clue.

HOG-KILLING BEE.

Robert Greene, of 315 Richmond street, who has been visiting at Irongate, Va., has returned home. While in the South he assisted some friends in killing hogs, cutting up about 6,000 pounds of pork. Mr. Greene says that the people in the section of the South he visited have had a prosperous year.

The contest for the three musical instruments, the player-piano, the regular upright piano and the cabinet vitaphone, offered by the Daily Press to the organizations and individuals of Plainfield and vicinity, will come to a close on Saturday night at 8 o'clock. None but the best of feeling has existed among the various candidates, and it strikingly denotes the high character of the organizations and individuals who are participating. It also indicates that they are capable of carrying out this good-natured rivalry until the last ballots are cast.

In the closing hours the probable result is impossible to forecast with any degree of certainty, as the reserve strength of the many contestants is as yet only known to themselves. Suffice it to say that these last days are days of action, and how very busy they have been and to what purpose will only be disclosed in the final action.

Saturday is sure to be a very busy day at the Daily Press office, and those in the contest are once more urged to get their subscriptions in early, that they may be cared for, retaining their vote coupons, if they so desire, until a later hour. The daily voting coupon was discontinued last Monday, as it was believed that the contestants did not wish to be diverted from the more serious work of securing subscription votes in the last day of the contest. Besides it is desired to have them all in and counted before the judges take charge of the ballot box, Saturday night. Remember only clipped coupons dated, December 21, will be counted Saturday night.

Do not lose sight of the highly important fact that while the three highest votes will win the three valuable musical instruments, all those securing at least five yearly subscriptions will receive ten per cent. cash commission for their work.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Mary Burrage, instructor in German, visited one of the New York High Schools yesterday.

Monthly report cards will be issued tomorrow morning. These bimonthly reports will decide who will be eligible to perform in the minstrels and on the basketball court until February 1. An average of "C" in three subjects is required in order to be eligible.

Manager Joseph Sattels, of the baseball team, will lead off his season's schedule with a game at Passaic, against the Passaic High School, on April 12.

Diamond clashes will also be staged with Essex Fells, Jersey City, New Brunswick, North Plainfield, Rahway, Somerville, Bound Brook and Roselle High Schools.

Several baseball enthusiasts tried out their "wings" during the recent warm spell.

A large number of P. H. S. students are planning a visit to Debele Hall tonight to witness the annual Junior-Senior "sting" party of the North Plainfield High School.

Manager Grisley has engaged the Y. M. C. A. court for the evening of February 28, when P. H. S. will meet Yonkers High School's first quintet and the Y. M. C. A. Ajax will play Yonkers' second team. It looks like a case of the same players in two games.

Under the direction of Mrs. Evans, wife of the commercial instructor, the High School orchestra is holding regular rehearsals and will be heard from in public before long.

Miss Mary Clarke, a member of the sophomore class, has moved to Idaho where her family will live in the future.

Archie La Rue, captain of the sophomore class basketball team, has resigned his position. He is leaving school to go into business.

Only two more days are left in the Daily Press piano contest. It is up to the members of the Athletic Association to get busy. There is no doubt of the need of one of those prizes. P. H. S. is now running a close fourth and a few subscriptions would put her in front.

Mr. and Mrs. John King, of Verdon street, have returned home from a two weeks' visit with the latter's sister, Mrs. William Aff, of Brooklyn.

GENUINE DIAMONDS

To-Day and To-Morrow

¾ Carat $29 Rings

These three-quarter Carat Ladies Size Stone Diamond Rings for $29 cannot be duplicated in the United States under $50.00 and were cut to look like one-carat diamonds. This is due to their large spread of stone or the new style American cutting. They are not old-fashioned Diamonds that are cut thick and deep, usually found in retail jewelry stores and are not desirable. Our Diamond buyers are at the European diamond cutting mills with cash ready to buy diamonds forced on the market. This accounts for our underselling wholesale and retail jewellers in the United States. Our statement that they are worth $50.00 is very conservative, and you can prove it. No mail orders filled.

See our window display of over half a million dollars' worth of diamonds. All plainly marked $5 to $5,000.00.

Observe our valuation and price of some other "Single Stone Diamond Rings" to be offered at this sale:

WARNING TO NEWSDEALERS.

Affirming the action of a magistrate in finding guilty of disorderly conduct a newsdealer who had inserted advertising matter in the folds of newspapers for distribution to his customers, Judge Foster, in the Court of General Sessions in New York yesterday held that it is illegal to pad newspapers with circulars. The case was a test one to determine the rights of newspaper owners.

The practise of not overly-scrupulous newsdealers has grown to such alarming proportions in recent years that the publishers have organized to have the dishonest scheme stopped by the courts. The New York World and other big dailies have been among the principal victims and they are in the forefront of the fight. But they are not the only victims, by any means, for every daily newspaper in the land has been used as a vehicle to steal publicity, the newsdealer's aid always being essential. It can be readily seen that the loss to the newspaper is as great in proportion as the gain of the merchant who thus cheats with his fellow conspirator, the newsdealer.

In this particular case, a newsdealer was haled before the magistrate on a technical charge of disorderly conduct. Like most of our cities, New York has an ordinance which states that "no person shall throw, cast or distribute in or upon any of the streets, avenues or public places, or in fron tof stoops, any handbills, circulars, cards or other advertising matter." This was held to cover the case precisely and accordingly the defendant was guilty of disorderly conduct.

Red Cross seals, suitable for use on letters and packages during the Christmas season are on sale at the Daily Press office and in the shops. They are being distributed by the Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society, which nets eighty-five per cent., the other fifteen per cent. going to the National Association. Buy the seals now. In packets of 100 they may be purchased for $1.

We hope, we expect, we believe, we know that as mayor of this well-governed community, Mr. Stewart will have the courage to oppose any backward step where the strict regulation of the liquor traffic is concerned. Not for one instant do we believe that he will leave any stone unturned to oppose the giving back of former retail liquor licenses.

Read what our advertisers have to offer before doing your Christmas shopping. Up-to-date merchants obtain their desired publicity by using this paper as a medium to reach the buyers.

Earth disturbances on Saturday may be credited to Princeton, N. J., where Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan will be enjoying an immense laugh at the expense of the Democratic bosses who helped elect a President in the vain hope that the plum tree would be shaken for their benefit.

It seems rather strange to hear the public boasts that two retail liquor licenses will be restored. Isn't it rather a reflection to hear the claim made that "seven of them are lined up?" Are our councilmen built that way?

Have you enrolled as a member of the Army of Good Fellows? Read his appeal on this page and act accordingly. "Now is the accepted time."

Two more days and then the Daily Press pianos contest will be ended. Vote now and often before the gong is sounded on Saturday night.

What has become of the plan of the Chamber of Commerce to advertise Plainfield?

Four more shopping days before Christmas. "Do it now."

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

MORGAN GRILLED AT PUJO PROBE

Banker Sheds Light on Doings of the United States Steel Corporation.

EVIDENCE INTERESTING

His Deposits on November 1 Over One Hundred Millions—the Firm Fiscal Agents for Many Giant Concerns.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Dec. 19.—J. P. Morgan was the first witness before the Pujo committee investigating the money trust today. "Can you give the committee a statement of the total amount of your deposits on November 1, 1912?" was Mr. Untermyer's first question.

Mr. Morgan said, "I haven't it here, I should think $100,000,000 to $110,000,000."

The witness said that he would furnish the committee a statement of the deposits of interstate corporations with his firm and also promised to furnish a statement of the firms in which his house have directors and to furnish data of the firm of Drexel & Company. Mr. Untermyer then turned to the firm's fiscal agency contracts. "We telegraphed for copies over night," said Mr. Morgan.

Mr. Morgan was pressed for a list of other corporations for which his firm is fiscal agent. He was asked, "You have been acting for the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.?"

Mr. Morgan replied: "Partly so," and stated he had no agreement in writing with them. He also said he had acted for the Southern Railway Company since the reorganization in 1894, and also admitted that his firm reorganized the Northern-Pacific Railway under a voting trust. "I have produced here the report of the voting trust on the Northern-Pacific and the Reading. I would like to have them in the record as they are very important, showing the benefits of the voting trust."

Mr. Morgan produced the agreement with regard to the firm's fiscal agents, which were the New York Central and allied lines and the New Haven and allied lines. Mr. Morgan said: "We act for the steel corporation." He said there is no written agreement as to it or others. It's all by correspondence or word of mouth.

In answer to a question by Mr. Untermyer as to whether Mr. Morgan at the time of the organization of the U. S. Steel Corporation named the entire board of directors, the financier replied: 'I think I passed on them." He added, "whoever went on the board of directors went on with my approval."

Mr. Morgan said the committee who passed on voting proxies has his son as one of the members. Mr. Morgan added: "Mr. Perkins was for a time chairman of that committee. Judge Gary was before him." Continuing Mr. Morgan said that the steel corporation finance committee is in fact the executive committee. Mr. Untermyer asked Mr. Morgan if he named Mr. Gary for chairman. The witness replied: "Very likely. I don't remember."

Mr. Morgan was asked who decided J. P. Morgan & Company should be agents for the steel corporation securities; "I did," answered the witness.

About 12:45 o'clock this afternoon the Pujo committee took a recess for an hour. Mr. Morgan will again take the stand when the session convenes.

When the committtee resumed its session this afternoon Mr. Morgan said that he did not know at the time whether "it would be good business for his firm to handle the steel matter, but it proved so, however, as I have confidence in the company." He also said that he knew of only a few buying pools or syndicates in the steel case. "There have been many syndicates formed without our knowing anything about it," he said.

Mr. Morgan was asked about the purchase of the Equitable Life in connection with James Stillman and G. F. Bacon, and he said that they were under obligations to take one-half the stock off his hands if he wished it, and he offered to furnish a copy of the agreement to the committee.

NO REDUCTION FOR N. Y. C.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 19.—The Ohio State tax commission has denied the request of the New York Central lines for a reduction in the aggregate valuations of those properties for taxation by a total of $16,982,832.

LEAN CHRISTMAS.

New York, Dec. 19 (Special).—Present indications point to a rather lean Christmas in Wall Street, as concerns the matter of bonuses to employes of the big banking and brokerage houses. Stock trading throughout a large part of the year was at an unusually low ebb and many a broker is thankful that he has been able to keep his head above water. Some of the managers and clerks of the big houses who in the "fat" years received Christmas presents of thousand dollar bills as a matter of course will be surprised as well as pleased, if they are handed a quarter of that amount at the distribution this year.

TWENTY CHRISTMAS STORIES.

All you have to do in order to get twenty of the best Christmas stories you ever read is to order from your newsdealer a copy of next Sunday's New York World. Then you will receive, without extra charge, the Sunday World's 24-page Magazine, in which these stories will be presented, illustrated in true holiday fashion. The Sunday World will give you all the news from all over the earth, while the Magazine will be well worth keeping. Order today.

MISSOURI G. O. P.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 19 (Special).—Plans for keeping the Republican party of Missouri in fighting trim during the next four years will be discussed at a conference of State leaders in this city tomorrow. The conference will be held in conjunction with a meeting of the Republican State Committee. The primary object of the committee meeting is to suggest six names, as provided by law, to be considered by the incoming governor in selecting two members of the bi-partisan election board for St. Louis.

STORE OPEN EVENINGS TILL CHRISTMAS

GIFTS FOR EVERYBODY

Plainfield's largest and best store invites you to make it your headquarters for Christmas buying. You'll find it more comfortable and more profitable to shop here than at any other place in town. In the first place, there's more room here, there can be five times as many people scaattered throughout the store and it still would be easy to get around. Everything is on broad liberal lines here. So with the stocks. You can get anything you want, no matter for whom you are seeking a gift. You'll be pleased with what you get and the prices will suit your pocketbook.

BIGGEST STATION IS NEW GRAND CENTRAL

Nothing in the World to Surpass It—Almost Finished.

New York, Dec. 19 (Special).—The new Grand Central Terminal, which, in a few weeks, will take the place of the old Grand Central Station of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad, is nearly completed and may be considered in the nature of a magnificent and princely holiday gift to the city. When fully completed the station, with the additional improvements in the form of office buildings, hotels, etc., will represented a cost of $180,000,000. It will be by far the largest railroad terminal station in the world and will be able to accommodate without congestion 70,000 outgoing passengers per hour.

The gigantic work now almost completed was begun in the spring of last year and constitutes a remarkable triumph of engineering skill and enterprise. It would have been a comparatively simple matter to tear down the old terminal station and the buildings connected with it and to erect upon the same site the new terminal with all its magnificent concomitants in the form of sky-scraper hotels, office buildings, etc., had it not been imperative to do the work without interruption of or interference with the traffic of the railway. To replace the antiquated structure with a new one, however, without the slightest interference with the enormous traffic everlastingly going on at this terminal required engineering skill and ingenuity of the highest order. The completion of such a tremendous task under the given conditions would probably have been considered impossible anywhere else.

The preliminary work was begun several months ago, when part of the passenger traffic was transferred to a temporary station on Lexington avenue. Then several of the auxiliary buildings and the office building on Forty-second street were built and the Grand Central Palace building, north of the Terminal, begun about three years ago, was completed. The work on the terminal proper was not begun until the spring of last year, when the old terminal building was torn down to make room for the new structure, now almost completed. In its outward appearance it is an imposing structure, facing Forty-second street and resembling more a public museum or library building than a railroad terminal in its architectural beauty and magnificent proportions.

The terminal building is located on the north side of Forty-second street, between Vanderbilt avenue and Depew place, rests upon a terrace elevated above the level of the street and its main floor is reached from the street by means of numerous inclined planes. The structure, above the ground, has a length of 600 feet, a width of 300 feet and rises to a height of 105 feet. But only a small part of the entire terminal structure is above ground. By far the largest part of the terminal is underground, distributed over seven different levels, the lowest at a depth of more than fifty feet below the street level.

The old terminal with its office buildings, sheds, etc., covered an area of 23 acres, while the new terminal with its additional improvements will cover seventy-nine acres, with a trackage of seventy acres. For the construction of the building and substructure 118,600 tons of steel and more than 350,000 cubic yards of concrete were required.

The terminal building was planned with a view of facilitating as much as possible the tremendous passenger traffic going on there at all seasons of the year. With that object in view the express train service and the suburban train service were placed upon different levels, with separate waiting rooms, each large enough to accommodate from 8,000 to 15,000 persons at one time. The tracks are located on levels below the levels of the waiting rooms and are reached by 3 to 4 per cent. inclines. Steps are avoided in every part of the terminal which is used by the traveling public and this constitutes a remarkable feature of the new building. Below the general concourse, which is upon the same level as the terrace upon which the building rests, is the suburban concourse, each connected with a series of large and commodious waiting rooms and rest rooms on the one side, with the lower track levels on the other. There are entrances for pedestrians on three sides of the building, for vehicles on two sides and the lower levels are connected by underground passages with the various subway and street railway systems centering around the terminal. Passengers arriving at the station will not be compelled to leave the protection of the building to reach any of the subway or other street railway lines to take them to their destinations.

DEWEY TO CELEBRATE.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (Special).—Admiral George Dewey, the only full admiral in the American navy, will reach his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary one week from today. If the plans of Admiral Dewey's family and friends are carried out the Christmas and birthday celebrations will be combined into one joyous occasion. The Admiral is reported to be in better health than for some time past.

Bringing In ye Pianola Piano to make ye Christmas Merry

Music at Yuletide

A Merry Christmas! How can we bring it about in our home?

Think for a moment. Have any of the gifts we may be thinking about for our loved ones, the power to make them really merry? A sense of gratitude to us, the more or less transitory satisfaction conferred by the usual gift, isn't enough.

Wouldn't we love to see sparkling eyes and cheeks flushed with pleasure by our gift? Wouldn't we love to have our home just filled with life and joy and brightness and music on Christmas Day?

Music—that's it—if we can fill someone's soul with music—joyously expressed music—we've done what we wanted to—we've made a Merry Christmas in our home.

Can't you see that you can do just this with

The Pianola Player-piano

Why do you suppose that thousands upon thousands of people all over the world have taken up this New Piano so enthusiastically, so ardently?

It's giving them a musical voice—a means to express the music that is in every one of us. It's taking the piano—the great modern, musical instrument—and making it available to all of us.

Mere words can't tell you what the Pianola Player-piano would mean to your home and your family on Christmas Day and every day for years to come.

You will have to hear the instrument and you'll have to play it yourself so that you'll know how beautifully even a beginner can play it. Then you can picture your home on Christmas Day with a Pianola Player-piano in it.

Make Your Selection At Once

Our stocks are now complete. For months our nine great American factories have been preparing for this Holiday Display. The two immense Pompeian Salons at Aeolian Hall contain a wonderful collection of Grand and Upright Pianola Player-pianos to meet every need and suit every purse and on terms of payment which everyone can meet.

But do not delay. Every Christmas we have the same experience with disappointed patrons who have put off their purchase too long.

The genuine Pianola Player-piano, which can be obtained, in Manhattan, only at Aeolian Hall, is a combination of the Pianola—the World's Standard Piano-player—with six pianos, each, also, supreme in its grade—The Steinway, Steck, Wheelock, Stuyvesant, Stroud and famous Weber.

Prices from $550. Payments as low as $3.50 weekly if desired
Liberal allowances on other pianos in exchange

The beautiful VICTOR SALON at Aeolian Hall—the most complete and perfectly appointed Victor establishment in the World. Prompt, courteous and intelligent service. Victor-Victrolas from $15. Payable $2 monthly

"DE LUXE" MAN IN COURT.

New York, Dec. 19 (Special).—The "de luxe" book game, the promoters of which are alleged by the Government investigators to have victimized wealthy men and women in various parts of the United States to the tune of more than $20,000,000 during the past few years, was given its first airing in court today, when William R. Scott was given a preliminary hearing on a charge of having been concerned in the alleged frauds of the Kelly-Farmer Company, dealers in de luxe editions of books. The indictment against Scott specifically charges him with the larceny of $30,000 obtained from Mrs. Ambernette M. Crombie, of this city, through an alleged rare-book swindle. According to Mrs. Crombie's statements she advanced $20,000 to Scott to obtain a collection of books said to have belonged to Charles W. Morse; $10,000 to obtain a rare edition of Roosevelt's works and $5,200 for a set of Mark Twain's writings. For these books, she alleges, Scott told her a Western millionaire was ready to pay $150,000. The prospective purchaser, however, failed to materialize.

PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 19 (Special).—There was a constant stream of callers at the White House today. Most of them called simply to say good-bye to the President, who leaves at midnight tonight for his fifth visit to the Panama Canal Zone. The presidential party is to include Mrs. Taft, Secretary Hilles and several friends and newspaper correspondents. The sea trip will begin at Key West, from which point the party will sail on the battleship Arkansas on Saturday afternoon. It is expected that Colon will be reached in time for the Christmas celebration.

PHI PI PSI EATS.

The Phi Pi Psi, one of the fraternities composed of North Plainfield High School students, held its second anniversary banquet last night at the home of E. Franklin Lowe, former vice president of the club. A business meeting was held at which two new members were admitted and the constitution revised. Souvenirs were distributed.

PROPERTY OWNER'S LETTER

tact and paramount. Aside from agitation and discussion, nothing definite is reached. Comparatively but little stride is made in this direction. Our Queen City still resembles a village in this respect. The faint glimmer of the single electric light places Plainfield in the same category as villages and hamlets of few inhabitants. At best such a single light is a poor specimen to what it should be! There are squares both at the East and West Ends that are "illumined" but by a single light! A movement is afoot, actuated and engineered by our Chamber of Commerce namely, the improvement of the lighting along the business section extending from Central to Watchung avenues and from that point to Sixth street. Credit and a vote of thanks is due them for their efforts. It will no doubt add to the attraction of the business center. But what about us poor miscreants of the East and West Ends? Are we to be left to the inevitable fate of martyrdom? Is our money tainted as not to warrant their worth or face value? Personally, I believe our local government ought to pay some attention to the Ends of the town, instituting more and better lights. Property valuation will be increased as a result, and it is logical to assume this will bring about a proportionate increase in taxes, which will conclusively follow the natural law, viz.: "Things equal to the same things are equal to each other."

Hoping you will give this matter space in your columns,

I am,
JACOB SACHAR.

GREEK AVIATOR DROPS BOMBS ON TURK GUNMEN

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Athens, Dec. 19.—Another land battle between the Greeks and Turkish forces in Epirus began today at Bizani, where Greek artillery commenced the bombardment of a Turkish fortress. During the height of the battle a Greek aviator made a daring flight above the Turkish works dropping bombs from his aero plane among the Turkish gunners.

Although the Turks directed a hot fire upon the machine the aviator was able to land unscathed after doing considerable damage to the enemy.

"CHILDREN'S CHURCH" HAVE EXCHANGE PARTY

Recitations, singing, games and the exchange of gifts were enjoyed by the members of the "Childrens' Church" of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church yesterday afternoon. Miss Elsie Lines, a teacher in the little folks' "church," told them the "Story of the Engine," and little Miss Marion Stine recited several pieces. Fifty-six of the members and eighteen of their parents attended the affair. Refreshments were served while the games were in progress.

As the children went out the doo they were given packages which contained presents of one kind or another the members had brought with them.

CHINA HAS PASSED SWIFTLY THROUGH GREAT TRANSITIONS

The monthly missionary meeting at the Crescent Avenue church last night was addressed by Rev. John E. Williams, vice president of Nanking University, Nanking, China. Mr. Williams spoke about China's passing through, in one decade, the phases of change which had taken European nations centuries to accomplish: renaissance, reformation, revolution, all accomplished within the period of the last fifteen years.

He made an earnest plea for the recognition of this new, and, as he said, stable government by the United States, and expressed the regret of all Christian workers that the United States had thus far withheld from so serious and successful a movement, a recognition which had been freely given to little States like Panama, with scarcely a population sufficient to make a State, or to San Domingo or any of the least republics of the South. In spite of this refusal, he said, China still looked to the United States as its chief example and guide.

BAPTIST PRAYER SERVICE FEATURED BY VIOLINIST

The midweek prayer service at the First Baptist church, last night, was of special interest, Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, the pastor having arranged for several violin numbers by Ford Hummel, of Kingston, N. Y., where Dr. Strong was formerly pastor of the Baptist church. The service was very largely attended, there being present more than two hundred members and friends of the church.

During the service, Mr. Hummel played four numbers as follows: "Cavatina," Raff; "Adoration," Borowski; "Air on the G string," Bach, and "Evening Song," Schumann. The service was of a strictly devotional character and supplementing the delightful music by Mr. Hummel, Dr. Strong gave a short address with timely comments concerning the violin and its use in religious services. He related several interesting incidents concerning famous violinists which added to the interest of the service.

There was also a brief business session during which several new members were received by letters from other churches and one was received on confession.

The Bible Study and Teachers' Training class of Monroe Avenue M. E. church will meet in the church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

$1,000,000 IN DIAMONDS.

Most Wonderful Collection of Its Kind.

Probably no jeweler in the Christmas season is doing such a tremendous holiday trade as Charles A. Keene, No. 186 Broadway, Manhattan, whose great store is kept open until 10 o'clock in the evening. Thousands of old patrons and as many new ones, attracted by the astonishing "cut prices" he makes in watches, diamonds and jewelry of all kinds, flock to his store day by day. We recall with gratification the popular contest conducted by Mr. Keene, resulting in the distribution of one thousand dollars worth of solid 14k. gold watches and genuine diamond rings, absolutely free among the bright pupils of New York and New Jersey for graduating last June.

In the thirty-one years he has been in business Mr. Keene's sales have increased immensely increased year by year, but never has he done such a large trade as during the present holiday season. Vast quantities of watches, diamonds and jewelry have been sold by him to the people of the city and to those of neighboring States who have been attracted by the quality of his goods and the astonishing reasonableness of his prices.

No other jewelry store in the country has such window and showcase displays. Diamonds to the value of over half a million dollars can be seen in his window, all plainly marked, $5 to $5,000, and diamonds of the same kind are exhibited in the store. Besides these, there are countless watches and every variety and style of jewelry. The most valuable diamonds are stored in the safety vaults of the establishment and are only shown upon request of patrons. More than 10,000 genuine diamond rings of all styles are in plain view.

It also is a well-known fact that the stern Keene fight against the "Watch Trust" simply has resulted in his selling more watches than ever before in the history of his business. Mr. Keene has clearly and imperatively shown such combinations that he will not be dictated to in selling his watches.

Mr. Keene does not claim that he is the largest jewelry dealer in the world, but he does assert and is willing at all times to prove, that he has the very largest stock of diamond rings, ranging in price from $5 to $5,000, ever shown in this country or Europe.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CHICKEN GIBLETS.

CHICKEN giblets must be well cleaned before using. Take off the membrane around the heart, remove all veins and arteries and trim off all green looking tissue near the gall bladder. Cut the gizzard through the thick part, taking off all fat and membrane. The inner lining should be removed without breaking.

Savory Patties.

Giblet Patties.—Take a half pint of fresh giblets, clean well and stew in a pint of water with onions, pepper, salt and a little thyme and parsley. Add one pound of lean beef or fresh pork cut in small strips and stew with the giblets for fifteen minutes. Thicken with one tablespoonful of flour.

To make the puff paste for the cases take a quart of flour, one pound of salted lard; stir flour and lard together—a little baking powder will improve it. Mix with ice cold water, handling quickly. Put the under crust in pattypans and fill with giblets. Cover with crust and bake in a quick oven.

Sewed on Skewers.

Chicken Livers on Skewers.—Scald the livers and soak in boiling water for several minutes; then drain and wipe them. Cut slices of breakfast bacon the size of the livers and place these on skewers, preferably steel or silver ones, using first a chicken liver, then a piece of bacon till the skewer is full. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil over a clear fire, basting with melted butter. Serve on the skewers with melted butter poured over them.

The French Way.

Boulettes of Chicken Giblets.—Take a half pound of chicken giblets, clean, cut up, put into a saucepan and cover with boiling water and simmer for twenty minutes. Drain and chop fine. Pour a half cupful of milk into a double boiler, put in this a tablespoonful of butter into which two tablespoonfuls of flour has been rubbed. When this has been well stirred into the milk add the chopped liver. Cook in the double boiler for about ten minutes; then add a teaspoonful of minced parsley, salt, pepper and a teaspoonful of onion juice. Stir in the well beaten yolk of an egg and turn out to cool. When cool form into balls, dip these in egg and then in breadcrumbs and fry in hot fat.

Anna Thompson.

STYLE NOTES.

Long Coat an Important Part of the Winter Wardrobe.

The woman who chooses one piece dresses and a long coat for her winter outfit cannot go wrong.

Taffeta evening dresses have simple draperies of chiffon caught on the skirt with clusters of flowers.

The flowing frill effect for long sleeves is as much liked as ever. Usually it is of lace or net.

Chinchillas with plaid backs are used for long, straight street coats. Boucle cloths are also favorites.

The model that can be used for both the dressy and the simple frock is the

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Jos. Smith, Mrs. Wm. M. Sandford, Jr.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

I thought a child was given to sanctify
A woman—set her in the right of all,
The clear eyed heavens, a chosen minister,
To do their business, and lead spirits up
The difficult blue heights.
A woman lives, not bettered
Quickened toward the truth and good
Through being a mother?
Then she's none.
—Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

The Joy of Christmas.

Nineteen centuries have passed since in the little town of Bethlehem, the Christ child came, to live His life among men, meeting the temptations and trials that come into all human life, overcoming them, and giving to the world for all time the Divine example of what every life should be and may be if guided by the Christ. His whole life from infancy to manhood embodied the spirit of love and service. To give, not to get, was the lesson of His life. Today the world over, men, women and children pause in the struggle of life, and in many material gifts to children and to friends and relatives emulate the example of the Christ-life. The joy of giving for the time takes possession of humanity.

The real joy of the Christmas season is not in receiving beautiful gifts, but in the giving to others, in the consciousness of the loving thought that has prompted the gift. Parental love often lavishes on children toys, books, jewels, and beautiful clothing in such profusion that children are dazed and overpowered by the multiplicity of gifts. Fathers and mothers who realize the way to make Christmas the happiest for children will see that each child has the privilege of giftmaking himself. Only in that way can he enter into the spirit of Christmas, and feel the happiness of service.

Chosing Gifts for Children.

Thousands of dollars are wasted every Christmas in the purchase of toys and books made to sell, but unsuited to children's tastes. The building of a library for the child should not be done without thought. The National Congress of Mothers has carefully prepared a list of 1,000 books for children of all ages from which parents may select those which are really worth while. Send to 806 Loan and Trust Building, enclosing ten cents and the list will be sent you. Every shop displays books with gay covers but which have no real value.

In the choice of toys it is not those which are most expensive that are most appreciated. It is those which give the child something to do. The doll whose clothes come off and have real buttons and buttonholes pleases a child far more than one whose clothes are sewed on. If a few patterns of doll's clothes and pretty material for making them accompany the doll, the child's interest in cutting out and making them will give hours of pleasure. The work-box with thimble, scissors and thread to match the materials has a new interest when connected with making things for the doll.

Things that may be cut out, pictures that may be painted, satisfy the children's constant craving for something to do.

For the boy or girl, hammer, nails, wood and designs for making things are sensible gifts. Blocks and architectural designs never become tiresome. Garden seeds and a window box or a tiny hot bed in the garden give much future pleasure and profit. Pets are a never ending source of delight.

(Signed)
MRS. FERD SCHOFF,
Pres. Nat. Cong. of Mothers.

Roselle.

A meeting of the Roselle Parent-Teacher Association was held on the afternoon of Monday, December 16, at the High School. Miss Swartz, secretary of the Charity Organization of Elizabeth, New Jersey, gave an interesting talk to a large audience on the scope and methods of Charity Organization work and the ways in which Parent-Teacher Associations can make the scope wider and the work more effective.

A short entertainment by the pupils followed by light refreshments, ended an enjoyable afternoon.

The New Jersey Congress of Mothers has ready for use at ten cents per paper—simple, practical readings, intended to stimulate thought and discussion rather than to be exhaustive on the following subjects: Children's Rights, Does It Pay, Thought Turning, Right and Wrong Punishment, A Talk to Nurses, The Rights and Privileges of the Child at School, The Public Road in Relation to Human Welfare, The Home Life of German Children, The Relation of the Physician to Philanthropic and Sociological Work of the Community.

The ten cents includes return postage and a self-addressed envelope. Apply to Mrs. Howard R. Sharp, Riverton, New Jersey.

"The Goldfish," by Julian Street, publisher John Lane Co., New York, price 70 cents net, postage 6 cents, is an ideal Christmas story for children between six and sixty. It is so simple and yet so unusual that it appeals as the author intended to young and old alike.

PICTURES OF WOODROW WILSON

The Daily Press has on hand about fifty handsome photogravures of President-elect Woodrow Wilson, which we wish to dispose of at less than cost. They can be secured for five cents each by anyone who comes to the Daily Press office for them.

FIVE DOLLARS
Opens the Way to Better Pay

Five dollars, plus your promise to pay the balance at the rate of 17 cents a day, places in your hands the newest model Oliver Typewriter No. 5, our very finest production.

The best advice that can be given to the young man or woman who wants to break into business is:

GET AN OLIVER TYPEWRITER

This offer places at your command a machine that turns time, energy and enterprise into the pure gold of success.

Thousands of ambitious young men and women, with the aid of Oliver Typewriters, have won their way to better pay and broader opportunity. This is the age of mechanical writing. The great world of modern business revolves around the typewriter. Typewriter operators are in demand everywhere. Our employment Bureaus in all the important cities are swamped with calls for competent Oliver operators.

The OLIVER Typewriter
The Standard Visible Writer

You can quickly learn on your own Oliver Typewriter and qualify yourself for a position. You can make the machine meet the payments while you are doing work just for practise.

Easy to Pay---17 Cents a Day

You doubtless spend more than this amount every day for trifles you do not need.

Thousands have paid for Oliver Typewriters on this plan without the slightest effort. Are you going to let a matter of pennies stand between you and this money-making machine?

Against your risk of $5, we risk a $100 typewriter—the same machine that is used by the greatest firms and corporations throughout the world.

Shall we send you full details of the $5 purchase plan?

THAT ALL-STAR FOOTBALL TEAM

Experts Have Their Annual Whirl at Picking Mythical Eleven.

UNANIMITY IS LACKING

Thorpe, Bomeiser, Brickley, Ketcham Get Big Votes—Team That Represents Consensus of Opinion of 36 Leading Eastern Experts.

The selection of the mythical all-star elevens has been completed and it is interesting to note the composite result. The Boston Traveler recently printed the selections of thirty-six of the leading experts in the East and here is the team which was the consensus of opinion:

Position, player & Col.	Selected by

P. H. S. FIVE WINS UNINTERESTING GAME

Somerville Easy on Locals' Floor—Score Was 44 to 15.

In a game featured by intervals of speedy passing and accurate shooting, the Somerville High School basketball team was snowed under to the tune of 44 to 15 on the Plainfield High School court, yesterday afternoon. Aside from the few brilliant contributions of the local quintet, which broke up the monotony to some extent, the game was not interesting.

Fouling was frequent on both sides, but neither five could make their shots count from the foul line. P. H. S. made good on two out of twelve trials, while the Somerset county players got one out of ten.

The score:

H. S. HOCKEY PLAYERS ON NEW YORK RINK

Negotiations Are Underway for Practise Privilege at St. Nicholas.

A number of Plainfield High School ice hockey enthusiasts have joined in an effort to effect the organization of a representative seven to play scholastic aggregations in and about Greater New York. For some time agitation has been rife at P. H. S. for a hockey team, but because of the uncertain condition of the ice in this vicinity no definite steps have been taken. There is an abundant supply of hockey material in the local High School and with a little concentrated force to push the project, this sport ought to be established on a firm basis.

A representative of the High School team paid a visit to the St. Nicholas rink in New York last Saturday afternoon in an endeavor to close negotiations for the use of the rink for a certain number of hours each week. Nothing definite was done, but if this plan is launched, P. H. S. will more than likely be represented by a worthy team on the ice.

In selecting a practise place so far from home the High School skaters are beginning on forming a schedule that will include High Schools of Greater New York and Brooklyn, many of whom make their hockey headquarters at St. Nicholas.

TINKER SIGNS CONTRACT TO MANAGE CINCINNATI

Cincinnati, Dec. 19.—Joe Tinker, shortstop of the Cubs, today signed a contract to manage the Cincinnati Reds next season. The amount of salary named in the contract was not made public. Following a conference with President Hermann, of the Reds, the new manager announced that, barring the possible acquisition of two more players, all the plans for the starting of the season have been completed.

Tinker had a long talk with Manager McGraw, of the Giants, in the Havlin Hotel here last night. Later in the evening Tinker was the host at a dinner in the hotel, at which were President Hermann, the director of the Cincinnati club, and several friends.

CHANCE NOT OFFICIALLY RELEASED BY THE REDS

In an official bulletin issued yesterday by President Lynch, of the National League, several releases and contracts are promulgated. There is no mention of the release of Frank Chance by the Cincinnati club, but this omission cannot be construed as an official holdup of the deal to transfer Chance to the Highlanders.

As a matter of ordinary procedure Chance will not be officially released until he comes to an agreement with Frank Farrell. The granting of waivers by all National League clubs gave Farrell the right to approach Chance with the proposition to manage the Highlanders.

ROTHBERGS WILL MEET ALL STARS AGAIN DEC. 20

Manager Walters, of the Olympic Bowling Alleys, has enlarged the seating capacity in front of the score board in his alleys on East Second street and has put his equipment in firstclass shape for Friday evening, December 20, when the Sam Rothbergs will roll Walters' All-Stars. The two teams met a few weeks ago and a victory was checked up on the Rothberg side of the scoreboard. In the coming match the All-Stars will put up a big fight for first honors. The game will be called at 8:15 sharp.

The Rothbergs have booked a six game match with the fast Empire team, of Newark, the first game to be played during the second week in January. J. Scott or C. Thompson, managers, are anxious to hear from teams representing Elizabeth, Bound Brook, New Brunswick, Somerville, the Plainfield Elks or the Park Club. They may be addressed at the Olympic Alleys, this city.

H. S. ALUMNI BASKETBALL CONTEST CHRISTMAS WEEK

Manager Grisley, of the Plainfield High School basketball team, announces that the five will not have fifteen days of quietude prior to the North Plainfield game on January 4. As the schedule was originally doped out, no games were carded between the Somerville game today, and the first of the Interscholastic League contests on January 4, but since that time the program has been revised and several games will break the monotony of vacation.

Some time during the holiday week the Alumni will don basketball togs and clash with their "'varsity," and the Somerville game at the Somerset county seat will also be played. No date has been set for the comeback of the "old grads," but the game will have to be played before school opens as many of the former High School basket tossers are attending college and want the game played before the college recess closes.

HARD JOB GETTING SCHEDULE FOR GIRLS' QUINTET FILLED

Miss Elsie Debele, manager of the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team, after much hard work and many postponements, has arranged a schedule of eleven games for the quintet. She has had eight games cancelled already this season and has had hard work filling the vacant dates. There are still a few games pending with teams in this vicinity. The schedule is as follows:

Jan. 13 (night), Hope Chapel, at Hope.
Jan. 17, Nutley H. S., home.
Jan. 22, Battin H. S., Elizabeth.
Jan. 29, Perth Amboy H. S., Amboy.
Jan. 31, Plainfield H. S., home.
Feb. 7, Battin H. S., home.
Feb. 10, New York Normal, home.
Feb. 15, Perth Amboy H. S., home.
Feb. 17, Hope Chapel, home.
Feb. 21, Plainfield H. S., Plainfield.
March 4, Westfield H. S., Westfield.

All home games will be played in Saengerbund Hall.

WOODBRIDGE WINS FROM N. P. H. S. FIVE

Their First Home Game a Rout for the Borough Boys.

The North Plainfield High School basketball team played its first home game at Saengerbund Hall yesterday afternoon and met defeat at the hands of the Woodbridge H. S. five. The score was 54 to 24. Although the borough boys have had two days of hard practice they did not have the team work of the Woodbridge quintet. The visitors were swift and made some beautiful shots.

In the first few minutes of play neither team scored and then Woodbridge made one successful shot. Dunning followed this goal up with one from a difficult position. The visitors then started some fast team work and the borough boys were in the air. The visitors shot whenever they chose and North Plainfield could only collect on three more shots, those being made by Dunning, Taylor and Van Mater succeessively.

In the second half the local boys started on the jump and before the visitors got started they had rolled up twelve points making the score 31 to 21. But when Woodbridge started in again they didn't let up until the final whistle blew, although fouls were called on them frequently for holding and progress. In this half they rolled up eleven baskets and one foul making a total of twenty-three points.

Next Saturday afternoon the boroughites will play Kearney H. S. at Saengerbund Hall at 3:30 p. m.

The score:

WOODBRIDGE.

PARK TEAM NO. 3 TAKES THREE FROM TEAM NO. 1

Team No. 3 took three straight games from Team No. 1 in the tenpin tournament which was continued at the Park Club, last night. No. 1 was swamped in the first encounter by 115 pins, but rolled stronger games in the last two matches. The second game was won by a score of 797 to 746 and the third 776 to 719. A feature of the night's play was the same consecutive scores of Charles Lyman and Brakeley. The scores:

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

Isadora Duncan is to make another American tour.

"Mere Man," Augustus Thomas' suffrage play, has been withdrawn.

Maxine Elliott is to make a road tour at the head of her own company.

Minna Gale is to appear in New York at a matinee in three one-act plays.

Lillian Russell is shortly going to begin a series of lectures on health and beauty.

Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth are to go again into vaudeville, beginning the first of the year.

Olive Wyndham has been engaged for the leading role in Charles Frohman's production of "Chains."

Laura Nelson Hall has been engaged for the cast of "The Poor Rich Little Girl," shortly to be produced.

The Shubert firm will make a production of Franz Lehar's musical comedy entitled "The Man With Three Wives."

Percy Haswell, who has returned from Europe, is to make a tour through Canada, playing in Shakespearean repertoire.

Thomas Jefferson is now appearing in vaudeville in a condensed version of "Rip Van Winkle" and meeting with success.

It is now reported in New York on good authority that Fritzi Scheff is to appear in a musical comedy under her own management.

Lewis Waller is to try still another production in America. He will appear at Montreal next week in "A Marriage of Convenience."

Henri Bernstein has recently finished a play entitled "The Secret," in which Mme. Simons will have the opportunity to appear this season.

Henry W. Savage is organizing a company of Irish-American actors and actresses to appear in plays by Irish-American authors. Tim Murphy and Gertrude Quinlan are the first recruits.

Master Gabriel, famed for his Buster Brown and Little Nemo roles, has been engaged for Mrs. Burnett's play of "Racketty-Packetty House." His part will be that of a doll called Peter Piper.

When "The Daughter of Heaven" leaves New York and goes to Chicago it will be succeeded at the Century theatre by a spectacular production of "Joseph and His Brothers," by Louis N. Parker.

"The Unwritten Law," the drama by Edwin Milton Royle, which caused Miss Anglin's change of management last winter, is to be produced in Chicago on January 1 with May Buckley, Frank Sheridan and Earle Brown.

Negotiations to bring the Shakespearean productions of Granville Barker to this country are under way between the Shuberts and Mr. Barker. Mr. Barker's scenic treatment of "The Winter's Tale," and "Twelfth Night" has created a storm in London.

TURKS NOW SEEM WILLING TO RECOGNIZE GREEK ENVOYS

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Dec. 19.—The peace delegates of Turkey and the Balkan allies were in session for 55 minutes and then adjourned until Saturday. The Greek envoys attended and it was said that the Turks did not renew their protest. It was unofficially learned that the second hours' adjournment was taken to give the Balkan delegates time to consult their governments on a Turkish demand that the Ottoman government be allowed to revictual Adrianople.

WILL CARLETON DEAD.

New York, Dec. 19.—Will Carleton, author of "Farm Ballads," "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse," and "Betsy and I Are Out," died last night at his home, 444 Greene avenue, Brooklyn. He had been suffering for a week from the acute bronchial pneumonia. He was 77 years old, and had enjoyed the best of health up to the time of this sudden attack.

DEMOCRATS RESENT IT

Minority Members Threaten to Carry Appointment of $4,500 Plum to the Courts—Wilbur Offered the Resolution.

Elizabeth, Dec. 20.—A political deal of deep significance and importance was put through at the meeting of the Board of Freeholders in the Court House yesterday afternoon, when the Republican members, fourteen strong, taking advantage of section 12 of chapter 395 of the laws of 1912, in regard to the improvements and maintenance of public roads, appointed Jacob L. Bauer, present county engineer, to the office for a term of five years with an annual salary of $4,500. The deal was worked in the face of strenuous opposition on the part of the five Democratic members of the board, Freeholders Pierson, Fay, Hennessy, Bourdon and Jones, who tried in every legitimate manner to overthrow the machinations of the majority Republicans.

According to the section of the law, as soon as a public road has been accepted by the State the freeholders are compelled to appoint officials to take care of the road, namely, a county engineer and supervisor of roads. The Seven Bridges road, running from Springfield to the Essex county line, was accepted by the State commission recently and under this acceptance the Republican members engineered the deal which resulted in the appointment of Bauer as county engineer and James W. Fink, of Westfield, as supervisor of roads.

Rumors of the proposed deal had been circulating for the past week, but not a great deal of credence was attached to them. After the meeting yesterday afternoon the Democratic members, of which Mr. Pierson, Mr. Hennessy and Mr. Fay will return as members of the new small board, declared that they would take the appointment to the courts and would exert every effort to have it nullified. They characterized the action of the retiring Republican members of the present board as an outrage and so stated in open meeting. Freeholder Acken was the only absentee and as he is a Republican his absence made little difference in the outcome.

The resolution appointing Bauer as county engineer was offered by Freeholder Samuel P. Wilbur, of Plainfield. Preceding this, however, a

NEW RITUAL.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., at its meeting last night, conferred the third degree under the new ritual. The work was witnessed by a large delegation of members from William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Dunellen. Franklin Council now has a new initiatory team which is rapidly familiarizing itself with the ritual. The council also received one proposition for membership.

STOLE JUDGE'S TYPEWRITER.

A sneak-thief pried open the doors of the law offices of City Judge De Meza and W. R. Codington, in Park avenue, between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock, last night, but as far as can be ascertained at present, they only succeeded in getting a typewriter from the office of the magistrate. The work appeared to be that of an amateur.

Did You Ever Get Left?

Well, You Will if You Don't Do That Christmas Shopping at Once. That Means Right Off—This Minute—NOW.

MISS COCHRAN IS AUTHOR OF A BOOK

Charming Account of Travel Impressions in England and China.

Miss Jean Carter Cochran, of Watchung avenue, daughter of the late Rev. I. W. Cochran, formerly of Mendham, who was a widely-known Presbyterian minister, has just published a book of travel impressions, entitled "The Railbow in the Rain." It is from the press of Fleming H. Revelee Company, of New York. The scene in the first part of the book is laid in the lake country of England, and the last half is devoted to China, where Miss Cochran spent a year and gained an intimate knowledge of the people and the country.

Dr. Samuel Cochran and Rev. James B. Cochran, brothers of Miss Cochran, are missionaries in China. The latter who is home on a furlough at present says that Miss Cochran's story is true to conditions in China and is told in an entertaining way. "The Rainbow in the Rain" will be on sale here and it is expected there will be a large demand for the book.

SABBATARIAN XMAS SERVICE TOMORROW

Elaborate Program Prepared —Choir Will Sing "Story of Bethlehem."

An elaborate program has been arranged for the Christmas service at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. Rev. Edward Shaw, the pastor, will be in charge of the service and the music will be under the direction of Miss Jessie Utter, organist. Miss Mabel Maxson will be at the piano and Miss Violet Truell-Johnston will assist on the violin.

In place of the usual service the choir will give a cantata, entitled "The Story of Bethlehem," by Spence Preceding the cantata the order of service will be as follows:

Voluntary, "Adagio Cantabile," Bryson, violin, piano and organ; doxology, invocation, anthem, "Calm On the Listening Ear of Night," Harker, hymn, "Angels Rejoiced and Sweetly Sung;" responsive reading; gloria, prayer, offertory, "Le Souvenir," Dancla, violin, piano and organ.

Rev. Dr. Theodore Gardiner, editor of The Sabbath-Recorder, and Rev. Edward Shaw will have a part in the cantata, Dr. Gardiner giving a brief talk on Bethlehem, which he has visited, while Mr. Shaw will speak on three topics: "The Impelling Power of Music," "What Doth the Wise Men Seek?" and "Call to Adoration."

The cantata will conclude with the singing of "Adeste Fideles," by the choir and congregation and a postlude, "Marche Cortege," Gounod, piano and organ.

The Sabbath-school will hold Christmas exercises following the morning service. The children will sing and recite. There will be a recitation by Margaret Kimball; song by the primary department; exercise "Christmas Star," by six girls, and a duet, "Christmas Lullaby," by Celia and John Cottrell. Members will bring apples and potatoes for the Day Nursery.

The Senior and Junior Christian Endeavor societies will meet tomorrow afternoon at the usual hours. Esther Vars will conduct the junior meeting and Roy E. Titsworth the senior service.

GREAT MEN ARE STRONG IN BODY

Y. M. C. A. Physical Director Talks of Strength as Factor in Leadership.

CITES FAMOUS PEOPLE

Man Who Can Run the Fastest, Jump the Best and Who Can Perform Daring Feats Catch Women's Eye, Says E. C. Ostlin.

E. C. Ostlin, physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., was the principal speaker of the evening at an entertainment of the Brotherhood of the Dunellen M. E. church, last night. Rev. W. A. Knox, pastor of the church, gave a short talk on "Unity," Jesse Rogers did tricks in magic, James Martz rendered several selections on the piano, and the local Y. M. C. A. tumbling and gymnastic team gave a short exhibition.

Mr. Ostlin's topic was "Who Are the Successful Men of Our Country Today?" He said in part:

"Whom do the women of our country envy? Is it one with a weak, sickly, puny impaired body, bent form or sallow complexion? No. It is the man who can run the fastest, jump the best and who can perform the most daring feats, whose will is strong, who makes stepping stones of obstacles and surmounts all difficulties until he reaches the highest attainable pinnacle of fame, wealth or noble manhood.

"Open the Bible and do we not find that those whom God chose as leaders were strong men? Moses was a man of great strength, or else the marches over desert, sea and mountain would have exhausted him. The anxiety of the exodus would have crushed him, but he came through all this in splendid condition, for we are told that he was 120 years of age when he died. His eye was not dimmed nor his natural forces abated. David was a strong man, for when but a lad tending sheep did he not kill a lion and a bear as well as the giant Goliath? Saul was a strong man but because of his evil doings he prostituted himself. Samson was the strongest man that the world has ever known. Daniel and many others of the Bible characters were strong men.

"Modern history shows that our successful men had a good physical education. It reveals the fact that strength and longivity are found in those that follow nature's laws. It is said that Washington, after working all day in the Virginia forests, would wrestle anyone presenting himself and that he had at one time wrestled seven men one after the other and obtained a fall out of each. Lincoln, Jefferson, Adams, Franklin, Jackson and Webster were men of strong physiques.

"Hundreds of great men might be named whose bodies are strong and powerful. Who are the successful men of today? Those whom the world recognize is leaders? Are they not strong physically? Every one of them! To be a rounded perfect man you must develop spirit, mind and body."

MAY IRWIN LAUGHS DUE TOMORROW NIGHT

"A typical May Irwin show" is the easiest way to describe the three act comedy with a leaning towards the farcical, entitled "Widow By Proxy," in which that funny woman, May Irwinfi is to renew old acquaintanceship at the Plainfield theatre, tomorrow night. May Irwin has plenty of admirers, here, as everywhere, and that she has a play that suits her personality is all that these admirers need to know to feel sure of an enjoyable evening. In this instance an experienced playwright has undertaken to cut her cloth to fit the measure of "The Funniest Woman in the World." Advance information indicates that she has succeeded admirably in her task.

The Liebler Co. has provided her with an excellent supporting cast ,and though Miss Irwin's personality in itself is sufficient to fill the entire stage from arch to arch with good humor, no stars knows better the value of a good supporting company to keep the dialogue up to the laughing pitch at all times.

ELKS ENTERTAIN KIDDIES TUESDAY

The Annual Show for Poor Boys and Girls to Be Given at Plainfield Theatre.

BIG BILL IS PROMISED

Vaudeville and Moving Pictures on the Program—Manager Sanderson Donates the Free Use of the Playhouse.

The members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., following its annual custom, will entertain the poor children of the city and borough, at the Plainfield theatre next Tuesday afternoon. There will be no tickets and all children will be welcome to enjoy the excellent program of "movies" and vaudeville to be presented. Afterwards each youngster present will be given a box of candy and an orange.

Through the kindness of Proctor & Sanderson, the free use of the theatre is given for the entertainment and the Elks are planning to once more gladden the hearts of the children. While all the kiddies will be admitted, the entertainment is intended for the poor, those into whose homes Santa Claus does not come, and who, if not entertained in this way, would not know Christmas Day from any other day in the year.

Contrary to the general belief there are saddened, wistful children in Plainfield as well as those who are bright-eyed and happy whose hearts are gladdened each year by a visit from Santa Claus. There are many homes where Santa never visits and because of this seeming neglect, the joys of Christmastide have never come into their lives. The happy youngsters believe in Santa because they have no cause for disbelief. The others, less fortunate, believe in him because with all their poverty they have not been robbed of the innocence of childhood. It is with this thought in mind that the Elks each year plan to bring Christmas cheer to the hundreds of youngsters who may be overlooked otherwise. This year's entertainment will be the best ever and it is predicted that the theatre will be packed to the doors when the show starts at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

A commitee from the Elks' lodge will be present to look after the comfort of the children and see that everyone has a good time.

STEWART GETS BUSY; PREPARING FOR JAN. 1

Mayor-elect Visits Heads of Departments to Familiarize Himself With Duties.

Mayor-elect Percy H. Stewart is losing no time in acquainting himself with the details of the city government, so that when he takes the reins of office on January 1, he will be prepared to administer the duties with ample knowledge of affairs. Several times of late he has visited police and fire headquarters and has been in conference with Police Chief Kiely and Fire Chief Doane for the purpose of getting all necessary information regarding the department and the methods employed in conducting their offices. He has also visited all other heads of departments.

Mr. Stewart has also been in conference with Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett getting information about the street department. He has already been furnished, at his request, with the latest data concerning the sewer work, especially the plan to build a trunk line. Other city departments have been communicated with, so that on January 1 the Mayor-elect will have full knowledge that will enable him to take up the city work with the Common Council. He is also gathering data for his first annual message which will be presented to the Council at its organization meeting on Wednesday night, January 1. This doubtless will prove of unusual interest, as it will outline the new executive's policy for the coming year.

Mr. Stewart will meet Mayor Moy on New Year's Day at the city offices, at which time the city affairs will be turned over to the former. Mr. Moy will, as he retires from office, have something of interest to say to the incoming Mayor and the change in the head of the city government will be made under the most pleasant conditions.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGES MADE

Young John I. Holly, Accused of Passing Bad Checks, is Taken into Custody.

SAYS IT IS "OUTRAGE"

Complaint Against Him Here and Elsewhere—Turned Over to Elizabeth Authorities by the Local Police.

Arrested in this city yesterday on a charge of embezzlement preferred by the police of Elizabeth, John I. Holly, twenty-three years old, son of the late Captain John I. Holly, of Holly Park, must answer charges of alleged passing of bogus checks in this city, Newark and probably in Pittsburgh, Pa. Chief Kiely has had a warrant for his arrest since August 15, when it is alleged he fleeced William T. Johansson, of 61 Elm street, Elizabeth, of a motorcycle valued at $65, selling the same and appropriating the money for his own use. Learning through police channels that the alleged embezzler was in this city yesterday, Sergeant Flynn and Patrolman McDonald were sent out to take him into custody. He was located at 943 Union street, where he had been living for several weeks and was taken to headquarters.

When Captain Carroll, of the Newark police headquarters, was communicated with, he said he wanted Holly on three charges of cashing alleged worthless checks. It is also said by the police that he may be the Holly wanted in Pittsburgh on a charge of embezzling $1,000 while in the real estate business in the Union National Bank building, of that place. Questioned by the police regarding this charge, Holly denied any unlawful operations while in Pittsburgh.

According to Mrs. Maria F. Gardner, who conducts a tailoring establishment at 325 Watchung avenue, Holly owed her a bill amounting to $25 which he paid with a check later returned marked "no funds." This occurred last spring.

Holly was turned over to the Elizabeth authorities this morning. Later he will be confronted by the charges of the police of the other cities mentioned. The prisoner terms his arrest an outrage and he asked the police for permission to telephone the local, Elizabeth and New York newspapers to request them not to publish any account of it.

RICHARD HENRY DEPEW AS CONTRIBUTING EDITOR

All his life deeply interested in the community's well-being, Richard Henry Depew, the contributing editor for tomorrow's issue, is exceptionally well qualified to discuss matters concerning Plainfield and its welfare, the subject he has chosen. Although deeply engrossed in his immense business affairs, Mr. Depew has always been most actively interested in the city and few men have given more time and valuable service in the promotion of its interests. It will be recalled that he organized and was the first president of the Plainfield Protective Association, which brought about better lighting facilities, at least temporarily, for the community. It will also be remembered that only recently he got together all the real estate agents and succeeded in having them organize the Plainfield Real Estate Brokers' Association, which not only means much for their mutual benefits but for the community generally.

There is another good reason why Mr. Depew should discuss the city's present condition and its needs for advancement. It is that his own personal real estate holdings are among the largest in Plainfield and he is near the head of the list among the biggest taxpayers. His huge investments in local property show that he is optimistic of the city's future. Every man and woman, with any degree of civic pride, should make it a point to read what Mr. Depew will have to say as the contributing editor.

SANTA CLAUS AS "CENTRAL."

The exhibit is ranked as one of the most pretentious yet made by the company and it is proposed to illustrate it in the next issue of The Telephone Review.

FINAL DAY FOR TAX PAYMENTS, RUSH DUE

Receipt Record Will Probably Be Broken at Close of Business Tonight.

Tax money still continues to pour into the office of Collector William R. Townsend, the amount growing by leaps and bounds with each succeeding day. Yesterday's receipts aggregated a total of $65,991.85, the largest for any one day this year. The tax office was kept open until 9 o'clock last night to accommodate those who could not call during the day, and the same rule will be observed tonight.

As this is the last day for paying taxes without having the interest added, it is expected that up to the close of business tonight, the record will be broken in the way of receipts. Of course large sums are being received in checks through the mail and it will probably be late tomorrow before the whole amount is totalled. Mr. Townsend said today that up to the present time the receipts are far ahead of those of last year at the same time, and the indications are that the delinquent list this year will be unusually small.

Collector George Brown, of North Plainfield, spent a busy day yesterday accommodating the usual eleventh hour taxpayers and today, the last day on which the citizens can pay their bills without interest charges, the rush will be even greater. Yesterday's receipts totalled about $10,000, bringing the amount of tax money collected to date to approximately $55,000, an increase of nearly $4,000 over last year. The tax office will be open until 9 o'clock tonight, after which time interest will be charged on the amount of the bills at the rate of ten per cent. per annum.

HURT BY FALL.

Clifford Cole, of West Second street, a clerk at Schreiner Bros.' pharmacy, painfully injured his right hand and both knees yesterday by sliding on the wet pavements with a large tank of oxygen in his hands. He was dodging a wagon which was coming out of the alley on Second-street when he slipped and fell with the tank. In the fall he succeeded n shoving the tank off the pavement probably preventing an explosion. He returned to his duties in the pharmacy after a physician had attended him.

CARPENTER DIES, ODDLY POISONED

Taken Ill After Working With Freshly Creosoted Barn Shingles.

WEDDING DAY HIS LAST

Was to Have Been Married Last Night, End Came Yesterday Morning—Fiancee Summoned From N. Y. State, at Bedside.

Poisoned, it is supposed, either by inhaling the fumes from, or contact with, freshly creosoted and ammoniated shingles with which he worked on a barn at Millington, Clarence Cornish, 28 years old, of Myersville, died yesterday morning at his home, after three days of illness. He died on what was to have been his wedding day. He was to have wedded Miss Ida Longwell at her home in Warwick, N. Y., last night.

Cornish was one of the force engaged in the construction of a big barn at Millington, which is being erected by the Long Island Construction Company for a resident of Millington. On Monday morning the barn was ready for shingling and Cornish was one of those told to begin the job. The shingles with which the men were supplied were dipped in creosote and ammonia. It is said that they had not dried from their bath in the preservatives when turned over to the workers. Monday afternoon Cornish complained of internal pains. He was unable to continue work, and started for home in the wagon in which he daily drove to the barn.

He stopped at the store of his brother-in-law, George Nixdorph, at Gillette, where he told his sister of his condition. By the time he reached home, a distance of one-mile he was too weak to get out of the wagon He was helped into the house and Dr. Bebout, of Stirling, when called sent at once for Dr. Lawrence, of Overlook Hospital, Summit, who pronounced it a case of bloodpoisoning.

Everything possible was done to relieve the young man's suffering but he could get only temporary relief. Dr. Jones, of Bernardsville, was called into consultation the next day, but he held out no hope for Cornish's recovery. Cornish asked that Miss Longwell be summoned. The latter in response to a telegram hurried to the bedside of her fiance, arriving at Gillette 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. She remained with him until the end came yesterday morning. A short time before he died he asked that the family come to the bedside and took leave of them all.

The young man was the son of the late Sylvester Cornish. He leaves, besides his mother, a brother, Victor Cornish, and a sister, Mrs. George M. Nixdorph. He was highly esteemed among his neighbors.

The funeral service will be held Saturday from the late home.

But little more than twenty-four hours yet remain of the Daily Press piano contest, and many eager contestants are doing their best work to secure a large vote based on six-month and one-year subscriptions to Plainfield's progressive newspaper. Up to the present time it is anyone's race, no contestant having a vote that cannot be easily overcome.

Everyone who is interested in this competition, be it for an organization or one's self, should make the most of every one of these final hours, and if a supreme effort at this time results in the winning of the player-piano, the regular piano or the cabinet vitaphone, they will always have reason for congratulating themselves upon having made it.

Those in the contest should not neglect to bring in their subscriptions early tomorrow, for it is going to be a busy day at the Daily Press office. No other member of the contest will be able to find out what any one has brought in, as that information will not be known to any degree of exactness, even by those in the office whose duty it is to handle it, and will only be known when the judges make the count after 8 o'clock Saturday night.

All reserve coupons held by contestants must be in the ballot box before 8 o'clock at night, when the doors will be declared closed and only those who are present at that time and who have personally notified this office that they have business to turn in will be taken care of.

How the Kaiser's Hunt Figured In Servian Crisis.

In the photograph the emperor is seen presumably discussing the Austro Servian situation with the Austrian crown prince. It was a case of mixing royal sport with news politics.

This will be the greatest Sale of Diamond Rings ever known in this country. Each and every one will be sold with our bill of sale which will guarantee you that none of them can be duplicated, grade for grade, for less than 50% more than our price by any wholesale or retail jeweller in the United States. In this lot you will find one-quarter carat Diamonds for $10 and $13; one-half carat Diamonds for $20, $30, $42 and $50; one-carat Diamonds for $25, $35, $48 and $60; one and one-half carat Diamonds from $75 upward. All are equally as cheap, quality and weight considered. We will explain the different grades to you, showing their difference in color, quality and cutting, also guarantee the valuation of what you will have to pay for them at retail jewelry stores. This is the largest and best lot of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Diamond Rings we ever had to offer during the thirty-odd years we have sold Diamonds direct to the customer from the Diamond cutting mills of Europe, and we propose to give the public the benefit of them. We will not sell or show these Diamond Rings to Diamond Importers, Wholesale or Retail Jewellers. This sale is strictly for the public, and we reserve the right to not selling to anyone connected with the Diamond or Jewelry trade. You should take advantage of this sale at once. There are no duplicates, and any selection made now will be reserved for you until Christmas. We have the largest stock of Diamond Rings in the world. You can see nearly 10,000 of them in our windows and showcases. Over a million dollars' worth of Diamonds are in plain view in our establishment and worth going miles to see, as it is a wonderful sight.

See our window display of over half a million dollars' worth of Diamonds. All plainly marked $5 to $5,000.00.

The Christmas exercises of the public school was held this afternoon in the assembly room of school No. 1. An appropriate Yuletide program was rendered by the pupils, and the usual presents were exchanged, after which school closed until the second week in January of the New Year.

No clew has been obtained to the sneak thieves who stole $80 from the home of Henry C. Meyer Wednesday night, while the family were at supper. Several people who were on Park avenue Tuesday night recall seeing a short stout man acting suspiciously. The man walked up and down by the Meyer house several times, looking over the house, and it is thought that he is one of the thieves, and is supposed to have been sizing up the house, getting acquainted with the habits of the family and looking over the ground for a quick get away.

Louise, the seven-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felex Bruno, died at the home of her parents on Barth avenue, yesterday morning. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

SENIOR KNOCKS MAKE BORO JUNIORS SQUIRM

School Christmas Entertainment, With its "Stings," Great Success.

Some members of the Junior class of the North Plainfield High School laughed and some were sore when the Seniors "knocked" them, raked them over the coals and held them up to scorn at the annual Christmas entertainment last night in Debele's Hall. It is the yearly custom at the borough High School for the graduating class to give a Christmas entertainment and dance, and tradition decrees that the Juniors must be present to absorb the "knocks" or "stings" fired from the platform.

This year's 'knocking" was done from a scenic environment representing an employment agency. When Jone Jones (name fictitious), a promising Junior with a reputation as the premier artist of the school, strides upon the stage in search of a "job" and is told that they can put him to work at once as "the school fence needs painting," why of course Jones is among the indignant ones.

Miss Mildred McAuliffe, as the employment agent, performed her part without a flaw, while J. L. Herrmann, as the "cullud" porter, and Churchill Robinson, as the stupid clerk, provoked laughter from the audience repeatedly.

The entertainment opened with an address of welcome, ably delivered by David Levitz, president of the Senior class. A comedy entitled, "A Scheme That Fialed," a playlet of matrimonial squabbles in which Miss Clara B. Smith starred as Bridget Flannigan, the cook, completed the excellent program.

In the cast were: Thomas Fetherstone, Florence Coons, Helen Hughes, Mildred McAuliffe, Clara Smith and J. L. Herrmann.

The class officers are: D. Levitz, president; Thomas Fetherston, vice president; Ruth Miller, secretary, and Florence Coons, treasurer.

Those who thought up the "knocks" were: Henry Newton Spencer, Mildred McAuliffe, Clara B. Smith, Florence Coons, Alfred Schroeder and Richard Underhill.

Your Christmas Garments

Remember what I told you last week about not overlooking yourself this Xmas in the way of a gift?

Well, here are some garments that are a little late in coming, that I am going to designate as

HOLIDAY CLOTHES

There's just a little extra goodness in them, considering that they're priced lower than originally intended.

O'coats

These late-arrival coats are belted in back, made of smart mixed goods and were intended to bear a $22 price tag. Instead I've put a price tag on them that reads

UNITY AMONG NATIONS.

Never has the bond of amity and good-will between the British and American governments and people been so strong as at the present time. It needs no treaties to link these two greatest nations of the earth together in cordial understanding and warm friendship for speaking the same language and sharing the same views and cherishing the same ideals to a very marked degree they are and should be inseparable as friends. The unusual honors paid to the United States on the death of its distinguished ambassador but a few days ago is but one incident to conclusively prove that Great Britain's admiration and respect for the United States is deeply rooted and most sincere. Not only did the King pay an extraordinary tribute to the departed statesman, but he was eulogized by the Premier himself in the House of Commons, where all parties vied in requesting that the British Nation be permitted to send the body of our representative back to these shores on a battleship. And, moreover, memorial services, to be attended by England's nobility and statesmen, are to be held in its greatest religious edifice, Westminster Abbey, with the Archbishop of Canterbury himself officiating.

Still a more significant evidence of the feeling of the English government and people towards America is the plan to place a statue or monument to George Washington, the father of our country, in Westminster Abbey, where are effigies of England's own great sons of all past generations, or in Westminster Hall, adjoining the House of Commons. This is the plan of the British commission organized for the celebration of the centenary of Anglo-American peace. It is also proposed that Sulgrave Manor, Northamptonshire, the ancestral home of Washington, be purchased, and that an organized effort be made on both sides of the Atlantic and in the British colonies to promote well-considered educational methods and the growth of the feelings of mutual respect, affection and good will as well as mutual knowledge among the people of British and American descent.

The announcement was made today by Earl Grey at a meeting held at the mansion house and presided over by the lord mayor of London. Earl Grey read a long list of messages of sympathy with the movement.

POLITICAL INIQUITY.

Only during the heat of a campaign does the average citizen realize his responsibilities and duties. At other times, the apathy of the general public regarding political affairs is most pronounced. This is sad but true. Take for instance the little attention being given that abominable plot of the Republican freeholders of Union county to circumvent the people's will. Hardly has a voice been raised in protest and yet if these greedy office-holders succeed with their well-laid plans the verdict of the voters at the polls last November will count for naught. They propose to hold on to their offices and to set themselves up as the lawful Board of Freeholders although their terms expire on Jan. 1 and the new small board, as authorized by law and elected by the people, are due to assume their duties on January 6.

As a step towards the accomplishment of this nefarious scheme, the G. O. P. members of the present Board, heedless of the protests of the Democrats comprising the minority and in defiance of all public decency, yesterday actually shoved through resolutions electing a supervisor of roads and a county engineer for the full terms. This is but the start and not later than January 1 will they have grabbed every appointment on the list, which of right belongs to the incoming Board and intended by the people for the new body to fill, as the verdict of November bears ample testimony.

Is it any wonder, we ask, that the people should have voted to get rid of those who now have the brazen affrontery to attempt to defeat their will? But why do not the people rise up when such political iniquity is being perpetrated? The condition of the public mind must be strange indeed to allow this most contemptible, most impudent, plot to be carried out.

TAX SYSTEM REVISION.

One of the most important matters to be considered by the Legislature this winter will be the system of taxation and an effort will be made to have the whole plan revised and improved. The present scheme is admittedly far from equitable and to make it as nearly so as possible it is absolutely essential that the county boards should be vested with more powers. As at present constituted, the taxing boards fall short of their mission. Assessors, for one reason or another, sometimes because of personal favoritism and sometimes through political influence, will place a low value on one property and a high value on another, when both are really worth the same amount. When the owner of the highly valued property complains to the county tax board, unless his property is put at almost its exact figure, about the only satisfaction he is apt to receive is to see his neighbor's valuation put up, but this does not help his case one whit. In one township property is valued at eighty per cent. and in another at sixty to sixty-five per cent. We have recently seen a most flagrant example of this in Somerset county, where that remarkably brilliant county board practically confessed by giving North Plainfield a reduction when the board was "shown up" by some indignant boroughites. If the Legislature does nothing else, its time will be well spent if at the coming session there be effected a radical revision of the present tax system.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT CRAMPED FOR ROOM

Need of New or Enlarged Y. M. C. A. Building Felt in Gymnasium.

The need of a new Y. M. C. A building, according to officials and supporters of the association, is becoming more apparent every day. The building now used and its equipment is inadequate to accommodate the present number of members in the physical department. In the senior class where, when members were bumping elbows when only twenty appeared on the floor for class work there are now an average attendance of forty.

The Business Men's class, which meets three times a week, has grown from an average attendance of eight or nine to twenty-five or thirty. The same gain can be seen in the enrollment of the junior members of the organization.

Recently a new horizontal bar was installed upon the recommendation of E. C. Ostlin, the physical director, but that one piece of equipment cannot be used by a class of more than seven members. The locker accommodations present the same purport of inadequacy. A number of new steel lockers were installed during the summer, but the demand for them has been so great that a number more could be disposed of if they were attainable.

When an outsider visits the classes of the seniors he always remarks on the size of the class and the limited floor space. No calisthenic drills of any account can be held, Indian club swinging and the dumb bell exercises have had to be done away with on account of the limited space. The chest-weight machines are never used in class work because there are not enough of them to furnish a class of ten with exercise, let alone a class averaging forty.

LYNHART REARRESTED.

John Lynhart, of Somerville, arrested last September on a charge of stealing copper wire from the Telephone Company, and indicted by the last grand jury, was rearrested in West Front street yesterday afternoon and turned over to Detective Totten, of the Somerset county authorities. He was at liberty under bonds furnished by F. J. Moran.

DANCE FOR MISS RUSHMORE.

Among the social affairs announced for the holiday season will be a dance to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, of Stelle avenue, for their daughter, Miss Mary Rushmore, who is home from school for the Christmas vacation. The affair will be given at the Park Club, Monday evening.

GOMPERS CLOSETED WITH PRESIDENT-ELECT

(By Associated Press to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 20.—President Samuel Gompers and Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, held a conference with President-elect Wilson at the State House here today. Gompers carried a big armful of papers into the Governor's office and left them with him. They contained recommendations of Gompers and Morrison for labor legislation. Wilson greeted the labor leaders warmly and said he would consider their recommendations.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Anton Glockner, violinist, will be the assisting artist at the Christmas services in the First M. E. church, on Sunday.

The Bible school of the First Baptist church will hold its Christmas entertainment Monday night. It will be in the nature of a giving service, each class contributing something to be given to the poor.

The Christmas entertainment of the Sabbath school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will be held Monday night, December 30.

Owing to the fact that Christmas falls on Wednesday, December 25, the mid-week prayer-meeting at the First Baptist church will be held the following night, December 26.

TAFT GIVES PARDON TO SLOCUM CAPTAIN

Van Schaick Restored to Liberty and Citizenship After Long Confinement.

Washington, Dec. 20.—The President yesterday granted a pardon to Captain William Van Schaick, who commanded the steamboat, General Slocum, which burned in 1904 in East river, off New York city, resulting in the loss of 1,030 lives, mostly women and children.

The pardon becomes effective Christmas day. Van Schaick has been out of prison on parole for some time.

Captain Van Schaick in 1906 was convicted and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, for criminal negligence in failure to have sufficient life-saving and fire equipment aboard his vessel. He had served five years when paroled last February.

President Taft also commuted to one year the two-and-a-half year sentence of Clarence D. Hilton, a wealthy real estate dealer of Seattle, convicted of using the mails defraud.

He has served eight months of his sentence, and paid a fine and costs of $10,000. With allowance for good behavior he will be released in about two months.

C. W. McGEE ELEVATED.

Clifford W. McGee, of North Plainfield, who has been associated with the Standard Oil Company at 26 Broadway, New York, has been elected vice president of the Cheeseborough Manufacturing Company, with headquarters on State street, New York.

SMALL BOARD PLANS FOR ITS ORGANIZATION

J. P. Owens and Other Appointees Attend Conference Held at Elizabeth.

A conference was held by the Democratic majority of the new Board of Freeholders at Elizabeth, when the program for the coming year was taken up for consideration. John P. Owens, of this city, the caucus choice for county attorney; Abe J. David, of Elizabeth, selected for county collector, and William A. Bourdon, of Elizabeth, successful candidate for clerk, were also present. It was said that the meeting was to enable the officials to become better acquainted and to have a general understanding among them.

Consolidating the different committees so that seven men may do the work now distributed among twenty was one of the principal topics. The large board has as many committees as it has members, and several of these committees must of necessity be placed under one heading by the small board.

One of the members declared this morning that "the matter of economy in the conduct of the business of the county was dwelled upon very heavily," and that "it was the unanimous opinion of the members of the board that the board prepare to organize so that the county may have the benefit of the good effects intended by the small board act."

Two or three more conferences will be held during the next ten days. The make-up of committees was not touched upon, it is said, and the same was true of the districting of the county for the benefit of the Bridges and Road Committees. It was expected that the latter would be discussed.

No selection was made for road inspector, it is also stated, although this is about the only position open on the Democratic slate. Thomas J. Pierson, the choice for director, presided, and Mr. Bourdon acted as clerk.

TAFT NAMES DONNELLY ATLANTIC CITY POSTMASTER

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Among the appointments sent to the Senate yesterday by the President was that of Louis H. Donnelly to be postmaster at Atlantic City, N. J. The appointment was laid over.

The only confirmation made by the Senate was that of John H. Brown to be postmaster at Concord, N. H. This was done as a courtesy to Senator Gallinger.

KERWIN'S HOTEL GETS A LICENSE

Judge Daly Said Opposition Was Against Kerwin Only.

SURPRISE EXPRESSED

Piscataway Township Committee and Many Private Citizens Back Thomas F. Doyle Who Will Run Saloon Near This City's Borders.

New Brunswick, Dec. 20 (Special).—Judge Peter Daly, in the Middlesex County Court, today granted a liquor license to Thomas P. Doyle for his hotel in Piscataway township, close to the Plainfield line. This hotel was formerly conducted by Lawrence Kerwin, and the license was revoked for violations of the law and as the result of numerous complaints. Doyle is a son-in-law of Kerwin, recently taking charge of the place.

Doyle was represented in court by Thomas H. Haggerty, who presented a petition bearing the names of the members of the Township Committee and a large number of residents of the township, asking the court to grant the license.

Judge Daly in granting the license said that the records show that in the past the opposition seemed to be against Mr. Kerwin, and not especially against the hotel. He said that he would not think for one moment of granting the license except for the general strong petition asking for it, and it seemed to him that a licensed placed there was a necessity. Notwithstanding the petition favoring the application, there was considerable surprise over the action of the court.

TOUCHING APPEALS TO GOOD FELLOWS

Samples of Some Letters to Santa Claus Written by Poor Little Fellows.

"Please send us the names of two little boys in the —— —— district. We are two little boys and are passing bills to get money to be Santa Claus to two little boys."

Chief Good Fellow received the above letter from two little Good Fellows yesterday. Scores of such generous responses from those whose hearts have been opened to the appeal for the poor children are being received at this office daily.

Many children are touched by the thought of other tots not having the "big" time at Christmas they have been used to, and they are responding magnificently to the call of the chief.

Good Fellow has secured Santa Clauses for hundreds of poor children throughout the city. Plainfielders are famous for their philanthropy, but the Good Fellow class has excelled itself this season in volunteering.

But, there are other children—many of them—for whom no Good Fellow Santa Claus has been secured. The chief wants to make especial appeal today for help for about 50 colored children who will not have even the meager Christmas if some Good Fellow does not volunteer to make it for them.

A letter breathing forth the very essence of the Christmas spirit—good will to men and the giving of joy to others—was among the many received yesterday.

It reads: "Please send me the names of two children that I may care for this Christmas. Formerly I have cared for four and five youngsters, but this year my finances are not in so good shape as before and I can only provide a real Christmas for two kids.

"It is such a pleasure to me to see the children enjoy their presents. It is worth more to me than the time used in buying or the cost of the gifts."

Sacrifice, the essential spirit of true giving, is expressed in every line of that letter and such Good Fellows are assured of the biggest kind of reward in the happiness of the children.

One Good Fellow, an enthusiastic one, too, wrote in detail of his visit to a home where he was assigned, instead of providing a little Christmas for the baby girl he asked for, he decided to get other persons to help him in caring for all the family, which he declares is a most needy one.

CREELMAN QUITS.

New York, Dec. 20.—James Creelman, president of the Municipal Commission, admitted today that he had resigned his position to Mayor Gaynor. He said that his resignation had been in the hands of the Mayor for some time. When he was asked for his reason for resigning, he refused to make any comment, saying that if made public it should come from the Mayor.

FREEHOLDERS HEED BOROUGH'S PROTEST

Decide on Wing Walls to Meet West End Bridge Needs.

The protest embodied in a resolution and sent to the Somerset County Board of Freeholders by the North Plainfield Council regarding the poor and dangerous condition of the West End avenue bridge, bore fruit this morning when the Board's bridge committee, accompanied by Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., engineers, members of the North Plainfield Council and several prominent citizens of the borough visited the structure and unanimously decided to have erected four "wing walls," each 25 feet long, which will remedy the existing defective conditions.

The party traveled in automobiles to the West End avenue structure and the defects of the bridge and the present possibility of accidents were pointed out by Councilman Alexander Milne, who brought the matter to the attention of the Council at the last meeting. It was also shown that the roadway was being washed away in places because of the lack of the protecting walls. All of Mr. Milne's suggestions were approved by County Engineer Joshua Doughty and Borough Engineer H. C. Van Emburgh.

After the meeting at the bridge the Freeholders retired to the Borough Council chambers and made their decision known. They also adopted a resolution authorizing the County Clerk to notify the State Road Commissioners that the State appropriation toward the building of the Franklin Park, Liberty Corner and Bernard Townships roads was due. Luncheon was served at Blatz's Hotel in Somerset street.

Those in the party were Mayor Clark, Freeholders Thomas H. Dougherty, William Deater, Oak Dilts, E. J. Hoagland, J. S. Everett, J. S. Powelson, I. V. Adams, Frank D. Remsen, J. E. Ogle, J. B. Brown, Peter H. Smith, George Kirch, Engineers Joshua Doughty and H. C. VanEmburgh, County Attorney J. A. Frech; William S. Kershaw, William L. Smalley, former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, D. J. Carney, George Benbrook, H. C. Van Emburgh, and Councilmen Edmund Rushmore and Alexander Milne.

BOROUGH'S SCHOOLS REJOICE OVER XMAS

Yuletide Exercises Mark Last Day Before the Holiday Vacation.

The North Plainfield public schools held Christmas exercises this morning. County Superintendent H. C. Krebs received a hearty welcome when introduced by Principal Phelps as the chief speaker. Superintendent Vossler led the singing, including an anthem by the High School entitled, "Blessed Be the Lord."

Six grades of the primary department held union exercises with an elaborate program. A special feature was a violin solo by Myrtle Kettenring, who was accompanied at the piano by Lillian Pettingill. The program of songs and recitations was as follows:

"A Stitch In Time," Gladys Davis; "A Plan," Edna Seader; "We Three," Florence Shampanore; "A Letter to Santa Claus," Joseph Seidel; "A Letter from Santa Claus," Roland Clark; "Merry Christmas," Eleanor Wood; "Poor Santa Claus," Frances Delamater; "The Kitten's Christmas," Lillian Doty; "An Xmas Stocking," Leslie Stites; "A Little Boys' Wish," Howard Terry; "Coming of Santa Claus," Irving Dodge; "The First Xmas," three girls of 3-B class; "Xmas In All Lands," four pupils of 4-B grade; "Dear Old Tree," Gladys De Nise; "Mamma's Present," Ethel Stryker; "Visit of St. Nicholas," Gladys Barrett; "He Comes In the Night," Adelaide Jones, and "Signs of Xmas," Roswell Ewart. A Christmas carol was sung by Elizabeth Miller and Marjorie Martin. The entire department joined in singing "America," "Jolly Santa Claus" and "Tell Me, Santa."

The kindergarten exercises, under the direction of Miss French and her assistants, Miss Stauffer and Miss Westfal, were attended by many mothers. The room was handsomely decorated and a Christmas tree bearing many presents stood in one corner. "Pieces" were recited by William Connot, Fred Diene, Biddie Ross, Alberta Dolliver, Mildred Bamberger, John Emmons, Harold Chandler, and Frances Van Nest.

The most popular part of the program was the playing of the kindergarten band, consisting of six pieces under the direction of Master William Connot. The band received much applause and three encores. Miss Stauffer presided at the piano.

The Watchung School held exercises consisting of recitations and songs.

CANDY KING'S SON IS FATALLY HURT

John S. Huyler Falls Beneath Train and Both His Legs Are Amputated.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Morristown, Dec. 20.—John S. Huyler, son of the late John S. Huyler, the millionaire candy manufacturer, was perhaps fatally injured here this morning by falling beneath a train. Both of his legs were crushed to the knee so that immediate amputation was necessary. He is said to have little hope of recovery. The young man is nineteen years old and is a student of Princeton University.

With a party of friends, young Huyler was preparing to return home in New York after a brief visit to friends in Morristown.

GOVERNOR WILSON WON'T OPPOSE L. R. TAYLOR

Trenton, Dec. 20.—Governor Wilson had a conference yesterday with Assemblyman Leon R. Taylor, of Monmouth county, who is to be speaker of the next House. They spent an hour together in the Governor's private office. The Governor informed Mr. Taylor that he had favored the candidacy of Assemblyman Charles O'Connor Hennessy, of Bergen county, for the speakership.

"Then you were opposed to my election," said Mr. Taylor.

The Governor replied that his preference for Hennessy did not mean opposition to Taylor. The Governor told Mr. Taylor that he had full confidence in him and felt that he would have his aid in carrying out the progressive program to which the Democrats of the State are committed by their platform.

Mr. Taylor, after his interview with the Governor, said:

"Governor Wilson told me that he had nothing against me personally and that in the speakership contest he preferred Assemblyman Charles O'Connor Hennessy, of Bergen county, because he came from the northern end of the State.

"The Governor and I had a very satisfactory talk and I am sure that we shall have a harmonious session.

"Do you intend the recognize the Democratic Assemblymen from Essex county in your committee assignments?"

"The Democratic Assemblymen of Essex represent one of the most important counties of the State," replied Mr. Taylor, "and I shall give them all the recognition to which they are entitled. I shall be fair and impartial to all concerned. That is what Governor Wilson's rule is too."

The Governor also had a conference yesterday with former Supreme Court Justice Van Syckel and Chancellor Walker to talk over proposed amendments to the corporation law. Before he leaves Trenton for Washington the Governor will help to frame a bill to regulate Jersey corporations. In the recent Presidential campaign the fact that nothing had been done in this State to control the creation of trusts was used as an attack on Wilson. It is likely that the Governor will deal in his message with the question of trust regulation.

CHICAGO'S MAYOR PLANS FOR MUNICIPAL CONTROL

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Mayor Harrison is discussing the posible results of negotiations now pending for the merger of surface and electric street railway lines. He has outlined a plan whereby all local transportation facilities including a subway yet to be built, may become the property of the city without the payment of any money. The plan would provide that the city have the right to take over the entire plant on a valuation decided upon in advance.

COUNT BONI GETS A JOB.

Engaged to Set Up French Furnishings In California House.

Count Boni de Castellane, former husband of Anna Gould, who established himself as something of an art authority by the building and furnishing of beautiful homes in and out of Paris, will, it is reported, come to this country again, not on a social mission, but for the purely commercial purpose of being adviser of a millionaire who is to have a beautiful, costly and storied room in his new home.

M. Francis Carolan of San Francisco is having erected an imposing house at Burlingame and will have installed there a room, part of an old royal chateau in France, which he purchased recently for $5,000.

Count Boni has been engaged to set up the entire room and designate the historically proper furnishing thereof.

IONA CELEBRATES ITS TWENTIETH BIRTHDAY

Dance and Social Marks Anniversary of the Degree of Pocahontas.

The twentieth anniversary of Iona Council, No. 14, Degree of Pocohontas, was observed last night by the members after the regular business meeting. A social and dance was held.

The council was founded twenty years ago by Daniel M. Stevens, at that time great chief of records of the Red Men, and Fred Wahl, great sachem of the Red Men in the old Red Men's Hall on West Front street, with a charter membership of twenty five. Thirteen years ago the great council of the Degree of Pocohontas was formed in the State and has since that time been independent of the Red Men, although it is still an auxiliary of that body. During the existence of Iona Council it has had the honor of furnishing two members for the office of Great Pocohontas the highest office in the State. They were Mrs. Charles Holstein, of this city, and Mrs. Charles Dodwell, of Dunellen.

Dancing was enjoyed last night by the younger folks present, while their elders chatted or played cards. The music for the dancing was furnished by Naylor. At the close of the social refreshments in abundance were served.

The committee in charge were Charles Meyer, chairman; Mrs. Sadie Bowman, Mrs. Emily Hallard, Mrs Lena Meyer, Miss Viola Munday, Daniel W. Mundy and Miss Carrie Hofferd.

MUSIC TO BE FEATURE.

A feature of the Christmas dance to be given at the Hartridge Auditorium, Friday night, December 27, will be the music to be furnished by "Black" Sousa's orchestra of twenty pieces. There will be almost continuous dancing throughout the evening. The affair is to be held under the patronage of a number of society women of the city and borough.

The Wonders of the CHRISTMAS TOY INDUSTRY

A Toy Maker on her Way to Market with her Wares

A Mechanical Bagatelle Player

A Toy Areoplane which Rises and Falls Hanging to a String

The Finishing Touches

Covering the Animals with Skins in a Nuremberg Toy Factory

A Crew that Can Row on the Water

TOYS, though inanimate, have a real existence in the child world—an existence which not only amuses but instructs us in our days of infantile freedom from care and responsibility. It is not unnatural that the child, whose mind and ideas are far removed from the hard realities of life, should fasten its attention and interest on that class of objects which are only imitations of the actual but which in some degree reflect and express what has real existence. No one of mature years who watches the child playing with his toys can doubt the reality of the world in which the toy and the child are temporarily living, nor doubt from the absorbing interest and serious manner of the child that there is something in that world created by the toy which appeals to the child nature. The two are linked indissolubly to each other and will always make the toy industry a successful business enterprise and an interesting study of child life as reflected and expressed in the realms of toydom.

In all ages of the world's history children have loved toys. History records the fact that figures of animals such as horses, goats and dogs, were found among the toys made of pottery years before the Christian era. Even the mechanical toy is not a new invention, for in ancient Greece, where moving statuary astonished or amused both rich and poor, there was scarcely an Athenian house which did not possess a mechanical toy of some sort. Moving figures of saints were used in churches centuries ago, and automatic angels which flapped their wings were known as far back as 1700. A silver acrobat performing on a horizontal bar of gold was one of the toys which amused King Louis XVI. In the sixteenth century Bernardino Baldi, a mathematician, made great strides in perfecting a mechanical appliance to be placed inside of large dolls. It was a crude, clumsy affair, much too heavy for a child to use as a toy, but from this has evolved the walking doll.

Balls, tops and marbles seem to have been used since the world began, and many of the games played with these articles and supposed to be new fads are older than our nation. In the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries top-spinning was a common amusement in Japan. Toy soldiers, doll houses and musical tops of all sorts have been used for centuries and many of them have interesting histories. It is not the purpose, however, of the writer to go into these details, but to give the reader some facts regarding the unique toys which Santa Claus will distribute in America this year, and to tell something of the wonderful toyland across the water.

Germany is the home of the toy, for more than thirty thousand of her citizens are engaged in the manufacture of playthings for children. Nuremburg, the quaint old city in the Kingdom of Bavaria, has maintained its place as the centre of the trade. One toy factory, said to be the largest of its kind in the world, employs fifteen hundred persons. Many of the smaller factories make a specialty of some certain kind of a toy—for instance, there are fifty-two factories where wooden and horn toys are turned out, and twenty factories which are devoted exclusively to the manufacture of religious toys such as miniature altars, churches for Christmas tree gardens, etc. Hundreds of small factories for general toy making are in operation. Many playthings, too, are the products of the "house industry," that is, they are made in the homes of the peasants, only the members of the family participating. This class of work, however, is not as common in the towns as it is in the nearby mountain districts. Once a week wagons are sent through the forests to collect the toys that have been made each week. The villagers of the Erz produce some well made unique articles. A few playthings are turned out by the peasants of the Thuringian forests as well, but the people here devote the greater part of their time to doll manufacture. The toys made in Nuremburg are of every conceivable size and kind, but the principal products are metal and mechanical toys—lead and tin soldiers, flying machines, swimming and diving toys, beasts that walk and birds that fly, musical toys, magic lanterns, celluloid toys, rattles, building blocks, puzzles, etc. Each Christmas season there is some special fad in these playthings—a run, so to speak, on a certain article. This year the demand is for soldiers. It seems curious, but it is nevertheless true, that the events of the day shape the playthings of our children. Nine out of every ten boys until they are twelve years of age at least want to be soldiers, and the desire is much greater if there is a war in progress in some part of the world. The Balkan war has caused an increased demand for play soldiers, and the orders from America are fairly swamping the German toy makers. Soldiers representing the armies of Bulgaria, Servia, Greece and Montenegro are asked for. Heretofore the toy makers had paid little attention to the types of soldiers found in these countries, and when the first orders arrived they did not even have pictures of these soldiers, to say nothing of models of them. The manufacturers at once sent a man out to secure photographs from life, and from these have been made types of the invincible troops which astonished the world in their fight against Turkey, and for the next year thousands of American children will re-enact the battles of the Balkan war. These soldier men are made of tin, lead or wood. Thousands of them are manufactured near the Troedel market in Nuremburg, where a large amount of machinery is used in their manufacture. The machines are ingenious contrivances which are easily manipulated, and in many of the factories they are operated by girls. The little tin men are cut out of big sheets of metal and then turned over to the girls who color them up according to the clothing worn by the nations they are supposed to represent. The lead soldiers are mounted and will stand up better than the others owing to their weight. The wooden ones are also turned out by machinery and are in quality the most inferior of the lot.

The general interest in aeronautics has made the aeroplane one of the popular toys for Christmas, and various types of flying machines have been placed on the market. These are the products of the Nuremburg factories and the majority of them are worked on the principle of a clock—that is, they are wound up with a key and will run for a given length of time. A biplane suspended to a string will fly around in a circle for several minutes, a dirigible balloon rises and falls as if blown by the wind, while the monoplane is attached to a rod with a lead ball on the other end and balanced on an upright rod. It is set in motion by winding the clock-work. The propeller revolves just as the one attached to a real aeroplane and the machine rises gracefully and glides in a circle until it reaches the top of the upright rod. Then by a series of spiral glides it descends and rises again until the clockwork runs down. This toy is really attractive even to the adult and has already had a big sale.

A mechanical bagatelle player, who shoots the balls at certain intervals, is one of the newest toys, and this with another, which represents a man riding in an automobile and blowing a horn, are likely to be among the popular sellers. Turtles that creep over the floor, spiders and dragons that crawl and frogs that jump are also shown. All sorts of water toys are on the market, from the models of our dreadnoughts to the tiny, noisy motor boats. An especially attractive one in this line is a crew of sailors in a racing shell. It can be wound up and put on water. The effect is rather startling, for the crew begin to row in a perfectly lifelike manner and continues several minutes rowing in perfect unison. Animals and birds that can make a noise are always popular, and some really excellent specimens are being offered. These, too, are German products and genuine art is shown in their making. These are usually the work of the smaller factories. The frames are either of wood or wire or composition, the latter being preferable as the shape of the animal is more perfect. Covering the body with the skins of various kinds is almost as difficult as making furs, for the seams must not show. The covers for the different animals are cut by girls but fastening them on the animal is done by men. There is a lot of trimming up and polishing rough edges, putting in "feelers" or "smellers" in animals such as lions and tigers, etc.

Carved wooden toys are the products of the Tyrol, and there the workers carve out wooden animals with astonishing rapidity. The work is hereditary, and an American who recently visited this part of the world tells the story of an old woman whose skill was confined to six animals—cats, dogs, goats, wolves, sheep and elephants. She had carved these six animals all her life and had no idea how to do aynthing else. She made them in two sizes and turned out perhaps one thousand every year. She had no model or drawing of any kind, but from force of habit she cut them exact. She declared that she had learned the art from her mother and that her mother had learned it in like manner from her grandmother, and that she expected her daughter to pass the art of cutting these six animals down to future generations. Many of the old women toy makers load their goods in baskets and walk many miles to market. They are pathetic pictures of industry as they tramp along the roads with their heavy burdens.

The Story of the Christmas Crib

Elaborate Nativity Group

Picturesque Rustic Nativity

Church of the Nativity, Bethlehem Cross Shows Location of Original Manger

Simple Group

FROM the 12th Century at least we have had at Christmas and Easter, dramatic representations of the Shepherds, the adoration of the Magi, the massacre of the Innocents, the Resurrection.

From these representations grew the mystery plays and undoubtedly St. Francis of Assisi, to whom story and legend attribute the credit of having originated and arranged the first Presipio or Nativity, received the idea of making real for the people who could neither read nor visit picture galleries, this wonderful scene of the Nativity.

The Christmas Crib, as everybody knows, represents the manger of the Inn in Bethlehem, with the Holy Child, Joseph and Mary, the wise men who came with their offerings and various other figures, more or less realistic.

The story and legend connected with this dramatic representation of the birth of Christ, has many variations, but the one usually accredited with the greatest accuracy is given in Sabatier's "Life of St. Francis," and runs as follows:

It was on one of the Saint's pilgrimages from Rome to Rieti; it was nearing the holiday season, and Francis was filled with an ardent desire to observe to the life the memories of Christmas that had taken possession of him. He consulted one of his knights, Giovanni di Greccio, who became filled with the same desire and he agreed to make all the necessary preparations.

The population of Greccio and its environs was asked to join with them, as well as the Brothers from the neighboring monasteries. On the evening of the vigil of Christmas, one might have seen the faithful hastening to the hermitage with torches in their hands; they came in great numbers from all directions and made the forest ring with their joyful hymns.

Everyone was rejoicing and Francis most of all. The knight had prepared a stable and arranged a manger filled with straw; into this was placed the poor bambino whose only warmth came from the breath of the ox and ass who stood patiently by.

St. Francis was transported; his heart was in Bethlehem; matins were chanted, then Mass and the deacon read the Gospel. Every heart was touched by the simple recital of the sacred legend in a voice so gentle and fervent. They were living over again the feeling of the Shepherds of Judea who made the first pilgrimage of adoration.

Visitors to Rieti are today shown the chapel built upon the spot by the Lord of Velenta, who was a devoted adherent of the Saint.

With this introduction by St. Francis, the Presipio, Nativity, Crech, Crib, Naciamento, as it is variously called in different countries, has found its way and attained prominent place in the Christmas festivities of all Christian nations.

At first it was only arranged in Catholic churches and in a very crude manner patterned after the first one, but as time went on the nativities grew more elaborate and expensive until now they are very costly. Within the past century Protestant churches have adopted the charming custom and the fashion is rapidly growing.

In European countries the custom of the Nativity spread to the palaces of royalty where the figures were carved by the best artists of the time. Some of these have been conserved and are found in a fine state of preservation in the museums.

There is one in the Pitti Gallery, Florence, a very fine one which is credited to Buonholenti, the celebrated architect. He was employed by the wife of Casimo, 1st, to plan and arrange the Presipio, and to carve the figures, when he was only in his teens. This is perhaps the most celebrated one extant.

In a monastery near Naples, San Marino, there is an elaborate Presipio. In addition to the simple manger with the Holy Child, Joseph and Mary and the Wise Men, there are dozens of figures clad in the costumes of the 15th Century. It is a wonderful representation and a very fine piece of work. From it one may read the history of the customs and costumes of that period.

In an early century the ducal family of Visconti, established in Milan the custom of having a Presipio in the palace for the ducal children.

Catherine de Medici was so pleased with the idea that she had one arranged in the Riccardi Palace.

The mother of the present King of Spain had a Naciament arranged for the royal boy, in the palace. She called to her aid several of the best artists of Andalusia with the result exceeding their expectations. This Naciament was so artistic that it has been preserved in the museum at Madrid.

The Presipio at St. Peter's is a very elaborate and ornamental representation. The figures are exquisitely made of composition or carved of wood, most artistically. Occasionally some of these figures, when they have served their purpose, are found for sale in the shops of Rome and Florence. To the Italians, who are very superstitious, they have a semi-supernatural power, and are believed to be able to work miracles, heal the sick and accomplish other difficult tasks. A goodly price is asked for them, but in spite of this, they are quickly bought by tourists or natives.

Pilgrims from all parts of the world visit the Church of the Nativity at Bethlehem, which is very simple and bare of ornamentation. Three steps lead down to the chapel of the manger where a shining star marks the exact spot of the Saviour's birth. The manger, which the tourist of today sees, is of marble and contains a wax image which is used to represent the Infant Jesus.

The original manger was taken away in early days and is now carefully conserved in the Church of Maria Maggiore in Rome, as one of its most precious relics.

There are several processions at Christmas in the Church of the Nativity, when the Christ Child is carried from chapel to chapel. At last, with solemn mien, the image is laid in its cold marble cradle.

The simple portrayal of the scene at Bethlehem is very dear to the children of today and is always associated with tender memories of the blessed Christmas-tide.

In some of the churches in Italy there are ribbons attached to the crib and devout women are given the privilege of pulling them and gently rocking the Holy Child.

For weeks before Christmas one may see in certain shops, devoted to the sale of religious objects, the "Crib" displayed in a variety of ways. Some of them are very elaborate, but all are manufactured of papier-mache or cardboard, so cunningly contrived that clouds and angels are seen to move.

These are not expensive and are bought, principally for the simple Nativities, which are arranged in the homes of devout Catholics. They are made in sections and are easily taken apart and put together so that when the holiday season is over they can be carefully packed away until Christmas comes again. They have painted backgrounds showing camels, shepherds and numberless sheep, and the Three Wise Men with their gifts, cut out in separate figures.

Some of the Nativities in our churches are very simple, consisting of a stable with a thatched roof, the crib containing the Christ Child with the adoring Mary and Joseph on either side. Again the crib may be very elaborate and show many figures, including the ox and the ass. There is one very clever presentation of St. Francis' grotto with the crib and the angels and attendant figures arranged without a stable.

LEGENDS of the CHRISTMAS GREENS

Bringing Home the Christmas Tree An Up-to-date Method

The Old Way of Bringing in the Christmas Trees

The Christmas Tree

A Christmas Basket While Heather, Palms, and Poinsetta

"Want to Buy Some Christmas Greens, Lady?"

MANY legends have been woven about the greens used for decorations at Christmas time—beautiful stories of the part the plants and flowers played in the homage paid to the Christ Child in the manger. We read of the rose in the Advent Antiphones, where it is proclaimed that at the coming of Christ "The desert and the byways shall rejoice and the solitude be glad and blossom as the rose. Budding it shall burgeon and exult, praising with exceeding joy, for the glory of Libanus is given to Him, the beauty of Carmel and Sharon shall see the glory of the Lord and the excellency of our God!" "Bring roses to Him," says the legend, "and the iris lily and winter aconite and hellebore, for they are Christmas roses like the rose of Jericho."

The Scriptures are silent regarding the part the flowers really played at the birth of Christ, but the ancient mystery plays present a rather pretty legend of the origin of the rose. They tell the story of how when the shepherds hastened to the humble stable they were accompanied by a poor girl named Madelon. The shepherds brought warm fleeces for the Blessed Mother to lie on and played rustic pipes as their tribute of reverence. Madelon had only her symbolic offerings to offer at the sight of [illegible] and her own helplessness [illegible] down on that [illegible] the Angel Gabriel.

"Why weepest thou in thy prayers, Madelon?" asked the Angel. "Because, my lord, I have naught to bring the Infant Jesus. Alas, I am distraught! Had I but some flowers for Him my soul would rejoice, but the frost binds the ground and the Spring is far away."

Then the Angel took her hand and led her out into the night, but it was not night for her for the golden sunshine beamed upon them. At length the Angel stopped and struck his staff upon the earth, whereat sweetest flowers sprang into life and Madelon in joy gathered a great wreath of roses. She hastened back to the stable and wove garlands, wreathing the manger and hanging a garland on the neck of a lamb that stood nearby. These flowers were known as Noel Roses. Whether they were like the rose of the present day is a question. Italy and Sicily have the iris for their Christ rose, and France and England find it in the yellow blossoms and shining green of the Winter aconite. If there is that much difference as to the flower known as the Noel Rose surely the legend is beautiful enough to set a world wide fashion of sending roses of the present time as gifts at Christmas time.

The Rose of Jericho still blossoms in Arabia and on the sands of Syria, and is declared by many to be the one mentioned in the Bible. When the leaves of this strange plant wither and fall the stems curl inward until it becomes a round ball whose roots break out of the loose soil. The desert winds blow the ball over the ground until it finds a place of moisture and hastens to unfold and drop its seed for germination. This typifies the Virgin Mother, whose title in many lands is the Rose of Jericho "A root out of the thirsty land, the dew of the Holy Spirit fell upon her and she gave the parched world the blessing of her Divine Son." The flower is sometimes known as "Mary's Rose," and the legend tells us how the little bud opens at all her feasts except that of the Immaculate Conception. At the moment the Christ was born on Christmas it opened and became the "Holy Night Rose."

The laurel is the emblem of the good Saint Joseph, and is often called St. Joseph's Staff. When it was made known that Mary might be wed her suitors came before the High Priest and presented to him their wands or staffs, which he laid before the Lord. Joseph's staff was of laurel and it was given place among the rest, but when the morning came divine power had brought the laurel staff of Joseph into bud and all knew that it was he who had been chosen to be Mary's protector. The meek faith and patience of this good man has been overshadowed by the mystery of the Immaculate Conception, but a study of his life shows his remarkable character. Sicily pays due honor to him in its Feast of Laurels at Christmas time, when laurel alone is used to decorate the home.

The holly with its bright red berries is the modern memento of the Burning Bush, and it typifies at once both the Virgin Mother and the Divine Child. Many of the noted painters of ancient times delighted to picture the Mother and Son within a tree of flame enthroned, still perpetuating to the eye the idea of the Immaculate Conception beautifully conveyed by the fiery red of the berries and the fresh greenness of the waxy leaves. In France there is a real Burning Bush—a wild myrtle which bears large red berries. These give forth an oil that catches fire easily and burns as it runs on the ground. The legend tells us that the plant is the Emblem of Him who became the Light of the World and the holy fire of the Divine Spirit must spread over the earth.

The mistletoe is, perhaps, the most perfect symbol of all. If human knowledge could not explain the mystery of Christ's birth no more could it account for the springing into life from a familiar tree of a mistletoe branch, absolutely different and nurtured by no parent stock. One needs only a walk through the dead forests of France and to look at the living mistletoe in its flourishing vigor to realize how early simple faith chose this strange growth to be "the Rod of Jesse which came into such glorious flower when the world had given up its hope of life in sight of its creator." The mistletoe is of Druidic origin, and in all ceremonies held by the Druids where flowers or plants were used it held a place of honor. The mistletoe kiss is not Christian at all for it seems to be a relic of the Druidic festivals.

The ivy is known in France as the Herb of Saint John, the disciple whom Jesus loved, the emblem of pure friendship, that heeds not the decay of the walls to which it clings but even holds on with a greater tenacity to the ruins, clinging close in adversity.

The Christmas tree has many legends. To the pious Germans it is known as the Tree of Light, emblematic of the manhood of the Redeemer in his decent from the patriarchs, and no Christmas tree is complete in their homes unless the pictures of the Virgin and the infant Saviour crown its decorations. The Scandinavians believe it to be a tree sprung from the blood-drenched soil where two lovers were killed by violence. On certain nights during the Christmas season lights were seen on its branches which no wind could extinguish. The French, too, have a legend which tells of a knight who saw a giant tree with its branches covered with candles, some standing erect and others pointing downward, and on the top was a beautiful child with a halo about his head. He asked the Pope for an explanation and was told that the child was the Saviour and that the lights pointing upward were the good people, and the ones pointing downward were the bad human beings.

Just who had the first Christmas tree is not known, but an old German legend gives the honor to Saint Winfred. It tells how in the midst of a crowd of converts he hewed down an oak tree, and as it fell with a crash beside a little fir tree Saint Winfred dropped his axe and spoke to the people as he pointed to the little tree which lifted its green spires toward the Heavens: "This little tree, a young child of the forest, shall be your holy tree tonight. It is a sign of peace for your houses are built of fir; it is a sign of endless life for its leaves are ever green. See, how it points to Heaven! Let this be called the tree of the Christ Child. Gather about it, not in the wild wood but in your own homes; there it will shelter no deed of blood, but loving gifts and rites of kindness."

The legend most popular in Germany attributes the idea of having a Christmas tree to Martin Luther, and some of the most popular engravings show the great reformer sitting in the bosom of his family with a lighted Christmas tree on the table before him. The story tells how Luther was traveling home alone one Christmas eve. Going through a snow-clad country, the sky with its glittering stars made a deep impression upon him, and on arriving home he tried to explain it to his wife. Suddenly an idea suggested itself to him. He went into the garden, cut off a little fir tree, dragged it into the nursery, put some candles on its branches and lighted them, and from that time the Germans had trees for their children at Christmas time. In 1830 Munich saw its first Christmas tree, when Queen Caroline held a children's festival at the palace. A year later Bohemia and Hungary had taken to the same idea.

Thousands of dollars are spent every year in holly, mistletoe, ivy, laurel, and other greens. The holly, which by the way is particularly fine this year, comes from Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the Carolinas. Of course, it grows in other sections, but these States produce the most beautiful quality. In South Carolina the holly trees have been known to attain a height of sixty feet.

One of the fads of recent years, is for the young people to go out and gather Christmas greens in automobiles—even to bring home the tree in this manner, and just before Christmas it is no uncommon sight in the country to see a man chopping down a pine tree while a bevy of girls are gathering holly and laurel and piling it into the automobile. Last year one of the finest churches in a Northern city was decorated for Christmas by the young girls of families who owned automobiles. The girls gathered the greens themselves—the young men did the decorating. The money heretofore used to pay a decorator was turned over to the girls who used it to aid poor families in having a better Christmas dinner than usual.

"Club moss" and "Crow's foot" are used for wreaths and rope decoration. Tops of scrub pines were introduced a few years ago for the finishing of places where high adornment was necessary. The cycas leaves or victory palms are much used in church decoration and come from the West Indies.

Among the flowers the poinsettia—that exquisite scarlet flower which was dragged from the Mexican swamps by the American florist and cultivated, is, perhaps, the most popular, and baskets of this mixed with white heather and ferns are considered "smart" presents for this Christmas. American Beauty roses are always in demand at the holiday season.

So, we have the rose, the holly, the laurel, the mistletoe, the pine tree and the ivy—all Christmas emblems, mythical, perhaps, in their meaning, but still remembrances of the birth of the Saviour of mankind and when at the happy Christmas time we deck our homes in garlands let us not in our merriment forget that it is being done in honor of Him "from whom cometh every good and perfect gift."

STAUNTON, VA., BIRTHPLACE OF THE PRESIDENT-ELECT, IS MAKING GREAT PLANS TO CELEBRATE HIS BIRTHDAY

Staunton, Va., Dec. 20.—President-elect Wilson and Mrs. Wilson will be here to celebrate his fifty-sixth birthday Dec. 28. He was born in the old Presbyterian manse, which was the parsonage of the church of which Mr. Wilson's father was pastor. Dr. A. M. Frazer now occupies the room in which he was born. The house, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be his guests during their stay in Staunton. Mr Wilson will occupy the room in which he was born.

"Dean of Deans" In the U. S. Foreign Service

ALVEY AUGUSTUS ADEE, just in his seventieth year, had a birthday celebration in Washington, attended by a secretary of state, a couple of assistant secretaries of state, an ambassador or two and a number of United States ministers, consuls general and hosts of diplomatic officials, who told him how glad they were that the "dean of deans" was still with them in the foreign service of the United States.

Mr. Adee celebrated the day by going to his office as second assistant secretary of state at exactly the same hour he has taken up his duties almost daily for twenty six years.

A Wide World Personality.

In the course of the day Mr. Adee received messages of congratulation from every corner of the world, testifying impressively to the way his remarkable personality and long service in the department of state have swept aside the usual anonymity of his office.

Mr. Adee is recognized at the department of state as an authority on international law and procedure. He is the most expert draftsman of state papers now in the government service.

Besides acquiring a fund of knowledge and a proficiency in his profession as an officer of state to an extent beyond the capacity of the average man, Mr. Adee has developed a versatility almost beyond belief.

He has been a frequent contributor to magazines, writing both fiction and fact; he is recognized among Shakespearean students as one of the best authorities in America, and his knowledge of the great persons of literature and literary history is seemingly limitless.

He is master of several languages, an expert in biological research—a hobby to which he is giving most of his evenings at present—and is known among collectors and students the world over. He has made many important discoveries of new species in his studies of minute forms of marine animal life.

Having taken up photography in the early days of its development in this country, Secretary Adee has made himself a master of the art, and he has in his library many thousand pictures taken by himself in his travels. An ardent bicyclist, even up to his seventieth birthday, it has been his custom for years to spend several weeks in Europe touring on his wheel.

Close Friend of John Hay.

Secretary Adee entered the foreign service in 1870, when he succeeded John Hay as secretary to Madrid. He and John Hay became close friends and this relationship continued up to the death of Secretary Hay. He was transferred to the department of state in 1877 and became chief of the diplomatic bureau in July, 1878.

On July 18, 1882, he was appointed assistant secretary of state and in 1886 was made second assistant secretary, the post which he has held from that day to this. During that period secretaries have come and gone, but Mr. Adee has remained, proving more and more his indispensableness with each succeeding administration.

Digests of American international relationships contain more excerpts from state papers written by Mr. Adee than by any other man who ever served in the diplomatic branch of the United States government.

Mr. Adee's office is the only one in the department of state which bears any sign of the personality of its occupant. In one corner hidden by a screen are various utensils called into play when Mr. Adee has his luncheon.

Years ago he decided it took too much time from his work to go down town for a midday meal.

He has at the tip of his tongue accurate data about almost every incident of international law in which the United States has been concerned.

In recent years Secretary Adee has taken no part in the social life of Washington. His office in the state department and his study and experimenting rooms in his house are the Mecca for those who enjoy his intimate acquaintance and for countless others who, returning from all parts of the world, stop to pay their respects to Mr. Adee.

LATEST PORTRAIT OF MRS. WOODROW WILSON, WHO IS TO BE HONOR GUEST AT BREAKFAST

New York, Dec. 20.—The arrangements for the "victory" reception and breakfast which the Woman's Democratic Club will give in honor of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and her daughters, at the Waldorf-Asteria tomorrow morning have been completed. Among the notable women who have accepted invitations to the reception are Mrs. Grover Cleveland, Mrs. Adlai M. Stevenson, Mrs. John A. Dix, Mrs. William J. Bryan, Mrs. Champ Clark, Mrs. Oscar Underwood, Mrs. William J. Gaynor and Mrs. Thomas Fortune Ryan.

The reception will be held at noon and breakfast will be served at one o'clock. The dining room will be decorated in the club's colors, red, white and blue, carried out in groups of American flags and tri-colored carnations, the official flower of the club. Among the guests at the reception will be Mrs. Eugene A. Foss, Mrs. William J. Gaynor, Mrs. Thomas Fortune Ryan, Mrs. William J. Stevenson, Mrs. John A. Dix, Mrs. William Sulzer, Mrs. Judson Harmon, etc.

In the course of the reception and breakfast an orchestra will play American airs, and four young women, from the North, South, East and West will sing the songs of their communities. Twenty four little girls, daughters of mothers of the club, will present Mrs. Wilson with roses to represent each State in the Union. The children will be dressed in white, and on their shoulders will be the shield of a different State.

A TRIP IN ASIA MINOR.

Scenes Along the Route From Constantinople to Antioch.

The modern traveler in visiting Antioch of Pisidia will be likely to start from Constantinople. He will take the steam ferry at the bustling Galata bridge, the most famous and the most crowded bridge perhaps in the world. He will land at Haidar Pasha after a half hour's sail, where he will take a very comfortable train on the Anatolian railway, which is built and equipped in first class German style.

For fifty miles the road winds beside the beautiful sea of Marmora, affording charming glimpses of mountain and ocean, of peaceful bay and bold surf washed headlands. At Ismid the road begins to rise and great granite mountains, snow covered through much of the year, come into view.

Through stern, rocky, barren defiles the railroad winds its way, occasionally skirting a small village of adobe houses surrounded by vineyards and by groves of olives and mulberries. The silkworm is a chief source of the little wealth of this country, and the thousands of acres of mulberry trees furnish him with food.

We are now indeed in the land of the classics. This is the very route that Cyrus the Younger followed with his great army, 400 years before Christ, in the expedition of which Xenophon tells us.

At the town of Chai, where we arrive at noon on the second day, the army of Cyrus mutinied and halted for five days, demanding an increase of pay. Thus we see that strikes and quarrels over wages are not altogether things of modern invention. Near here, too, was fought a great battle a hundred years later, when Seleucus I., the founder of Antioch and the mighty ruler of all this region, defeated Antigonus, the one eyed general of Cappadocia.—Christian Herald.

ITS "GRAND OLD LADY" 101 YRS. OF AGE TODAY

Steady Stream of Callers at Mrs. Priscilla Inslee's Home in New Brunswick.

New Brunswick, Dec. 20.—New Brunswick's "Grand Old Lady," Mrs. Priscilla Inslee, widow of John B. Inslee, is today celebrating the one hundred and first anniversary of her birthday at her home here, and there has been an almost steady line of callers at the house all day. Despite her advanced age, Mrs. Inslee does not look one day older than seventy years.

Mrs. Inslee received many gifts, including four large birthday cakes, one hundred and one American Beauty Roses from friends and one hundred and one carnations from the Lodge of Royal Masons, of which her only son, Ayres Inslee, is a member.

The aged celebrant enjoys good health and her digestion is especially good. Only a few days ago she ate some mince pie without any ill effects. Today she is gowned in the latest fashion and when attention was called to this fact, she declared that she did not like the dress of the early days and besides she believed in being up-to-date.

TELEPHONE TROUBLES IN PANAMA.

The construction of the telephone line in the Panama canal zone was by no means an easy task, says the New York Telephone Review. Linemen do not need climbing hooks, as rails are used instead of wooden poles, owing to the keen appetite of the ants, which eat out the inside and cause the poles to crumble. On one line which extends through a jungle for about thirty miles two colored men are employed as trouble hunters. Equipped with machettes, they start at each end of the line, cutting their way until they meet, when they turn back and resume the same operation, as the vegetation has grown so rapidly behind them in the meantime. Another difficulty encountered has been the maintaining of the pole line through some of the swampy regions. In several instances the poles of railroad iron have gradually sunk into the ground until it became necessary to splice on an additional rail, and in some places three such sections of rail have been found to sink down in the swamp while only twenty or thirty feet remained above the surface.

INTERESTING PICTURE OF CROWN PRINCE GUSTAV ADOLF OF SWEDEN AND HIS FAMILY

This is a recent picture of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden and his family. He married Princess Margaret of Connaught, in 1905. Their oldest son, who will in time be the crown prince and later the king of Sweden if he survives his father and the dynasty continues, is named for his father. He was born in 1906. Prince Sigvard was born in 1907. Princess Ingrid was born in 1910, and the baby son was born Feb. 28, 1912. The picture is a document in human happiness without regard to rank.

AMERICAN WOMEN A POTENT FORCE IN POLITICS OF GREAT NATIONS

German Edict Against Foreign Marriages Draws Attention to Fact

In Washington at Present Fifteen Diplomats Have Yankee Wives

THE edict of the German imperial chancellor against the marriage of members of the German diplomatic corps with foreign women is not as sweeping as it appears on the surface, but is merely the repetition of the old Bismarck rule by which the chancellery reserves the right to pass judgment upon these foreign matches and, if such matches are made over its veto, demands the resignation of the diplomatist from the German service. A member of the German embassy may marry an American woman tomorrow if he wishes, provided he has first satisfied his government that the match is expedient.

There was much speculation in Washington regarding the German ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, whose wife was Miss Jeanne Lutkemeyer of New York.

German Diplomats' Yankee Wives.

Bismarck's prohibition was allowed to lapse into disregard when Prince Bernhard von Buelow became chancellor. He married an Italian, Princess Maria Beccadelli di Bologna, and headed a service which has been liberally represented by American women, among them Lillian May Langham of Louisville, Ky., wife of the late Ambassador Baron Speck von Sternburg; a great-granddaughter of John Jay, the wife of General Hans Lother von Schweinitz, who was an eminent soldier as well as ambassador at several capitals; Helen Moulton of Albany, who married Count Paul von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, once ambassador to England and afterward foreign minister; Maud Cass Ledyard of Detroit, whose husband, Baron von Ketteler, was assassinated in Peking by Boxers.

COUNTESS VON BERNSTORFF (ABOVE) AND BARONESS VON STERNBURG.

Prior to the last decade a number of well known Americans married German diplomats of great distinction. Miss Fanny Dickinson Hazeltine of Grand Rapids, Mich., married Count Adolf Montgelas when he was an attache of the embassy at Washington.

Miss Muriel White, daughter of a former American ambassador to France, became the bride of Count Hermann Seherr-Thoss during her father's regime at Paris.

Another marriage was that of Adolph von Bruening, one of the richest but untitled attaches to the German embassy at Washington, and Mrs. Gordon McKay.

Fifteen Notable Wives Here.

Fifteen diplomats with American wives—that is the record held at present by the corps in Washington. Six of the women who are now popular members of the corps made their homes in Washington at one time or another prior to their marriages.

The former dean of the corps, Baron Hengelmuller of Austria-Hungary, a privy councilor and member of the house of magnates in Hungary, has gone home, but there remain among the ambassadors several eminent diplomats bearing titles. The French ambassador, M. Jusserand, now dean of the corps, has no title, but he has an American wife, formerly Miss Richards of Boston, who lived most of her early life in France. Captain de Chambrun, the military attache, has an American wife, for the Countess de Chambrun is a daughter of Mrs. Longworth of Cincinnati, O., and a sister-in-law of the former Miss Alice Roosevelt.

The Turkish embassy is also presided over by an American, for the wife of the ambassador's son was formerly Miss Carey Fellows. Her father was Richard Fellows of New York.

The Russian ambassador, George Bakhmeteff, also has an American wife, and among the attaches are numbered some of the leading diplomats stationed in Washington.

The Greek minister to Washington, L. A. Coromilas, who is now at work in Greece, although still officially attached here, also has an American wife, who lives in Washington for a number of years. She was formerly Miss Anna Cockrell, daughter of former Senator Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri.

Spain, too, has an American chatelaine for its legation. Senor Don Juan Riano, chamberlain to the king of Spain and Spanish minister here since May, 1910, married Miss Alice Ward of Washington.

Wife of the Belgian Minister.

Another former Washington girl is chatelaine at the Belgian legation. Mrs. E. Havenith, wife of the minister, was formerly Miss Helen Ffoulke, daughter of the late Charles M. Ffoulke of Washington.

The wife of W. A. F. Ekengren, the Swedish minister, was formerly Miss Laura Jackson, daughter of Mrs. John P. Jackson of Washington.

The Persian legation, of which Hizri Ali Kuli Khan has been charge d'affaires since August, 1910, has seen several royalties in recent years. Mme. Ali Kuli Khan was formerly Miss Florence Breed of Boston, well known as a lecturer and writer.

MME. BAKHMETEFF (ABOVE) AND MME. ALI KULI KHAN.

Senor Don Ignacio Calderon, minister from Bolivia, who has been stationed here since May 27, has an American wife.

The marriage recently of Dominica da Gama, Brazilian ambassador at Washington, to Mrs. Elizabeth Bell of New York in New York added another American woman to the already long list who are members of the diplomatic corps.

THE FORUM.

OPPOSES WATER MOVE.

Editors Daily Press:

Before Plainfield spends any more money in litigating with the water company for the purpose of obtaining control of the water supply at Netherwood, it would be a good plan for the city officials and the people as well to realize the situation that would exist, even if a reversal of the recent decision of the Supreme Court could be obtained. It would be better to realize the actual facts, instead of ignoring or attempting to defy them.

The object of the condemnation proceedings started last spring was to obtain title to the pumping station and water supply at Netherwood and the mains of the company heretofore laid in the city and, also, to acquire the right of the company to pump water from the ground anywhere within the territory of the city. Suppose the city should accomplish everything it undertook to do: Would that give us a monopoly of the water supply at Netherwood? The gentlemen who have been advocating the condemnation proceedings probably think so, but, if they do, they are totally mistaken. Their view rests on nothing but wishes, and not at all on the facts or the law relating to the matter.

There are four water companies besides the Plainfield-Union Water Company that have a clear legal right to pump water from wells either within the limits of the city or directly along its borders, which would have the same effect on the underground supply as if those companies had pumping stations in operation within the city. One of those four companies is the Elizabeth Water Company, which is now and for years has been getting a part of its supply from the wells at Netherwood. The charter of that company was granted in the year 1854, and may be found in the pamphlet laws of that year at page 203. In 1872 a supplement to the charter was passed (pamphlet laws 1872, p. 874), and by that supplement the Elizabeth company was authorized "to enter at all times upon all lands or water in the county of Union, and survey, locate and bore for water, and to locate pipes, drains, reservoirs and other buildings and fixtures," for the purpose of procuring water for domestic and public uses of the citizens of Elizabeth and places adjacent thereto. It will be noticed that the charter of the company grants the power directly to obtain water from any source in Union county, including the city of Plainfield.

The second of the four companies is Middlesex Water Company, which has recently erected a pumping station and is now actually engaged in pumping water in the southerly part of the city of Plainfield west of Park avenue. That company supplies water to all of the municipalities in Middlesex county north of the Raritan River, except Rahway and Perth Amboy.

The third is the Piscataway Water Company, incorporated for the purpose of supplying water in the township of Piscataway and elsewhere. That township adjoins the city of Plainfield on the south.

The fourth is the Watchung Water Company, which has a pumping station just west of the city of Plainfield, and supplies Dunellen, New Market, Lincoln and one or two other towns.

All of these four companies, except the Elizabeth company were organized under a general act passed in 1876 which declares that every company formed under it "shall have power to take and divert any and all such springs and streams of water, and build, erect, alter, repair, enlarge, and maintain all such reservoirs and works, and lay down all such pipes and conduits for water, at such times and in such places as shall be necessary and proper to enable said corporation to carry into effect the purposes of its incorporation." (Compiled Statutes, p. 3637, sec. 635.) It will be noticed that the companies organized under that general act are not limited in their search for water supplies to the territory in which they propose to supply water to consumers, but may obtain it from any source practically available.

If, therefore, the city should succeed (which is next to impossible) in its effort to acquire the part of the works of the Plainfield-Union Water Company described in the condemnation proceedings, it would be necessary, in order to protect the supply at Netherwood, to extinguish the right of these other four companies to pump water in or near Plainfield, which in the present state of the law is impossible, and, if authorized by law, would be impracticable.

But this is not all. Plainfield is bounded by the following municipalities: The boroughs of North Plainfield, Dunellen and Fanwood, and the townships of Fanwood and Piscataway. Every one of those municipalities has a right to construct waterworks, and may drive wells within the territory or along the border line of Plainfield, and pump water with as much right as the city would have if it owned the plant at Netherwood. (Compiled Statutes, p. 5599, sec. 65; page 264, sec. 69, and page 268, sec. 76.) Besides, towns not adjoining Plainfield might do the same thing. It is clearly impossible under any law that now exists for the city to extinguish the right of those municipalities to obtain a water supply in the manner indicated, and it is not to be supposed that the legislature would ever pass an act to allow one town to condemn the water supply of other towns. The fact that a supply of water is found near or beneath the surface of Plainfield gives the city no preferential right at all to that supply. As a matter of fact, nearly every municipality obtains its water supply from the territory of some other municipality. Four water companies are now actually engaged in drawing water for their customers from the source beneath the city of Plainfield and its vicinity. (The Piscataway Water Company is not yet in operation.) The four companies referred to are the Plainfield-Union Water Company and Watchung Water Company, which get their entire supplies from that source, and Elizabeth Water Company and Middlesex Water Company, which get part of their supplies from the name source. Those four companies supply water to more than twenty cities and towns. The city of Plainfield is still talking law, and some of our citizens and officials claim to be justified in doing so by authority of the vote of a minority of citizens, who cast their ballots when the situation was not understood.

I venture to submit this view of the mater to the serious consideration of all who are interested in the welfare of Plainfield.

Respectfully,
W. S. ANGLEMAN.

MISSION BAND HOLDS SUCCESSFUL LUNCHEON

Under the auspices of the Young Women's Mission Band, of Trinity Reformed church, a successful luncheon was given in the lecture room of the church, yesterday afternoon. Miss Martha D. P. Marx had general supervision of the affair. Covers were laid for eighty people.

The members of the band presided at the different tables and assisted in serving the luncheon. Mrs. Leonard Smith was the chairman, and the other women who assisted were Mrs. H. B. MacDonald, Miss Cora Gano, Miss Margaret Leggett, Mrs. George Mantz, Mrs. Will F. Williams, Mrs. Peter B. Hodge, Mrs. Corra Ryno, Mrs. David Krymer, Mrs. Howard Lambert, Miss Edith Richards, Miss Edna Cole and Mrs. Arthur Stevens.

In addition there was a sale of jellies, candies and aprons. Those in charge were Mrs. A. B. Cole, Mrs. F. S. Cutter and Miss Lillian A. Force resolution for the appointment of a county engineer, with no name mentioned for the position, had been offered by Freeholder Smith. This started the opposition. Freeholder Pierson put up a strenuous objection to the passage of the resolution and was backed by the four other Democratic members. The legality of the appointment was argued and was referred to County Attorney William R. Codington, of Plainfield, who declared that in accordance with the section of the road law, which was passed at the last Legislature at the request of State Road Commissioner Stevens, it was mandatory upon the board to appoint a county engineer and a supervisor of roads, as one road had been accepted.

STEAM ROLLER IS USED

Protests of Freeholders Pierson, Fay, Hennessy, Bourdon and Jones were unavailing and the reading of an editorial from the Plainfield Daily Press which referred to the proposed action of the ousted officeholders to contest the election of the "short" board as "insolent" seemed to have no effect.

Freeholder Smith said that while he had signed the resolution, it was the sense of the road committee that the appointment be made.

"I'm a member of the road committee," said Freeholder Pierson, "and all this is news to me."

Freeholder Hennessy said that twenty-three months ago the board had appointed a county engineer to serve the term prescribed by law. "I fail to see how we can elect him when his term has not expired," he continued. "It is not fair to the incoming board to impose on them an officer not of their choosing for a number of years. It is not just for the retiring board to usurp the privileges of the incoming board and tell the voters that they will not have the changes that they voted for."

Several amendments to have the matter referred to the county roads committee, to the law committee, to lay it over and that it be laid on the table were defeated by the party vote of fourteen to five.

"It is an outrage to fasten this on us," emphatically declared Freeholder J. Logan Fay. "It will be resented by the people. If you vote for this now, you will hear from it later and you will regret it. Before you vote on it I think we ought to pension you all off," he concluded with sarcasm referring to the "office-hungry" Republican members of the board. His remark was greeted with laughter, but the vote resulted in the passage of the resolution by the strict party vote.

The same opposition arose when the resolution appointing a supervisor of roads was introduced by Freeholder Perry, but it met with the same result. The resolution appointing James W. Fink at a salary of $1,300 a year and $300 a year for expenses, was then introduced and passed by the same vote of fourteen to five.

When the result was announced by Clerk Rowe, Freeholder Pierson arose again. "Here it is again," he exclaimed. "We have appointed a supervisor of roads before and now you want to appoint him again to cover yourselves up. You remember the steam roller at the Chicago convention? Well, the steam roller is working in the County Court House. But the people will resent this, you will see."

An agreement was introduced by which the Morris County Traction Company will place lights on Morris avenue until April 15 by paying a certain sum to the Township of Union. The agreement was made between the township, the Morris County Traction Company and the Board of Freeholders of Union county. The matter was laid over for the consideration of the county attorney as he had not read the agreement nor the franchise of the traction company.

C. H. Winans and Company, which had had the contract for the paving of a portion of Morris avenue with amiesite, reported that they would repair the portion of the road which had been in bad condition owing to an imperfect application of a top service. The work could not be done until the spring, the company stated, on account of weather conditions.

Say the Hundreds of Lovely Dollies

In the GIMBEL TOY STORE

All up and down the aisles you will hear murmured conversations between groups of dollies who are anxious to get home quickly to fond little mothers—by Christmas day at least.

We don't blame them—it is poky to stand up all day in a toy store, when you might be nestling comfortably in some little girl's arm, or asleep in your little bed.

However, the Dolls are here yet—lots of them—and we only hope, for their sake, that they will get the invitations for which they are so eagerly looking.

Two Events in One—To Make This A Tremendous Blouse Occasion

Six women want Lingerie Blouses, and half a dozen want those of Chiffon. We prepared an enormous collection of each, to make it a double event—and please every one.

Chiffon Blouses at $3.95, $5, $5.50 and $6.95

Draped, surplice, pleated and waistcoat styles—many models. The yokes and high stocks of nearly all are of dainty shadow lace, or Brussels net. Blouses are trimmed with silver lace and fancy buttons, colored embroideries and silks of contrasting colors. Black, white and the new shades of green, mole, blue and brown.

Lingerie Blouses at $1.25, $2, $3, $3.50 to $5

The new pointed shoulder collar of colored voile, also Robespierre and flat collars, besides many with high stocks—on these Blouses of fine voile, lawn, batiste and embroidered voile. Embroideries in panels and motifs, yokes and insertions of hand-crocheted Irish lace, Valenciennes and Cluny laces are the dominating trimmings. And crocheted buttons, which always reflect daintiness and refined quality, are on nearly every Blouse. Third Floor

FINLEY J. SHEPARD, ST. LOUIS RAILROAD MAN WHO IS TO MARRY MISS HELEN M. GOULD IN JANUARY

St. Louis, Dec. 20.—Finley J. Shepard, who is to marry Miss Helen M. Gould in January, has been kept busy answering letters and telegrams of congratulation and in shaking the hands of friends and acquaintances since the announcement of the engagement was made public. He will go to New York within a few days to see his fiancee and arrange the details of the wedding, which, it is understood, will be quiet.

TAFT'S MESSAGE ON DEPARTMENT WORK

Advocates Attendance of Cabinet Members at Sessions of Congress.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Dec. 20.—President Taft yesterday sent a message to Congress covering matters connected with the work of the departments of the Postoffice, Interior, Agriculture and Commerce and Labor and District of Columbia affairs. In it he recommended the adoption of legislation which shall make it the duty of heads of departments, and members of the President's cabinet at convenient times to attend the sessions of the House and Senate and to take part in all discussions and to answer questions of which they have had due notice. President Taft submits statistics as to the progress of the Postal Savings Bank system. It now includes 4,006 fourth-class postoffices as well as 645 branch offices and stations in the larger cities. There are now 12,812 depositories. The number of depositors is 300,000 and the amount of their deposits is approximately $28,000,000. The parcels post system will be in readiness to meet sucessfully the requirements of the public by January 1.

The message recommends appropriations by which the government will participate in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco.

HAS WAY TO HUSH FOES OF BASIC LAW CHANGE

Somerville, Dec. 20.—A plan for calling a constitutional convention has been devised by Edward P. Johnson, a lawyer, of this place, which, he believes, will overcome opposition He is in favor of a convention elected by the people and restricted in its powers by legislative enactment to a specific object or objects.

"My suggestion," says Mr. Johnson, "is that the Legislature authorize an elective body to suggest an amendment or amendments to the Constitution, on such specific matters as the Legislature desires. I claim that this proposition avoids the danger of changing the Senatorial representation and yet provides the elective body which is so much to be desired in matters of this kind.

"Some seven years ago the Legislature authorized the appointment of a commission to investigate and report to the Governor and Legislature, among other matters, 'How the system of courts can, by constitutional amendment and by legislation, be better adjusted to the demands of judicial business.'

"It seems to me beyond question that if the Legislature has power to authorize the appointment of a commission for a specific purpose, it also has power to authorize an elective body for a specific purpose; the name is of no consequence, the point is that its powers are defined, specific and limited."

Opposition to the constitutional convention in this county is due to the avowed purpose of the larger counties to change the Senatorial representation. Mr. Johnson's activity for a constitutional convention is based on his desire to have the judicial system of the State revised. He thinks that a constitutional commission will prove fruitless, because the people would be suspicious of amendments to the Constitution, prepared behind closed doors.

RUNAWAY HORSE KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE IN FOG

Jamesburg, Dec. 20.—Two horses running away in the fog smashed into an automobile. One was flung over the windshield, partly into the car against the chauffeur, Raymond Robbins. The impact killed the horse and severely cut Robbins about the face and body. Because of the fog the chauffeur did not see the horses until they were upon him.

In the car were Mrs. Wallace French, wife of the assistant superintendent of the State Home for Boys, and her daughter, Lillian French, who were slightly bruised. They were on their way to the institution from a shopping trip to this place.

The horses were running free. They had upset a wagon some distance from the scene of the collision, hurling out their owner, William M. Brown, of 250 West Ninety-third street, who has a farm near here, and a farm hand who was with him. Both were badly cut and bruised.

Breaking away from the wagon the horses ran side by side down the road until they reached the automobile. The horse that was killed was valued at $250. The damage to the automobile is estimated at the same figure.

NEW JERSEY BEEKEEPERS.

New Brunswick, Dec. 20 (Special).—Apiculturists from all parts of the State were in attendance at the annual meeting of the New Jersey branch of the National Beekeepers' Association, which was held here today in the Entomological building. In connection with the convention an exhibition of honey and apiculturists' supplies was held and prizes were distributed among the successful exhibitors. The convention was opened with an address by President J. H. M. Cook, of Essex Falls, and at the sessions of the forenoon and the afternoon papers were read by several noted experts in apiculture.

GUNMEN GET STAY.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Dec. 20.—Formal notice of appeal was served on District Attorney Whitman and Warden Kennedy, of Sing Sing prison, yesterday by former Magistrate Wahle in the cases of the four Rosenthal gunmen The formal filing of the appeal automatically acts as a stay and the case will not be decided by the Court of Appeals much under a year.

SUFFRAGETTE JAILED.

The Scrap Book

Regular Holdup.

Frank P. Morse, the press agent, walked into a fashionable hotel in Chicago one evening and wrote on the register the set of peculiar hieroglyphics which he is pleased to call his signature. "How much will you charge me for a room and bath?" he inquired, with an air of a man to whom money was not a question. The clerk told him. "Yes, yes," said Morse, with extreme urbanity. "Quite so. Now I would like to see Mr. James." "What Mr. James?" asked the clerk. "Mr. James, the proprietor of this hotel," explained Morse. What was more to the point, he grew very peevish when the clerk insisted that Mr. James was not the proprietor of the hotel and that no Mr. James was in the house. "You can't kid me," said Morse angrily. "I want to see Mr. James, the proprietor of this hotel, and I want to see him quick. I mean Mr. Jesse James, the most notorious robber of modern times—brother of Frank."

A Prayer.

Teach me, Father, how to go
Softly as the grasses grow,
Hush my soul to meet the shock
Of the wild world as a rock.
But my spirit, propt with power,
Make as simple as a flower.
Let the dry heart fill its cup,
Like a poppy looking up.
Let life lightly wear her crown,
Like the poppy looking down
When its heart is filled with dew
And its life begins anew.

Teach me, Father, how to be
Kind and patient as a tree.
Joyfully the crickets croon
Under shady oak at noon.
Beetle, on his mission bent,
Tarries in that cooling tent.
Let me also cheer a spot,
Hidden field or garden grot—
Place where passing souls can rest.
On the way and be their best.
—Edwin Markham.

A Wise Father.

When Sherman Hoar, a lawyer of recognized ability, left the law school and opened an office in Boston his father, Judge Hoar, was at the height of his legal reputation. The young man's first client was an Irishman, and the case, though only some small matter of a boundary line, was one that required the examination of a number of deeds and records. Mr. Hoar accordingly told his client to come back in two days for his opinion. The Irishman left the office, evidently very reluctant at the delay. Turning at the door, he asked, "Couldn't ye give me an answer tomorrow, Mr. Hoar?"

"No, no," was the reply; "come on Thursday."

The client went as far as the stairs. Then he turned and tiptoed back to the door and put his head inside, with a finger at his lips.

"Whist!" he whispered. "Couldn't ye get to see your father tonight, Mister Hoar?"

Locating Othello.

A masterpiece of censorship was once performed by the Turkish censor, Nischan Effendi, on the occasion of the production of Shakespeare's "Othello" at Constantinople. He "corrected" the drama so thoroughly as to leave hardly a trace of the original. Among other words he expunged "Cyprus," giving ingenious reasons for this correction. "Cyprus," he said, "is a Turkish island; it would be politically unwise to send Othello to Cyprus, because the territorial integrity of Turkey is guaranteed by treaties. Why not put, instead of Cyprus, some Greek island, such as Corfu?" And thus it came to pass that, from respect to the treaty of Paris, Othello had to go to Corfu!

Clear Case of Bunko.

During a New York performance of "Rip Van Winkle" by the late Joseph Jefferson, the theater manager, who was standing in the lobby, observed a countryman hovering about the entrance in an uncertain way. Finally, as with a determination to go the limit, the countryman bought a ticket and entered the house. A little while after the manager happened to be in the lobby again, when the countryman came out with an expression of intense disgust upon his face.

"Well, how do you like the show?" the manager inquired, with secret amusement.

The irate farmer grew confidential.

"Say, mister," he replied, "I'm goin' tew have a mighty hard time splainin' tew Marandy what I done with them tew dollars, but you kin bet I won't tell her I paid it tew see an old feller fill up on licker an' go tew sleep when I could 'a' gone up tew ther tavern at ther Corners an' 'a' seen old Bill Hardtree dew it fer nothin!'"

A Scheme and a Luncheon.

One of Balzac's wild schemes was a plan to combine Paris theaters. One morning in September, 1839, ten literary friends of the great novelist met by invitation at his house. Before luncheon Balzac told them of his scheme. His idea was to form a trust to buy up all the theaters as a sequel to a smaller preliminary trust for the supply of plays to every theater in Paris. The ten guests were to supply them. He estimated the profits of the first year at £120,000, and each year would, he thought, bring in more money. He expounded his scheme at length for several hours, and finally one of the guests suggested that he might go on at table. The novelist started. "I forgot all about ordering anything to eat!" he cried, and late in the afternoon the members of the shadowy trust made a shadowy meal of bread and cheese and sour wine in a small country restaurant.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

COOKING SWEET POTATOES.

SWEET potatoes when cooked right are exceedingly palatable. They are best baked. If boiled the skins should remain on until they are cooked. Then they should be pared and allowed to dry in a moderate oven before serving. If desired they may be riced. If always cooked in these few simple ways, however, the potatoes become monotonous. Some unusual recipes for cooking this vegetable are given here.

Potatoes and Nuts.

Sweet Potato Molds.—Take six medium sized sweet potatoes and boil until tender. Then peel and mash, adding one teaspoonful of powdered sugar, two tablespoonfuls melted butter, one saltspoonful salt, a pinch of paprika and one-half cupful chopped nut meats. Beat with a fork until very light and then fold in quickly the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Pour into molds or individual baking dishes and set in a pan of hot water for twenty minutes.

Scalloped Sweet Potatoes.—Take cold sweet potatoes, slice these and arrange them in a baking dish, buttering each layer well and sprinkling with light brown sugar. Pour in about half a cupful of hot water, cover and bake half an hour, uncover and crisp on top.

Fancy Fried Sweet Potatoes.

Spiced Fried Sweet Potatoes.—Take three or four medium sized sweet potatoes, boil these; then pare and cut in pieces the size of a nutmeg. Place in a frying pan one-half cupful of brown sugar and one-quarter cupful butter. Cook the potatoes in this mixture till the whole is soft. Cook slowly, shaking the pan occasionally to keep them from burning.

Sweet Potato Croquettes.—Take six medium sized sweet potatoes, boil and peel and when perfectly cold mash them fine and mix with one tablespoonful butter and two eggs. Season with a half teaspoonful salt and a quarter teaspoonful white pepper. Mixing all together, form the potatoes into cork shaped croquettes or into small balls the size of a walnut. Dip them into beaten egg and roll in breadcrumbs. Fry in hot fat to fine golden color.

MODISH MATTERS.

Brown In Every Shade and Material Is Very Modish.

There are brown suits galore.

One sees browns in cheviots, diagonals, worsteds, serges, whipcords, bedford cords and corduroys, not to mention the new two-toned velveteens and velvets.

There are many brown hats of all shapes and sizes.

Next will come brown furs, and from many animals no doubt.

Brown gloves of course we'll wear.

SMART COAT FOR THE WINTER.

And there are certain shades of taupe that resemble brown.

With these things it is probable topaz jewelry will be the thing.

Such a coat as this is essentially useful and at the same time extremely smart. It can be finished with a shaped or plain shawl collar. The length may be long or three-quarter.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for girls of fourteen, sixteen and eighteen years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7169, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

ECONOMY IN THE NEW NECKWEAR

Many Charming Combinations In Lawn, Linen, Lace, Net and Embroidery That Are Useful In Smartening Blouses.

IF you have a bodice that needs something to hide its deficiencies rejoice, for many are the sartorial wrinkles which if not designed for this purpose at least accomplish it.

The new Robespierre collars, whose popularity is already assured, have side frills like jabots that cover more or less of the front of the bodices. The same may be said of the Medici collars. In the shops one sees yokes attached to lace stocks to be worn over the blouse, and for suits there are lace collars with deep frilled revers.

The illustration suggests a novel and effective way of varying the appearance of a gown. It is known as the two-in-one waist and consists of an underbodice of net to be slipped under a low necked, short sleeved waist of velvet. The effectiveness of this combination is due to the undersleeves, which are prettily puffed and encircled with bands of velvet to match that upon the gown. A study of the illustration will suggest other styles of underbodice to be worn with blouses of different materials. They may be of voile, silk, lace or embroidery.

The neck ruche is again to be featured, and for wear with one of the collarless waists or gowns during the early fall days comfort and smartness are attractively combined.

Collars of lace are of all sizes from tiny to enormous. The round, plaited

THE TWO-IN-ONE BLOUSE.

frill has lost much of its vogue, and in its place are various plaitings and turndown collar arrangements, leaving the throat free in the front and defining a V fall low in the back, the point or rounded back reaching the waist line or even descending below it and dropping in a panel or peplum over the skirt. The collar of this last type may be girdled at the waist line or may fall free.

One curious but handsome collar of lace, an imported model, did not appear at all in front, but began at the shoulder seams and fell in a deep, rounded cape over the back of the bodice, reaching well below the waist line. A narrow flap or collar of the lace finished the top of this deep collar, and there were cuffs of the lace with turned back flaps to match the collar.

There was never a time when good lace was not worn more or less and was not an important item in dressmaking, but not for many a year has lace played so interesting a part in the modes as it has this season.

The effort to widen the silhouette at least a little has had something to do with the matter, for flounces have been brought from the limbo of discarded things, and what flounce is so pretty and so little likely to waken protest on the part of narrow skirt devotees as one of lace? And then there are the fichu draperies and the frills at waist and throat and the collars and the coatees.

Cooking Cauliflower.

When the cauliflower is to be prepared for cooking remove the leaves and place the head in cold salted water. Let it soak for an hour and see that it is thoroughly clean.

When cauliflower is to be boiled it is wise to tie it in a cheesecloth bag to prevent its breaking while in the kettle.

Christmas Neckwear

It is the indispensable Christmas gift.

Men who make neckwear say that the showing in the Men's Store today has no precedent and no near equal anywhere.

"Why?" we asked one of the men.

"Oh, the ties are different, there are more of them, more varieties of patterns, they are better ties at the price, and your tables seem to be filled with new, fresh ties every day."

Have to be—the ties sell so fast.

And the reason is simply this—the ties were made for us, the 50c ties as well as the $2.50 ties.

We go to London and select our own exclusive patterns of Spitalfields silks; to Paris for the exquisite patterns only a Parisian can design; to Vienna for poplins in shades—26 of them—America cannot duplicate.

We choose from America's best silks.

And suggest shades and designs of our own.

Every tie is made in style and shape specified by us. We never take a tie from the general stock of any manufacturer.

Every tie is silk—some woven with a warp of cotton.

Every good quality and every weave is represented in the various grades of Wanamaker neckties at 50c, $1, $1.50, $2 and $2.50.

The imported patterns and color-tones are all exclusive—the Spitalfields at $2, the Parisian at $2, the Viennese at $1.

The silk knit ties at $1, exclusive.

The Parisians at $1 are a novelty.

There are 40 pattern designs, each in 10 colors, at from $1 to $2.50, in The Little Necktie Shop by the Broadway door.

Many times more on the adjoining tables.

The plain colors—32 in silk crepe, 25 in rep, 26 in poplin—are all different tones.

CHRISTMAS SPECIAL—Because of the big business we do we are enabled to secure concessions from our manufacturers which permit us to offer during December several thousand dollar ties at 65c—plain silk rep and broad satin-stripe rep in fourteen colors.

If you want to choose your Christmas Piano from the best pianos in the world you must come to Wanamaker's.

Special Christmas terms. No payment until February 1, where an old piano is taken in part payment. Delivery anywhere in the suburbs on or before Christmas morning.

PITCHING PHENOMS CAPTURED BY CLUBS

Hurlers Who Set Minor Leagues Afire Get Fast Set Chance.

Fourteen leading minor league pitchers went to the big leagues and to the International in 1912. Two of the youngsters from which much is expected are Demaree and Hall. The former, who reports for spring practise at Marlin Springs to Manager McGraw, of the New York Nationals, set the Southern League on fire during last season. As a twirler for the Mobile, Ala., team, he set up a strikeout record which has seldom been equaled in minor organizations. He was one of the greatest speed merchants who ever stepped upon a southern mound. Demaree reported to McGraw toward the last part of the 1912 season but had little opportunity to display his wares.

Hall is another slabman who is looked upon as a wonder by the scouts. Coming from Omaha in the Western League this young pitcher promises to land a regular berth on the Detroit Tiger's staff. Detroit gets two other likely looking stars in Zamloch, from the Missoula team in the Union Association and Nichols from Wyandotte in the Border League. The Giants have signed besides Demaree, Kirby, leader in the Michigan State League last year. Stanley from the Tri-State and Napier from the Texas-Oklahoma League go to the St. Louis Browns and the World's Champion Boston Red Sox gather in Foster from the Texas League.

Corey, of Wilkesbarre, goes to Toronto in the International; Harrington, of the New Brunswick League, will play with Providence; James, a star from the Northwestern League, gets a try-out with the Boston Braves; Donalds, of Portsmouth Ohio, to Cincinnati, and Mayer, first pitcher in the Virginia League, goes to the Pittsburgh Pirates. Schulz, of the Savannah team in the South Atlantic League, joins the New York Americans.

BAKER TIMELIEST HITTER IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE

John Franklin Baker, hero of the world's series of 1911, was the timeliest hitter in the American League last season, leading the Johnsonites not only in the number of runs batted in, but having also a higher percentage of runs batted in the game than any other player in the junior organization.

Connie Mack's third baseman, participating in 149 contests, drove in 133 tallies, which was eleven less than were batted home in 1911 by Tyrus Cobb, and thirty-five more than Tris Speaker batted home this past season. Baker might have equaled Cobb's 1911 record had the pitchers not issued so many bases on balls to him when conditions looked dark for them.

A man who failed to pass Baker on purpose, and who probably now wishes that he had done so, was Tom Hughes, of Washington, for Baker, by making a home run off him, took a leading part in shattering Washington's hopes of equaling Providence's record of twenty straight victories.

Most of the runs that Baker drove in were recorded through the medium of safe hits. He hit in 113 counters on drives that boosted his batting average, eight on sacrifice flies that didn't affect it, and twelve on infield outs that hurt it.

The Woman's Relief Corps will meet tonight to complete arrangements for the installation of officers early in January, at which time the officers of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will also be installed.

COBB AT TWENTY-SIX KING OF BALLPLAYERS

Although a Monarch, the Salary He Asks is Merely Princely.

Ty Cobb has just celebrated his twenty-sixth birthday. America's greatest ballplayer was born in Royston, Ga., December 18, 1886. Although little above the years of a student turned out of college, Cobb is regarded as a veteran, because of the young and tender age he started to play in the fast set.

As a matter of fact, T. R. was pounding the bulb far above the .300 mark before he found it necessary to purchase a safety razor.

T. R.'s age is misleading. The average 26-year-old is a rather shy fellow, who is just getting the nerve to invite her to a stack of wheats after the theatre. He buys a package of Bond street cigarettes on pay day and thinks he's a sport.

T. R. at the age of 26 has seen more life than the average night cabman, aged 46. He looks back on eight seasons spent with a battalion of care-free youths who travel all over the country and make life miserable for Pullman porters.

The sophistocated Tyrus is married and has children. He speculates in cotton and buys shares in corporations that look good to him. He is 26 years old, simply because he was born on December 18, 1886, and for no other reason.

Twenty-six years old, and Tyrus looks back on eight years of .300 per cent. batting, several batting championships, three pennants and a theatrical career. Altogether an industrious youth who must have heard of Garcia and the message.

Cobb began a professional career in 1904 at Annis on. He finished that season in Augusta, and played the greater part of 1905 in the same place. He received a try-out in the fall at Detroit, and was an instant success, batting plumb .300 in forty-one games. Playing ninety-seven games in 1906, T. R. boosted his swat statistics to .320.

It was not until 1907, however, that Cobb became the conspicuous figure he is today. His batting made him the sensation of baseball and won Detroit its first American League championship—a title the Tigers held for three consecutive years.

The Georgian continued his heavy clubbing throughout the pennant epoch, but reached his zenith in 1911, when he poled out .420 in base hits in 146 games. Last season he met with a severe slump, falling from .420 to a miserable .401.

Taking the word of critics that he is the monarch of all ballplayers, Cobb seeks the biggest salary paid to a private in the ranks. He wants $15,000 to play for Detroit next season, and says he won't pick up a bat for a sou less. He has been getting $9,000 in the past, his three-year contract expiring last October.

DEATH'S HEAVY TOLL IN FIELD OF SPORT

Conspicuous Figures Removed by Reaper—Baseball Suffered Most.

New York, Dec. 20.—In the year now drawing to a close many conspicuous figures in the world of sport and athletics have been removed by death. Baseball, pugilism, golf, swimming, rowing, and the turf—all have lost noted leaders during the past twelve months.

On professional baseball was levied the heaviest toll by the Grim Reaper. Heading the list of the dead appears the name of John T. Brush, owner of the New York Giants and generally recognized as the "master mind" of the National League. Other notables connected with the national game who passed away during the year were Thomas C. Noyes, president of the Washington American League club; Charles A. Havenor, owner of the Milwaukee American Association club; W. H. Lucas, a leading figure in Western baseball for a quarter of a century and president of the Union Association of Professional Baseball Clubs at the time of his death, and Fred Knowles, formerly well known as the secretary of the New York National League club.

The year's losses among the active players and old-time stars of the diamond included the following: Arthur ("Bugs") Raymond, formerly pitcher for the New York Giants; Jimmy Doyle, third baseman of the Chicago Cubs; Clarence ("Cupid") Childs, who made his greatest reputation with the Cleveland Nationals; Sam Barclay, a star player with the St. Louis Browns in the early '80s; Charles ("Lefty") Marr, who played with the Cincinnati Reds in 1890-1; Frank Gray ("Piggy") Ward, another old National Leaguer; William J. Finley, who caught for the New York Giants in 1889; Al Barker, who umpired for the National League in the early seventies; Edward Ashenbach a scout for the Cincinnati club and the reputed discoverer of Pitcher Mathewson; "Ace" Stewart, once a player with the Chicago Nationals; "Tug" Arudenl, who caught for Indianapolis and Washington in the old National League; H. H. Blakeley, at one time a pitcher for the Athletics; George Amole, for several years a star twirler in the old Atlantic League; Edward Sales, at one time a player with the Pittsburgh Nationals; Jimmy Knowles, who had played with many Eastern clubs and later in his career managed teams in Elmira and Atlanta; Steve Lambert, an old-time player and later a big league umpire; Pembroke Finlayson, formerly of the Brooklyn team; "Heiny" Heitmuller, of the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League team; James Frick, of the Oakland Pacific Coast League team; Henry Gehring, a pitcher for the Kansas City team, Frank Murphy and Gus Eng, both players with the Rock Island team of the Three-Eye League last season; Frank Rhoton, second baseman of the Knoxville team of the Appalachian League; Harry T. Beach, of the Baltimore team of the Eastern League, and William Craig, pitcher for the Steubenville (O.) team.

Gus Ruhlin, the old-time heavyweight fighter, and Johnny Reagan, the former light-weight champion, were the conspicuous losses in pugilism. Other fighters and ex-fighters who died during the year were Jack O'Keefe, an old-time Chicago lightweight; Dave Holly, a colored lightweight well known a decade or more ago; Paul Kohler, a Cleveland welterweight of promise; Jack Flannagan, the Cambridge lightweight, and Charles Ellis, a negro welterweight, who met death in a bout in Cleveland on February 22.

Well known horsemen included among the dead of the year were William Jennings, of Baltimore; Samuel Bell, Sr., of Wooster, O.; Peter V. Johnston, a well known driver of Kalamazoo, and Horace M. Wilson, for many years secretary of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. "Monk" Coburn and Henry Spencer, both famous old-time jockeys, passed away during the year.

Other noted leaders in various branches of sport who passed away in 1912 were Mrs. Bernard C. Horne (Bessie Anthony), former holder of the women's national golf championship; "Billy" Delaney, the famous trainer of pugilists; Frank Moran, former partner and manager of John L. Sullivan; Hugh E. Keough ("Hek"), well known Chicago sporting writer; Louis Uedemann, three times Western chess champion; Eddie Hasha, holder of several world's records for motorcycle racing; Max Wortsmann, champion skat player of America; Theodore N. York, who played right guard on the Yale varsity football team; Andrew Trautz, a former champion swimmer of America; Edgar Dey, a noted Canadian hockey player; David Bruce-Brown and Bob Hunter, automobile racers; Edward Stoike, a noted Chicago bowler; Patrick J. McNulty, a veteran Boston oarsman; Martin F. Monahan, of Albany, one of the four-oared shell crew that won the international championship at Philadelphia in 1876, and Charles H. Lewis, of Worcester, who with Edward H. Ten Eyck held the world's double-scull championship

The Plainfield Elks rolled the Newark team off the alleys in three straight games at the Olympia last night. The one-sided scores were 989 to 786, 933 to 860 and 985 to 883. In the first match the visitors, unaccustomed to the fast local alleys put speed on their balls and just about defeated themselves. They increased their average in the two succeeding games, finishing the night's play with a run of 883.

The local team showed the heaviest consistent bowling of the season. Nash rolled 235, Haberle 203 and 201, Kiely 222, and Evans 206. Nash, leading the league with an individual high score of 258, threatened to smash the record in his first game last night, with an easy chance to tie and a good one to beat the mark as he entered the ninth frame. He ran into a split in this round, losing 26 pins, and had to be content with 235. Some heavy averages were hung up by the winners last night. Haberle averaged 198, Nash 196, Kiely 190 and Evans 184.

The victory raised the locals from seventh to sixth place in the league standing and they passed the New Brunswick men for high team average with a mark of 923.16. New Brunswick led previously with 921.20. A jinx seems to have caught the Plainfield team in many of the games lost this year. In six of the defeats it has rolled over 1,000, a high-tide mark for a beaten team. It still leads Elizabeth for high score honors by 50 pins. The scores last night:

GRACE RESERVES SNATCH VICTORY AT LAST MINUTE

In the double header run off last night on the Grace Church basketball floor the Grace Church Reserves won a last-minute victory over the First Presbyterian Reserves by the score of 32 to 31 and in the preliminary struggle the Grace Church second team won from the Hope Chapel second team 35 to 12.

The preliminary game was loosely played and the victors had an easy time in scoring but in the main bout there was a fight for first honors. The teams were evenly matched and alternately took the lead from start to finish. Although the Presbyterians led at half-time, 9 to 5, the Grace players were right in the running. With two minutes to play in the second frame, with the visitors in the lead, Grace turned loose an attack which finally netted it the victory by a solitary counter. The lineup in the big game follows:

Grace Church—Ricketts and E. Van Zandt, forwards; Manley, center; H. Van Zandt and Dallolo, guards. Presbyterians—Escobar and Hetfeld, forwards; Sickle, center; Dickerson and Blair, guards.

REDS GET REVENGE ON ORANGE QUINTET

Lively Contest in Color League—Another Double Bill Run off.

A double-header basketball bill was again turned off by teams in the Color League of the Y. M. C. A. senior class. The Reds defeated the Oranges by a score of 8 to 0 and the Whites bested the Greens by 14 to 8.

Although the guards on the Orange team worked time after time to prevent the Reds from scoring they were unsuccessful, as the score shows. It was something of a grudge game because the Oranges defeated the Reds in a game Tuesday night, and the crimson-hued players were determined to wallop the enemy.

Gennerich, J. Farmer and Gilmore, of the Reds, all starred for their five, by breaking through the guard of their opponents and making four field goals.

Clarin and Moulton, of the Whites, starred for their team, while Gunzelman and L. D. Farmer were the only scorers for the Greens. Moulton's shooting was the sensation of the game. He scored two goals from difficult angles, while his third score was a pretty throw from the center of the floor, the ball dropping in the basket without touching the ring. Gunzelman won glory because his shooting was done in the face of strong guarding. L. D. Farmer was able to get away from Carson, getting two field goals while Carson went basketless.

THE RECENT BIG BASEBALL DEAL

Trade Between Cubs and Reds One of Biggest Ever.

NEW YORK TEAM BENEFITED.

With Frank Chance at the Helm Highlanders Will Receive Good Ride Next Year—Cincinnati and Chicago Followers Pleased.

By TOMMY CLARK.

The recent deal between the Chicago and Cincinnati clubs is one of the biggest ever recorded in baseball history.

The Cubs released Tinker, their star shortstop, together with two young players—Catcher Chapman, secured from the Topeka Western league club, and Pitcher George Laudermilk of last year's Louisville American association team. In exchange for this trio the Reds have turned over to Murphy and Evers five players—Outfielder Mike Mitchell, Infielder Phelan, Outfielder Knisely, Pitcher Humphries and Shortstop Red Corridon. By the terms of the deal Herrmann paid $7,500 to the Detroit club for Corridon, on whose services all of the American league clubs waived claim. Herrmann also paid $2,400 to the Akron club for Knisely's release and will receive a star American league pitcher as another angle of the transaction.

As soon as Herrmann had clinched the Tinker deal he asked the National league clubs to waive claim on Frank Chance.

Now the latter will pilot the New York American league club next season. This move assures the Highlanders of a masterly ride next season. In spite of stories circulated by Charley Murphy to the effect that Chance could not again fill the duties of bench manager, there is plenty of evidence to disprove the statements. Tinker and Evers, for instance, both say that Chance is "as good as ever."

Herrmann says that his agents in California had interviewed the peerless leader within the last month and had reported that he was in splendid health once more. The physician who performed an operation on Chance last September says that the Cubs' former manager was entirely cured of a nervous ailment and that he never was afflicted with mental troubles. The physician has recently received letters from Chance saying that he never felt better and is able to return to the game.

Chance will have absolute control over the Highlanders. It will lie in his power to trade or buy players according to his own ideas. He is one of the greatest baseball managers in the profession. It is a manager of his kind that will make a winner out of the Gotham team. There is no doubt that he will be respected before the start.

Going into the merits of the Tinker trade itself, although Cincinnati has traded five men for three, the Reds would appear to have none the worst of the deal. In Tinker they get a man who has had some experience as a manager and who is conceded to be one of the great shortstops of the game. They also get Chapman, who with Topeka last year gave great promise of becoming a fine backstop. Grover Laudermilk, the Reds' third acquisition, did not do much when he was with St. Louis, but at the same time may develop with more experience.

Mitchell will be of value to Chicago inasmuch as he is a strong right-handed batter, and the Cubs have too many men who bat from the first base side of the plate. Mike, however, is hardly the player that he was a few years ago. Phelan is a youngster who has shown considerable promise. It is rather doubtful whether Knisely or Corridon would have stuck in the big leagues, although both men have their admirers. Humphries pitched in thirty games for Cincinnati last year. He received credit in the official figures for nine victories and eleven defeats.

"We are satisfied with the trade," said Manager Evers of the Cubs. "Tinker and I couldn't have played on the same team without Chance on the bench and that was all there was to it."

QUOITMEN OF COLUMBIA WILL BATTLE FOR PLACE

Tonight in the Columbia Lodge rooms quoit throwers of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will resume hostilities when the Columbia lineup against Upchurch team, of Westfield. The series should prove close and exciting as only one game separates Upchurch and Columbia in the league standing. It will be a battle for third place—a position now held by the Westfield throwers.

Central Lodge, of this city, is leading the league by a comfortable margin, and no matter what the outcome of tonight's match may be the local team will not be ousted from the top of the heap, the Centrals holding the lead by eight games. The league record follows:

	W.	L.	PC.
Central, Plainfield	18	3	.857
Raritan, New Brunswick	10	4	.714
Upchurch, Westfield	6	8	.429

PINS ARE DUE TO FLY AT OLYMPIA TONIGHT

A match billed as for "the championship of the city of Plainfield" will be rolled tonight on the Olympia alleys when Walters' All Stars and the Rothbergs clash on the runways. Both teams are in the pink of condition. They have been in practise since the middle of October and the prophets say that all records are going into the junk heap when the bowlers strip for action.

Such mighty rollers as Nash, Vanderbilt, Evans, Thompson and Radin will clash and the pins are going to fly when they face each other. The match will be called at 8:15 sharp. The lineup of the two teams will be: All Stars—Nash, Campbell, Vanderbilt, Mahoney, Miller. Rothbergs—Thompson, Scott, Evans, Radin, Britton; extra, Montross.

H. S. ROGERS GATHERS UP THREE POINTS AT FIVE-BACK

H. S. Rogers scored three points, C. A. Rice two, and Dumont one in the five-back bowling tournament rolled at the Park Club, last night. The scores were unusually high and the enthusiasm and rivalry ran high throughout the evening. The scores:

F. R. Chamberlain, 39, 44, 36-160; Dumont, 48, 46, 71-190; J. B. Betts, 45, 39, 51-163; C. A. Rice, 45, 64, 51-199; J. H. Howell, 37, 24, 44-147; J. V. Beekman, 44, 35, 36-157; J. L. Watson, 46, 33, 44-153; R. C. Campbell, 42, 86, 44-182; F. A. Weeks, 29, 30, 36-141; J. C. Peck, 37, 52, 46-161; F. L. Sill, 40, 35, 57-157; Dr. H. V. Hubbard, 56, 50, 43-149; Dr. P. B. Cregar, 33, 36, 45-114; R. A. Suffern, 38, 53, 39-155; H. S. Rogers, 55, 66, 59-200; W. E. Benjamin, 74, 44, 56-174.

BOWLING

Last night after the Plainfield-Newark Elk match Haberle, of the local Elks, rolled three double-century scores of 253, 222 and 218.

The Public Service five are knocking down the pins in great form and are anxious to roll the Saurer team.

And it might be well to say that the Saurer men are in top-notch form and in case a match is scheduled with Public Service a fast game is expected to be rolled.

The East Ends would like to hear from the Rushmores, Smith Brothers, or the East End Rubber Works' team.

A PARCELS POST MORTEM.

Oh, mother dear, the postman comes,
All in his suit of gray!
He's bringing here a load of coal
With half a ton of hay.

Alas! dear mother, see him bend
Beneath a feather bed,
That grand piano, too, is strapped
So close upon his head.

Carrots, onions, spinage, beans,
A score of garden tools,
Are hanging from his trouser's belt,
With brand new books of rules.

For poor postmen is there no rest,
Or must they go accordin'
To sacred writ, and burdens bear
'Till they reach the shores of Jordan?

* * *

Some nice fresh eggs to brother Jim
I sent within the zone.
The postmaster laid them aside,
And left them all alone.

Three weeks went by, Jim went for mail
When his spring work was through,
But all they handed Jim that night
Was "cock-a-doodle-doo!"

"No snakes in the mails,"
Is parcels post readin'—
Adam's last thought
In the garden of Eden.

The CHRISTMAS DOLL

Painting the Arms and Legs of the Dolls

Porcelain Doll Dressed in the Costume of a Swiss Peasant

Putting in the Dolls Eyes

A Doll Dressed as a Swedish Nurse Girl

Moulding the Dolls' Heads, Sonneburg, Germany

A Little Bavarian Mechanical Doll

DOLLS — imitations of human beings, have been the plaything of the child since the world began, and from present indications it seems as if they will continue to be the queens of toydom as long as there is a child left in the world. Away back as far as legend or history can go the little girl and her doll have been together. Indeed, recorded history does not go back to the time when there were no dolls, and it is the belief of many persons that the mother impulse is so strong in the female child that she must find some object on which to lavish her love, and it is quite natural that this object should be a counterpart of the family about her. Centuries ago it was the custom when burying the dead to place beside them in the grave the inanimate things they had loved in life. It was supposed that these things would amuse the dead in the spirit world as they had done in this world, and as an evidence that the child in those days loved the doll is the fact that in nearly every sarcophagus which has been opened dating back to the time of Moses queer little figures of human beings have been found with the dead children—oftentimes clasped in the arms of the little Egyptian mummies.

With the march of civilization and progress of art and science the doll became more and more lifelike until today it is an almost perfect counterpart of the human being, and thousands of dollars are spent each year to bring it nearer to perfection. Millions of dolls are manufactured annually, and as one looks over the displays in the toy stores about Christmas time one begins to ask "Where do all these dolls come from, who makes them and what is the process of manufacture?" Like the greater part of the toys used they are made in Germany away up in the Thuringian forests, and in Bavaria around the City of Nuremburg. Thuringia, perhaps, furnishes the greatest number, for in that province whole families are engaged in the industry. There is a sort of unwritten law that doll making is hereditary in certain families and the greatest secrecy is maintained by these families as to some of the formulas used in coloring, wig making, etc. Sonneburg, a little German city in Thuringia, contains several large factories where a small army of men, women and children are employed—in fact, the doll making industry is the source of revenue for the entire population of the town. The factories there use a certain kind of enamel which gives a beautiful lifelike appearance to the faces of the dolls. The formula is the work of a German chemist who discovered it after many experiments and it is known only to a few of the employes who guard the knowledge of its ingredients with the greatest secrecy. Some of the very best dolls are made in Sonneburg, too, for there is an academy of design where the children are taught modelling and coloring by artists. This school was established in 1851, and its model room contains many excellent pieces of sculpture and rare old prints. Modelling dolls is no easy task, and it is remarkable what perfect figures the students of this school are able to turn out. Moulds are made from the models, and from these leaden patterns the heads, arms and legs are turned out—a special machine being used for stamping the hands. The factories, especially the kneading room, are hot and filled with steam and for this reason the big, brawny Germans who knead the mixture wear as few clothes as possible while at work. The makeup of composition dolls is composed of old rags and paper with a large amount of gum tragacanth. The mixture is kneaded to a paste and heated. In a nearby room the moulds are set up in rows and here the women workers fill the moulds one after another in rapid succession. After they cool a man by a peculiar twist of his hands separates the lead patterns and pulls out the doll's head, leg or arm as the case may be. The polisher then trims off the rough edges and carries the heads to the socket cutter where holes are made for the eyes. This work is done by skilled workmen who use long, sharp knives. The sockets must be absolutely uniform or the eyes will not fit. The eye cutter rarely makes a mistake, and it is astonishing how rapidly he works. The waste material from the socket cutting is gathered up and reheated, and moulded again. Nothing is allowed to go to waste. The next stage is the painting of the heads, and this is usually done by girls who make some pretense to being artists. The cheeks are given the natural rosy tint, the mouth is touched with the lip color and the eyebrows are painted either dark or light to match the color of the eyes to be used. Setting the eyes is an easy task unless they are to open and shut, in which case some skill is necessary in balancing the small weight hung to the bow joining the two eyes at the back. When the doll is upright the weight does not move the eyes, but when dollie is laid upon her back the weight maintaining its own position moves around and brings down the upper part which is colored to resemble the eyelid, ball and socket. The wig is the finish of the doll's head and the crowning glory of its beauty. The hair used for the cheap dolls is usually goat hair, and for the better grade real hair is imported from China. Hair dressing is a special branch of the industry and the wigmakers watch the hairdressing fashion plates for new ideas with as much eagerness as the most fashionable city coiffeur does to give her human patrons something new. The same hair is used for blonde dolls except that the color is extracted by a certain process—another secret of these German doll makers. The bodies are stuffed with sawdust, cork, excelsior, cows hair or wool, depending on the quality of the doll. The arms and legs are sewed in place by girls and the greatest care must be used to have them in exactly the proper angle.

Making eyes for "Miss Dollie" is a dreary work for the coloring used must not be exposed to the sunlight until the eye is completed. The majority of the eye makers do their work in cellars. They are most secretive as to their methods and visitors rarely, if ever, penetrate these underground workshops. Few violet eyed dolls are on sale owing to the fact that the violet eye is the most difficult to make.

Wax dolls are old fashioned, the composition doll having taken its place from the fact that it is quite as pretty and much more durable. The majority of children go through the same routine with their dolls as their mothers do with them, consequently the doll must have her face washed, and here the wax face has proved a failure for a new head is generally needed after the little girl gives her wax doll a bath such as her mother gives her. Children love to imitate their elders and are fond of the toys which will stand this treatment.

In the forests of Thuringia doll making is a home industry as many of the peasants fashion them in their cottages. These dolls are, of course, not as perfect as the ones turned out by the large factories, but they are unique and please children who like curious toys. At St. Ulrich, a picturesque Tyrolian town, the residents make carved wooden dolls. They are crude looking affairs but the facial expressions are unusually good as some are carved to show a doll laughing and others portray a cry-baby.

The entire doll is never made by one person alone, and years ago before the art of machinery had been perfected a doll passed through the hands of at least twenty-five persons before it had been completed, and even after this handling it was a clumsy, awkward thing as compared with the dolls of today. The bodies in those days were stiff, being without joints and often covered with kid.

The dolls made in France, especially at Vincennes, have an exquisite finish. This is accounted for from the fact that each year there is a prize offered for the best design for dolls, and new ideas in their manufacture. Doll dressmaking in Paris is a genuine science for the Parisian article, like her human counterpart of that city, takes the fashions with her everywhere.

Each year new fads in the doll line are shown, and this year the beautiful baby dolls, with their lifelike faces painted from living models, are to be seen in the shops, as well as the "character doll"—one modelled and painted from living models of the nations they represent. The dressmakers have found it no easy matter to clothe the character dolls correctly, for in many lands the national costumes are a thing of the past, having been superseded by the styles from Paris, and the museums of costumes of different countries had to be examined before the exact style of dress could be made. This year when the little girl awakens on Christmas morning she is likely to find a little Swiss peasant or a German nurse or a French lady of fashion in her stocking. The educational value of such dolls is inestimable for they impress upon the mind of the child the salient characteristics both in feature and dress of the children of foreign lands.

The indestructible rag baby is wholly American and is manufactured in several large cities. A few of these have been exported, but they have not proved very popular with the European child. Russia has several large doll-making factories, but her exports are small, and Ireland produces a special kind of unbreakable doll which is rarely seen in America, although it is rather pretty and will stand hard wear.

Altogether the history of this popular toy is interesting but just who invented the doll or who played with the first one or what its form was will, perhaps, never be known. There is even some discussion as to how the word "doll" originated. According to a well known English writer the word was first found in an English dictionary in 1700. However, the origin of the word, or even of the doll itself, makes little difference to the children of the present generation. Come how it may, it is here to stay and form a never-ending joy to the little American girl. So, here's to "Miss Dollie"—may she increase in beauty as the years roll on, and may her shadow never grow less!

Good Weather For Painting
Is not over yet. There are plenty of fine days, all through the winter when painting can be done as well as in mid-summer; and it will last better, if the painter knows his trade. Twenty years has taught me how, and I employ only the best mechanics, who know how to paint in winter as well as in summer.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

The attraction at the Plainfield theatre, Christmas Day, will be Joe M. Weber's production of George V. Hobart's English version of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" with its Parisian flavor, its highly amusing situations and its many sparkling musical numbers. Miss May Latham, who is being featured in Joe Weber's production with William Willingham, the young American tenor, whose delightful voice has placed him in the front ranks of the profession, is particularly fitted for his role. The role of "Alma" requires a beautiful voice, a strong personality and a perfect figure, each of which Miss Latham possesses in the fullest measure. Her rendition of the catchy music of "Alma, Where Do You Live?" is a joy to her listeners. The "Alma" song is the most popular waltz of the season. The balance of the large company has been selected with unusual care with an especial eye to the characters each artist is to portray. The production as a whole is one of merit and should pack the Plainfield theatre on Christmas Day, afternoon and night.

George C. Tyler, the general manager for the Liebler Company, says: "A typical May Irwin is a hard thing to find but an easy thing to laugh at when you find it. 'I have hunted for three years for a successor to 'Getting A Polish' and in 'Widow By Proxy' Miss Irwin and I think we have found it." "Widow By Proxy" is a farce comedy by Catherine Chisholm Cutting, who has three other successful plays to her credit. As usual Miss Irwin has the role of a woman of weight (avoirdupois) and a world of woes. But never are her troubles able to extinguish her smile which will beam in all its radiance when she appears at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow night.

OFFICIAL MINUTES OF THE BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union was held at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, New Jersey, on Thursday, November 21, 1912, at 2:30 p. m. Director Cady and Freeholders Acken, Bourdon, Crane, Darby, Doane, Fay, Hall, Hennessy, Jones, Krouse, McMane, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Randolph, Smith, Teller and Wilbur, present.

Absent—Freeholder Gruener.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur the reading of the minutes of November 7 were dispensed with.

Communications.

November 16, 1912.

To the Director and Members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—On December 31, 1912, I will make my annual report for that year. My books have been examined by expert accountants from January 1, 1907, to December 31, 1911. On January 1, 1913, a new board of freeholders will come into office; I therefore feel that my books should be examined by the same expert accountants for this year, the books to be balanced and certified to by the accountants for the purpose of turning over to my successor a clear balance sheet for the opening of the records of his administration.

I therefore ask that I be authorized to engage the Universal Audit Company to make such audit and certification.

Very respectfully,
N. R. LEAVITT,
County Collector.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this communication was received and ordered placed on file.

Springfield Avenue., Union County,
November 11, 1912.

Mr. John N. Cady, Director, Board of Freeholders, Summit, New Jersey:

Dear Sir—Confirming my verbal acceptance of Springfield avenue, Union county, on October 29, 1912, I hereby notify you, and, through you, the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, that the road has been completed in accordance with the plans and specifications to the satisfaction of this department, and I therefore accept the same for the State.

Yours very truly,
E. A. STEVENS,
Commissioner.

On motion by Freeholder Smith this communication was received and ordered placed on file.

Cranford, N. J., Nov. 18, 1912.

The Honorable Board of Freeholders, Elizabeth, Union County, New Jersey:

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned, members of the Board of Registry and Elections of Cranford Township, hereby submit our bills for $50, the amount allowed us last year, considering the same a fair allowance, being very much in the dark as to what sum should be charged, for the reasons which follow, no specific clause in the election laws covering our case:

Section 370 very vaguely gives the pay for an election district of over 300 registered voters, and Section 360 is very specific in stating the size of an election district not to exceed 400 cast. When the 401st ballot was cast we immediately began doing the work of two districts (the vote being 471 in the first district and 407 in the second). We think you will not dispute this fact when informed that it took until 8:30 the following morning to count the ballots and make returns—twenty-eight hours in all. Should our bills be made out for $68 instead of $50? Next year you must pay this amount, in addition to extra ballot boxes, rent of rooms, etc. Another reason beside those stated for making our bills $50 is this: There is very good cause to believe Cranford's population is over 5,000. Our combined registry is 1,068; to this must be added not less than 100 males who are not citizens. The universal ratio is five to one, a less ratio would bring the population above 5,000. If the registry figures are not satisfactory, take the school attendance of 725 children in the grades between 5 and 14 years and figure that out. Figured from either of the above viewpoints, our contention is about right.

Trusting you will see the justice of our claims and believing you will do what is right, the same as last year, we are,

Respectfully yours,
H. H. HUMMER,
J. H. M'MAHON,
E. H. BINLEY,
CLAUDE R. WHEELER,
W. L. LACKER,
JESSE GEO. WHEELER,
GEO. L. STEVENS.

On motion by Freeholder Pierson this communication was referred to the auditing committee and the county attorney, and that the payment of these bills be laid over pending the report of said committee.

November 18, 1912.

Mr. John N. Cady, Director Board of Chosen Freeholders, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Dear Sir—Some of the early books of record and their indexes are becoming so old and worn that they are almost illegible, and, in by judgment, it is necessary that they should be recopied at once.

I took the matter up with Judge Atwater, and in his opinion he did not have the authority to order them recopied unless the Board of Freeholders passed a resolution to that effect. I had some correspondence with William R. Codington, Esq., the county attorney, and a copy of his letter, together with the resolutions and order, is enclosed.

In my judgment this matter is important, and I think your board should take it up at its next meeting.

Yours verly truly,
FRANK H. SMITH,
Register.

Freeholder Pierson moved that the communication be received and ordered placed on file, and this matter be laid over until the next Board of Freeholders assume control in January, said motion being seconded. Freeholder Krouse moved as an amendment to this motion that the matter be referred to a special committee of three, to report on same at the next meeting of the board. The amendment to said motion was put before the board and declared carried. The director appointed as said committee Freeholders Krouse, Smith and Pierson.

Committee Reports.

Report of Special Committee on Bridge Appropriations:

Your committee would report that it is their opinion, based upon an examination of the accounts, that the following named bridges should be built and could be paid for by transfers from accounts other than the bridge account: Bridge on Elizabeth avenue, Linden, near B. & O. R. R., $366; bridge recovered on Rahway River, at Springfield avenue, $600; bridge recovered on Elizabeth River at South First street, Elizabeth, $165.

HENRY KROUSE,
BURTON P. HALL,
THOMAS J. PIERSON.

On motion by Freeholder Teller this report was received and ordered placed on file, and the recommendations contained therein were on roll call adopted.

New Business.

By Freeholder Smith:

Resolved, That the books of the county collector for the year 1912 be examined and balanced and certified to by the Universal Audit Company at a cost not to exceed $350.

Freeholder Wilbur moved the adoption of this resolution. Freeholder Meisel moved an amendment to this resolution, that the matter be referred to the special committee of three heretofore appointed on the question of auditing the collector's books with power.

By Committee on Dudley Avenue Bridge, Westfield:

Resolved, That the bill of A. W. Stiles for new bridge on Dudley avenue, Westfield, N. J., amounting to $560, be paid when properly audited by committee.

On motion by Freeholder Hall this resolution was on roll call adopted unanimously.

Freeholder Wilbur at this time announced that Fred Van Epps had made a request of the board that he be allowed to slightly change the direction of the railing on the Norwood Avenue Bridge in Plainfield.

On motion by Freeholder Pierson this matter was referred to the two Freeholders from Plainfield with power.

Freeholder Randolph announced the death of Freeholder Gruener's mother.

On motion by Freeholder Randolph the board expressed its sincere sympathy for Freeholder Gruener in his loss.

Chairman Wilbur, of the auditing committee, reported that the auditing and election committee had received an opinion from County Attorney Codington specifying the amounts that were to be paid to the various election officers throughout the county, and that the Cranford election officers were only entitled to $30 each.

On motion by Freeholder Wilbur this amount was ordered paid to each of said election officers and the bills.

The following bills, after being read, were on roll call ordered paid:

Elections—Charles Edward Parker, $50; Louie Burhaus, $50; A. C. Fitch, $50; James H. Fogerty, $50; Eugene J. Wilcox, $50; Wm. H. Stitt, $50; Albert Traynor, $50; J. Hervey Townley, $50; Robert A. NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

No pleasure or business trip to New York City is complete without a visit to the Hippodrome. This greatest of all amusement palaces of the whole world, is one of the wonder sights of the Western Hemisphere metropolis. This season's production entitled "Under Many Flags" is more superb and scintillating than any previous dazzling spectacle. The title bespeaks a variety of entertainment which can only be shown to advantage on a stage such as the Hippodrome affords. One is led through many lands and therein views the customs of people living in environs strange yet instructive to us. The start of our journey, which leads us into many lands and Under Many Flags, begins at our own Federal Capital—Washington. After a brief visit to Annapolis where one looks upon the exacting and thrilling drills of our Naval academy boys on the parade grounds the scene shifts to a picturesque fishing village on the coast of Brittany. Thence by flight in an airship by night over large European cities the next country to visit is Germany where one sees all the pleasure and sport of a great Berlin Summer Garden. Holland, with its innumerable windmills and its great tulip and flower markets is shown with life like effect. A public square in Moscow, a Highland scene in Scotland and a street in Peking, China, are other scenes which are presented in brilliant succession. There are daily matinees at the Hippodrome which has become one of the great institutions of New York.

WORKERS' COMPENSATION.

New York, Dec. 20 (Special).—Under the auspices of the National Civic Federation a conference was opened here today at the Metropolitan Building, for the purpose of considering and discussing a bill for the compensation of workmen in the State of New York. Many noted legislators, lawyers, manufacturers and labor representatives were present at the opening session, when the subject was formally brought before the conference. No formal program has been prepared for this conference, but it is certain that the discussion will extend over practically every important question involved in the the compensation of workmen for injuries, such as contributory insurance by workmen, the creation of a State fund into which employers who so desire may pay premiums and out of which the injured might be compensated, and the desirability of employes contributing to the State fund. The conference is expected to continue in session for several days.

ANDERSONVILLE MEMORIAL.

Andersonville, Ga., Dec. 20 (Special).—The imposing memorial erected by the State of Illinois in honor of the soldiers of that State who were confined in the Andersonville prison during the Civil War and are buried in the national cemetery here, was dedicated today with impressive ceremonies. Governor Charles S. Deneen with the members of his staff and a large delegation of Civil War veterans and representatives of the Illinois National Guard, participated in the exercises. The memorial is of granite and bronze and cost $15,000. It was designed by Charles J. Mulligen and W. C. Zimmerman, State architect of Illinois.

WINS A SCHOLARSHIP.

Roy McCutchen, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, of North Plainfield, who is a student at Phillips-Exeter Academy, has just won a scholarship valued at $100. There was keen rivalry among the students for the prize. Mr. McCutchen will be graduated from the academy in June.

Sale of $7 Chiffon Waists for $3.50

New Chiffon Waists in Six Attractive Styles at Half Price

The Bamberger waist store will "do itself proud" Saturday. Five hundred chiffon waists on the prettiest kinds will be offered at half price. It is a Christmas sale extraordinary—one of the best waist offerings we have ever made. Coming, as it does on the last Saturday before Christmas—the sale is most opportune. In the collection are seen six charming and practical styles. Some are trimmed with satin, some with brocade, velvets and lace; others have yokes of lace and large jabot. Then there are attractive blouses with wide lace in the back, and others with fine tucks between lace ruffle on sleeve. The best colors; black, navy, brown, gray, taupe and Copenhagen. The waists are the surplus stock of a prominent house, who stands high as a maker of high-class garments. Taken as a whole or individually, it is one of the prettiest collection of waists that ever graced a department store. And to think you may buy one at half price! Certainly you will come early Saturday morning for several of these excellent values! You should not think of missing this sale. No mail, phone or C. O. D. orders filled.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Marion Wean, manager of the girls' basketball team, announces that there will be no more games played until after the Christmas vacation.

Boys' basketball will also experience a slight lull. A game is scheduled with N. P. H. S. at the Y. M. C. A. on December 28, and Manager Grisley is trying to book the annual Alumni contest for sometime next week.

Several basketball practices will be held during the vacation. Acting Captain Monroe Good will notify those interested, through the papers.

One of the busiest weeks in the school year has just closed for the metal work department, in charge of Miss Decker. It has become a fad among the student body to make Christmas gifts in this department and all have been hustling to finish up their handicraft work before the closing of school.

A number of the High School basketball players took part in the Presbyterian-Grace Church game played at the later place last night. A number of the girls' team also played the indoor game at Scotch Plains in the Hope Chapel and Scotch Plains Baptist feminine struggle.

J. Gregory Carty, a senior, has been elected manager of the Holy Cross hockey team and is arranging a heavy schedule, which will include Barringer, Battin, Erasmus, Westfield, Cranford and South Brooklyn High Schools, and Leal's, Cartaret and Mt. Vernon Academies.

Those in charge of the minstrels have selected Fred Allen, '13, for the important position of interlocutor. A shakeup in the end men is predicted and some new faces will probably be seen on the wings.

It is announced that January 18 has been finally decided on as the date for the sixth annual minstrel show of the Boys' Athletic Association.

Barringer High School has announced in the sporting columns of a Newark paper the cancellation of its game with P. H. S. on January 7. Some mistake is evident, however, as Manager Grisley did not schedule a game with Barringer this year.

Many of the old High School graduates have returned for a visit with their Alma Mater during the last few days. Among those who are taking advantage of the college recess in this fashion are Gordon Moy, '12; James Lindzey, '12; Theodore [illegible] '10; Alfred Manley, '11; Raymond Manley, '12, and Miss Ruth Wean, '11.

Manager Robert Gavett had a squad of juniors out to basketball practise yesterday afternoon. The Interclass League will open about January 8.

Allen Frederick, of Dunellen, a member of the sophomore class, has gone West to join his parents, who have taken up their home in that section of the country.

The date for the first midyear examination has been set for the day the student body returns to school after the holidays. Samuel B. Howe's class in economic history will receive its test on that date.

Arthur Van Zandt, captain of this year's football team and captain-elect of the 1913 eleven, who had his collarbone fractured in the New Brunswick High School game, has discarded his splints and the injured member is knitting rapidly.

High Bridge-Califon.

The Lower Valley Presbyterian Sunday-school will hold its Christmas entertainment in the church auditorium Sunday night.

Miss Mary Ross is in a critical condition at the home of former Mayor J. Henry Rose, at East High Bridge.

William Blackburn, of High Bridge, is recovering from an illness.

Benjamin McLain, of High Bridge, is suffering with an injured eye, the result of the bursting of a pipe at the Taylor-Wharton Steel Company plant.

Mrs. Emma Alpaugh is seriously ill at her home at Cokesbury.

Westfield.

Charles Wittke reported to the police yesterday that his store at Broad and Elm streets was entered by thieves and $60 was stolen from the safe and cash drawer.

The old board of the Westfield Building and Loan Association has been re-elected: President, J. S. Irving; vice president, J. F. Copperthwait; secretary, R. W. Harden; treasurer, C. W. Harden.

ALL EVANGELICAL CONGREGATIONS CELEBRATE CHRISTMAS TOMORROW

Special Sermons on the Nativity and Elaborate Music Will Mark the Observance of the Feast in Churches in Both City and Borough.

In all the evangelical churches of the city and borough tomorrow, the great Christian feast of Christmas will be appropriately celebrated. In each instance, the pastor will deliver a discourse on the Nativity and there will be, as usual in this community, most elaborate musical programs. Many of the edifices will be gorgeously decorated with flowers, greens and holly. In the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches, the feast will be observed on Christmas Day as prescribed. The orders of services for these will be published on Tuesday. Following are the orders of services as announced by the ministers and the choirmasters of evangelical churches for tomorrow:

Congregational Church.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will deliver a Christmas sermon tomorrow morning. The musical program will include: Processional, "O Come All Ye Faithful;" "While Shepherds Watched" and "Peace on Earth," anthems by the vested choir; offertory solo, "Christ the Friend of Little Children," Athol Newman, and recessional, "Hark, How the Welkin Rings." At 11:50 there will be a special Christmas service for the Sunday-school. At 7 o'clock in the evening the Young People's Society will meet at the parsonage and enjoy a Christmas story around the pastor's woodfire. The Sunday-school entertainment will be held Friday night December 27, at 7:30 o'clock.

Crescent Avenue Presbyterian.

The musical programs at the Crescent Avenues church will be in charge of Dr. E. Metler Davis, organist and choirmaster, and will be as follows: Morning—Prelude, "Pastoral Symphony," ("Messiah"), Handel; anthem "Sing, O Heavens," Tours; offertory anthem, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," Klein; postlude, "Hallelulia," (Messiah), Handel. Afternoon—Prelude, "Pastoral," Scarlatti; anthem, "The Birthday of a King," Neidlinger; postlude, "March," Rogers.

The afternoon service will be a union one of the four Sunday-schools of the parish and will be held at the church at 3 o'clock. On Sunday afternoon, December 29, "The Manger Throne" a Christmas cantata by Manney, will be given by the choir. The program for tomorrow afternoon will be as follows:

Organ prelude, invocation and Lord's Prayer, Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie; hymn, "Rejoice! This Festal Day;" responsive reading, Howard H. Williams; Scripture reading, Rev. J. O. McKelvey; hymn, "All My Heart Rejoices," members of Warren chapel school; address, William D. Murray; hymn, "The Wondrous Hope;" exercises by children of Hope chapel; hymn, "Night of Blessing;" selections from "Nazareth," home school; hymn, "O Holy Night;" exercises by children of Warren chapel; hymn "The First Noel," Warren chapel; exercises by children of Bethel chapel; prayer, Rev. F. D. Tildon; hymn, "O Come to My Heart Lord Jesus;" benedicton, Rev. Frederic E. Greene; organ.

Netherwood Reformed Church.

Morning service 11 a. m.—Prelude, "Sicilliano," by W. Edward Hoppins; solo, selected; hymn, "Anto Antioch;" soprano solo, "There Were Shepherds," by Frank Lynes, Miss M. Mudd; hymn, "Adeste Fideles;" sermon, "God's Gift" by the pastor; hymn, "Mendelssohn;" postlude, "Christmas March," by Battman Evening service 7:45 p. m.—Prelude, "Thousand and One Nights," by Carl Reinecke; hymn, "Holy Night;" anthem, selected; hymn, "Regent Square;" soprano solo, "The Night Song of Bethlehem," by Dudley Buck, Miss Mudd; sermon, "The Word Incarnate" by the pastor; hymn, "Christmas;" postlude, "Sortie Leybach."

The choir will be composed of the Misses M. Mudd and Edna Clauss; Mrs. George Clayton, Harry W. Churchill and Raymond W. Churchill, all reputed vocal soloists from Elizabeth. The choirmaster will be J. J. Varley; Miss Iona M. Wood, organist, and Miss Edith Lidgate, pianist.

Trinity Reformed Church.

There will be special Christmas programs at Trinity Reformed church Sunday morning with selections by the quartet choir, Miss Sara Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Hope Irene Miller, contralto; Edmund Dorn Young, tenor, and Roy Edward Titsworth, bass, under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth organist and choirmaster. The Bible school will present a program of exercises in the evening. The programs follow:

Morning—Prelude, "Pastoral Symphony," Handel; doxology, sentence, "The Lord Is In His Holy Temple," Root; invocation, Commandments, response, psalter, gloria, "Hosanna to King David's Son," Waud; anthem, "Arise, Shine" Maker; Scripture lesson, anthem, "The Night Song of Bethlehem," Buck; prayer, response, "The Lord's Prayer," Hoyt; offertory, for current expenses of the church; soprano solo, "Holy Night," Wood, Miss Raybert; sermon, "The Stars, the Sages the Saviour," Rev. J. Y. Broek; anthem, "There Were Shepherds," Vincent; organ postlude, "Hallelujah Chorus," Handel.

SOCIETY GIVES HER WELCOME

Miss Beatrice Hedges' Coming Out is a Noticeably Brilliant Eevent.

DEBUT AT PARK CLUB

Dr. and Mrs. B. van D. Hedges Give the Reception for Their Niece—400 Invitations Issued and Accepted.

Miss Beatrice Hedges, daughter of Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, of Watchung avenue, is being formally introduced to society at a brilliant reception at the Park Club this afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock. Dr. and Mrs. B. VanD. Hedges, who are giving the reception for Miss Hedges, issued about 400 invitations and fully that number of society people from Plainfield and North Plainfield, as well as out of the city, responded. Miss Hedges is one of the early debutantes of the season here, and she is being given a cordial reception by society folk.

Mrs. B. VanD. Hedges and Miss Hedges are assisted in receiving by Mrs. Thatcher Brown, Mrs. William H. Murray, Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor, Mrs. Charles Eddy, Mrs. George L. Babcock, Mrs. Charles H. Detwiller, Mrs. Frank C. Ard, of this city; Miss Marion Pell, of Brooklyn; Miss Loraine West, of Baltimore; Miss Emily Lee, of Dallas, Pa.; Miss Mary Rushmore and Miss Marjorie Brown, of this city.

The young women who are assisting the receiving party include Miss Dorothy Anderton, of New York; Miss Margaret Heald, of South Weymouth, Mass.; Miss Eleanor DeGraff, Miss Barbara Fleming, Miss Eunice Watson, Miss Anna Yerkes, Miss Helen Harrington, Miss Audrey Gernon, Miss Leila Hedges, the last named a sister of the debutante, who is a student at Miss Masters School at Dobbs Ferry.

The colors for the general decorative scheme are pink and white marguerites, while the young women in the receiving party carry pink roses.

During the afternoon a delightful program of music will be given by Van Eps Brothers and they will also furnish music for a dance to follow the reception to which the younger people have been invited. The debutante has been the recipient of a wealth of beautiful flowers from her many friends, which were the admiration of those attending the social function. She also received a number of other valued gifts from relatives and friends.

Miss Hedges attended Mrs. Black's private school at Ingleside, Conn., but left there last year. Several of the young women in the receiving party and others assisting were schoolmates of Miss Hedges at Ingleside.

WEALTHY ITALIAN HAS WIFE ARRESTED

Charges Desertion in N. Y. State—Found in N. P. Township.

Justice of the Peace Thomas Snape will hear this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the case of Domenico Searchill, a wealthy Italian, of Waterford, Saratoga county, N. Y., against his wife, Mrs. Filomena Porella Searchill, whom he charges with desertion and living with a man named Agastino Apiso in North Plainfield Township.

Apiso and Mrs. Searchill were arrested yesterday in the township and the latter is now being held in the borough jail awaiting arraignment. Apiso furnished bail for his appearance.

If Searchill proves his case, it is thought that he will attempt to have his wife detained here to await extradition papers for her removal to New York State. He is said to be anxious to secure a divorce.

WIDOW BY PROXY WITH MAY IRWIN HERSELF

Despite the fact that May Irwin is always a "host in herself," as her critics say, this famous comedienne has always realized the value of first-class support, no matter how successful her vehicle may be. In "Widow by Proxy," in which she comes to the Plainfield theatre tonight, she will head a company that is probably the strongest that has ever appeared with her. It includes such well known players as Clara Blandick, who was the late Kyrle Bellew's leading lady in the original cast of his greatest success, "Raffles," Orlando Daly, recently in "Everywoman;" Helen Weathersby, who played "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," Frances Gaunt and Doro Goldthwaite, who have frequently appeared with Miss Irwin before, Arthur Bowyer, a splendid English character who made a big hit as the old servant in "The New Sin;" Lynn Pratt and Richard Mallohon.

RYDER PLEADS GUILTY.

Elizabeth, Dec. 21 (Special).—William Ryder, known as "Red Rider," a gangster who viciously attacked Patrolman Arthur McGinley in Plainfield on December 16 when the policeman went to arrest him after he had started to "rough house" a barber shop, was arraigned in the Court of Quarter Sessions yesterday afternoon. He pleaded guilty and Judge Atwater remanded him for sentence next Friday. His demeanor was docile and he seemed quite subdued.

DINNER PARTY IN NEW YORK.

Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, who is entertaining the Misses Smith, of Illinois, gave a dinner for them, and her son, M. S. Ackerman, Jr., at the Hotel Wolcott, New York, Thursday evening. Corsage bouquets of orchids were given to the guests, whom Mrs. Ackerman took to the Yale St. Paul hockey game after dinner.

ASSESSMENT FOR PAVING REVISED

Boro Council Says Assessors Ignored Rule as to "Benefits Received."

COMMISSION OBJECTS

Tells Council Change Would Be Inequitable and Unjust—Then Council Orders Revision—Mayor and Councilmen Exchange Felicitations

Dissatisfied with the manner in which the assessments for the macadamizing of Steiner place have been levied by the commission appointed to do the work, the North Plainfield Council last night adopted resolutions to alter the amounts and recall the bills sent to the property owners of the newly paved street.

The new assessment will be based on suggestions made by Councilman Alexander Milne, that the taxable valuation of each property be considered in making the assessment, as well as the extent of frontage. The theory to be followed will be to assess each property strictly according to the benefits received as specified by law, each individual lot to be considered separately.

As no one was present last night to voice objections to any change that might be made in the assessment, the Steiner place property owners will have to accept the revised bills for the macadamizing without further discussion.

The decision was made by the Council following the reading of a communication from the assessment committee, which is comprised of John P. Emmons, J. V. E. Vanderhoef and George White, that any alteration or adjustment of the amounts of the assessments they had levied would be inequitable and unjust. At the last meeting of the Borough Council, the committee's report was returned to them for reconsideration on the grounds that they had made the assessment entirely on the basis of a certain amount per front foot instead of according to the "benefits received" as specified by law.

All matters pertaining to the joint sewerage system was adjourned to the next meeting which will be held Monday, December 30.

Toward the close of the meeting Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., took opportunity to say a few words of regret at the retirement of Councilmen William J. Buttfield and Morris C. VanArsdale, who will be succeeded by E. S. Boyer and Allan Cowperthwaite. He said in substance:

"Before we adjourn I wish to express my regrets that two of our members will not be with us next year and to thank them for the help and assistance they have given me, and for the valuable service they have rendered the borough while they have been in office. Since the beginning of my term as Mayor approximately a year ago, my relations with these gentlemen have been most cordial and it is partly due to them that my administration has been as successful as it has been. I have been aided and advised by them in many instances and I hope that in the ensuing year although they are not councilmen, that we will still have their assistance and be honored by their presence at many of our meetings. I also wish to thank the remaining members of the Council for the able manner in which their duties have been performed during my term of office. You have all been unselfish and always willing to do your share of solving the problems that have confronted us from time to time."

Mr. Buttfield thanked the Mayor and said he would always be willing to co-operate with the Council on any matter, at any time. Mr. Milne acted as spokesmen for the remaining Councilmen saying their associations with the Mayor had always been pleasant and that his treatment of them had always been cordial, fair and above reproach.

ALL DENOUNCE FREEHOLDER GRAB

Opinion of Elizabeth Journal, the Republican Party's Spokesman.

SMITH WAS IGNORED

Acton of Ousted Board Making Appointments on Eve of Its Retirement Considered a Hard Blow to G. O. P.—What Journal Says.

No untrammeled newspaper or citizen remained mute when it was learned yesterday of the tricky political deal put over by the Republican majority in the dying Union County Board of Freeholders which began Thursday to fill appointments for the full terms on the eve of its retirement from office on Jan. 1. The consensus of opinion as heard on the streets appears to be that it was the most nefarious piece of political jobbery ever worked in Union county, and those responsible for it were denounced biterly.

When a representative of the Daily Press asked Republican County Chairman Frank H. Smith this morning what he had to say of the action of the office-hungry appointment-grabbing Republican members of the Board to be ousted the first of the year by the verdict of the people last November, it was plainly evident that Mr. Smith was displeased with their tactics.

"All I know about that matter," said the head of the G. O. P. organization, "is that I knew nothing about the intended move; I was not consulted about it at all."

Friends of Smith, in commenting on his statement, declared that had he been consulted he would have bitterly opposed such an indefensible move to defeat the people's will as expressed at the polls. They do not hold him responsible, but they do say that the disorganized condition of the Republican party in Union county is due to the fact that iniquity is perpetrated without his knowledge and he naturally is made to bear the

STARTS CONTEST FOR BOOST PLAN

Chamber of Commerce Gives up Struggle to Evolve One Itself.

PRIZES TO TOTAL $175

Action of Ousted Board Making Appointments Includes Best Catchy Phrase Gets Special Merit Rating—Contest Rules Simple.

The Chamber of Commerce having wrestled for several months with the problem of a good plan to advertise Plainfield and set forth its advantages, has decided upon a plan "to get a plan" which it is believed will prove a success. The Chamber today sent out an invitation to every newspaper within a radius of one hundred miles of New York city, asking each one to have its advertising manager and all of its readers compete for prizes amounting to $175, divided as follows: First prize, $100; second prize, $50, third prize, $25.

The purpose of the contest is to secure an advertising plan of such medit that it will be unquestionably effective in making the exceptional advantages of the community widely known. The first, second and third prizes are offered for the best plans to be submitted under the title, "The Advantages of Plainfield, and How to Make Them Widely Known."

It is also the desire of the Chamber of Commerce to secure a slogan by the use of which Plainfield's civic expansion can best be promoted, and to that end the plan containing the best slogan will be entitled to a special mark of merit of twenty-five per cent. If the slogan is sent alone, and it seems advisable to award the third prize for it instead of for the third best complete plan, the matter will be left to the discretion of the judges.

The rules of the contest are few and simple. First, All contestants must mail their contributions on or before midnight, February 1, 1913, plainly addressed to Paul H. Burns, secretary of the Chamber of Com-

WILSON AND BRYAN CONFER ON ADMINISTRATION'S POLICIES

Closeted at State House They Discuss Cabinet Possibilities and Both Agree After Three Hours' Talk They Had a Perfectly Delightful Time.

Trenton, Dec. 21 (Special).—Beaming with smiles, Governor and President-elect Woodrow Wilson and Col. William Jennings Bryan, thrice defeated nominee for the presidency, who was largely responsible for the nomination of the "schoolmaster," emerged from a three hours' conference to greet a group of newspapermen at 1:15 this afternoon.

"I have had a very delightful talk wth Mr. Wilson," said the Commoner, "and I prefer that he tell you what transpired."

Governor Wilson admitted that party policies and the fulfilment of the party platform as speedily as possible had been the subject of discussion. There had been no definite conclusions reached, he said, but he confirmed Mr. Bryan's statement that they had spent a most pleasant time together.

The two had talked over Cabinet timber, admitted the President-elect, but he was firm in his declaration that the Colonel's name had not been mentioned in that connection. He asserted that he had not made up his mind, but the newspapermen took it for granted that the Secretaryship of State will be given to the Nebraskan if he wants it.

It was also admitted by Mr. Wilson that the proceedure after he assumes office was talked over but there was no talk of the proposed early extra session of Congress, it being taken for granted by both.

"O course I will attend the inauguration of Mr. Wilson," said the Commoner, in reply to a query.

When the President-elect and Bryan left the State House they went direct to the Hotel Stirling for luncheon. Charles Fury, well known in Plainfield, and a great admirer of the two, is the proprietor of the hotel and he extended a hearty welcome to his distinguished guests.

The Commoner arrived in Trenton at 9:18 and was met at the station by Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to Governor Wilson, who took him at once to the State House.

Happenings Due Next Week

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—It is something almost without precedent for the national capital to pass a Christmas with no celebration at the White House, which always has been a great centre of attraction during the holidays. The President probably will have his Christmas celebration in Colon. It will be the first Christmas since he became President that Mr. Taft has not spent in the executive mansion, but with Mrs. Taft and several close friends, with him, he doubtless will enjoy the day almost as much as if he were in Washington.

In the homes of nearly all of the cabinet officials and others prominent in the affairs of the national government here the day will be essentially a family day. In the diplomatic corps the holiday will be observed according to the custom of each country represented. The "Noel" will be duly observed at the French embassy with all the customs of France, while roast pig, plum pudding and a burning yule log will aid the Christmas cheer of Merry England at the British embassy.

On the day after Christmas Admiral George Dewey, hero of the battle of Manila Bay, and the ranking officer of the navy, will celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary, and he does not care who knows it. He is proud of the fact that he is seventy-five years old, for few men have reached his age retaining their good looks, the vigor of mental and physical youth, and last, but not least, the natural optimism of a school-boy.

President-elect Woodrow Wilson will reach his fifty-sixth birthday anniversary Saturday. He has promised to spend the day in Staunton, Va., the place of his birth. Plans are being made by citizens of Staunton to make his visit a notable occasion.

During the latter half of the week Boston will be the gathering place of hundreds of well known economists, historians, sociologists, statisticians and others interested in the promotion of various social sciences and reforms. Annual meetings will be held there by the American Economic Society, the American Historical Association, the American Political Science Association, the American Sociological Society, the American Statistical Association, the American Association for Labor Legislation and the Efficiency Society. It will be the most remarkable conjunction of such societies that has ever taken place in any city.

From Thursday until Saturday Washington will entertain the annual meetings of the Archaeological Institute of America, the American Philological Association and the Society of Biblical Literature. The Association of American Geographers will hold its annual session at New Haven and elsewhere there will be meetings of various other learned and educational societies. In numerous States the public school teachers will hold their State conventions during the holiday week, in accordance with their annual custom.

Read the statements of Plainfield citizens.

And decide for yourself.

Here is one case of it:

C. L. Treat, painter and paperhanger, 411 E. Third St., Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered for a long time from kidney trouble and for years could not find anything that would give me relief. My back ached constantly and there was pain across my kidneys. My kidneys were in bad shape and I became all run down, in fact, was almost a physical wreck. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a supply and they made a different man out of me. I got this remedy at Randolph's Drug Store and my experience was so satisfactory that I cannot make my endorsement of it too strong. I simply would not be without a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills on hand."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

E. H. BIRD, P. M.

TO THE "GOOD FELLOWS" OF PLAINFIELD

To the Good Fellows of Plainfield and the Girls, Too:

Just about this time last year I told you my story. You listened to it—you did more—you followed its spirit out in a bang-up style. Bless your hearts, you made over 600 poor little tots know the real meaning of a joyous Christmas. I'm not claiming any credit for my story; I'm claiming credit for knowing that there are many Good Fellows in this fine old town of ours—royal chaps, who don't do much preaching, but when it comes to doing a good turn, well, they're there with the goods. This is no sermon that I'm handing you, it's a heart to heart talk with men with red blood in their veins, and here it is off last year's reel.

On Christmas and New Year's eve you and I went out for a good time and spent from $10 to $200. Christmas morning hundreds of children awoke to an empty stocking—bitter with the pain of disappointment that Santa Claus had forgotten them. That's the way it used to be. Perhaps it wasn't our fault. We had provided for our own; we had also reflected in a passing way on those less fortunate than our own, but they seemed far off and we didn't know where to find them. Perhaps in the hundred and one things we had to do some of us didn't think of that heart sorrow of the child over the empty stocking.

Now, old man, here's a chance. Just send your name and address to the Daily Press—address Santa Claus—state about how many children you are willing to protect against grief over that empty stocking, inclose a two-cent stamp and you will be furnished with the names, addresses, sex and age of that many children. It is then up to you, you do the rest. Select your own present, spend 50 cents or $50, and send or take the gifts to those children on Christmas eve. You pay not a cent more than you want to pay—every cent goes just where you want it to go. You gain neither notoriety nor advertising; no record will be kept; your letter will be returned to you with its answer. The whole plan is just as anonymous as old Santa Claus himself.

This is not a newspaper scheme. The Daily Press will preserve the anonymous character of this work. The responsibility of finding the children and sending you their names will be assumed by this paper and it guarantees that whatever you bestow will be deserved.

Neither you nor I get anything out of this, except the feeling that you have saved from sorrow on Christmas morning. If that is not enough for you then you have wasted time in reading this—it is not intended for you, but for the good fellows of Plainfield.

Perhaps a twenty-five cent doll or a ten cent tin toy wouldn't mean much to the children you know, but to the child who would find them in the otherwise empty stocking they mean much—the difference between utter disappointment and the joy that Santa Claus did not forget them. Here is where you and I get in. The charitable organizations attend to the bread and meat, the clothes, the necessaries; you and the rest of the good fellows furnish the toys, the nuts, the candies, the child's real Christmas.

GOOD FELLOW.

"Good Fellow" is not a professional philanthropist, he takes a drink, and even goes out at night with the boys for a mild good time—but he has taken care of some poor little ones each year in Plainfield. He says he wishes he had always curtailed his holiday joy-making with the good fellows even more than he did, so that he might have had more money to gladden childish hearts.

The Worthy Grand Master of the lodge of Good Fellows has laid his plans for securing names through the Charity Organization Society.

This is how you can joint the lodge of Good Fellows. Write a letter to "Santa Claus," care of the Daily Press, something like this:

I live at No.....street. I will be Santa Claus to 6 children.

JOHN JONES.

The letter will go to Santa Claus. He will indorse on your letter the names and addresses of six children. That letter will be remailed to you. Then you get busy. That's all. Come on in, good fellows.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, DECEMBER 21, 1912.

The editorial columns of this paper are conducted on Saturdays by representative citizens who are free to express their own views. R. Henry Depew, one of the heaviest investors in Plainfield real estate, and a man of pronounced civic virtue, is the contributing editor for today.

"WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH PLAINFIELD?"

The question being asked is "What is the matter with Plainfield and with Plainfield real estate?"

I will endeavor to give the answer.

"It isn't what you have, its what you think of what you have that counts."

Tell a well man that he looks sick and you first put the "sick" thought in his brain.

Let five or six more do the same and he will take to his bed.

Keep telling a sick man that he looks better and the "well" thought is implanted in his brain and begins to influence him, and before he realizes it he is on the road to recovery.

Imagination is the force that moves the world.

The Atlantic Cable, the Brooklyn Bridge, the subway, the telephone were all created in men's brains, the children of their imagination, before they were created in wire, stone and iron. Every action, every thought even, has an influence on other people. If your thoughts are positive, creative and upbuilding you will imbue those around you with the same spirit. If you run down your own things do you think others are going to talk them up or want them? Did John Wanamaker build up his great business by taking a poor building, hiring salesmen who would work against each other, run down the goods in other departments as a means of trying to sell their own and saying that prices were too high, materials bad, etc.? Would he have succeeded by letting his goods become shopworn and then complaining that people would not buy them at the price of new goods? Or by stocking up too heavily for the demand and with unattractive goods?

That suggests the trouble—nothing fundamental—but there has been overproduction of cheap looking, undignified houses to sell at high prices; properties have been allowed to become shopworn and the salesmen, the real estate agents, have been working against each other, against their own interests and the interests of the city by "knocking" the properties offered by others, thinking thereby to increase their own business, instead of which they have driven people away to other places where the agents work together, realizing that every new resident whether located by them or by another broker will help everybody by filling a vacant property and by bringing others; and that every one driven away injures all.

As my purpose is to do constructive work which will benefit Plainfield and its real estate owners, and not to write a criticising article, I called together about twenty of the real estate agents and discussed the subject and then suggested the formation of a Real Estate Brokers' Association, the members of which should correct the abuses and work together for the general uplift. The benefits were apparent and the Association was started.

It is proposed to list all properties which are for sale or to rent, probably do away with all "For Sale or To Let" signs, which give people a bad impression, and to work together without destroying individual initiative. If this plan is adhered to the effect will be far reaching and it is hoped that owners, in their own interest, will co-operate in making it a success.

A few years ago everybody praised up Plainfield and pointed with pride to the beautiful churches and homes, the public schools, the finest in the State, the miles of beautifully shaded, well paved streets, the excellent stores, the attractive clubs with their two fine golf courses, a good theatre, the best train service out of New York, a wonderful supply of pure sparkling water and a class of people who for substantial qualities and general attractiveness can not be exceeded anywhere. Have any of these conditions changed? Not a whit, except for the better in most instances. It is true that improvements can be made and instead of "knocking" let us work together and help bring them about.

The street lighting is complained of and justly. The fault is with the Public Service Corporation for neglecting to change lamps and with the city authorities for not compelling attention to this feature. A request to the manager of the Public Service Corporation has brought a prompt promise of immediate attention and I would suggest the substitution of tungsten lamps for those now in use, with possibly arc lights in certain sections. The lighting in and around the railroad stations and the care of the west bound station have been the cause of bitter and just complaint for years. This subject has been discussed with the Vice President of the road and correction has been promised and already tungsten lamps have been substituted for the ordinary lamps previously used.

It has been claimed that we need the tunnel connection. Enquiry of the vice president of the Jersey Central disclosed the fact that during the first year of use of the tunnel by the Pennsylvania railroad the Jersey Central lost heavily at competing points, Elizabeth and Newark, but during the last year the old patrons have returned to the Jersey Central and the traffic from these places is twelve per cent heavier than before the tunnels were opened and a new club car has been put on for Newark patrons.

Now for conditions of values: In the business section properties have advanced generally from 50 per cent. to 400 per cent. and continue to advance with each sale.

In the residence sections values differ according to conditions. In sections which have been built up for years properties have had their advance and remain fairly stationery, or decline, if places are allowed to run down, and the same thing would happen in any other form of investment or with real estate in any other cities. In new sections, however, property judiciously selected a few years ago shows an increase of values as great as those in the business sections namely from 50 per cent. to 400 per cent.

Can you show better results anywhere else or in any other form of conservative investment?

Therefore it resolves itself into this:

Fundamentally Plainfield real estate is an excellent investment when carefully chosen.

Make it still better.

By boosting instead of knocking.

By owners keeping properties, whether occupied or vacant (and particularly when vacant) in good repair and well trimmed inside and out. This means higher rent and sustained or increased values whereas neglect means reduced values and reduced or lost incomes.

By owners co-operating with the agents in their efforts to improve conditions.

By agents suggesting to owners ways of making their properties more attractive, available and valuable.

By builders employing artistic and competent architects to furnish plans for their houses and by building better and more attractive houses of stucco, half timber work, etc., and of definite styles of architecture, instead of the wretched looking contrivances that are being erected all over; the only variations of the two or three styles in general use being extra excrescences in the shape of misplaced dormer windows and gables that never should have been put on. By building in this way, using larger lots and asking fair prices the builders' profits would be increased, all property would be more valuable and the whole city would be improved. This plan seems to be followed in Montclair, the Oranges and Long Island places to the great benefit of all concerned.

By owners and residents in general talking up and pointing with pride to all of the good points before mentioned, and to the many others not mentoned and by working together to eliminate any bad features which may exist. No place is without some flaws, but when the balance is struck no city in the vicinity of New York will be found to have a larger balance to its credit or prove to be a more desirable place of residence.

The pessimist is a destroyer—of no use to himself or anyone else.

The optimists, the Harrimans, the Hills and the men of that stamp, are the men who have built up the world.

Do your part—Be an optimist and help to build up Plainfield.

KRIS KRINGLE VISITS OLD MEETING HOUSE

Fortieth Annual Christmas Exercises by the Religious Society of Friends.

The second annual Christmas tree and the fortieth annual Christmas exercises of the Religious Society of Friends was held in the Friends' meeting house on Watchung avenue, last night. The program of the evening was divided into three parts—readings and recitations, games and distribution of presents by Santa, and refreshments.

Miss Mabel H. Vail, superintendent of the Sunday-school, delivered an address of welcome. Recitations were delivered by the following: "Welcome," Marguerite Vail and Robert Goldsack; "The Star of Bethlehem," Ruth Vail, Grace Goldsack, Gladys Weaver and Irving Weaver; "Ring Out Wild Bells," Ruth Stryker; "How the Little Kite Learned to Fly," Ellis Vail; "Christmas Somewhere," John Lorton. There were readings, "A Christmas Story," by Ruth Compton; "A Visit to Santa in His Name," by Marguerite Vail and by Ruth Stryker.

At 9 o'clock Norman Stringham, dressed as Santa Claus, came in to pay a visit to the Sunday-school. He found a Christmas tree, artistically decorated and lighted with incandescent lights prepared for him. Santa opened his sack at the foot of the tree and distributed the presents. After the presentation of gifts the refreshments committee came to the fore.

The committee in charge of the affair were: Tree, Norman Stringham and Harvey Vail; entertainment, Mrs. Amy Lorton, Miss Marguerite F. Vail, Mrs. Elizabeth Ogden, W. Palmer Davis and Miss Mabel Vail; refreshments, Mrs. Gertrude Stringham, Mrs. Harry Vail and Frank Knight.

HOLD REUNION PARTY FOR LAST YEAR'S H. S. CLASS

Miss Helen L. Ryder, of 310 Central avenue gave a reunion party to the members of the 1912 graduating class of the Plainfield High School at her home last night. About thirty of the class attended and enjoyed the good time the affair afforded.

During the evening Miss Margaret Hawkins played selections on the piano and Arthur Lewis played violin selections. At a late hour, after the members of the class had enjoyed the dancing and games, refreshments were served.

The rooms were artistically decorated with red and white crepe paper streamers, the class colors. A large design in which 1912 was worked, arrayed one wall.

Miss Elizabeth Smyth, South Bound Brook	1103

In a few brief hours the ballot box will yield its secrets and the winners of the Daily Press piano contest will be known. The polls will close at 8 o'clock tonight, and the ballot box will be turned over to the three judges named who will make the final count. They are Assistant County Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., former Judge William N. Runyon and David J. Carney, editor of The Review.

There is absolutely no certainty as to who will win the three grand prizes—the player-piano, the piano without the player attachment, and the cabinet vitaphone. Contestants and their friends are urged to get their subscription payments in at as early an hour as possible. The votes may be cast at any time before 8 o'clock. Subscribers who have promised their help to a particular organization or individual must attend to the matter today or this evening, if the payment is to benefit the candidate.

Another Minstrel Coach.

Manager J. Gregory Carty, of the P. H. S. minstrel troupe, has snared another coach for the organization. Clyde Doane, who starred as an end man for three years in the High School troupe, has consented to coach this year's "blackface" artists during his college vacation, and will disperse some suggestions Monday afternoon.

LYLE'S MINSTRELS MADE HIT WITH CHURCH FOLK

Will Lyle's plantation minstrels was the attraction at the first of the series of entertainments given by the Church of the Holy Cross at the Park Club last night, and the affair was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. The members of the company gave a typical presentation of the old-time plantation melodies and the harmony of the several voices delighted the audience.

Part first of the program follows: Opening chorus, "Dixie," entire company, song and chorus, "Goodbye Rose," James Flavelle; end song, "Where You Going?" Bert Coyle; bass solo, "When the Bell in the Lighthouse Rings Ding Dong," John Macho; end song, "Nigger, Nigger, Nigger Never Die," Will Lyle; selection, "Moonlight Bay," Paul Thomas; piano selection, William Von Schiller.

This was the program in part second: "Niggerish Niggerisms," Bert Coyle; "Darktown Melodies," Octo Quartet; "A Social Call," banjo comique, Will Lyle; "The Minstrel Cartoonist," Oliver.

The program tomorrow morning will include musical selections by Mrs. Guy Bender, soprano, and Randall Tremphy, tenor. Rev. A. E. Wilson, the new pastor, will preach on the theme, "Divine Visitations." A holiday party for the children of the parish will be held Friday afternoon, December 27, in the Sunday-school room.

FINANCIAL REPORTS OF BOROUGH DEPTS.

Street and Police Committees Get Appropriations—Court Figures.

A report of the expenditures and balance on hand of the various departments of the borough which received appropriations during the fiscal year, were received by the Council at the meeting held last night. They are as follows:

Police department: Expenditures, $4,996.38; balance, $504.62; fire department: Expenditures, $3,019; balance, $539.81; street department: Expenditures, $9,440.30; balance, $33.64; lights: Expenditures, $5,383.28; balance, $66.18; water fund: Expenditures, $1,380; balance, $215; overseer of the poor: Expenditures, $1,554; balance, $21.39; sewer department: Expenditures, $578.50; balance, $421.50; borough fund: Expenditures, $3,892.84; balance, $1,107.16.

An appropriation was granted to the Street Department amounting to $260 to meet current expenses. The police department was also granted $200.

Recorder Gano reported that during the year 1912 the police department had made 381 arrests; $535 in fines were collected, of which $430 was turned over to Collector George F. W. Brown; $65 to the State Motor Department covering the amount collected from violators of the automobile laws, and $40 to the State Game Warden. Of the arrests made 121 prisoners were fined; 7 sent to the county jail; 13 served time in the borough jail; 190 had sentence suspended and 50 cases were dismissed.

The clerk was authorized to prepare and have printed, 300 copies of the Council's report for the fiscal year ending December 31.

Building permits were granted to William Kirkschner and Dr. F. S. Herbert, the former to erect a one-family house in Duer street and the physician to build a barn in the rear of his present home in Whitewood avenue.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the appointment of a committee on "public affairs," in lieu of the present printing, stationery and supply committee.

IT IS EASIER TO SAVE THE HAIR YOU HAVE THAN TO GROW NEW

The tendency to put off until tomorrow what we should do today accounts for most of the bald heads we see in the front row.

Newbro's Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. The dandruff germ is destroyed by its use and a condition of health maintained in the hair and scalp.

Nearly everyone has hair trouble of some description which Herpicide will always correct. Don't wait until it is too late.

It is conceded to be the standard hair remedy and is recommended and applied by all the best Hair Dressers and Barbers.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

DELICIOUS FUDGES.

HOMEMADE candies for New Year's desserts or for the children's New Year's party are desirable. Fudge is a sweetmeat that is popular with almost all, and it may be made in different ways. Some excellent recipes are given here:

Toothsome Sweets.

Peppermint Fudge.—Take two cupfuls of white coffee sugar. Add to it one half cupful of water and eight drops of oil of peppermint. Boil the sirup for about ten minutes before dropping in the peppermint. Stir it hard until it begins to cream. Then pour into buttered pans and cut into squares.

Marshmallow Fudge.—Take two cupfuls of granulated sugar, two-thirds of a cupful of milk, two squares of chocolate, two level tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one fourth of a pound of marshmallows.

Put the sugar, milk, chocolate and butter into a saucepan and place over the fire. Stir until the chocolate is melted. While the mixture is boiling cut the marshmallows into small pieces and scatter them over the bottom of a buttered shallow pan. When the fudge is almost done set the pan into a moderately hot oven to soften the marshmallows. When the fudge has boiled for ten minutes drop a little of it into cold water, and as soon as it forms a soft ball take the pan from the fire and add the vanilla. Beat until it thickens; then pour over the marshmallows. When slightly cool cut into squares.

Two Chocolate Fudges.

Chocolate Nut Fudge. Take two cupfuls of white or brown sugar with boiling water to moisten it. Boil until it forms a soft ball when tested in cold water and then add one tablespoonful of butter, one-half of a small cake of chocolate scraped fine and one tablespoonful of milk. Boil until a little of it on a dish seems firm and waxy. Do not scorch. Beat well and when it thickens add one cupful of walnut or hickory nut meats.

Chocolate Fudge.—Take three cupfuls of granulated sugar, one small cake of chocolate, butter the size of a walnut, one scant cupful of milk, one scant half cupful of water. Mix thoroughly; boil, stirring occasionally, until a firm ball forms when tested in cold water. Remove from the stove and let the vessel stand in hot water for ten minutes without stirring. Have ready in a good sized saucepan the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs, with one-half teaspoonful of salt. Pour the chocolate mixture gradually over the beaten whites, stirring constantly. Beat for a few minutes until it stiffens. Pour into buttered tins. Cut in squares.

DOINGS IN DRESSDOM.

Amber Combs For the Hair the Exclusive Caper In Paris.

The comb that is most worn in Paris is of amber and is worn lengthwise instead of across the head. The hair is arranged very simply, so that with the hat on little of it shows. Simple as it is, however, it gives work for the hair dresser, as all the front hair must be carefully waved. The knot in the middle of the head is closely confined with hairpins and must not bulge the least bit in the world.

SMART COLLARS.

Many women are having the coats of their dress suits made longer, especially those fancy tailored suits made of velvet or other dress material. The tops of the dress shoes in many instances either match the suit or contrast with it. For instance, a blue velvet suit with gray topped shoes is very much in favor with the well dressed woman.

This season has been exceedingly generous in supplying modish collars. Here are four, all unusually attractive, yet each different from the other. The Robespierre effect is seen in three of the models. JUDIC CHOLLET.

This May Manton pattern of collars is cut in one size only. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7969, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

EDITOR

MRS. E. F. FEICKERT.

More Red Cross stamps will be sold in Plainfield this year than ever before. The stores and banks report a constant demand for them, and the school children have been doing splendid work. All the schools have done very well, none having sold less than a thousand stamps, but the Stillman School is far in advance of all the others. The children of this school have sold 11,321 stamps, amounting to $113.21. There was a great deal of competition between the different grades as to which would sell the largest number of stamps. Grade 7-D, teacher, Miss Mary Searle, is the winner, having sold 2,226 stamps, and Grade 8-D is a close second with a sale of 2,279. Miss Alice Lansing is the teacher of this grade, and one of her pupils, Josephine Smith, has the highest individual record, having sold 644 stamps.

The manager of the Plainfield theatre has kindly offered to have descriptive handbills of the Christmas Stamps distributed at Saturday's performance at the theatre.

Every Red Cross Christmas seal is a bullet in the fight against tuberculosis. If you are willing to enlist in this righteous war, your first action should be to purchase a large supply of ammunition

The greatest need in the work of stamping out tuberculosis is that of personal care and supervision of each individual case. Even large collective control asserted in a broad way through social legislation will never be really successful except as administered and wielded by individuals. Every possible method of tuberculosis control comes back finally to a careful supervision of the homes of the patients, and a firm insistence upon proper precautionary and healthful conditions there. A patient may go to a senatorium for six months or a year and be sent home practically well, but he will not be really cured unless he goes home and finishes up the treatment by living carefully for three of four years. The reason so many tuberculosis patients die is because they think that after a few months treatment which has made them feel better, and look better and gain a good deal in weight, they can go back home and return to their old way of living; but they cannot do it and sooner or later if they do return to the same life, with its same hard duties and its same lack of proper food, they have a relapse, and the second attack is much harder to treat than the first.

The visiting nurse has a special mission to cases of this kind. She goes to their homes and observes them from week to week, she is their friend and can advise them about the right sort of food and clothing and caution them when she sees they are exceeding their strength. She is also able to see that the proper precautions are observed by the patients so that other members of their families may not be exposed to infection.

The Tuberculosis Nurse of the Plainfield Nursing Bureau is doing splendid work. During the month of November she made 161 visits to 25 tubercusosis patients, and 65 visits to persons predisposed to consumption but not actually infected. She secured the admission of thirteen of her patients to Bonnie Burn, the County Tuberculosis Sanatorium. The Anti-Tuberculosis League feels that its participation in the Nursing Bureau is one of the most important branches of its work.

EIGHT LETTER-MEN AT P. H. S.

In accordance with the annual custom of awarding the P. H. S. insignia to athletes at the Christmas exercises, eight students received the letters yesterday morning. Those who qualified in various sports were: Football, Garret DuBois, Morris Mann, Robert Gavett, Warren Butler, Joseph Green, Otto Moore and William Thompson; basketball, Mathew Conglan.

BIRTHDAY AT HOSPITAL.

NEW PRESIDENT SOON FOR FRENCH REPUBLIC

Election Quiet Affair and not at all Like American Counterpart.

Paris, Dec. 21.—Four weeks hence France will hav elected a new president who, unless something unforeseen should happen, will contniue in office for a term of seven years. M. Fallieres, the present holder of the office, has made all his preparations for his impending retirement and engaged modest apartments not far from the American embassy. After his retirement he expect to divide his time between Paris and his little estate Loupillon in southern France, where he produces in his vineyards about 600 casks of wine yearly.

To those who are accustomed to the feverish activity, aggressive campaigning and intense public excitement invariably preceding an election in the United States the universal apathy and complete lack of interest in the coming election, as displayed throughout France, must be a surprise and disappointment. But it must be remembered that in France the President is not elected by the people, as in the United States, but by the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, meeting in joint session as National Assembly at Versailles on January 17, once every seven years. It is true, there were times when the approaching election of a president aroused a certain amount of popular interest, but those instances were rare. The coming election has not caused even a flutter of interest and one may travel from one end of France to the other without hearing a single mention of the coming event. It is not even generally known who the candidates are or whether there are any candidates.

In view of the fact that the president is elected by a majority vote of the combined Senate and Chamber of Deputies and the additional fact that the two houses are divided into a large number of parties and factions, it would be impossible to predict who will be the successful candidate, even if all the possible candidates were known. The legislative body invariably selects a man who has long been a member, and has perhaps served as president, of one or the other of the chambers; who has been active in committee work, and has perhaps held a portfolio in one or more ministries; who is not strenuous or aggressive, and has not made too many personal enemies.

Among those who fit into this class and who may therefore be considered as possible candidates, Paul Desohanel, president of the Chamber, and one of its bright lights for twenty-eight years, is perhaps the foremost. He is 55 years of age and his family has great wealth. A notable candidate from the Senate is Alexandre Ribot, three times premier and a man held in high esteem. His wife was Miss Mary Burch, of Chicago, and she has assisted him much in his public career. M. Ribot is nearly 71 years old. Other candidates are the president of the Senate, M. Dubost; Leon Bourgeois, Theophile Delcasse, Premier Poincare and Paul Doumer.

The general lack of interest in the coming election is principally due to two reasons, the fact that the people of France have no voice in the matter and the fact that the president of the French Republic occupies a position which, though distinguished and dignified, carries with it but little actual power. A familiar French witticism says: "The King of Great Britain reigns, but does not govern; the President of the United States governs, but does not reign; the President of the French Republic neither reigns nor governs." Nothing could more tersely and clearly state the actual conditions in the three countries named.

The President of the French Republic receives an annual salary of $120,000 and an equal annual sum for expenses and representation. Under the terms of the Constitution he promulgates the laws voted by both Chambers, and insures their execution. He has a limited veto power, but it requires only a mere majority vote to pass any law over the President's veto. The President selects the ministry, but, as a matter of fact, he is compelled to select the men whom the leaders of the ruling party have agreed upon before hand. He appoints to all civil and military posts, has the right of individual pardon, and is responsible only in case of high treason. The President concludes treaties with foreign powers, but cannot declare war without the previous assent of both Chambers. Every act of the President has to be countersigned by a Minister. The Ministers are not responsible to him, but to the Chambers. With the consent of the Senate he can dissolve the Chamber of Deputies and order a new election. Finally, the President has the right to create new offices by executive decree, but the Chambers may withhold appropriations for the salaries and expenses of these offices.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 40 degrees; 11 a. m., 44 degrees; 12:30 p. m., 44 degrees.

XMAS EXERCISES AT CITY HIGH SCHOOL

Pupils Present Two Pictures to Institution—Juniors Entertain.

Christmas exercises were held yesterday at the Plainfield High School. The usual senior program was arranged for the day. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, made an address.

Members of the senior class played an important part in the preliminary exercises, Miss Elsie Rodenbaugh and Miss Mildren Bookstaver reciting two selections from Charles Dickens, "Christmas Bells" and "Recollections From Christmas." The recently organized Glee Club under the direction of Musical Supervisor Charles L. Lewis, sang two songs.

As is the usual custom at Christmas time the student body presented to the school two pictures, one showing the falls of the Yellowstone Park and the other a scene in the Yosemite Valley. Miss Ruth Maguire made the presentation speech and the pictures were accepted by Miss Pauline Gates on behalf of the school. At the conclusion of Dr. Strong's address a quartet composed of the Misses Martha Casner, Irene Doane, Catherine Bingaman and Eviline Garda rendered the solo part of a cantata, "The Hope of the World," accompanied in the chorus by the school.

At the conclusion of the school program the class of 1913 took possession of the stage and administered the annual "stinging" to the juniors.

After the exercises in the chapel the junior class entertained the seniors, faculty and a few invited guests at a "spread" in the school gymnasium. Warren Butler, president of the junior class, acted as toastmaster and Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, Principal Lindsey Best, Henry R. Hubbard, Willard McKay and James Dunwell responded to toasts.

THEY STEPPED THE DANCES OF A GENERATION GONE BY

"An Old Fashioned Dance," given by several of the older residents of Dunellen in Junior O. U. A. M. Hall was enjoyed by thirty-five couples of old and young folks of that and other towns last night. Dancing of old fashioned dances was kept up until 2 o'clock this morning to the music of Kelley's orchestra from Somerville. At midnight an short intermission was held while refreshments were served.

The committee in charge was composed of Walter G. Runyon, Albert N. Randolph, Henry S. Garretson and George W. Day.

Charles Lines, of East Front street, a student in the Y. M. C. A. Training School at Springfield, Mass., is in town to spend the holidays with his parents.

John Bremble, of East Seventh street, will spend the week-end with friends in Philadelphia.

ALL-STARS CAPTURE DECIDING CONTEST

Rothbergs Lose Series, But Are by No Means Disgraced.

Defeat was administered to the Rothberg bowling quintet on the Olympia alleys last night by the All Star pin smashers who took the best out of three games from their old rivals. At the conclusion of the second game each team was found to have one to its credit and a roll off was necessary, the All Stars coming out ahead with a score of 943 to 929.

Radin was high man of the evening, smashing the wood for 199, 235 and 225 in the three games. Britton and Campbell also polled a double century in the second contest, while Evans and Campbell scored over 200 in the roll off.

HOT BASKETBALL GAME WON BY NETHERWOOD

Monarchs Crowded out in the Last Few Minutes of Play.

In a fiercely contested game on the Methodist Church court in Dunellen last night, the Netherwood A. C. five defeated the Monarch A. C. team, of Dunellen, by the score of 24 to 21. Neither team had any decided advantage over the other at any time during the contest and the Netherwood players only nailed the game in the last few minutes of play with a succession of field goals that spelled victory when the timer's whistle sounded a few minutes later.

A new player by the name of Pye adorned the ranks of the home quintet, and if the game he put up last night is a fair sample of what he can do the Dunellen aggregation has acquired a find. He seemed to be all over the floor and his passing and shooting were of the top notch variety. For the winners, Dickerson was the shining light of victory, and played his center position to perfection.

GIRL FIVES WILL CLASH ON THE 'PLAINS COURT

On the Scotch Plains' Parish House court, Monday night, the Nonpareil girls' basketball team, of this city, will play the Scotch Plains' Baptist girls' five in their first meeting of the season. This will be the second game for both teams, the 'Plains team having lost one, and the Nonpareils having won their initial contest.

A victory is popularly conceded to the Nonpareils, who are as fast a quintet of girl players that this vicinity can boast, having practically cinched the State's feminine title last season while playing under the colors of the North Plainfield High School. Their first game of the present season was played at the Y. M. C. A. against the Paterson Y. W. C. A. five, on Thanksgiving Day, and they came out ahead with a goodly margin to spare. The Scotch Plains girls, however, are familiar with the home court, where they have been practising regularly and from all accounts they will have to be reckoned with in announcing the final score.

DOUBLEHEADER AT Y. M. C. A. TONIGHT

Speedy Games of Basketball on Card and Records at Stake.

Two fast games of basketball are scheduled to be decided at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium tonight when the Ajax and Woodbridge Parish House fives clash in the main attraction, and the Presbyterian and Orange team, of the Y. M. C. A. Color League, come together in the preliminary. The main game promises to be a particularly fast one as the visitors come here with a record of ten victories and one defeat while the Ajax have yet to taste the sting of a loss after eight games. In the event that the association players win tonight they will tie their last season's record of nine consecutive victories. Ajax is, of course, desirous of bettering its previous high water mark.

It is understood that the Woodbridge team is the exact duplicate of the one which played the North Plainfield High School five last Wednesday afternoon and trounced the boroughites to the tune of 54 to 24. The Ajax will be without the services of their star guard, Myrton Glover, who has severed his connections with the team because of business pressure, but his place can be well filled by Andrew Hetfield, who has been playing both guard and forward on the High School and Ajax teams.

Presbyterian stock appears to be fancied for the preliminary game, although the Color Leaguers are a formidable bunch and will make their opponents extend themselves to the limit. The Presbyterian aggregation is the same team that put up such a speedy game against Scotch Plains Baptist at the Y. M. C. A. gym last Saturday night, winning by the score of 32 to 31.

The teams will present the following lineups: Ajax—Peacock and McNamee, forwards; Dunning, center; Brynarski and Hetfield, guards. Woodbridge—Reyder and Cushing, forwards; Wand, center; Deber and Vesci, guards. Presbyterian—W. Dunning and P. Dunning, forwards; Dunham, center; Dickerson and Murphy, guards. Orange—Sampson and Anderson, guards; Osborne, center; Mead and Shierle, guards.

HIGH SCHOOL "GRADS" ON BASKETBALL COURT

P. H. S. Will Stack up Against Alumni With a Crippled Lineup.

Manager Grisley, of the Plainfield High School basketball team, has fixed next Wednsday as the date of the annual P. H. S. and alumni game. It is expected that the undergraduates will stack up against one of the stiffest propositions on their season's schedule.

The game was staged for the holiday in order to allow a number of the old "grads," home from college, to get in the fray. Although no definite lineup has been announced it is understood that the alumni will take the floor as follows: Manley, Ricketts, forwards; Lidgate, center; Line, Doane, guards. Manley is at present in the pink of condition as he has been playing with his class team at Penn State College.

"Otter" Doane has also been playing college rules with the Williams College squad; Ricketts has been playing with a number of fast local and suburban fives, as has also Lidgate. Charlie Line is at present attending Springfield Training School, where they "make" athletes of every sort and he will be a great aid to the team at guard.

The P. H. S. team will be minus the services of Peacock, Hetfield and Buckle, who are to be engaged in holiday business on that date, but the following players are on the eligible list for this month: Good, Heron, Brynarski, Grisley and McNamee.

BASEBALL NOTES

Forrest Cady, the crack backstop of the Boston Champions, joined the Elks at Kewanee, Ill., recently.

Christy Mathewson is spending the winter months playing checkers and writing baseball stories for the daily press.

For his second season's work in the big show, Pitcher Eppa Rixey, of the Philadelphia Nationals, demands a salary of five thousand dollars.

Bill Coughlin, formerly of the Detroit Tigers, and last season manager of the Allentown Tri-State League team, has purchased a hotel in Scranton, Pa.

Manager Rowland, of the Dubuque team in the Three-I League, has signed Earl Mattick, a brother of "Chick" Mattick, of the Chicago White Sox.

Hugh McBreen is trying to sell his stock in the Jersey City club. Hugh was formerly secretary of the Boston Red Sox. He purchased an interest in the skeeters last year.

Detroit is full of gloom at the present time, for President Navin has refused to give Ty Cobb an increase in salary, and Ty threatens to quit baseball if Mr. Nevin doesn't come across.

Should Benny Meyer, secured from Toronto by the Brooklyn Superbas, stick to his determination to quit baseball, Charley Ebbets intends to grab Billy Zimmerman from the Newark team.

The name of the recently oragnized Northeastern League has been changed to the Maine State League. The circuit will include Portland, Lewiston, Bagnor, Augusta, Bath and Biddeford.

The members of the Cubs have appointed Ed Reulbach Cub representative to the Players' Protective Association, to succeed Johnny Evers, who resigned automatically when he became manager of the team.

Cornelius J. Sullivan, the attorney, vice president and director of the New York Giants, is the old Amherst and Harvard ball player. He was a member of Louis Frothingham's team in 1893, which won the series from Yale.

In his vaudeville act, Hugh Jennings sings a ballad entitled "That's How I Need You." Hugh ought to sing the song to Cobb and Crawford. It would surely touch the hearts of the two star outfielders and cause them to sign Detroit contracts minus an increase in salary.

Leo Tannehill, who was released by the White Sox a short time before the close of last season, was refused a share in Cubs-Sox series money by the Sox players, but President Comiskey saw that Tanny got a share. In speaking of the incident Commy said: "Some ball players are pretty tight, and I am sorry to say that some of the tightest belong to my team."

BASKETBALL AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

A double bill of basketball is scheduled for Scotch Plains fans tonight when the Senior class five plays the Mt. Pleasant A. C., and the Monarch A. C. lines up against the Scotch Plains first team. Both pairs of contestants are evenly matched and good games should be the issue.

DUNELLEN CHURCHMEN OUTROLL WOODBRIDGE

The Baraca class bowling team of the First Presbyterian church at Dunellen won two out of the three games from the Woodbridge team on the Presbyterian alleys. The feature game was the first, in which Baraca triumphed by 8 pins, the final score being 749 to 741. Woodbridge won the second, 862 to 795, but fell down in the last match when the players rolled only 657 as against 709 for Baraca. Although the scores were not high and no fancy pin work was accomplished the games were interesting. The scores:

INTERSCHOOL GAME OFF.

Because of a disagreement regarding the courts on which the Interscholastic Basketball League games were to be played the managers got together this morning and called off the N. P. H. S.-P. H. S. game scheduled for the Y. M. C. A. next Saturday afternoon. It is probable that some agreement will be reached within the next week and the schedule completely revised.

CO. K FIVE AT HOPE CHAPEL.

Company K will furnish a team of basketball players to lineup against the Hope chapel five in the latter team's gymnasium tonight and Captain Thompson is scouting around for a strong lineup to get even with the Chapelites for the defeat administered to his team earlier in the season.

GAME CANCELLED.

Owing to the disability of two men the Upchurch Quoit team in the A. O. U. W. tournament cancelled its match game with the local Columbia team which was to have been played in this city last night.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

It is a question which wins the greater success, Mrs. Fiske or Edward Sheldon, who wrote for her "The High Road," the new play which, with versatility that she has never before displayed in any one role, she produces at the Hudson theatre. There are at any rate, honors enough to go around in a dramatic event that was infinitely superior to all other first nights of recent date at the theatres. Although the audience treats the play warily during the first two acts, owing probably to the narrative form in which it began, it ends by showing emphatic signs of approval. It is not too much to say that "The High Road" scores one of the few big and deserved hits of the season. Success has not knocked infrequently at Mrs. Fiske's door, but for Mr. Sheldon "The High Road' is a big feather in his cap. Since he wrote "The Boss" two years ago for Holbrook Blinn his progress has been surprisingly rapid. His view-point now is more consistent, his ideas have matured and his technical proficiency in building up his scenes and climaxes has developed to a marked degree. He still strains hard at times for theatric effect, but this fault he is gradually overcoming. Throughout the new play his dialogue was facile, vigorous and convincing.

FEAST SOFTENS MOOD OF MOTORCYCLISTS

Speed Frowns and Walk Scowls Smoothed Away By Carved Turkey.

The first annual banquet of the Plainfield Motorcycle Club was held last night at Neighbor's. Fourteen members of the organization, which was formed in March of this year, and a squad of willing reporters, sat at the festive board.

Carbureters, cylinders, ignition, coils, spark plugs and magnetos sputtered as the evening progressed. "Little Jack" Horner, king of the local motorcycle realm, was commander-in-chief of those who ride away and walk back.

Leslie Hampson had his log book under his chair and tried to make his neighbors swallow entries from it with their food.

An hour before the gathering broke up President Auerbach as toastmaster and chief orator gave a short history of the club. Jack Horner called for a membership of 50 at the next banquet. Many of the other members spoke.

Those present were: President, Ralph Auerbach; treasurer, Leslie Hamson; secretary W. DeW. Miller, and Julius Dickhudt, Jack Horner, B. S. McCutcheon, Nicholas Thul, Gus Johnson, A. Herlich, Percy Haberle, John Pedeflous, W. L. Klein, Clarence Giles and A. E. Causbrook. Vice President Moore was unable to attend.

MRS. ALICE THAW TO WED BOSTON BANKER

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 21.—Cards have been issued by Mrs. Charles Whitney, of Boston, announcing the engagement of her son, Geoffrey W. Whitney, a banker, to Alice Cornelia Thaw, formerly the Countess of Yarmouth, and since her divorce from Yarmouth known as Mrs. Copley

MRS. ALICE THAW

Thaw. The date for the wedding has not been set, but it will probably take place in the spring. Whitney's fiancee is the daughter of Mrs. William Thaw and a sister of Harry Kendall Thaw.

REVIVES SUGGESTION THAT CITY TAKE BOROUGH PUPILS

The possibility of making arrangements to have the Plainfield Board of Education accomodate the high school pupils of North Plainfield, was again advanced last night, at a meeting of the Borough Council. Councilman Butifield in offerig a resolution that a joint meeting of the Board of Education and Council be held before the close of the present year, said his motion was prompted by the tentative plans made for a new school in the northwestern section of the borough, and the remodeling of the Somerset building for a high school. He said it would be advisable to talk matters over with the board in regard to the advisability of making arrangements with this city to care for the borough high school pupils, in view of the fact that a high school addition was to be erected here.

CLAN CONCERT PROMISES TO BE MEMORABLE ONE

Clan Mackenzie, No. 204, O. S. C., has secured a number of noted artists for its concert at the Plainfield theatre on January 23. Among the talent will be the celebrated Hamilton Brothers' trio, of Newark; Miss Flora Hardy, contralto, of Montclair; the Lyon troupe of international dancers, of Jersey City, including Robert Lyon, Ben Davidson and Ray Harkness; Will Wilson, Gaelic comedian of Kearny; William Fullerton, tenor, of New York; the McIntosh Brothers, clan pipers, Miss Edith Hellet Frank, soprano, New York; H. J. Harold, accompanist, and Professor Moser, well known violinist.

The feature on the program will be the dances by Miss Lulu Harkness, who is known as the "champion Highland Scottish dancer in America." The pretty dancer has appeared in Plainfield before, and has always delighted her audiences by her graceful dancing.

The prizes offered by the division were awarded to the following ticket holders: First prize, $10 gold piece, No. 661; second prize, $5 gold piece, No. 397; third prize, $2.50, No. 667.

MONROE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

The exercises of the Sunday school of Monroe Avenue M. E. church will be held in connection with the regular morning service of the church tomorrow morning. The program: Recitations, "Welcome," Clarence Mowen; "Little Dorothy's Wish," Helen Walkin; "Just Before Christmas," Eugene Field and Fred Hubach; "Where Santa Gets His Christmas Things," Ruth Hubach, and "Christmas" by Mildred Schlick, Helen Schlick, Elizabeth Beekman, Dorothy Miles, Esther Saums and Louise Wilson. There will be two songs by the primary and kindergarten departments. The service will commence at 10.30 o'clock instead of the usual hour of 11 o'clock.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN S. S.

In the primary department there will be the following program: Song, Clouds of Gray, primary class; song, Birthday Bells, primary class; recitation, Jack Frost, Harold Price; recitation, While Stars of Christmas Shine, Ralph Williams; recitation, Almost a Man, Francis Kriney; recitation, aby Logis, Margaret Yates; recitation, Mrs. Fussy, Mary VanCleef. The kindergarten department will present two songs, Oh, Clap, Clap the Hands and Away in a Manger.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

Farmers' Week will be celebrated at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station, in New Brunswick, December 30, 1912, to January 3, 1913, and it is expected that many tillers of the soil in this vicinity, will take advantage of this event, which is demanding recognition as one af the regular means of agricultural education. On New Year's Day "Poultry" will be the main subject. Thomas Lindsay, of this city, is one of the students at the station.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Sidney Perrin will conduct the service at the Salvation Army at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. He will make an address.

On account of the union Christmas exercises to be held at the Crescent avenue church tomorrow afternoon, the usual 7 o'clock service will be omitted.

Rev. E. W. Roberts, pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, will preach morning and evening, tomorrow. In the evening there will be reception of new members.

JEWS SCHOOL NOTES.

There will be a basketball game Monday afternoon with the Jewitt brothers. The three are alumni of Jewis. It is not known yet who the other two members of the team will be. Game will be called at 4:15 p. m. in the Y. M. C. A.

There was to be a game tonight with the alumni but the Y. M. C. A. gym could not be obtained so the game has been cancelled.

The school closed yesterday and will open Monday, January 6.

SMASHED ARC GLOBE.

While engaged in cleaning one of the arc lights hanging at the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue, this morning, the Public Service employees in charge of the job let the glass globe hang close to the pavement and unprotected. A United States Express wagon driven by Arthur Renzle, hit the globe, smashing glass and carbon into smithereens.

MEMBERS OF HOUSEWIVES' LEAGUE SELLING EGGS IN CAMPAIGN AGAINST THE INCREASED COST OF LIVING

New York, Dec. 21.—New York has joined Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities in the campaign to reduce the high cost of living by reducing the price of eggs. Mrs. Julian Heath and Mrs. Egbert Chamberlain of the Housewives' league, are conducting the local crusade against dealers who are alleged to be holding eggs for higher prices than the season and conditions warrant.

IN DEFAULT OF BAIL HOLLY GOES TO JAIL

Plainfielder Against Whom There Are Several Charges Pleads Guilty.

Elizabeth, Dec. 21.—John I. Holly, of Plainfield, who was arrested in that city Thursday night on warrants issued here on the complaint of William J. Johansson, dealer in motorcycles, and Weiss & Epstein, clothiers, was arraigned in court this morning and entered a plea of guilty to both charges. He was held in $200 bail on each charge and in default of furnishing the same, was committed.

Holly is charged with securing a motorcycle from Mr. Johansson for the purpose of trying it. He is alleged to have given the owner to understand that he wanted to buy a machine, but instead, it is charged that he sold the motor and kept the money.

The other warrant sworn to by Weiss & Epstein, charges that Holly ordered a $30 overcoat and when it was delivered to hi office in the Hersh Building, here, he is said to have handed the messenger a check for $30 on the National Park Bank, New York. The check was subsequently returned with the information that the maker had no funds there.

BIG YEAR FOR MULFORD; RESIDENCE SALES $250,000

The Mulford real estate agency, of North avenue, is just closing the biggest year in the thirty-one years of its existence, the residential sales thus far amounting to $267,000. During this month, the agency has sold Ernest R. Ackerman's lot at Division and West Seventh streets to William H. Abbott, who will erect two houses in the spring. A large plot of ground has been sold to Thomas J. Mumford on Evergreen avenue, between Edgewood and Kensington avenues, upon which there will be built the memorial rectory for Grace church parish.

Thomas Leary, president of the Southern Express Company, has purchased William G. Hockridge's residence at 131 Crescent avenue, and after extensive improvements will take possession in the early spring. The agency also leased to Zeek Brothers, of Rutherford, A. J. Brunson's factory building on North avenue, where one of the largest bakeries in the State will be established. The firm will wholesale chiefly, but may decide to engage in the reail business.

DECEMBER PRODUCED $316,000 IN TAXES

Rush Yesterday at Two Offices—Borough Garners $60,000.

The receipts of the office of Tax Collector William R. Townsend, yesterday, the last day for the payment of taxes without added interest, were the largest for the month aggregating $109,000, making the total receipts for the month, $316,000. While the amount as a whole is ahead of last year's figures, yesterday's receipts fell a little short of those of a year ago, due no doubt to the fact that property-owners began paying their taxes on Monday, instead of waiting until the last day.

The rush at the office yesterday continued right up to 9 o'clock last night, at which time Mr. Townsend closed the office for the day. The collector, as well as his assistants Frank Dunham and Walter Firstbrook, were pushed to the limit at day and they were very tired at the close of business last night. Mr Townsend announced today that all persons paying taxes now will be obliged to add 10 per cent. interest from December 20, as taxes not paid yesterday are now delinquent.

Collector George F. Brown, of North Plainfield, collected tax money until 9 o'clock last night, and when the receipts had been added it was found that approximately a grand total of $60,000 had been collected this amount to green over two fifths of the complete borough tax and a gain of about $5,000 over the amount turned in at this time last year. From today on, interest on the tax bills will accrue at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

PIANO PERSONALITY

By merely taking advantage of the experience and knowledge laid down in work and records of piano-making, any piano maker can produce reliable pianos of good tone.

But by going a very little farther—by adding the Personal Touch—it is possible to build a piano of tone as far beyond that of ordinary pianos as sunlight is beyond any artificial light. Yet few piano makers know how to take this step farther. It is the personal touch which accomplishes in the placing it far above the ordinary well-made piano. Three generations of piano makers—sincere, resourceful, inventive, observing—have constantly pushed forward the Hallet & Davis ideal of fine tone. Yet never have they lost sight of the Hallet & Davis policy of Fair Price. Thus the brings the finest piano within the reach of all music lovers.

HALLET & DAVIS PIANO

THE PURE SUNLIGHT OF TONE

CONTEST FOR BOOST PLAN

merce, Plainfield. Second, the Chamber of Commerce reserves the right to use any part of or all of any plan submitted, whether or not the contestant wins a prize. This is the consideration for allowing the contributor to participate in the contest. Third, the Chamber of Commerce will not undertake to return any of the contributions submitted. Fourth, the contestant must fit his contribution to the subject and bear in mind that what is wanted is a definite, clean-cut, feasible plan to do just what is suggested by the assigned title, "The Advantages of Plainfield, and How to Make Them Widely Known."

DENOUNCE FREEHOLDER GRAB

blunt of it.

Mr. Smith said that he had read the editorials in the Plainfield Daily Press and the Elizabeth Journal holding up to public scorn the cheap politicians in the dying board who had perpetrated the deed; to be more exact, he merely said that he had read the editorials in question. The Elizabeth Journal, the spokesman for the Republican party in Union county, said incidently yesterday:

"Republicans throughout Union county will learn with a feeling of regret of the action of the outgoing Board of Freeholders yesterday in attempting to retain the present county engineer, Mr. Bauer, and the county road supervisor, Mr. Fink, in office by a plan which will strike most intelligent citizens as nothing more or less than a subterfuge, whether legal or not. * * *

"The filling of the office of county engineer is one of the responsibilities which the voters have placed on the incoming Board of Freeholders. * * *

"Much criticism has been directed in recent years at the Board of Freeholders in this county. From time to time it has been charged that its members have been personally avaricious and grasping in the conduct of public affairs. But without conclusive evidence to prove such claims, intelligent citizens have been inclined to believe that the criticism has been merely for political effect—a part of a persistent campaign of those who sought to dislodge these county officials. But whether the charges referred to are true or false, the Republican members of the Board of Freeholders certainly are now open to the charge that they are poor losers. Truly they die hard. The taste for public office appears stronger than most of us had imagined.

"The sobering phase of the action of the freeholders yesterday is that it is hostile to the best interest of the Republican party. That party's claim for future confidence can only be pressed successfully when there is reasonable foundation for the belief that the people are dealing with an organization which stands unqualifiedly for a square deal. All attempts to retain in office those who naturally retire with a change of administration will strike at the roots of public confidence in the promises and qualifications for leadership of the party responsible for such a deal. Such an effort can only look to the average citizen like a deliberate attempt to thwart the will of the people.

"* * * To force upon the new board at once a long-drawn-out legal contest in order to retain the services of an engineer of its own choice is sure to be interpreted by the masses of voters as deliberate interference with the machinery of our county government as it has been set up by the mandate of the people."

The topics of Rev. C. C. Cain's sermons tomorrow will be: Morning, "A Father's Love;" and evening, "The Promised Child." Special Christmas music will be sung at both morning and evening service. All are cordially invited to attend.

BIG BARN BURNS, LOSS IS $10,000

Huge Nott Fire Engine Does Volunteer Service at Oak Tree Blaze.

HORSE AND COW DIE

Three Departments Respond to Telephone Alarm, But Barn is Too Far Gone to Save—Spread of Flames Prevented.

More than a hundred tons of hay, hundreds of bushels of grain, valuable farm equipment, a prize cow and a big, valuable bay horse were lost last night in a fire which destroyed a large barn shortly after 8 o'clock on the E. H. Spear farm, situated on the Woodbridge road in Oak Tree. The loss is $10,000. Fire companies from this city, South Plainfield and Metuchen responded to the alarm and fought the flames until after midnight. The origin of the fire is unknown. Theories have been advanced that it was caused by the work of an incendiary, crossed wires, or a dropped match but the "investigation" into the cause has been only a guessing match so far.

The fire was discovered by a sister of Mr. Spear, who immediately telephoned to the surrounding fire departments. Chief Doane, of this city, received the local call and communicated with headquarters, from which an engine was started toward the Oak Tree estate.

The Chief then got into touch with Robert C. Woodhouse in Netherwood and the big Nott auto fire engine, which Mr. Woodhouse has been demonstrating, with Woodhouse at the wheel, left the Netherwood firehouse and went in pursuit of the steamer. The Plainfield engine was overtaken and sent back to this city. Woodhouse proceeded to smash some speed records. He opened up the 90 horsepower engine to fifty miles an hour, and covered the ten miles in a little less than 15 minutes. When the big machine arrived on the scene of the conflagration it was driven through a marsh to a pond in the rear of the buildings. The small body of water was sent through two 200-foot lines, pumping over 650 gallons a minute into the flame which had completely enveloped the barn. The fire had gained great headway before the engine arrived.

Tons of hay in the loft of the structure had already been caught by the flames and the building was fast becoming a skeleton. The firemen confined their efforts to saving the large residence of the Spears and several smaller farm buildings which were threatened by flyng sparks and emblers blown toward them by a strong wind.

Before help could arrive the horse and cow perished in their stalls in the basement of the barn. A large gas engine, cutters, mowing machines, reapers, binders, and various other farming paraphernalia were destroyed by the flames. The loss will be at least $10,000, and may exceed that figure.

PICK RECIPIENTS OF TWO LITTLE PLUMS

New Assemblymen Name Elizabeth Men for State Legislature Jobs.

Candidates for the legislative patronage which falls to the share of Union county were picked by the Democratic Assemblymen-elect from this county at a meeting held at the home of Assemblyman-elect William A. Leonard, in Grier avenue, Elizabeth. As there were only two certain appointments to be made, it was felt that the fairest method of choosing the candidates would be to leave it to luck. Three tickets were prepared. On one was written "Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms;" on the second, "Doorkeeper," and the third was left blank. It was understood that the man who drew the blank was to have the giving out of any additional patronage that may fall to the lot of the county after the Legislature convenes.

After the tickets had been placed in a hat and shaken up, the representatives pulled them out. Assemblyman-elect Hugh J. McLoughlin drew the doorkeeper appointment. He will name Michael J. Battersby for the berth. The appointment of assistant sergeant-at-arms fell to the lot of John J. Griffin, and he has decided to appoint Frank J. Pfaff. Mr. Leonard drew a blank and therefore had nothing to do with the making of the appointments. He may have an appointment to make later on, however, as it is very probable that one of the clerkships will be apportioned to Union county after the State lawmakers convene.

Both of the men slated for the State offices are residents of Elizabeth and are well known there. Mr. Battersby is a resident of the Eighth ward and he is employed in the Singer plant. Mr. Pfaff is a well-known lawyer and was counsel for James P. Kelly in the recent surrogate vote recount. The office for which he is slated pays a salary of $500 for the legislative term, and a salary of $350 for the term is attached to the doorkeeper job.

FUNERAL SERVICE TONIGHT OVER MRS. VAN WINKLE

The funeral service of Mrs. Edith R. VanWinkle, wife of Jacob R. VanWinkle, who died at her home, 24 Sandford avenue, Saturday night, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the late home. Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate and the burial will take place in Hillside cemetery, tomorrow morning.

Mrs. VanWinkle was born at Woodbridge and was seventy-seven years of age. She had lived in Plainfield since girlhood. She was the last member of her family. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church for many years. Her death was due to complications following an illness of six weeks. She is survived by a husband and one son, Edward T. VanWinkle, who is superintendent of letter-carriers at the local postoffice.

BLED COMPANY RECEIVER SAYS

George A. Beaton One of Defendants in N. Y. Supreme Court Suit.

"WILD MANAGEMENT"

Receiver Says Reckless Administration of Cement Concern's Affairs Cost Creditors $200,000,000—J. M. Shellabarger a Party to Action.

George A. Beaton, a former resident of this city, who became prominent here through a display of wealth, and recently president of the Seaboard Portland Cement Company, is named with General Francis V. Greene, former police commissioner of New York, as defendant in a Supreme Court action brought by the receiver of the cement company.

Beaton and Greene are charged with "wild and reckless" management of the company which cost the creditors more than $2,000,000. The company was incorporated in 1907 with a capital of $5,000,000. In 1910, Beaton, claiming to be holder of over $75,000 worth of bonds of the company, applied for a receiver. William H. Allen was named.

Allen, the receiver, charges that the defendants ran the affairs of the company to their own advantage and rendered worthless the stock of the company. Among those who are named as a party to the action is Joseph M. Shellabarger, a New York lawyer, residing here. Other directors named as defendants include: Edwin C. Willetts, president of the First National Bank, of Mineola, L. I.; Alexander McLeod, president of a Detroit automobile company, and M. V. Brewington.

MOSQUITO SLEUTH BECOMES BANKRUPT

O'Brien, Owing $3,269 With Assets of $1,302, Files Voluntary Petition.

John O'Brien, chief inspector for the Union County Mosquito Commission and advisory health officer of Plainfield, through his counsel, William N. Runyon, filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy on Saturday. The statement shows assets to be $1,302 and liabilities amounting to $3,269.88. The matter will come before Atwood DeCosta, at Newark, on Wednesday, January 8. O'Brien's move has caused no surprise in this city.

There was to have been a sheriff's sale today of goods belonging to the Aeolian Company, of Garwood, who have a claim for $950 for a piano which the man purchased of the company, but the bankruptcy proceedings caused a postponement of the other action.

O'Brien succeeded the efficient Leon R. Thurlow as health officer of Plainfield, and prior to that he was connected with the health department at Montclair. Several months ago he was appointed chief inspector for the Union County Mosquito Commission and since then has also been acting health officer for the Board of Health.

ADJOURNED MEETING TONIGHT OF THE COMMON COUNCIL

The Common Council will hold an adjourned meeting tonight when it is expected that the proposed sanitary sewer contract will be presented for consideration. The contract has been prepared by Lindabury Depue & Faulks, and is to be submitted to the governing bodies of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, before it is ratified.

Before North Plainfield and Dunellen can go ahead with their part of the work there must first be held a special election giving them the right to make a contract. Plans are now underway for the holding of these elections early in the new year.

SACRED CONCERT.

A secred concert will be given by the Bible school of the First Baptist church in the auditorium of the church tonight. Succeeding this, Christmas giving service will be held, when the gifts of each of the classes will be brought to the platform and announced to the committee in charge of the distribution of the gifts. The public is invited.

Frank McInerney, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McInerney, of Lenox avenue, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the hospital last week, is steadily improving.

A. R. FISK GETS ANOTHER LICENSE

Makes Ready to Have Religious Ceremony to Supplement Civil Wedding.

LEGALITY IS IN DOUBT

He is Afraid Marriage Performed in Boston May Be Invalid on Account of New Law, and Means to Protect Bride.

Augustus R. Fisk, son of former Mayor and Mrs. Charles Joel Fisk, who on Saturday, December 14, was married in Boston to Mrs. Horace Cobbs, a widow, having some doubts as to the validity of the first ceremony, which was performed by a justice of the peace in Boston, went to Jersey City on Saturday, accompanied by his wife and secured a license to be married, it being his intention to have a religious ceremony. Doubts were cast on the legality of the marriage under the Massachusetts law, the day after the ceremony.

The Jersey City marriage bureau was opened especially for the couple in the afternoon. Under the New Jersey law they could not be married for twenty-four hours. The couple are staying at the Hotel Vanderbilt, in New York. Saturday evening they went to the theatre.

It was originally intended to have the ceremony in Boston performed at King's chapel, but at the last minute the pastor backed out because of the notoriety of the affair. The families of both the bride and bridegroom opposed the union. Everything possible was done to prevent the marriage.

Mr. Fisk was a divorced man, his first wife being Miss Edith Collings, daughter of Charles T. Collings, of Cincinnati, prominent in the Standard Oil Company. After the divorce Mr. Fisk lived on a farm at Woodstock, Vt., where he remained until his latest matrimonial venture.

GRACE CHURCH'S YOUNG MEN WIN

Their Club Captures First Prize, Player-Piano, in Daily Press Contest.

CO. K IN SECOND PLACE

Guardsmen Awarded Piano—McWilliams Bible Class of Hope Chapel Gets the Cabinet Vitaphone—Letters of Thanks Received.

The final count of the ballots in the Daily Press piano contest on Saturday night revealed the fact that the Young Men's Club of Grace Episcopal church won the first prize, the handsome player-piano. Company K, Second Regiment, having the second largest number of votes, captured the piano without the player attachment, which was the second prize, and the McWilliams Bible class, of Hope chapel, with the third highest vote, won the cabinet Vitaphone. The prizes will be delivered to the winners today and with them goes the best wishes of the Daily Press. The contest was not conceived as a money making scheme, nor did it afford any direct profit above actual expenses, the sole purpose being to add subscribers to the lists.

From Rev. John G. Currier, curate of Grace church, this letter of thanks has been received:

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

On behalf of the Young Men's Club of Grace church, I desire to extend to you our sincere gratitude for the kindness and courtesy which was shown us in the recent contest. Owing to your generosity in making the contest possible, and with the assistance of our friends, we have won the first prize. The very fine Parklyn player piano will be greatly appreciated. I am, young men,

Very truly yours,
JOHN G. CURRIER.

Dec. 23, 1912.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

We wish to take this opportunity of thanking you and our many friends for making it possible for us to win the third prize, the cabinet vitaphone, in the contest just closed. The instrument will make a welcome addition to our rooms and will no doubt be the cause of many enjoyable evenings during the long winter months.

Very truly yours,
McWILLIAMS BIBLE CLASS
OF HOPE CHAPEL.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

I thank you for the fair and courteous treatment received by my company in the piano contest; also wish to thank all who were instrumental in helping us win the piano.

LIFE OF SERVICE REACHES ITS END

Wife of Rev. F. K. Mathiews Dies After Week's Illness With Pneumonia.

HER FINAL SACRIFICE

Hard Work Over Parish House Bazaar, Despite Indisposition, Believed to Have Weakened Her So She Could Not Combat Disease.

Mrs. Constance Mathiews, wife of Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, died at her home about 8:30 o'clock last night, following a week's illness with pneumonia. Mrs. Mathiews had not been feeling well and it is thought that she laid herself open to her fatal illness by overworking for the Parish House bazaar held at Scotch Plains recently, and sapped her strength so she could not successfully pass the crisis of the disease.

Mrs. Mathiews was formerly Miss Constance Troll. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Troll, of Jersey City, where she was born. She had resided at Scotch Plains about five years. Mrs. Mathiews was the president of the Women's Missionary Circle and a teacher in the Bible school. She possessed many Christian virtues and was beloved by all who knew her. She was a valuable aid to her husband in his pastoral work. Beside her husband, she is survived by two sons, Maurice and Norman, aged 12 and 14 years, respectively; also two sisters and three brothers.

The funeral service will be held at the late home tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Everitt Tomlinson and Rev. Dr. T. E. Vassar, of Elizabeth, will officiate. The burial will be in the cemetery adjoining the Baptist church Christmas morning.

MOWATT ACCUSED OF CHECK SWINDLE

Man With Account at Dunellen 1st National Bank Arrested in Detroit..

Robert Mowatt, aged 40 years, who is said to have carried an account with the First National Bank, of Dunellen, was arrested in Detroit on Saturday, charged with an alleged $7,300 check-swindling deal in New York. The arrest was made by private detectives employed by the American Bankers' Association.

Mowatt was arrested a year ago in Detroit by the Federal authorities on a charge of concealing "assets." He is said to have had desk room at 165 Broadway, New York, and claimed to be president of the Acid-proof Ink Company. He is said to have had accounts with the First National Bank, of Dunellen, and the People's State Bank, of Detroit. According to the Burns Detective Ageney, Mowatt is said to have cleared $7,300 by his operations.

SCARCHILL'S CHARGES DISMISSED BY COURT

The complaint of Domenico Scarchill, a wealthy Italian, of Waterford, Saratoga county, N. Y., against his wife, Mrs. Filomena Porella Scarchill, was dismissed by Justice of the Peace Thomas Snape in the North Plainfield court Saturday, on the grounds that the papers citing the offense were defective. The defendant was represented by John P. Owens.

The complainant was unable to prove the charge specified, although he claimed his spouse was living in North Plainfield Township with a man named Agastino Apiso, since she deserted him several months ago.

MAGISTRATE FINES CAR ROWDY HEAVILY

Cerero Must Pay $50 or Go to Jail for Sixty Days.

When Conductor Schwedell and Motorman Smith sought to quell a disturbance, which began at Scotch Plains, in a westbound Main Line car last night, they were attacked by Dominick Cerero, of this city, who was fined $50 by City Judge De Meza this morning. In default of payment he will be sent to the county jail for 60 days.

He was arrested by Roundsman Higgins, who boarded the car at Hunter avenue, and assisted in putting a stop to the fighting between the trolleymen and the Italian. During the encounter the men fought up and down the aisle of the car, throwing the women passengers into a state of panic.

FIRST AID TRAINING COURSE AT Y. W. C. A.

Local Physicians Will Tell Best Way to Treat Emergency Cases.

A practical course in first aid to the injured will be given at the Young Women's Christian Association beginning January 14 and concluding March 21. The course covering ten weeks will consist of lectures and practical demonstrations by prominent local physicians and surgeons. At the end of the course successful candidates will be awarded a joint certificate by the American Red Cross Society and the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Associations. The aim is to teach the course of action in case of injury, accident or sudden illness in the absence of a physician or trained nurse; and to give such working knowledge of emergency treatment as may be needed daily in the home, office or workroom.

The lectures are open to all women and girls, the fee for the course being only a nominal sum to cover cost of examination paper and text book.

All women and girls who are interested are asked to register their names at the association office as soon as possible. The outline of the course follows:

Lecture I. Object of Course—General directions for rendering first aid. Lecturer, Dr. Murray.

Lecture II. Structure of the Body—Brief description of important anatomical points. Lecturer, Dr. Corbusier.

Lecture III. First Aid Materials Practical demonstration of application of bandages, dressings, tournequets, etc. Lecturer, Dr. Corbusier.

Lecture IV. Injuries In Which the Skin Is Not Pierced or Broken—Fractures, sprains, etc., with demonstration of emergency treatment. Lecturer, Dr. Du Bois.

Lecture V. Injuries In Which the Skin Is Pierced or Broken—Cuts, gun shot wound, etc., and demonstration of treatment. Lecturer, Dr. Du Bois.

Lecture VI. Accidents Affecting Respiration—Choking, drowning, etc.—artificial respiration. Lecturer, Dr. Hughes.

Lecture VII. Nervous System—Causes of unconsciousness, etc. Lecturer, Dr. E. S. Krans.

Lecture VIII. Common Emergencies—Foreign bodies in eye, ear, nose and throat.—Bites, burns, etc. Lecturer, Dr. Probasco.

Lecture IX. The Sick Room—Preparation of bed, lifting, carrying, bathing, removal of clothing, etc. Lecturer, Miss Haines.

HEAVENLY REST FESTIVAL.

The children's Christmas Festival of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will be held Friday night. Rev. C. H. Mallery will make a short address in the church after which the children will adjourn to the parish house where a Christmas cantata and distribution of presents will be held.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM FRIES.

The funeral service of William Fries was held Saturday afternoon at his late home on Whitewood avenue, North Plainfield. Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of Grace M. E. church, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. The burial was in the North Plainfield cemetery.

DEATH FOLLOWS HIGHWAY CRASH

Motorcyclist Fatally Hurt When He Runs Into Wagon at Westfield.

EARLY-HOUR ACCIDENT

Trip Started Shortly Before Ended by Smash at 1 O'clock in the Morning—Victim at First Thought Slightly Hurt.

Fred VanNest, aged 22 years, of Skillman, employed as a signalman on the Reading Railroad, died at Muhlenberg Hospital at 8:25 o'clock this morning from injuries received at Westfield about 1 o'clock yesterday morning when, while riding a motorcycle, he collided with a horse and wagon. He evidently sustained internal injuries which sealed his fate. His left leg was broken.

VanNest was acompanied by his brother-in-law, William Cooper, of 26 Plagg street, Trenton, who was also on a motorcycle, and when the accident occurred Cooper, together with the occupants of the wagon, assisted in removing the victim to the office of Dr. Charles T. Decker, at Westfield. "First aid" was given, after which VanNest was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in an automobile.

At the time his injuries were not considered fatal. As late as last night he was reported as getting along all right.

The police of Westfield and Plainfield will make a full investigation of the case. County Physician Dr. F. W. Westcott, was notified of the death of the victim and will perform an autopsy. An effort will be made to locate the passengers in the wagon and if their arrest is effected they will be held to await further investigation.

Although it is customary for the hospital attendants to notify the police of any accident coming to their attention, the authorities knew nothing of the affair until several hours after the man's death. D. S. VanNest, the victim's father, was notified of his son's condition by the hospital authorities when it was realized that the end was near. He had previously been under the impression that a fractured leg was the extent of the injuries.

According to VanNest and Cooper, they left their homes early yesterday morning intending to take a pleasure trip to New York State. They planned to spend part of yesterday in Newark and continue their journey from that place. They were riding along the county road about a half-mile out of Westfield, when they met a rig coming toward them. VanNest said there were no lights on the wagon and the motorcycle and rig came together. The force of the collision took a wheel off the wagon and some of the occupants were thrown out, while the cyclist was pitched head first off his machine.

The wagon was owned and driven by John McDonald, of this city, and he was accompanied by his brother, Martin McDonald, of Garwood, and John Crowley and Fred Decker, of Cranford. They, together with Cooper, assisted in giving aid to VanNest. The Westfield police were notified by Dr. Decker to whose home VanNest was taken and they made a preliminary investigation, obtaining the names of all the persons involved.

Dr. Decker in speaking of the case today said that when VanNest was brought to his office, the latter did not seem to realize how badly he was injured. He laughed and joked with the physician and assisted himself to the operating table. He even insisted on returning home, but Dr. Decker would not permit him to do this, and made arrangements for his removal to the hospital.

PETRIE-DAYTON.

Miss Alice M. Petrie, of Newark, and Hubert Dayton, of Harrison street, North Plainfield, were quietly married Saturday afternoon at the home of the bridegroom by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel. Only the immediate relatives and a few friends witnessed the ceremony. An informal reception followed, after which Mr. and Mrs. Dayton left on a wedding trip. The couple will reside in the borough. Mr. Dayton is employed by the New Jersey Central.

DR. STRONG PREACHES DOCTRINE OF SPUGS

General Giving a Burden, and Soon to Be Thing of the Past.

Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, gave a short Christmas talk at Temple Baptist church, last night, speaking on "The Christmas Spirit As It Is Becoming." He said in part:

"I have never known the Christmas spirit to exist as it has this year. It has a larger and better meaning for all of us.

"By the spirit of kindness, I do not mean that you should give everyone that you know some expensive present. A few words sent in the right spirit will be appreciated more than a large sum. Christmas giving, except to immediate relatives, is becoming a thing of the past. The general giving of presents is a burden, and I am thankful to say that in a few short years they will be made only to our loved ones.

"As my closing I wish to say again, forgive everybody and anybody even if there is the slightest portion of a grudge in your soul. Don't let any grudge pass the Christmas season, for we may not be here next year to forgive; and it may be possible that a number of us will not be allowed to see the New Year come in. Therefore, I again say don't let this season pass any of us with the slightest grudge in our hearts against anyone else."

"XMAS CAROL" FILM.

The Christmas program of motion pictures at the Y. M. C. A. will include the following films: "Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," "The American Rhine," "Central Park," "The Virginian" and "A Tale of the Wilderness."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

The breezy music of Jean Briquet is one of the principal attractions of the sensational musical comedy, "Alma, Where Do You Live?" which will be presented at the Plainfield theatre, Christmas Day, afternoon and evening, with a good cast of artists and the original New York production. The offering is described as a French vaudeville which has had great success in New York in both English and German garb, the translation having been made by George V. Hobart, the well known humorist and author of the Dinkelspeil series. The German version has been seen on the road but the present engagement is the first time the piece has been sung in English outside of Weber's theatre, New York, where it ran for 500 nights. There are fourteen musical numbers and all are hits. The cast includes such well known artists as May Latham, William Willingham, John Saunders.

The selecting of titles for plays is the most difficult part of the theatrical business. Many good plays have been financially unsuccessful because the titles did not appeal to the public. Manager Sidney R. Ellis considered the question of a title for two months before deciding on "It Happened in Potsdam" for the play in which he will present Al. H. Wilson, the German dialect comedian, at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, December 28. The plot of "It Happened in Potsdam" would suggest several titles; for instance "From Bagdad to Potsdam," "The Oriental German," "When Metz Went a-Wooing," or "How Metz Won a Wife." These titles will indicate the broad scope of the plot. It is an up-to-date comedy in three acts in which there is a combining heart interest with plenty of clean fun and music. The story is interesting and the dialogue bright and snappy. The pleasure of those who enjoy a Wilson performance will be accentuated in this instance as they listen to the tuneful refrains of the new love songs rendered by Mr. Wilson and which are said to be among the best that he has yet given to the public. They are entitled: "She Loves Me—Loves Me Not," "My Lady Fair," "Loves of Bygone Days" and a new yodel, "The Twilight's Call."

CHILDREN'S THEATRE.

New York, Dec. 23.—The Children's theatre, the only playhouse in the world to be devoted exclusively to the entertainment of children, was opened this afternoon with a performance of "Racketty-Packetty House," a juvenile play written by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." The Children's theatre is located on the roof of the new Century theatre. It is a completely equipped playhouse in every respect, with a seating accommodation of 800. The funds for the enterprise were provided largely by William H. Vanderbilt.

WIN THESE PRIZES!

Before launching into a campaign of publicity for Plainfield, the Chamber of Commerce very sensibly wants to be shown how best to attain its desired object. That is, the Chamber confesses that it knows absolutely nothing about advertising a municipality and is willing to pay for the knowledge. Of course, members of the special committee have learned of the methods used by boards of trade and other civic bodies in other cities in attracting attention to the various municipalities, but the consensus of opinion seems to be that there must be some still more practical and satisfactory way of getting the desired results. It is for this information that the body's special committee offers cash prizes.

The competition is open to all. Any man, woman or child residing within a radius of 100 miles of New York city is eligible to compete. The plan of action must be comprehensive enough to properly set forth the advantages of the city and to make them the most widely known. As a slogan is also considered needful for the purposes to be arrived at, its acceptance will count twenty-five per cent. in the general average of the plan submitted. The right is reserved, however, if the committee deems it proper, to award the third prize to the successful slogan. The first prize is $100; the second $50; and the third $25, and the committee holds to itself the right to use any part or all of any plan submitted.

So, here's a chance for some bright and discerning Plainfielder to earn a snug sum by turning in a winning plan before the contest closes on February 1. Don't be scared off by the thought that some advertising expert or agent will capture the big prize. Competitions of this sort warrant us in saying that quite frequently one not at all familiar with the publicity "game" is successful.

MISUNDERSTOOD SPUGS.

Some merchants are evidently ignorant of the true aim of the "S. P. U. G." This organization is composed of women with one notable exception, Theodore Roosevelt having joined their forces. Its purpose is to stop the practise of the silly custom of giving presents where there is no sensible reason for doing so. To illustrate, a rich woman may give a costly article to another still richer woman, where it would be much more sensible and just as acceptable if a card were sent to extend Christmas greetings. As another example, girls who work for a living and need every penny they earn very foolishly spend their hard earned wages to get gifts for many relatives and friends, whereas a card or some other inexpensive token would be the proper thing to send in such cases. The abuse is so general and so harmful in its results, that the Society for the Prevention of Useful Giving hopes to stamp it out.

There are advertisers, however, who have the curious idea that in effect the Spug's aim is to promote practical giving, that is, articles of wearing apparel and necessities instead of luxuries. The significance of the word "useless" in this instance is probably interpretated by the advertiser as something not useful, instead of something needless. Some of the ads. seen are calculated to make a real Spug snort.

RESTAURANT HOLD-UPS.

A hat rack attendant at a St. Louis hotel the other day bought a fashionable hotel in the exclusive section of that city. He boasts that he made a fortune out of the hat rack job. But his case is not exceptional. The hat rack at hotels and restaurants is an established business. The concession in many New York hotels is put up to the highest bidder and is counted upon by the proprietor of the hostelry to net him thousands of dollars in some instances. The lessee of the privilege places a superintendent in charge and when the foolish diner hands the attendant a tip no sooner is his back turned than the attendant turns it over to the watchful superintendent. It is a petty hold-up inflicted on an "easy" public, even worse than that of the waiter's hold-up, whereby the diner has to bribe the hotel employee to serve him the dishes he orders. As the great P. T. B. said, "The American public like to be fooled." At home or abroad, they are the easiest "game" on earth.

The Good Fellow thanks all who have joined with him in providing toys and other things dear to the youngsters for the poor boys and girls of the community. The results of the Good Fellow's appeal, says the Charity Organization Society, which annually co-operates with the Daily Press in this undertaking, are even more gratifying than last year.

The beloved Archbishop Ireland, at St. Paul, Minn., on Saturday celebrated his fifty-first anniversary as a priest. He is the most popular member of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in this country with all races and all religions. May he live long!

Red Cross seals, one hundred for one dollar, are on sale at the Daily Press office. The receipts of the sales go to the Plainfield Anti-Tuberculosis Society, which will expend eighty-five per cent. of the total amount right here in the city.

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE THE VICEROY OF INDIA

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Dec. 23.—A message from Delhi says that an unsuccessful attempt was made to assassinate Lord Hardinge, vicery of India, as he was making his entry into the new capital today. A bomb was thrown at him from a nearby house and it struck the Howdah on the elephant upon which he was riding. A fragment of the bomb hit the Viceroy on the shoulder, but he was not seriously hurt. A native servant was killed. Lady Hardinge, who was riding in the Howdah with her husband, was not injured. A number of arrests have been made.

COPPER CO. PAYS BACK TAXES.

Trenton, Dec. 23.—The Verde Queen Copper Company of Arizona, the charter of which was declared null in a proclamation by former Governor Stokes for non-payment of taxes, was reinstated Saturday by the payment of $200 to the secretary of State. The company neglected to pay its obligations to the State for the years 1903, '04 and '05. It was originally incorporated in 1900 with an authorized capital stock of $1,000,000.

WON MISS GOULD IN WRECK.

Romance of Finley J. Shepard and Miss Helen M. Gould Is Out.

One of the prettiest romances that have come to light for some time in reference to persons of national prominence is that which is now related of Miss Helen M. Gould and her fiance, Finley J. Shepard. It is reported that Mr. Shepard won his bride to be through fine heroism during a wreck in which the pair figured on Oct. 10 last on the West Shore railroad.

Miss Gould and Mr. Shepard were members of a party in a special car when the crash came. Dozens of persons were injured, and Mr. Shepard rose to the occasion by rescuing many of the injured from danger and by administering attention upon them. The picture shows the pair in separate poses.

To all interviewers Mr. Shepard candidly declares himself the happiest man in the world and one of the luckiest. "I just can't keep my feet on the ground," he says. Mr. Shepard's reference to his feet, he lets it be understood, means that he could dance a jig on the slightest notice and it would be a fine reflection of his mood. Mr. Shepard's mother is a blind invalid in a sanitarium in the east. He visited her but a short time before his engagement and following the engagement announcement wired her immediate word. The news filled the aged woman with delight.

CHOIR BOYS AUDITORS AT MUSICAL SERVICE

Not the least interested portion of the congregation at the organ recital at Holy Cross Episcopal church last evening were the little choir boys, who in their cassocks and cottas marched into the body of the church and occupied pews near the front. It was an experience out of the ordinary for them—the privilege of sitting in the pews and listening, instead of being a part of the service itself. Their attention and evident interest indicated thorough enjoyment.

The program by Charles Davis, the organist, furnished fine opporunity for displaying the qualities of the new organ. The soloist was William J. Thiers.

Announcement was made of the services of Christmas Day, as follows: Holy Communion, 7 a. m.; morning prayer, Holy Communion and sermon, 10:30 a. m. The obligation rests upon all members of the Episcopal Church to receive the Holy Communion on Christmas Day, unless kept away by necessity.

OLD GLORY ELECTS.

These officers were elected at the meeting of Old Glory Council, No. 62, Daughters of Liberty, Saturday night: Councilor, Mrs. Elmer DeNise; vice councilor, Mrs. Peter VanFleet; associate councilor, Walter Walker; vice associate councilor, Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse; inside guard, Lottie Morrison; outside guard, Harry Nolte; recording secretary, Mrs. Anna Wyckoff; financial secretary, Mrs. Lottie Anson; treasurer, Mrs. Eva Moore; guide, Miss Marion Wakefield; trustee, Miss Anna Wakefield; representatives to the State Council, Mrs. Eva Moore and Theodore Van Pelt. The newly elected officers will be installed next month.

LIFE SENTENCE.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23.—J. Frank Hickey, the slayer of little Joseph Josephs, was sentenced today to not less than twenty years nor more than his natural life by Justice Brown. Hickey will be taken to Auburn prison this afternoon.

TYPICAL MAP SHOWING HOW RATES WILL BE FIGURED FOR THE PARCEL POST SYSTEM AFTER JAN. 1

This map, made with Chicago as a base, shows how the zone system will be used in arranging rates for the parcel post service which will be inaugurated January 1.

Establishing zones by drawing circles of different diameters, with each postoffice as a center, would means an impracticable amount of figuring. Instead of using townships and counties as units or starting points it was decided to divide the whole country into blocks or units, each block being half a degree in latitude in north-south extension and half a degree of longitude east and west. There are 3,500 of these units in the country.

An example of how to get the first zone is as follows:

Find the center of the unit in which your postoffice is located. Draw a circle of fifty miles radius around that center. Every unit which lies wholly within that circle or more than half of which is within that circle is included in the first zone from any postoffice, and the postage rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 3 cents for each additional pound.

The second zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 150 miles radius. Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the first zone is in the second zone, and the rate is 6 cents for the first pound and 4 cents for each additional pound.

The method by which the second zone is determined is used for all other zones, their radii and rate of postage for the first and additional pounds respectively being as follows: Third zone, 300 miles, 7 cents, 5 cents; fourth zone, 600 miles, 8 cents, 6 cents; fifth zone, 1,000 miles, 9 cents, 7 cents; sixth zone, 1,400 miles 10 cents, 9 cents; seventh zone, 1,800 miles, 11 cents, 10 cents; eighth zone and all territory farther away, including the Philippines and island possessions, 12 cents flat.

Circulation With Influence at the Smallest Cost is what the business man wants to secure trade when advertising. It is not only the number of copies a newspaper prints, but its character and where it circulates; what is admitted in its columns and whether the readers have confidence in the publication. He wants to know whether a newspaper is read in the homes and whether the money he spends is actually a loss or a gain. The

is an ideal newspaper for those who are looking for a medium to reach buyers. It has the right kind of circulation and uses every care in keeping its news and advertising columns free from objectional features—no loan shark or disreputable medical or financial announcements are accepted and it has gained a reputation for cleanliness that makes it a welcome visitor in the Home Circle.

The thousands of subscribers that take THE DAILY PRESS make a clientele of which any newspaper would be proud. No newspaper published occupies a better position.

Every town within a radius of many miles of Plainfield has its subscribers—and every town contributes to the trade of Plainfield merchants. They can reach these people, with their announcements at a time when advertising has reading value and hundreds read no other paper. CHURCHES RESOUND TO GLAD CHRISTMAS MUSIC

Elaborate musical programs and children's exercises were presented in most of the evangelical churches of the city and borough, yesterday. The ideal weather together with the special programs which were printed in Saturday's Daily Press, combined to attract large congregations. The churches were bright with Christmas greens, holly and blooms.

In addition to the musical services, the children of the various Sunday-schools participated in special programs, including recitations, exercises and the singing of Christmas carols. Owing to the fact that the greater part of the services were devoted to music, the pastors of the churches restricted themselves to brief addresses, all appropriate to the day.

The Episcopal and Catholic churches will hold their regular observance on Christmas Day, when the vested choirs will sing selections appropriate to the feast and the rectors will preach on the nativity. These services will be held Wednesday morning. Throughout the latter part of the week there will be Christmas entertainments for young and old in the various churches.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company to-day is as follows: 9 a. m., 32 degrees; 11 a. m., 37 degrees; 1 p. m., 37 degrees.

Three Future White House Maids Have Fine Talents

Margaret Wilson Is Singer. Other Two Are Artists of Much Ability.

Mrs. Wilson, New Mistress of White House, Now Has "Official" Portrait.

PROBABLY no three girls in America will be so much in the public eye during the next four years as the three daughters of the president elect, Woodrow Wilson. As daughters of the president of the United States they will be the cynosure of all eyes in Washington, and their daily doings will be chronicled throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Through a piece of fine photography Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president elect, now has an "official" photograph. The portrait is one of the latest for which she has posed and because of its excellence is looked upon by both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson as the one which should properly be used henceforth for reproduction. Mrs. Wilson, by the way, for some time to come will be a figure upon which the eyes of Washington and national social circles will be centered. Many responsibilities of a social nature devolve upon her as mistress of the White House.

The three daughters are Margaret, Jessie Woodrow and Eleanor Randolph. Margaret, the eldest, is the possessor of a rich soprano voice, which has been cultivated under Mrs. Gillespie, a New York teacher. She is a "bachelor maid" in Manhattan for several days a week, but after next March she will, of course, make her home in Washington.

© 1912, by Marceau, New York.

"OFFICIAL" PHOTOGRAPH OF MRS. WOODROW WILSON.

Jessie Woodrow Wilson, the second daughter, is named for her Scotch grandmother and her father. She is an artist of ability, but her whole ambition lies in sociological work, and until recently she devoted from three to four days a week at the Light house, Philadelphia, a church settlement. She is of a spirituelle order of beauty and possesses all the enthusiasm of a modern Joan of Arc.

Miss Jessie Wilson is perhaps the most brilliant of the president elect's three daughters, though all of them are extremely clever girls. She was graduated from the Woman's college in Baltimore, and on her graduation day Dr. Wilson was induced to deliver the baccalaureate.

MISS JESSIE WOODROW WILSON.

The third daughter, Eleanor Randolph, is an art student and is studying at the Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia. If Margaret inherited her voice from her father—who was a splendid tenor in his younger days—then it must be said that Eleanor inherited her artistic ability from her mother, for Mrs. Wilson paints landscapes in oil that have been honored with approval by many of the best art critics in America. For many years the Wilsons have spent part of the summer at Lyme, on the Connecticut river, where there is a large art colony, and Eleanor Wilson has had such well known artists as Childe Hassam, Edward Rook, Willard Metcalfe and Walter Griffin for her associates.

Up to the time they were twelve years old the three Wilson girls were entirely educated at home. Mrs. Wilson is a strong believer in family influence, and so she took personal charge of their early education. Even when they were little tots of five and six she used to read to them every day classic English literature, including the works of the best English authors, the Iliad, the Odyssey and translations of the older classics. She felt that if they were to acquire a proper appreciation of literature they could not begin too early. Mrs. Wilson was always a great reader. She used to pass whole days in her father's and grandfather's libraries, and her three daughters have inherited her fondness for books.

MISS ELEANOR RANDOLPH WILSON.

But in spite of this fondness for books the girls are fond of outdoor sports. Miss Jessie Wilson is an exceptionally good tennis player, and all three ride horseback. They are strong, well developed American girls, healthy both in mind and body and essentially feminine.

An interesting little story arises concerning the Wilson girls from the fact that should all of them marry while their father is president one of them must be the "unlucky thirteenth" White House bride unless a double wedding can be arranged.

There have been fourteen White House brides, but only ten of them have been married in that historic mansion. The first to be married there was Anna Todd, a niece of the famous Dolly Madison, whose wedding took place in the east room in the year 1811, when she became the wife of John G. Jackson, congressman from Virginia. The last to enter the holy bonds of matrimony within the confines of the president's home was Miss Alice Roosevelt, who became the wife of Nicholas Longworth, congressman from Ohio, in 1906.

MISS MARGARET WILSON.

Four White House brides have been married during the period of their father's administration as president. Those brides were Maria Monroe, Elizabeth Tyler, Nellie Grant and Alice Roosevelt.

Under the capable guidance of their mother the president's daughters are expected to be socially the pride of diplomatic circles. Although the young women have thoroughly formed interests along the lines of their talent, they will have big social responsibilities.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

LEMON CAKES.

LEMON cakes are simple pastries that have the advantage of being suitable to serve with almost any winter dessert, whether it be an ice, a fresh or a preserved fruit.

The lemon cake may be a plain or elaborate one or may be in the form of small cakes that may be given to the kiddies freely without fear of disastrous after effects.

A Nice Layer Cake.

Lemon Layer Cake.—Take the yolks of five eggs and the whites of four, two cupfuls each of flour and powdered sugar, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar and a half teaspoonful of baking soda. Beat the yolks of eggs until they are thick and light colored and stir in the sugar gradually. Then add the whites of eggs and the flour with which the cream of tartar and soda have been sifted. Bake in oblong pans.

A filling for the cake is made thus: Beat the whites of two eggs to a froth, add powdered sugar sufficient to neutralize the acidity of the lemons. Then stir in the grated rind of a lemon and the juice of two.

Cookies and Batter Cakes.

Lemon Cookies.—Take one pound of flour or enough for stiff dough, one-quarter pound of butter, one pound of powdered sugar, juice of two lemons, grated peel of one, three eggs, whipped very light. Stir butter, sugar, lemon juice and peel to a light cream. Beat at least five minutes before adding the yolks of the eggs. Whip them in thoroughly, put in the whites, lastly the flour. Roll out about an eighth of an inch in thickness and cut into round cakes. Bake quickly.

Lemon Batter Cake.—Take a cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar, six eggs, a pint and a quarter of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder, a tablespoonful of lemon juice or extract of lemon. Rub the butter and sugar to a cream, add the eggs two at a time, beating in five minutes between each addition; add the flour sifted with the baking powder and then stir in the lemon. Mix to a medium batter and bake in paper lined tins in a moderate oven for about forty minutes.

A Splendid Sponge Cake.

Lemon Sponge Cake.—Take five eggs, one and one-quarter cupfuls of sugar, one and one-half cupfuls of sifted flour, the juice and grated rind of half a lemon and a pinch of salt. Beat yolks and sugar together until very light and lemon colored. Add lemon juice, grated rind and salt. Beat the whites to a stiff froth and add them alternately, with the flour, to the other materials. Stir and fold in gently from the sides of the bowl so as not to break the froth. Fill your cake tin about half full and place in an oven not quite hot enough to bake, leaving the door ajar until it rises almost to the top of the pan. Then close the door and bake about three-quarters of an hour.

PUNCHED EMBROIDERY.

Very Effective Is This New and Popular Needlework.

Punched embroidery, which is all the rage, is a revival of a classic handiwork and is astonishingly pretty for the amount of work required. It consists of a solid pattern worked inside an open mesh, which is executed by a method similar to drawn thread work.

An open weave of linen or other loose fabric is required for the work, so that the threads will separate easily without breaking.

Before doing the punched work the pattern surrounding the open space is embroidered, so that the pulling of threads may not affect the shape.

Table centers, doilies, pincushion covers and table scarfs or any other fancy pieces may be worked in this pretty and popular embroidery.

DESIGN IN PUNCHED WORK.

The edges may be finished with embroidered scallops or lace, either fillet or cluny being the most effective for the purpose.

The illustration shows a design for doily or centerpiece in the punched embroidery. It has a design consisting of wild roses, buds and leaves and is finished with an edge of cluny lace.

Toughening Earthenware.

Many housewives believe in boiling new earthenware before using it, as this effectually toughens and hardens it. This is particularly efficacious in the case of ordinary brown kitchenware, the articles being placed in a large pan of cold water, which is then brought slowly to the boil. After being allowed to boil for ten minutes remove the pan and allow the water to cool before taking out the ware.

Cleaning the Machine.

Your sewing machine will last longer and run more easily if after working on woolen goods you clean out the feed plate. Take out the screw that holds it down and lift it off, then with a long pin pick out the lint and clear the needle slot. You will be amazed at the amount of lint that can accumulate there and, when you have replaced the plate and the screw, at the increased efficiency of the machine.

The New Hat Tilt.

If you wish to be fashionable wear your hat on a gentle slope just touching the right eyebrow and contrive if you can not to look rakish, but quite seriously comme il faut. If you like and if the gods of your hairdresser has seen fit to provide you with hair in twists and coils at the back you may reveal the fact. You may even have puffs at the side and take the public into your confidence about it.

But out of doors you must conceal the fact that there is any hair on top or wandering in waves or kiss curls over your forehead. Not a strand of hair should show in front, which is all very well so long as the hat is on, but if we follow the fashion pretty sights we shall all look as soon as our hats are removed. One can foresee a revival of the great theater hat difficulty

Castor Oil.

To the mothers who find it hard to give the little ones castor oil make ginger cookies and add a little more sugar than the recipe calls for, and to a common sized batch add two tablespoonfuls of castor oil and keep the secret to yourself. Frost the top and let the ones who are ailing eat of them and see how well this remedy works.

HOLY CROSS CLOSED SEASON WITH TWO CHAMPIONSHIPS TO THEIR CREDIT

HOLY CROSS FOOTBALL TEAM.

Top row, left to right—Earl Moran, center; Lester Hamilton, end. Third row—William Ruttledge, tackle; George Mair, guard; Walter Hamilton, coach; Jack Doyle, manager; John Bremble, guard; Jack Caulfield, tackle. Second row—Jack Ricketts, halfback; Thom Ricketts, halfback; William Johnson, guard; Myrton (Cutey) Glover, guard; J. Gregory Carty, center. Bottom row—James Nash, halfback; Jack Wilson, captain, fullback; William Coyle, quarterback; "Turk" Webster, end.

During the season of football just closed, the Holy Cross football team, of this city, has had one of the most successful of its history and their record of eight victories of ten games played is a mark to be envied by any eleven playing the game. Just by way of topping out their gridiron glory, the church boys annexed the club championship of New Jersey by defeating the hitherto unconquered Vikings, of Bayonne, and also the championship of this city and borough when they took the Plainfield High School warriors into camp in their last game of the season. The fact that but two teams have cancelled their engagements with Holy Cross, reflects with credit on the management of Jack Doyle, who has piloted the team through the greatest season in its history.

A summary of the season's record which is given below shows that the local eleven has scored 136 points against their opponents' 55. This fact, however, does not depict how closely some of the games were contested and the article of pigskin chasing the church boys had to do in order to chalk eight victories. Jack Ricketts and Bill Coyle were the only members of the team who got into every contest and a game never went by but what one of the men or the other distinguished himself by some spectacular play.

The summary:

Sept. 28, Holy Cross 21, Rosewood A. SOCCER CHAMPS GET A SURPRISE

Locals Play Fast Game and Eurekas Find Themselves Outclassed.

Playing with a snap and vim that surprised even their most ardent admirers the Plainfield Association football team defeated the Champion Eureka aggregation from Newark, Saturday, in an Intercity Soccer League game, by the score of 5 to 2. At no time during the contest did the Champs class with the rejuvenated locals and although making two goals in the first half were unable to put the ball between the uprights again throughout the game.

The first session ended with the score 3 to 2 in favor of the winners, who had gathered in the three points before the visitors had gained a point. In the second half Plainfield added two more to their total, sewing up the game.

The weather was ideal for soccer, the winter breezes seeming to put life into the players. Not so with the spectators, however, who tramped along the side lines continuously, hands jammed in their pockets, and coat collars up.

At the blowing of the whistle the locals started out with a rush and after several minutes' playing. Heaume, who was the star of the game, booted the sphere through the posts for the first score of the game. Several minutes later, Johnston, receiving the ball on a pass from Heaume, scored for the locals with a well aimed swat. Not satisfied with having figured in both of these goals Heaume stole the ball from one of his opponents near the uprights and sent it home for the third score, enough to win the game, without further effort.

Following this assault on their goal line, the Eurekas inserted a little ginger into their playing and gave the fans a short exhibition of true championship playing. Holt scored on a long kick and soon after Vallance succeeded in scoring on a scrimmage play.

In the second half Plainfield continued their speedy attack on the visitors' goal, and after a series of clever passing and dribbling plays Johnston booted the ball between the posts, making the score 4 to 2. Both teams battled hard without result until close to the end of the contest, when T. Gardner, receiving the ball on a pass from Spalding, scored an easy goal.

By losing this game the Eurekas, the three time champions of the Intercity Amateur League, practically eliminated themselves from among the pennant possibilities of this year. They were in second place closely pressing the Alley Boys, who are leading.

GOOD LEADS P. H. S. QUINTET IN SCORING

Local Scholastic Basketball Team Has Won Two and Lost Two.

A summary of the four court games played by the Plainfield High School basketball team to date shows an even break as far as games are concerned, the local boys having won two and lost two, but P. H. S. has outscored its opponents by a total, for the four games, of 117 to 75. This in itself is something the local players can be proud of as all of their games have been played against worthy opponents and every one of the four contests have been hair raisers.

Monroe Good, who is at present leading the five in the capacity of temporary captain, is monopolizing the top rung of the scoring department with a total of 31 points, or an average of 7.75 points per game. Good's advantage was only obtained in the last game, however, as Johnny Heron, the diminutive forward, was the leader at the completion of the third game. In the contest against the Somerville High School, Good secured nine field goals and these were enough to pull him to the fore. Heron is a close runner up with a total of fourteen field goals, or one less than Good, and cherishes an average of an even seven points per game. Although Hetfield is the only man who has not broken into the scoring table, he has done some superior uarding and this serves as a fitting compromise for what he lacks in caging the ball.

The summary:

BOROUGHITES AVENGE KEARNEY TROUNCING

N. P. H. S. Reverses Verdict in Snappy Game on Saengerbund Floor.

Dunning and Taylor, leading the attack of the North Plainfield High School basketball team, avenged the 35 to 9 defeat they received at the hands of the Kearny High School five earlier in the season, Saturday afternoon at Saengerbund Hall, by the score of 44 to 39. The contest was the speediest the N. P. H. S. athletes have engaged in this season. Both teams put up an excellent article of team work and accurate shooting. Dunning, Taylor and Ross were particularly adept and were the mainstays of their respective teams in keeping the ball popping through the iron ring.

Ross, the visitor's center, is admitted to be one of the best pivot men in scholastic basketball at the present time, and the borough center had his hands full in holding the crack to seven baskets. The next game on the N. P. H. S. schedule will be played at Somerville against the Somerville High School five next Friday afternoon.

P. H. S. ALUMNI FIVE WILL BE FORMIDABLE

Stars Who Have Been Playing Since Graduation—'Varsity Crippled.

When the Plainfield High School bosketball team goes against the Alumni of that institution tomorrow afternoon it will be with a crippled lineup while the "grads" will have one of the strongest combinations ever gathered for the yearly clash. P. H. S. will be without the services of Peacock, Hetfield and Buckle, but manager Grisley has hopes of having a corps of substitutes on hand who will be able to uphold the reputation of the school against their predecessors. From present indications Captain Good will have the following men to call upon: Brynarski, Heron, Grisley and McNamee.

Eugene Lidgate, who is in charge of the graduate team, has rounded up Clyde Doane, Alfred Manley, Charles Line, Jack Ricketts and a corps of ready substitutes to play against their alma mater and the undergraduates will have to extend themselves to the limit to make a favorable showing against that formidable group. Ricketts, Doane and Manley are former P. H. S. captains and all have been playing basketball regularly since their graduation.

The game will be played in the High School gymnasium tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

ANOTHER TWO POINT VICTORY FOR AJAX

Local Basketball Team Puts up Great Game Against Heavier Opponents.

In defeating the Woodbridge Parish House basketball team, at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night, by the score of 28 to 26 the Ajax quintet duplicated their feat of last season in scoring nine consecutive victories without encountering a single defeat yet this season. Although outweighed, and in some intervals outplayed, the Ajax were right on deck every time the visitors, tied up the score with one of their unerring long shots, which were many and close together, and when the final shriek of the timer's whistle sounded it found the association basketball cagers two points to the good.

In defeating the Woodbridge aggregation, the Ajax annexed one of their most notable victories of the season as the visitors have won ten games over some of the best teams in the State and have met with but two reverses this season. Their shooting was close to miraculous and every man on the team could handle the ball and shoot from any angle on the floor. Their passing bewildered the local players, who were exerted to the limit in breaking up the frequent spasms of shooting and during the greater part of the game the score was tied and the spectators were kept constantly on their feet.

For the losers, Schoeder and Reyder were the sensational performers and this duet happened to be the same pair of stars who humiliated North Plainfield High School to the tune of 54 to 24 at Saengerbund Hall last week. The winners' laurels were divided up between Captain Brynairski and Peapack, the former in guarding and the latter in shooting.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL TEAM ENDS MOST SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Top row, left to right—William Peacock, halfback; Irving Schenck, tackle; William Thompson, tackle; Otto Moore, end; James Herrman, end. Third row—Warren Butler, guard; Clinton Berrien, end; Robert Gavett, guard; George Linke, coach; Felix Janke, manager; Eynon White, tackle; Joseph Carty, center; Monroe Good, fullback. Second row—Donald Sminck, end; Garret DuBois, center; James Dunwell, tackle; Morris Mann, end; Edward Jenkins, end. Bottom row—Guy Snyder, halfback; Arthur Van Zandt, captain, quarterback; Harold McDowell, end; Joseph Green, halfback.

Official statistics in a resume of the Plainfield High School football season go to show that the representative eleven of that institution established a most creditable record on the gridiron during the season just closed. Although the players and coaches were confronted with a seemingly unsurmountable pile of difficulties when the season was first started, these handicaps were soon pushed to one side and after the first trio of battles the eleven was practically invincible. Every team that the P. H. S. players were pitted against, with one exception, was heavier both on the wings and in the backfield and the victories brought home were all the sweeter because of this fact. The team this year was unusually light but made up for this deficiency in aggressiveness. Aided to some extent by the revised football code and the opportunities presented them for open play, the local schoolboys were always to be reckoned with, no matter how heavy or formidable their opponents were. This latter fact was brought out in its greatest brilliancy in the Holy Cross game when the schoolboys were outweighed to the man.

Their ability to play the open game, together with their repertoire of tricks, stood them in good stead, however, and they played the Holy Cross team off its feet. Not only on long forward passes and series plays that aided on the offence did they shine, but their tackling was of the highest quality and the church boys' gains were few and small.

George Linke, a former Lehigh gridiron player, was coach of the eleven and its successes were largely due to his drilling. Through his efforts the P. H. S. candidates were enable to secure an expert advisor previous to the Holy Cross game, who was formerly a star end on the Lehigh eleven.

A summary of the season's games goes to show that the local scholastic warriors broke even as far as victories and losses were concerned, as they came home on top of the pile in five out of the ten games played. The total point score is overwhelmingly in favor of the High School boys as they chalked up a total of 127 points against their opponents' 97, or just 30 points over an even break such as is depicted in the won and lost account. As the season grew older the team grew stronger and their late season work was little short of marvelous.

Arthur Van Zandt led the team both as captain and quarterback and was re-elected as pilot for next season. The players who will be lost by graduation in June and who will be the greatest loss to the 1913 team are Good, fullback; McDowell, end; Dunwell, guard, and Carty, center. A fine corp of second string men were developed this fall and these will be ready to step into the shoes vacated by this year's stars.

The 1912 schedule resulted as follows:

High School of Commerce, at Plainfield, cancelled; Seton Hall 20, P. H. S. 7, at Orange; Bernardsville High School, at Bernardsville, cancelled; Westfield High School, cancelled; Phillipsburg High School 13, P. H. S. 0, at Phillipsburg; Rahway High School 21, P. H. SUBSTITUTE QUINTET OBLIGINGLY LOSES

Hope Chapel Finds It Doesn't Have to Worry Beating Company K.

Hope chapel followers gathered in the chapel gym Saturday night with the expectation of seeing the Grace church basketball team line up against their favorites but an eleventh hour cancellation resulted in the substitution of the Company K five. They were defeated by the score of 41 to 30. Although the Chapeljtes were not forced to overcome an unusual amount of opposition they did more passing than shooting and their team work was the bright feature of the contest.

At no time did the visitors look dangerous, and they were always contented in the role of runner-up. Without the service of Mulford Darling, who is a product of the Hope chapel court, the military players would have been an unknown quantity as far as scoring was concerned, for Darling scored 22 of their points with 10 field goals and two fouls. For Hope chapel, Allen Snyder and Johnny Heron led the scoring with five goals each.

The score:

NO BASKETBALL AT 'PLAINS.

On account of the death of Mrs. Mathiews, wife of Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, the basketball games scheduled to be played at the Scotch Plains Parish House gymnasium tonight have been called off and the Scotch Plains schedule will not be resumed for some time. There was a double header on the card for tonight, the Nonpareil Girls' five being booked to play the Scotch Plains girls and the Ajax were to have played the Scotch Plains' boys team. The girls game scheduled with Dunellen for the latter part of the week has also been called off.

MISS MARY BARTELME IS TO SERVE AS JUDGE OF CHICAGO COURT THAT LOOKS AFTER JUVENILE OFFENDERS

MISS MARY BARTELME

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Miss Mary M. Bartelme, for eighteen years public guardian of Cook county, Ill., is Chicago's first woman judge. Miss Bartelme was the choice of the judges of the Circuit Court, which considered several other women lawyers for the position. She will assist Judge Pinckney in the juvenile court and will direct most of her attention to girls who come under the court's jurisdiction. In her position as public guardian thousands of young girls came under her attention, and she is known to them as "Mother Bartelme." "My idea of being a judge," said Miss Bartelme, "is not so much to pass judgment as to assist unfortunates."

DOUBLE VICTORY FOR SCOTCH PLAINS FIVES

Visiting Teams Put up Inferior Games and Are Easily Disposed of.

Two Scotch Plains' basketball teams came out at the large end of one-sided scores at the Parish House, Saturday night, the Parish House five winning from a consolidated Y. M. C. A. five by the score of 37 to 14, and the senior class team defeating Mt. Pleasant by a count of 20 to 14. The preliminary contest between the senior class and Mt. Pleasant proved to be the most interesting attraction although the outcome was never in doubt and the Plains team won handily.

The main game turned out to be a walkover for the Lidgate bunch, and the six feet of brawn led his men in an exhibition of fast team work and accurate shooting. A number of substitutes were given a tryout by the Scotch Plains management and proved be valuable material to hold on a reserve squad.

NO MISHAPS ON LONG WATCHUNG HUNT CHASE

The Watchung Hunt Club enjoyed a run of about eighteen miles Saturday afternoon, meeting the hounds at the Plainfield Driving Park. Although about thirty-five fences and numerous ditches were negotiated there was not a mishap throughout the long chase. The hounds were thrown in on the Spier estate and the line led direct to Metuchen. They were thrown in again on the TenEyck farm and the run ended at Melrose Manor.

The going was a bit heavy, but the hounds set a fast pace. Huntsman Harrison, who was injured a week ago, was unable to take part in the chase. He is, however, well on the road to recovery. Those that met the hounds, half of whom finished were:

Rufus C. Finch, M. F. H.; J. J. O'Donohue, H. Stuart Hollis Harr; A. Bourne, Miss Gertrude Noe, F. D Fleach, Edward R. Finch, Stanle Bellows, J. Schuyler Casey, Hart S Farlee, Mrs. W. S. Brown, Beverle Brown, C. E. S. Bellows and R. H Towner.

CONANTS TO MOVE; CITY LOSES SPORT ENTHUSIAST

Mr. and Mrs. Alvah L. Conant, of Fairview avenue, will leave within a few days for Massachusetts where Mr. Conant is to enter on a new position. Mr. and Mrs. Conant are popular with a wide circle of acquaintances in the city and borough and the announcement of their removal has occasioned keen regret.

Mr. Conant has been prominent in athletics during his residence in this city and was director of games at the Charter Day meet in 1909. He promoted the five mile dual run between the Elizabeth and Plainfield Y. M. C. A. track teams on March 30, this year and took an active part in the detail work of the first annual meet of the local Y. M. C. A. which was held at Parker Field July 4. He was one of the leaders sent out from the local Y. M. C. A. to the New Jersey Boys' Camp at Lake Wawayanda during the summer of 1911 and a delegate to the State conference the same year at Trenton.

BURTON HOLMES TO LECTURE HERE ON THE PANAMA CANAL

Plainfielders will have the opportunity of hearing a Burton Holmes travelogue on the Panama Canal, Tuesday night, January 21. He will appear at the Plainfield theatre under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Circle of The King's Daughters. Burton Holmes is one of the best known lecturers on the American platform.

His lecture is illustrated in color and includes comparisons with other great canals of the world.

XMAS TREES ARE SELLING CHEAP

Holly Also Plentiful and Low Prices Prevail Generally Here Today.

MISTLETOE IS SCARCE

The Old Maids Mourn Because a Tiny Spray Commands $1.50—Trees Are to Be Had for a Song.

Early Christmas shopping does not always pay, if the present situation in the Christmas tree industry is any criterion. So many trees are on sale throughout the city, and so many people have already bought theirs, that one can buy one for a song at the present time. Last year there was a scarcity of trees, so the dealers said, with a great deal of holly and mistletoe. This year trees and holly are plentiful while mistletoe is extremely scarce. For just a little spray of mistletoe, about enough to put into a small cigar box without uncomfortably crowding the berries, one has to pay $1.50.

Considering that this is the fag end of leap year, the high cost of mistletoe is nothing less than a hardship on those girls to whom leap year has become a serious consideration.

The holiday business in Plainfield is said by merchants in every branch of the trade to have broken all records this year. In the department stores, it is declared, the receipts have run far over those of last year, which was the high year in Plainfield mercantile history.

That the agitation for early shopping has borne fruit is apparent. While the shops were crowded Saturday, the business place in which the doors were not locked at the announced hour was the exception. Time was when many stores did business well into the morning of the Sunday before Christmas. That conditions have changed is credited to the realization by the public that early shopping pays from the utilitarian and not the sentimental standpoint.

A peculiarity of the Christmas tree business is the fact that when they are high in price trimmings are cheap, and almost without deviation this continues year and year about. The only explanation of this condition is that gatherers of the greens harvest so many one year that the market is flooded. They then have to wait two years before there is another big crop.

The trees on sale here came from Canada and northern New York and others are shipped from Maine. Prices range from twenty-five cents for a little, or an apartment house, tree to $10 for the big fellow for a Sunday-school celebration. In New York the dealers so overdid their buying in anticipation of a shortage that they are now selling trees at ten and fifteen cents each.

DAY NURSERY BENEFIT.

A special meeting of Clan MacKenzie, 204, Order of Scottish Clans, was held last night and final arrangements were completed for the entertainment which will be presented by that lodge on January 23. It was decided to turn over ten per cent. of the proceeds resulting from the affair to the King's Daughters Day Nursery to be used in charity work. Tickets will be placed on sale at Robert Murray's store on West Front street, at once and the various members of the Clan will also be provided with tickets to dispose of. Robert Bailie was initiated as a clansman at the conclusion of the business meeting.

NO PAPER TOMORROW.

CITY MUST PAY COSTS OF COURT

Bill for $268 Presented to Common Council for Water Condemnation Suit.

FAVOR SKATING RINK

Equal Suffrage League's Endorsement for Parker Field Attraction—City Judge and Street Commissioner Present Reports.

The bill of the Supreme Court clerk amounting to $268, representing the costs in the action of the city against the Plainfield-Union Water Supply Company, which was lost by the city, was presented to the Common Council, at its adjourned meeting, last night, and referred to next year's Council. Inasmuch as the city lost in its action against the water company it will be obliged to pay the bill.

A communication from the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, commending the plan to provide a public skating rink at Parker Field, was filed. The bonds of Constables-elect A. D. Ayers and George R. Rockfellow were presented, referred to Corporation Counsel W. M. Stillman for approval, with instructions to be filed.

The State Board of Health communicated with the Council, warning the city not to extend its sanitary sewer system without the approval of the Board, explaining that it had been found that certain municipalities in the State had been guilty of this violation of the law. The notice was one of a general character, being sent to various municipalities in the State.

The Public Service Corporation notified the Council that six incandescent lights had been installed as directed by previous resolutions. There was also a petition for two lights on Bergen street, between West Third and Fourth streets, which was referred.

City Judge William G. DeMeza's annual report was as follows:

Number of cases, 1,082; fined, 161; committed to county jail, 57; sentence suspended, 681; non-support cases under bond, 4; dismissed, 53; not tried, 17; in charge of probation officer, 39; other departments, 30; referred to Grand Jury, 40; amount collected in fines, $1,781; general disbursements, $203; total disbursements, $462.86, leaving a balance of $1,318.14. This report together with that of the overseer of the poor, Henry L. DeForest, was filed.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of thirteen sewer permits last month. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District Court, reported receipts of $102.70, and an expenditure of $30.90 for the past month. The balance, $71.80, was turned over to City Treasurer W. F. Arnold.

The sum of $3,000 was borrowed for sewer extension work in accordance with a resolution by Mr. Mygatt, and a resolution offered by Mr. Endress and adopted, authorized the transfer of $200 to the poor fund to meet an obligation of $198.75 for making improvements at the alms house.

All matters pertaining to the joint sanitary sewer proposition were continued until the next meeting in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Mygatt. The city clerk was instructed to learn from Mr. Holt what disposition he would make of the matter at the next meeting, as it will be impossible to refer it to the new Council, he said. Council adjourned to Monday night, December 30, which will be the last meeting of the year.

SAENGERBUND AND FIRE HOUSE WEAR XMAS DRESS

The North Plainfield fire house is in gala attire in honor of Christmas, holly and evergreen branches having been lavishly distributed in decorative array at various places in the interior of the structure.

Saengerbund Hall is being trimmed today for the Christmas celebration to be held Wednesday, when recitations, songs and instrumental selections will form part of the elaborate program to be given by the members for the children of the borough. A large Christmas tree, laden with presents to be distributed by "Santa Claus," will be a feature of special delight to the youngsters.

PICTURES OF WOODROW WILSON

The Daily Press has on hand about fifty handsome photogravures of President-elect Woodrow Wilson, which we wish to dispose of at less than cost. They can be secured for five cents each by anyone who comes to the Daily Press office for them. tf

MRS. RANDOLPH HAS PASSED AWAY

Mother of L. W. Randolph Succumbs at the Age of Seventy-five Years.

AFTER WEEK'S ILLNESS

Two Sons and Two Daughters Survive Her—Funeral Services Thursday Evening—Interment at Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Abigail C. Randolph, aged 79 years, widow of Joseph C. Randolph and mother of L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, died this morning, at her home on East Front street, following an illness of one week which began with an attack of the grip. Despite her advanced years, Mrs. Randolph possessed wonderful vitality and prior to her illness was unusually vigorous.

Mrs. Randolph's maiden name was Miss Abigail C. Freeman. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Freeman and was born in this city, where she always lived. She was a faithful member of Trinity Reformed church, and a regular attendant at the services until prevented by illness.

Surviving are two sons, L. W. Randolph, of this city, and Leonard M. Randolph, of Newark; also two daughters, Mrs. Alfred B. Dunavan and Miss May Randolph, with whom Mrs. Randolph lived. The funeral service will be held at the late home on East Front street, Thursday evening. Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate and the burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

A SURPRISE PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McVoy, of West Fourth sereet, were delightfully surprised on the occasion of their twelfth wedding anniversary last night by twenty-five of their friends from Plainfield and New York. Mrs. McVoy was the recipient of a large silver punch ladle from her friends. The evening was spent in playing progressive "500" and the prizes awarded for the women were won by Mrs. J. R. H. Hall, first, and Mrs. Elizabeth Woodard, second. The men's prizes were won by Charles Clark, first, and William A. Cochran, second, while the consolation prize went to Mrs. Robert Gow. Refreshments were served.

A Word From Santa Claus.

Said Santy, ripe with Christmas glee,
"Although they turn the hose on me,

CHARMING DANCE FOR MISS RUSHMORE

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore Entertain at Stelle Avenue Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Rushmore, of Stelle avenue, gave a charming dance for their daughter, Miss Mary Rushmore, at the Park Club, last night. The affair was in the nature of a Christmas celebration and the idea was carried out in the attractive decorations of greens and holly berries. Mrs. Rushmore and her daughter, Miss Rushmore, received.

The dance was chiefly for the young people, including many who are home from college for the holiday season. There were about 200 guests, some of whom were from out of town.

The music was furnished by Van-Eps Brothers. About midnight there was an intermission, during which supper was served. The dancing then continued until the early hours of the morning. The program of dances was an attractive one, comprising many of the latest selections, and the orchestra was very generous to responding to encores.

FIRE AND POLICEMEN PAY INCREASE PASSED

Council at Special Meeting Last Night Gave Men Christmas Boost.

Prior to the regular adjourned meeting of the Common Council last night a special meeting was held solely for the purpose of passing the ordinance granting the regular members of the fire department an increase in salary according to the schedule recently announced. It was necessary that this ordinance be put on its third reading at a special and not adjourned session of the Council, and it will now become effective January 1.

During the adjourned meeting, Charles C. Randolph, chairman of the police committee, reported back the petition of the Class A men of the police department for back pay, which would amount to $40 in each case, together with an opinion of Corporation Counsel William M. Stillman, in which the latter favored the proposition. But owing to the lateness in the year it was decided to refer the matter to the 1913 Council.

ATTACKED BY BOW-WOW.

Daniel W. Littell, Jr., of 715 West Seventh street, complained to the local police this morning that a bull dog, the property of Mrs. Holland, of 704 West Seventh street, had attacked him on various occasions in Spooner avenue.

PERFORM AUTOPSY ON FRED VAN NEST

Skillman Man's Death Due to Internal Injuries Caused by Collision.

DRIVER GIVES VERSION

Says Victim Was Trying to Ride Between His Lights and Never Thought His Injuries Would Prove Fatal.

Dr. William H. Anthony, of this city, upon the request of Dr. F. W. Westcott, county physician, performed an autopsy yesterday afternoon upon Fred VanNest, of Skillman, whose death resulted from injuries received in a collision while riding his motorcycle near Westfield on Sunday morning. The autopsy was performed at the hospital. Dr. Ray T. Munger, of Fanwood, represented the county physician.

The autopsy showed that VanNest had received internal injuries about the lungs which together with the fracture of the leg caused death. Undertaker Henry DeMott took charge of the body and later an undertaker from Hopewell received it and made arrangements for the funeral which will be held at Skillman.

John McDonald, the owner and driver of the rig, with which VanNest collided, lives at 547 West Fifth street, this city. In speaking of the fatality today, McDonald said:

"My brother, Martin McDonald, of Garwood, and John Crowley and Fred Decker, of Cranford, had been to Elizabethport and were on our way to Plainfield. When we reached Garwood we met a policeman, asked him the time and drove on. It was soon after that that the accident occurred. I was driving the horse and as we rode along the county road I looked up and saw the lights of the motorcycles coming toward us. William Cooper, VanNest's brother-in-law, was in the lead and he passed us quite a distance ahead of the other machine. It was but a few seconds later, when VanNest ran into my rig. He struck the shaft on the right of the road, breaking it and taking off the front wheel. How he escaped the horse is a mystery.

"I realized that the man was seriously injured and after we got to Dr. Decker's office at Westfield, I insisted upon his notifying the police. I had two good coupe lights on my carriage, one of which was damaged. I asked VanNest if he was trying to ride between the lights, and he replied: "I guess so." I knew that there would be trouble as the result of the accident and it was my intention to seek damages from VanNest, feeling sure that it was his fault. At the time I had no idea that his injuries would prove fatal."

LODGED IN JAIL AS A BIGAMIST

Police Chief Kiely Found Wm. H. Riley in Mass. Town and Brought Him Back.

HE ADMITS HIS GUILT

First Wife Made Complaint and Secured an Indictment—Prisoner Had Taken Plainfield Widow as Second Wife.

Police Chief Patrick Kiely went to Shelbourne Falls, Mass., yesterday to arrest William H. Riley, formerly of this city, on a charge of bigamy and he returned late last night with the prisoner. Riley was indicted by the Union County Grand Jury and will be taken to the county jail at Elizabeth today to await arraignment. Riley is also wanted by the authorities of New York City on a charge of having deserted his first wife, Mrs. Mary Mitchell Riley, of Brooklyn, whom it is claimed he left previous to his marriage in this city on May 25, 1911, to Mrs. Mary McGuinness, wife of the late Thomas McGuinness, who was at one time a yard conductor of the Central Railroad.

The prisoner, it is claimed by the police, had lived in Brooklyn with his lawful wife and child, whom he deserted sometime in 1910, coming to this city where it is said he boarded with Mrs. Mary McGuinness, in Arlington avenue. According to the police the pair were married May 25, 1911. In the meantime Mrs. Riley No. 1, appeared here and revealed her identity. She had previously made a charge of desertion against her husband before the New York authorities, and Riley's indictment on the bigamy charge by the grand jury followed.

Learning that the alleged bigamist was living with his second wife and another child in the Massachusetts town, Chief Kiely went to that place and took him into custody. Asked regarding the charges made against him, Riley acknowledged his guilt. He waived requisition and was back on the first train.

BIGGEST RUSH EVER AT LOCAL POSTOFFICE

The holidy rush at the local postoffice far exceeds that of any year for many years past. In addition to the regular staff of clerks and carriers, Postmaster E. H. Bird was obliged to engage more than the usual extra help to take care of the incoming and outgoing mail of all classes.
